Editorial Notes.

Come let us anew our journey pursue,
Roll round with the year,
And never stand still till the Master appear.
His adorable will let us gladly fulfill,
And our talents improve,
By the patience of hope and the labor of love.
Our life is a dream, our time, as a stream,
Glides swiftly away,
And the fugitive moment refuses to stay.
The arrow is flown, the moment is gone;
The millenial year
Rushes on to our view, and eternity's here.
O, that each in the day of his coming may say
"I have fought my way through;
I have finish'd the work Thou didst give me to do."
O, that each from his Lord may receive the glad word,
"Well and faithfully done;
Enter into my joy, and sit down on my throne"

Happy New Year and many returns.

Review the past, and profit by its lessons, preview the future and advance with faith.

"Confidence in an unfaithful man in time of trouble is like a broken tooth and a foot out of joint."

"I shall give to the SOUTHWESTERN twelve subscribers next year." Rev. F. D. Bowers.—Who can read these constant words of cheer and be content to take no hand in this good and noble work?

One of the most hopeful signs with which we meet in our work, is the universal request to correct mistakes. Men who can admit the possibility of their being mistaken and ask for correction are in a most hopeful condition. We always try to correct when we find them.

Let all our people look back to the vows they made on the 1st of January 1884, and they will thereby find that it is possible to fall from grace. The only preventive to a recurrence of this experience in the year 1885, is to be secured by watchfulness, prayer and a life of faith in the son of God.

Through inundations and conflagrations, prosperity, and adversity, sickness, and health, abundance and limitations, joys and sorrows, sunshine and shadow, rest and labor, hopes and fears, faith and doubt, peace and confusion, politic opposition and social anxiety, Christian endeavor and Satanic opposition, we have come to the end of 1884.

Bishop Mallalieu is busy at work. His first Sabbath was devoted to pulpit service at 11 a.m. in Asbury and at 7:30 in Union Methodist Episcopal Church. The former is white and the latter a colored congregation. He is to preside at all the Louisiana Conferences, and will make a good impression here.

Faith is not an ordinary act of the mind, but a special act of grace, whereby we are enabled to receive and trust God.

Pennington, Texas, Dec. 20th, 1884, Marshall W. Taylor, Sir—"Since your election to the SOUTHWESTERN, the column devoted to 'Domestic Hygiene,' is well worth the $1.50. Yours truly, J. C. Carter."—The writer for that department is an eminent Christian physician.

Justification is the knowledge of pardon for past sins, regeneration is the operation of God within us by which we are enabled to do right, and sanctification is the perfection of the work of regeneration so that we will desire, and aim only to do right; arm yourself with these and go boldly forward into the mysterious depths of 1885.

Mr. George W. Cable's article on "The Freedman's Case in Equity," which will appear in the January Century, is a timely contribution to current literature in the light of recent discussions in the Southern papers. Mr. Cable, who is a Southerner and an ex-Confederate soldier, calls upon the white people of the South to make the position of the black race not that of "freedmen" but of "free men."

Messrs. Phillips & Hunt, 32 Natchez St., New Orleans—Please send, by mail or express to my address at this place, as many "Plantation Melodies" as the inclosed $3 will buy. My wife wants them for Christmas presents for the children. I am a member of Kansas Annual Conference, was in the "regular work" for 22 years; am now on supernumerary list, and live with wife, son and daughter in law and family; manufacturing lumber, preach occasionally and try to furnish the people with a wholesome example of liberality, fidelity, impartiality, promptness, temperance and industry. In these things I have the aid of my wife, with whom I have lived in Christian love for fifty years.—A minister, whose name we withhold wrote the above letter to our office it has a higher worth than its financial value.—[ED.

The Negro at the Centennial

"The sun do move." If not the sun the Negro does and upwards too. Scenes at the Great Centennial Conference in Baltimore. Note first the center of the platform. The man who occupies the chair as president of this session is Bishop J. P. Campbell, of the African M. E. Church, a short, stout man, with smooth and pleasant face, short, gray hair, and as black as night. He is a prompt and skillful chairman. A full blooded African, presiding over a Conference composed of delegates from all Episcopal Methodism, held in the once slave state of Maryland! Yes, and receiving respect equal to that given to any other president. The world moves.

Almost in front of the chairman and within the altar rail, sits Dr. B. T Tanner, of the African M. E. Church, the other Assistant Secretary. Dr. Tanner is about as tall as the presiding Bishop, not quite so heavy in body, and in color about midway between the presiding officer and the other secretaries. He is a ready speaker, an able writer, and at present editor of The Review, the only magazine of his church. Such are the officers.

Dr. Marshall W. Taylor, was Invited to Read a Paper at the Centennial.

The work of a delegate was in one case only to listen and enjoy. The programme cut and dried before hand, gave no place to any colored men belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Church. Although there was a fair proportion of colored speakers, they were all selected from the colored denominations. Perhaps when the next Centennial comes, the Committee of Arrangements may awaken to the fact that there are colored members of their own denomination, represented by colored men, the peers not only of any in the African and Zion connections, but the equals of their white brethren as well. The complaint is not ours, but a general one, although we have noticed the disposition on the part of many of our white Methodists to pet the preachers of the colored denominations and slight the colored preachers of their own. It would have looked much better if Ex-Senator Revels or Dr. Marshall W. Taylor had been put on the list of speakers. — Delaware Conference Standard.

The Committee on Arrangement of programme did just what the Standard says it should have done. Dr. Marshall W. Taylor was appointed a delegate by the Bishop, and requested to write on the subject of "The mission of Methodism to all classes," by the committee. They excused us from this duty, only upon our own peremptory request. The whole arrangement was wisely planned to avoid even the semblence of partiality in any direction. Our Church has been conducting interests which have an influence, and a direct effect wider than the Church itself, reaching even to other churches. This has made it needful for as much fraternity as possible to be cultivated between the different churches and our own. And if any mistake has at any time been made in this direction, the time for it and of it is now passed forever.

The colored branches in Methodism and some other denominations were ahead of us at the start in their wealth of well educated, and well known colored men. Many of our leading white men were educated in the same schools, at the same time, with some of these colored men, as for instance Dr. R. S Rust, and the late Henry H. Garnett, and Dr. Purvis went to school together; and these causes have led to a seeming preference for others even to an apparent but not real discrimination against men of prominence in our own Church. But the end is at hand, we have now as many and as highly cultivated colored men as any of them. Our sons will be there when the bi Centennial celebration shall awaken the echoes, and recall the shades out of the depths of two centuries of American Methodism.

We thank the Standard for the real interest it has taken in our welfare. It is a good paper, very useful to the extent intended, and has an editor who does not fear to look the world in the face, and speak his real mind. We should have been in Baltimore but for the coming of our conferences at the same season with it, making our presence absolutely needful here in the South.

Hon. Richard T. Greener, of Washington, D. C., has placed this office under renewed obligations to him for valuable African documents sent us, concerning Liberia. He is an honored friend and to our thought the leading young man of the country in secular and political matters.

Extract of the Great Sermon Preached at the Centennial Conference in Baltimore, Md., Dec. 9th, 1884.

BY REV. RANDOLPH S. FOSTER, BISHOP OF M. E. CHURCH.

The wealth of the rich enables them to live better than the poor, to wear finer clothes, to have more home comforts, to surround themselves with elegance and state. Who shall say that it is wrong? But the rich man does not stop with this. He assumes to be better than the poor man—lifts himself up with pride, neglects him, oppresses him by his arrogant treatment.

The poor man must not cross his threshold. He must stand like a menial at his gate. He must take off his hat when he comes into his presence. He must be humble and deferential even when he asks for his own, and thankful when he gets it. He must live in his humble home and be content with his scanty fare. Must learn to deny himself and see his children put to disadvantage without complaining or aspiring to anything better. He is poor—these are his lot—they are good enough for him. He must be cheerful and not mar the happiness of his rich neighbor, often his oppressor, as he goes bowing with age or indigence to the grave. A great gulf is dug deep and impassable. Is there no wrong? Because there is no legal claim, is there therefore no claim?

He turns to the Church of God. Here at least he says, I shall find a refuge. It is my Father's house, with whom there is no respect of person. These are my brothers. They will not add to the bitterness of my poverty, by frowning upon me, or turning away with disdain, as we kneel together before our common Father. He approaches its door and finds it closed—finds that even his Father's house has no place for him, that he is an intruder, that even Heaven seems to have discriminated against him. Is it any marvel that he does not return—that the masses do not attend the churches—that they grow savage at what, to them in their hard lot, seem the hollow names of priest and temple?

How is this great gulf to be bridged? You Christians have no greater practical question before you than this. There must be an answer found or the masses will never be reached—they will drift farther and farther away, and Christianity itself will be one more added to the long list of failures. But the answer will be found. God will yet have a Church that will solve this perplexing riddle. The cure will not come from human legislation. It will spring and flow forth from the altars of God when He shall have better and wiser children than we are.

It is idle and worse than idle to say the doors of the churches are not closed. In the large towns and cities many of them are as effectually closed as if guards were set about them. It is impossible to evade the responsibility. We may ignore the question, but we cannot escape the solemn consequence.

The school and church are essentials which the money of the rich must provide for the poor and aid to support when they are provided. The Church with all its benefits is the common property of God's children, saints and sinners. To exclude any of them or fail to provide for them is a practical denial of Christ. To set up distinctions at the altar when we assemble to worship a common Father is a reproach to Him and a sin against His children, who are in His sight equal.

No one can assume in the light of prudential history that it is wrong to build magnificent churches. The temple, built under God's immediate direction has never been surpassed in costliness, but it made no distinction between the rich and the poor. If for any reason costly churches, built to meet the tastes of the refined and wealthy, shall prove practically to exclude a large class, then we must provide plainer structures in which they will find greater freedom and comfort, and we must preserve the option in every case so that all will be accommodated with freedom of access to any and all of God's altars as they may elect. The perfect freedom of God's house is the rule. Liberty of election of the place of worship, bringing it within the convenience of all—the point of adjustment. Thus all can be accommodated with a free place in the house of God as their circumstances and proper tastes may dictate. With such provisions congregations will adjust themselves.

The theory is not impracticable. It is practicably realized in all the old countries and among Protestants and Romanists alike. It is left for the plain democratic people of liberty loving America, people who deny aristocracy, who proclaim in their constitution the doctrine of human equality and for Christians—Protestant Christians, who claim pre-eminence for Christly character, to set barriers of class distinction at the door of the sanctuary of God. The burning shame falls upon Protestants recreant to our royal antecedents, it comes home to us. How can we answer for this? Who is it that hath said: "My brethren have not the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of Glory, with respect of persons. For if there come unto your assembly a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in also a man in vile raiment, and ye have respect to him that weareth the gay clothing and say unto him sit thou here in a good place, and say to the poor stand thou there or sit here under my footstool; are ye not then partial in yourselves and are become judges of evil thoughts. Hearken, my beloved brethren. Hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom, which he hath promised to them that love Him. But ye have despised the poor."

Various expedients are proposed—the establishment of missions, the employment of tract distributors, street preaching and a multitude of such things, all of which point more to the defect than to the remedy. What they want and what they have a right to have, and what they must have, and what their fathers and sons will see that they do have, is the whole Church, and not a beggarly crumb only from its table, and that given in a way to be unsavory and to hurt rather than to help. Any perfunctory attempt to meet the want will fail. His church, pulpit and pew, will yet go, with warm and generous love to the perishing, will cease to be exclusive, will open generous doors to the highways and hedges, will break down all barriers, and God's pure and neglected children will be welcomed to his house. The standing reproach will be taken away. The fountain of healing will flow from the altars of God, but it will be when Christian preachers and people mean to save men. What is wanted is honest love for men—honest desire to be brotherly. The problem is a hard one, but this will solve it. Love is the mighty elixir. There is no love for men. Love will devise ways and means.

The Church has but just one work and function on earth. It exists as the Kingdom of God among men. Its real components are regenerate souls. It is the body of Christ still living on earth. Its functions is to build up and perpetuate a divine and holy commonwealth. Men are perishing in sin and ignorance. Its work is to save them—the completion of the work for which its founder came into the world and laid down his life. It is not a house of ease or elegance for rest merely, or for comfort or delectation. It is a divine community in which every member is filled with inspirations and loaded with duties. Its very genius and law is self sacrifice. Its worship is work and its work is worship. It builds itself by building others. It lives by the day. It cannot lay up a store to-day that it may rest to-morrow. It must be forever busy—busy in the home, busy in the highways, busy in the sanctuary, busy with its hand, busy with its money, busy with its brains, busy rolling back wild sorrow, busy rolling in the day; busy, and brave, and generous and hopeful—never wearying or despairing. Her honor is her work and her work is her honor.

Two colossal sins are cursing this nation with a blight as the boils or bloody water of Egypt. These are religious caste and intemperance. Against the latter of these God has raised a band of holy mothers to combat, and of the struggle there can be but one issue, the final overthrow of this herculean crime. Against the other Bishop Foster has deliberately hurled all his mighty powers of soul and culture. In this sermon it is not color caste but money caste Poverty is an outlawed character, be the possessor white or black, and the whole church of America has given too much ground to the sway of this hydra monster. But now the war upon it is real. The keynote comes from the pulpit of the nation. It is the accumulated wrath of a hundred years of Methodism uncorked and poured out without stint upon the doomed remains of putrid and all corrupting slavery. We are sure this will bring a happy New Year to our readers, as they trace in it the sign of the times as clearly depicted as if written across the open heavens in living light, relieved by a background of beaten gold. Bishop Foster has stirred the sluggish blood of American Christianity to a quicker motion, and mighty good results therefrom, and borne thereon linger, but will not slumber, just ahead. Hail, mighty son of Methodism! Verily the mantle of Simpson has fallen on his princely shoulders. Hail, all hail.

When any of our readers visit the great Exposition in New Orleans, we request them to attend Ames Chapel, corner St. Charles and Felicity streets, and thus cheer the heart of Pastor Thomas Stalker. He has gone into a rather barren and unpromising field, but is hard at work, trying to develop the germs of good things that may yet be hidden. He is an able preacher, a good and pious man, and we hope for his success.—Michigan Christian Advocate.

From the Districts.

Ohio District.

REV. JOSEPH COURTNEY, P. E.

This district has suffered immensely financially from the general suspension of business. Ohio is a great manufacturing State. The principal portion of our work is located in manufacturing cities and towns. The shutting down of these establishments in consequence of the presidential election works hardships to the church and people generally. The long continued low stage of water in the Ohio river has had a great deal to do with making times close, especially in the river cities and towns. The district, however, is progressing admirably well, the benevolent interests are not neglected, and the brethren are now beginning pro tracted meetings with visible signs of spiritual success. In the line of material and permanent progress a good work is being accomplished. A neat church edifice has been purchased and paid for in Cleveland, Ohio; it is located on Ferest and Garden streets. We are greatly indebted to Revs. J. B. Cary and Wm. Sampson, and others, for valuable assistance financially. Rev. James H. Payne, the unparalleled worker and church builder, is the pastor. He also has $117 in treasury for purchasing church property in Elyria, Ohio.

At Madisonville and Milford, O., new church lots have been bought at both places, and the church buildings, which were in out-of-the-way places, are being moved and re-erected on the newly purchased sites. Rev. Charles H. Pyles is pastor.

At Delaware, Ohio, a splendid church property has been purchased; it is in a beautiful location. The outlook for our church there is very favorable. Rev. W. T. [illegible], the pastor, is pushing things with energy and interest. Bowman Chapel, at Aberdeen, Ohio, has been freed from debt at last, through the judicious administration of Rev. Jacob Allen Ross.

The church at Mayslick, Ky., is being raised and otherwise remodeled, which will be very beneficial in every particular. Rev. Geo. W. Reed is pastor.

The new Scott Chapel at Maysville, Ky., is about ready for the congregation to worship in the basement. It is built after Church Extension plan No. 14. For beauty, durability, and architectural finish it is considered by the citizens generally to be the best church edifice in the city. Rev. J. W. Moreland, the pastor, has a good working membership and congregation, by whom he is much beloved.

Rev. W. S. Lankford, who was stationed at Union Chapel, Cincinnati, O., has been transferred by Bishop Bowman to Little Rock Conference and stationed at Little Rock, Ark. Rev. N. A. Elliott a supernumerary of Lexington Conference is his successor. Also Rev. J. J. Holland, of Steubenville, O., on account of too much northern latitude and ill health has been transferred by Bishop Walden to Central Alabama Conference, and stationed at Decatur, Ala. He says that he will not be able to leave for his new field of labor before the middle or last of January, 1885.

Lexington, Ky.

Morristown District Conference.

BY REV. D. W. HAYS.

On Thursday the 27th inst., the Morristown district conference convened in Greeneville, Tennessee, a quiet village, noted as the home of ex-President Andrew Johnson. The [illegible] of the kind which [illegible] to have a warm [illegible] travels. We [illegible] which the session was [illegible] substantial Home [illegible] as an audience [illegible] the town. It should [illegible] that it was here [illegible] presiding elder, Rev. S. J. Harris, and the duties of the secretary were satisfactorily settled by Rev. F. L. Donohoo.

The usual routine of work occupied the attention of the conference the first day until 11 o'clock a. m., when an interesting thanksgiving service was held. Remarks were made by F. L. Donohoo, S. J. Harris and the writer. The audience was not large but it could be easily seen that the few present entered heartily into the spirit of occasion. As the two following days were devoted to the session, ample time was allowed for the hearing of reports, and the discussion of the several topics brought forward.

The financial condion of the district was considered but it was found impracticable to adopt any plan for its improvement. Had there been a better attendance of pastors and other members of the body, something very desirable might have been devised along this line. It is to be hoped that proper attention will be given to the Disciplinary requirements respecting the collections, and that our people on each charge and circuit will show toward all benevolent causes a liberality that shall indicate the existence of a spirit of Christ-like self denial among them. We ought to strike for something grand in our Centennial year.

Rev. W. A. Ghannon, a local preacher, of Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington, D. C., was present with us and made a very favorable impression. The elder has appointed him to supply the Johnson City circuit.

Our people at Greeneville know how to sing and they do it. They certainly deserve credit for the excellent rendering of choice hymns, and melodies. That they can sing so well without the aid of an instrument, demonstrates that poor singing in our churches is not justifiable on the plea that the congregation is unable to purchase an organ and pay a performer.

Sister Morris, who acts as volunteer sexton, seems to be a leader among the young people. She owns a nice home near by the church where Methodist preachers are sure to find a welcome at all times. Elder Harris and the writer were the guests of Mr. Rufus Vance, one of the oldest residents of the place. He has been janitor of the of the court-house at Greeneville ever since the war. He is a hard working, industrious man, and owns several lots in town, besides a good farm in the country. From him we learned much useful information respecting the condition of our people in that locality. Harmony exists between them and the whites. Not a few own property in real estate. They have a flourishing school, which demands the service of two teachers. There are three churches with some prospect of another not a great way off. The pastor of our church, Bro. A. Gillespie, is not lacking, it seems, in earnestness. The arrangment for the entertainment of the conference was all that could be expected.

Rev. J. S. Hill, president Morristown Seminary, was prevented from being present, on account of sickness in his family, much to the regret of the conference. He sent a communication, however, which showed the school to be enjoying unusual prosperity. He urged upon the brethren increased diligence in the work of advancing our educational interests throughout the district. We all were made sorry by the news of Bishop Wiley's death. He was held in high esteem for his noble Christian character, and his memory will be cherished by us with tender regard. The deep interest manifested by him in our welfare at all times, and under all circumstances will give his name a warm place in our hearts.

The conference will hold its next meeting at Coal Creek, near Clinton.

Knoxville, Tennessee.

The French Chamber of Deputies has adopted resolutions opposed by the Government fixing the [illegible] of senators, and providing for their election by suffrage [illegible] scrutin de liste.

Letters from the Pastors.

Rev. Geo. A. Sissle, Sharpsburg, Ky., writes: "I have learned, as never before, the meaning of the Master's words when he said, "I send you forth as sheep among wolves." I have also realized as never before the comforts of the blessed promises The Lord has been my helper, and whatever has been accomplished through my administration the praise belongs to him. I only feel to be an humble instrument in his hand. I have endeavored to give myself wholly to the work, and do my best by my Master's help to build up his kingdom; and if there have been any mistakes or errors they have been of the head and not of the heart. I have nothing to regret of being appointed to this work, as it has all been made plain to me as being a divine appointment. There was a work for me to do here, and I have tried to do it, and if I have not I stand chargeable to him that knoweth all hearts, for he hath said, my dear brethren, our work shall be tried as by fire. Feeling my work mostly accomplished in this place, I am ready to turn it over to another, and pray sincerely that success may crown his labors, and that he may carry the work on to perfection. The future is bright; and allow me to say the harvest is great and the laborers are few; there is yet a great work to be done in Sharpsburg. I have given myself to the itinerancy of this great church. I am now only waiting orders. There have been some cloudy days and dreary seasons, but in the midst of them Jesus has been on board stilling the tempest and guiding the old ship. I and the official members have had a pleasant season in our official relations. There has been peace and harmony in all our deliberations and union in action. The flock which has been committed to my charge by the assistance of the sole pastors, has been diligently watched and cared for. The Sunday-school, which is to be the future church, has nowise been neglected, but on all occasions has been carefully cared for and especially instructed in those things which we conceive to be the most beneficial. Our school at present is in a good condition, which you will conceive so to be when our beloved superintendent shall have reported. There have been 31 received into full membership this conference year; excluded, 8; died, 3. For the three years received on probation, 105; into full membership, 48; probationers dropped or unknown, 43; list who remained on probation, 14; received by letter, 5; dismissed by letter, 8; excluded from church, 9; died, 6; number of full members, males, 25; females, 59; total, 84. Financial report for the three years up to date:

I solicit the prayers of the conference.

Rev. C. H. Pyles, pastor Milford Circuit, Ohio, writes: "The new building of Second Methodist Episcopal Church in Milford is nearly completed. The old location was an exceedingly unsuitable one, and last summer the members and friends of the church undertook to move it from what was known as "Happy Hollow" to this place. Our fourth quarterly meeting will be held in the edifice, and Rev. Joseph Courtney will preach the opening sermon. We have been greatly aided by the following brothers and sisters, with others of the charge, viz: Bros. Henry Broadus, Henry Clay, Marcus Thornton, Theodore Wilson, and Sister Thornton. Sister Thornton's services has been unexampled, and her value to the church and cause can not be estimated."

Rev. W. P. Forrest, pastor of Pleasant Plains Church, New Orleans, writes: "I was appointed by Bishop I. W. Wiley, at the annual conference held Jan. 30 to Feb. 4, to Pleasant Plains M. E. Church. I entered immediately upon my work and had a pleasant presiding elder, and every quarterly sermon was instructive and good. We had Baalam and old Jezebel to fight the whole year through, and, under God, we can say, at the closing of the fourth quarterly conference, that we have captured them, the Lord has delivered them into our hands. And just now we feel that another year's work will make this church what it ought to have been for the last seven years. They have eaten our bread, used our conference money, and have lifted their heels against us. On the 21st inst., Presiding Elder Cushman preached at 7 p. m.; the words of his text were "Lord revive thy work." Every word was a nail driven in a sore place. We earnestly pray that the conference will give us Presiding Elder Cushman another year A warrior in the field."

Rev. W. H. Jackson, Brenham Circuit, writes, Dec. 10: "Since I left conference, with the aid of Bro. Caise Bell, I have completed the parsonage and moved into it. It is a neat little mansion 12x14 in first room, 8x14 in second, and built upon an acre of land near Pleasant Grove that was recently donated by Bro. Kiah Roberts. Sunday, Dec. 7th, was a time of refreshing. One joined by recommendation. Pray for us. I herewith send you five new subscribers."

Letters From the Laity.

Miss Lena Boyd, Lewisport, Ky., writes: "We have just held the first centennial meeting in the Bowling Green district of the Lexington Conference, We had a glorious time, The Rev. R. W. Crumbaker preached to us, on the history of the Methodist Church. The church loves Mr. Crumbaker, and the Rev. A. Booker also, who is our presiding elder. We raised $7 for the cause. Rev. R. W. Crumbaker has been with us nearly two years, and has done a great deal of good. Our membership numbers 24 now. We have closed our protracted meeting. There were three conversions. We had to close our meeting on account of the sickness of the Rev. Mr. Crumbaker, our pastor."

J. C. Davis, Esq., Sharpsburg, Ky., writes: "The Lord has blessed us bountifully this year, and we thank him for sending us such an able minister of the Gospel. Under the administration of our beloved Bro. G. A. Sissle we have persuaded 31 souls to believe in Jesus Christ, and are now telling the story of Moses and the Lamb. Though only a handful in number we have collected the following sums: For pastor, $281.65; presiding elder, $50; assistant pastor, $48.21, benevolent $32; incidental, $88.22; total $530.08. On the part of the pastor there has been no stone left unturned, and apparently from the work done, not an hour fooled away, and we know that he is well enough known by you for us to say more in the way of praise, but suffer us to say a few words in the way of eulogy about this earnest worker. Morally he is as square as a cube, go up to him on any side you may and you will find him the same George Sissle; he is a loyal-hearted gentleman. Spiritually he is a Christian from the center out, a living Clavichord; in short, he possesses a constellation of ministerial virtues, and among his flock, like Paul of old, he is not only willing to impart the Gospel but puts his own soul in the bargain; his greatest joy is in laboring much for the salvation of men, and with his broad, far-reaching ideas, and go-ahead ambition, he has led like a hero in the strife, and gave us a long pull for palace beautiful. Oft times when it seemed that everything worked against us, when tempted to sin, when it seemed that everything went by way of contraries, by seeking his presence and holy counsel, there, from the depth of his soul came bubbling up that water of fervent devotion mingled with that fatherly counsel truly a balm for our woes, strength to our wearied soul, bread in time of hunger, an oasis in a desert. May God bless him. We ask an interest in your prayers, and we will tell the story more elaborately on a day not far distant."

West Texas Conference.

Report of Presiding Elder Waco District.

BY REV. S. GATES.

Bishop and Brethren:— It is impossible to name the year that the work on the Waco district was in a better spiritual condition than now. On every charge there has been a number of conversions. The financial condition of the work is not as good as in former years; shortness of crops is prevelent through my district, some farmers will not make one bales of cotton to 15 acres. Nearly half of my preachers have raised their assessments. W. J. Mitchell at Bremond, has built a church this year that will be worth, when completed, $1,000. There is a small debt hanging over it. There are two churches on the Calvert work, one was blown down by a storm not long since, but B. F. Smith, the pastor, has rebuilt it.

At Dallas $59 is on hand for church improvements early next year. Bro. Young, the pastor has had 16 conversions this year. Rev. A. R. Norris was appointed by Bishop Andrews but left his work, and thus Rev. C. Young took charge. On the Denison and McKinney work there are three churches. We instructed the pastors and trustees of the church at McKinney to sell the church and property, as the members were few and hope for growth all gone. A nice church at Davison has been built and will be worth $1,000 when completed. Rev A. Lockhart, pastor of the East Waco work, has accomplished very little and comparatively nothing in the way of improving, but has had thirty odd conversions. Rev. D. C. Lacey, a local preacher, was stationed at Fort Worth and Pilot Point, in Rev. C. Young's stead.

Rev. Jefferson Buell on the Groesbeck mission has done very little good in the way improvements He has had thirty-three conversions The spiritual condition of the church is good and all the converts joined our church. At Hubbard City and Antioch, Alfred Brown has made no improvement, but had ten conversions, all of which joined our church. He will attend one of our high schools next year. Kosse is a new work, Rev. James A. Hall labored there this year. A church lot has been purchased and twenty-five members gathered.

Rev. A. Taylor has charge of Rifle Point and Majors. This is also a new work; eleven conversions were made, and all joined our church. At Marlin and Big Creek Bro. Dr. Humphires is pastor. There are two churches on this work that were in debt but he came near paying it all out. He had eight or more conversions. On the Marlin Circuit Rev. G. Wilson had 28 conversions, and cleared the church of debt. There are good churches on this work. At Mexia Rev. Willis Medlock made no improvement. He has had 4 or 5 converts. Milford and Chambers Creek has no church, but Rev. A. Brack has purchased a lot and has $161 of good subscriptions, and will build soon; 13 converts were also had and all joined our church but three. Rev. G. Bragner has not done much at Spring Hill in the way of paying off debts. He had 12 or 14 conversions this year. On the Waco mission Rev. Wm. Brown has had something near twenty conversions. St. James, Rev. J. R. Carnes, the pastor had to labor under a great many discouraging circumstances, first in the early part of the year he was called to mourn the loss of his old mother, and soon after his affectionate wife, then followed his only child; otherwise he has done remarkable. Old church debts have been paid, and 4 church lots bought at the cost of $600 and paid for. Thirty-nine conversions were made and quite a number added to the church.

Waco, Texas.

Report of the Presiding Elder, Austin District for 1884.

BY C. L. MADISON.

We began the year's work with 1622 full members, and 143 probationers. The statistics in our printed minutes will show more than this number for 1883 but they are wrong and here is the cause. In the first place it will be seen that the Austin mission is reported twice in the same statistics. Once as having 171 full members, and again as having 122, this last number is or was correct, in footing up both of these numbers was counted, which gave to that circuit 172 more members than was there. Again, McDade and Elgin is reported as having ninety-six members, when there was no such appointment; there was such a one but it was changed to McDade and Giddings, at the conference of 1882. It is reported as Giddings and Burton and had 68 members; these two numbers were put in and added together, when the ninety six should have been left; also Wesley Chapel reported 500 members, when they had only 450, (the pastor, Bro. Swann said so himself). There was a report of three members on the Bastrop circuit, when there was not a member. Now let us add these together and see what we get: Austin mission, 172; McDade and Giddings, 96; Wesley Chapel, 50; Bastrop circuit, 3; here is the result, we have 321, more full members than any one knows anything about. Well, what is the cause of such a mistake as this? I answer, first the statistical secretaries take the old minutes each year and write the names of the stations and circuits from them, and there being no report from that place they put down the membership of the previous year, and then they find the new report under a new name and put that down, so they report the same people twice. Well, some one says why do you change the names of your circuits so often? I answer, our people are not settled, they move from one place to another, and the church must move with them if she would do them any good. They live on these large farms in great numbers, they cannot buy the land, and as they get able they move off and buy homes, and here we build our churches, and settle down to stay. These facts will not seem strange to a Bible reader, "The Tabernacle must be moved until we reach the land of promise." Secondly, the reason of the false report is, the preachers sometimes add the names of all they receive into the church to those they find enrolled when they take charge of the work; they take no notice of those whom they expel or that move off or die. Some of them are afraid to make the proper report for fear there will be a falling off in the membership they represent.

Now the work for 1884 is as follows. There was 341 conversions, 350 additions to the church on this district. Last year there was twenty-four Sunday-schools with 977 scholars of all ages. This year we have twenty-seven schools and 1218 scholars of all ages. These figures will show an increase in both church and schools. Our benevolent collections last year were $277; on this district this year they are $369; on this district last year we raised for building and improving churches and parsonages $2,409; this year we raised $2,886, for that purpose. Last year's reports shows $2,697 raised for ministerial support; this year the people paid for ministerial support $3,299; so there will be seen a great increase in the financial condition of the Austin district. As this is my last year as presiding elder I hope to be able to make a better report than ever. Brethren, look to the Lord and work for the lead.

We are sorry to loose Bros. Henderson, Robinson and Mosely out of our district, they were all good workers. Elders Carmichael and Davis may count on them for all they can do. We got for them Bros. W. J. Mitchell and A. Brack, they must be a power as we had to give two for one. I will do my whole duty as presiding elder, the Lord being my helper. I mean success and must have it. Pray, read and preach, brethren, and victory is ours. Yours in Christ Jesus.

Austin Texas, Dec. 11, 1884.

Reports of Committee on Memoirs.

BY REV. JACKSON CAESAR.

We, your committee on memoirs beg leave to report, after careful examination find that Mr. Jackson Caesar was born in Louisiana in the year 1829 and came to Texas in the year 1845, but can't find out the time of his conversion. He joined the conference in the year of 1879, and was an active member of the same, going where and when sent. At the conference of 1883 at San Antonio was appointed to Wharton and Caney, where he died in a good work. He became ill September 16th, 1884 and on September 21st he departed this life in peace with God and all mankind.

Report of Committee on Periodicals.

We beg leave to report as follows:

Whereas, The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is the official organ of the Methodist Episcopal Church, especially among the colored people.

Whereas, It is the medium through which we as a body of [illegible] preachers can communicate our thoughts and transactions, and

Whereas, a number of us are in debt to the Book Concern and do not wish to embarrass the paper by plunging it in debt nor sink it into oblivion; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That we will collect the old accounts as early as possible and forward it to Phillips & Hunt, at New Orleans.

Resolved, 2. That from our pulpits we will recommend the paper to the people and solicit an almost instantaneous circulating throughout all of our circuits and stations.

Resolved, That we highly approve and commend the General Conference in its action in electing Rev. Marshall W. Taylor as its editor, and that he as an editor will prove a blessing to our Church in the South, and that darkness will be dispelled and a new light spring up.

Resolved, That we will in every way contribute to the more general circulation of all our Church periodicals and literature.

To the Bishop and the members West Texas conference—Dear fathers and brethren: We, the undersigned do hereby express our gratitude to God, and high approval of the action of the last General Conference in the election and appointing Rev. Marshall W. Taylor D.D., editor of the SOUTHWESTEN CHRISTIAN ADVTCATE. We sincerely believe that his appointment is a wise and timely one, and will subserve the highest interest of our work the in South: Therefore Resolved, 1. That we do hereby, pledge ourselves to use our dilligent influence to distribute the SOUTHWESTERN among all our people, and as agents, of the respective charges will use our best endeavors to collect all delinquent accounts.

Resolved, 2. That we do hereby, tender our most hearty thanks to Dr. M. W. Taylor, for his visit to West Texas conference, his good words of cheer, and counsel, and we do welcome him to our conference at any time when in session.

Department of Supplies, W. H. M. S., M. E. Church.

OUR NEEDS.

From the North, the North-west, the West, and the South, there comes urgent appeals for help of various kinds. Warm clothing is greatly needed, overcoats, full suits of clothing, suitable for ministers; heavy wraps, and clothing of all kinds for minister's wives, and daughters, for the boys and girls, and for the little prattlers who so much feel the cold; boots, shoes, hose, mittens, gossamers, rubbers, are needed, in short, any thing that we find indispensable to our own wardrobe and home, will be appreciated by these self sacrificing men and women. Send any size and any number of garments. Send bedding and table linen, knives, forks, spoons, or any furnishing for the table that can be safely packed. Let no package go without some choice little things for the minister's wife. Send dried and canned fruits, vegetables and groceries. These will prove a luxury in many parsonages. If not required in the family to whom you send, they will pass them to some one who needs them. Most of our supplies are sent to a presiding elder or to some one who will distribute them.

THE SOUTH.

In the main we need the same thing in the South—furnishings for our "Industrial Homes," supplies for minister's families, clothing for boys and girls, in order that they may remain in school.

BOOKS.

Try to add a few in each barrel. Ministers plead for commentaries, Bible dictionaries, for books in the prescribed course of study. Any thing that will help them in presenting the Gospel truth to the people. Add something fresh or new for the minister's wife and daughters, good books for the boys and girls, magazines and Sunday school papers. Ask your Sunday-school scholars to save the papers, so that they may be made to do double service. Send school books and slates. Send the "Thanksgiving" cheer and the supplies with which to furnish a "Merry Christmas" in every parsonage, Industrial Home, and Sunday-school.

PACKAGES.

It is better to pack in barrels than in boxes. Tack the accompanying card on each barrel or package. Represent the benevolent nature of the work to the freight or express agent. Tell them that most of the companies ship free, and they will hardly refuse to do the same for you. If you can not secure this favor, either prepay freight, or inclose money for that purpose in letter with bill of lading or express receipt. Write a brief, plain, clear letter showing that you consider it a privilege to contribute in any way to the happiness of those who are doing so much for the Church and humanity. Sending this letter promptly, inclosing stamps, ask them to reply and tell you if there are other needs that you can supply.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Missionaries, ministers, and teachers make their appeals direct to the superintendent of the department, and, therefore, it will save much confusion and duplicating of supplies if all persons desirous of assisting in the work will apply direct to the superintendent of the department for instruction as to where supplies are most needed, and for shipping directions. Do not ship to Cincinnati, but send direct to place of destination.

as soon as the goods are shipped send list of contents of packages and estimated value, filled out on the accompanying blank form, to the superintendent, in order that each month's work may appear in "Woman's Home Missions." Examine the supply report each month, and if any mistakes occur please report at once, so that they may be corrected. Do not wait till the close of the year.

A great amount of good has been accomplished through this department. During the past eleven months nearly eight thousand dollar's worth of supplies have been sent to our mission fields. But a comparatively small portion of the Church have so far participated in this work. When each one avails herself of the privilege, we shall no more hear the sad tales of suffering that are constantly coming to our ears—of little children unable to go to school because they have neither shoes or stockings or books—of ministers who, in order to attend their appointments, must wrap themselves in bed clothing to protect them from the cold. No, when we each do our duty all will be make comfortable and happy.

MRS. J. L. WHETSTONE,
Gen'l Sup't Department of Supplies, W. H. M. S. Cincinnati, O.

The party committed to him a sacred trust, but, under the influence of pride and personal hate, he seems to have lost sight of it. In order to show the propriety and justice of this criticism I will mention the fact that just as soon as Mr. Blaine arrived in New York last month General Grant, Mr. Conkling's confidential friend, gathered up his crutches and called on him at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and personally assured him of his sympathy and support. Those who were present say that the old veteran's eyes swam in tears as he expressed the hope that Mr. Blaine would lead the party to victory and success. Mr. Blaine acknowledged to General Grant that it was his duty to call upon him (Grant) first, but stated that a press of important engagements had deprived him of that honor and plersure. Did Mr. Blaine call upon General Grant after his "important engagements" had been met? He did not? Why? I have neither business nor disposition to speak positively on the subject, but it is a settled conviction in my soul that he hoped to be able to pull through without "recognizing" the "Grant faction." General Grant did too much for this country to be snubbed by James G. Blaine, or any other man, without a protest from the people. — Ex cause of Blaine's Defeat.

Rev. Dr. Schaff announces that the revision of the Old Testament, after 14 years' labor, is completed, and that it will be published next Spring. A memorial edition in four volumes finely printed and bound will be sent to any contributor of $30 to the expenses of the Committee.

That Sums it Up.

We could use all sorts of extravogant words about the effect of Parker's Hair Balsam. But the simple truth is enough. It is the best thing of its kind. Cures falling hair, dandruff, dryness, restores original color, is a delicious dressing and perfectly pure and clean. It will satisfy you. The only standard 50c. dressing.

Justice not Vengeance.

We submit for the consideration of our neighbors over in Hazelhurst, Copiah county, Mississippi, where Mr. Wm. Simrall was recently called to his door from the midst of his family, at the mid hour of night, and cruelly shot down for the purpose of robbing him of several thousand dollars, which he was known to have in his house, the question whether the arrest and possibly the murder of several Negroes who probably know nothing of the crime, is not more likely to encourage than deter the real criminals. We believe a good deal of lawlessness is fostered by this practice of hanging men because they happen to be Negroes, and in the vicinity of the place where the crime was committed. Would it not be wise, more humane and just to make an honest effort to find the real criminals, and then punish them by due process of law whatever their color? We hardly think that Mr. Simrall was killed by Negroes, and one of the grounds upon which we settle our belief is that Negroes hardly ever go after so large a sum as that which he was supposed to have at his house and for which this robbery was made, something like $1,000. If it had been from one to ten dollars we should have been credulous. The largest piece of stealing that we know of is that of 30 head of cattle which was sold in Macon, Georgia, by a Negro to whom they were entrusted, and who afterwards skipped with the money. But it is not historic of the Negro that he murders for money.

Bishop William F. Dickersom Dead.

The painful fact but not the particulars of the death of the Rev. William F. Dickerson, Bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, in South Carolina recently have been received at our office. Bishop Dickerson was an able, pure spirited minister, true to all the higher instincts of manhood, richly embellished with gracious gifts, and possessed of ripe scholarly attainments. In him his Church has lost a safe, valuable and faithful chief-minister. He was elected to the Episcopacy in 1880 at St Louis. Greeting and Retrospect.

THE COUNTRY.

The SOUTHWESTERN sends forth its most cordial greetings to all its thousands of friends all over the country. The SOUTHWESTERN wishes for each of you a happy New Year and many returns of it before you go hence, and that your final departure from this life may be the signal for your entrance upon the joy which is to come.

The past has been an eventful year, no matter which way we view it. There were floods, forest-fires, severe cold and burning heat, terrific storms, protracted rains, and drouths. Wild cyclones and electric disturbances, have prevailed in one section or another. The earthquake's ominous gratings was also heard in the land. All these circumstances brought hardships and suffering in the various localities where they prevailed. But such is the greatness of our country in its dimensions that none of these visitations have affected the whole of it at a time; so that while one section suffered from these local afflictions, the sections which were free hurried to the help of their less fortunate neighbors. Thus sweetly illustrating the teachings of Christianity and tightening the cords of National unity.

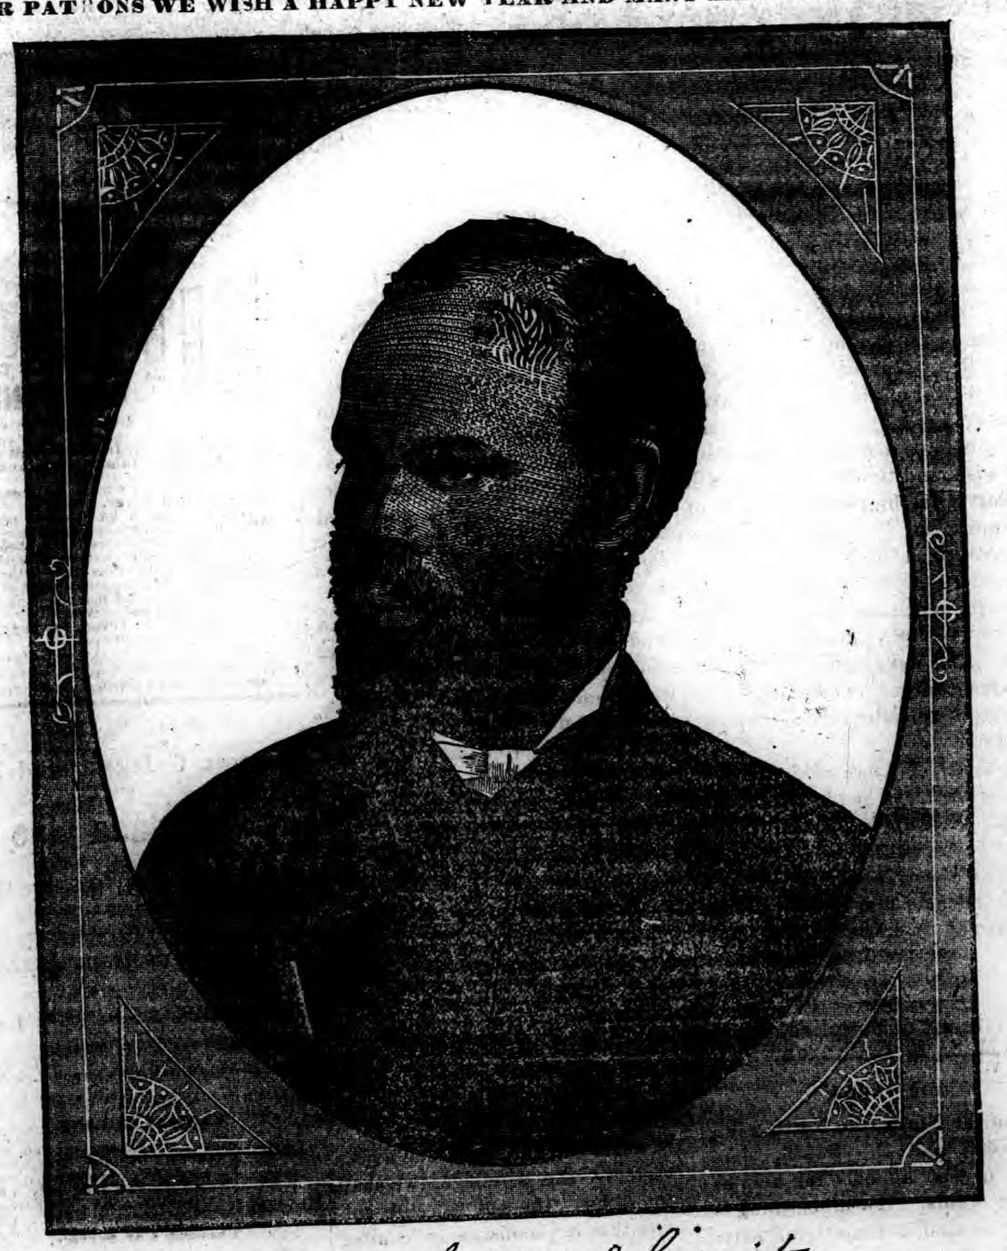
We have been spared from any widespread epidemic in the country, and have rode harmlessly through a great political revolution. There has been financial stagnation in the great business centres, but the farmers have sustained the integrity of the country and averted the threatened peril by the abundance of their various productions.

THE NEGROES

Have no occasion for alarm at the present aspect of affairs. Fewer have been lynched by lawless mobs or killed in political melees than in any previous year since the war. The growth of public sentiment, the tone of the general press, and the administration of the laws is all more than ever favorable to them. As the old slaves, whose treatment disposed them to premature decay, are passing away, our death decreases while our birth rate increases. Colored doctors are becoming numerous in the country, thanks to God and the Methodist Episcopal Church, and this is reducing the death rate. Turning from politics, partly in disgust and partly of necessity, we are to have more young men of color enter and become proficient in the trades, professions and farming. This will bring money and land, and these will bring the Negroes back into American politics to stay.

METHODISTICALLY

We have reached a grand climax this year. The Church has defined its principles, given large discretionary power to its administrators, and pushed into its second century of life all the better for its age. We have entered Africa with renewed vigor, set a Negro in a higher place to guard our Southern possessions, called the children of our great family together and took counsel for future procedure. The outlook is pleasing. All we need is to trust God, take courage, and go forward.



THE SOUTHWESTERN

Has redeemed every pledge it made of fidelity to the Church and especially to the interests of the Negroes therein, and now renews its pledge in all things to stand firmly by those interests. It will hereafter, as heretofore, choose its own methods of procedure, but it may be taken for granted that we will "with charity for all and malice toward none," insist upon doing and having done that which is right, because it is right, and to all men.

OUR WORK.

During 1884 the SOUTHWESTERN has reported every transaction of importance to either the country, the Church or the colored people. It has kept pace with all society, fraternity, educational, political and religious matters. We have reported 247 deaths, 227 marriages, 1230 conversions, 1283 baptisms, $37,383 collections, found 20 lost friends, found work for 15 young men and women, given not less than 8 columns of editorial weekly since June 5th past, held the heaviest

One Real Negro Leader.

CIVIL RIGHTS IN THE HOUSE.

Immediately afterward the Democrats were called to face an emergency which was entirely unexpected to them. The bill provides that all charges for the transportation, delivering, storing or handling of property by railroad corporations shall be "reasonable." Mr. O'Hara, the colored Representative from North Carolina, sent up an amendment to insert after the word "reasonable," a provision prohibiting any discrimination by railroad companies as to the treatment, facilities or accommodation of passengers transported from any place in one State to any place in another State, provided that such passengers have paid the same fare, or purchased tickets of the same discription. This amendment Mr. O'Hara supported in a forcible and sensible speech. He said that it was not designed to raise any question of class or color, but it did seem to him that the Congress of the United States, if it had power to legislate in regard to interstate commerce and the transportation of property in such commerce, had the right to prohibit any unjust discrimination in the transportation of persons. The amendment and speech seemed to paralyze Mr. Reagan, who had the bill in charge. He at last found his voice, however, and muttered that the committee had never had under consideration any matters affecting the transportation of persons between the States, and he hoped that the amendment would be voted down. His hope was not realized, for it was carried on a yea and nay vote by 135 to 97, 45 Democrats voting for it. They were Messrs. Beach, Blount, Buckner, Budd, Jamse E. Campbell, Carleton, Converse, Dargan, Eldridge, Elliott, Ferrell, Follett, Greenleaf, Abram S. Hewitt, Hoblitzell, Holman, Houseman, Jones of Wisconsin, Jordan, Lamb, Lefevre, Loving, Lowry, McAdoo, Mitchell, Morse, Murphy, Murray, Potter, Pusey, Rosecrans, Seney, Seymour, Spriggs, Springs, Stevens, Sumner, of California, Ward, Warner, of O., Wilkins, Wilson, of West Virginia, Winans, of Wisconsin, Winans of Michigan, Woodward, Worthinkton and Yaple. Mr. Blount, of Georgia, changed from the negative to the affirmative, in order to move a reconsideration. Of the 41 remaining Democratic votes, three were cast by Democrats from the border States of Missouri, Maryland and West Virginia, while only one came from the territory comprised in the Southern Confederacy—that of Dargan of South Caholina.—Tuesday's Tribute.

The SOUTHWESTERN appreciates real Negro leaders, therefore it has held its peace hitherto, and now uncovers before Hon. J. E. O'Hara, the Negro Congressman from North Carolina. He has done something manly and we honor him for it. He stood by his race and with such becoming dignity and legal force presented their claims for justice as to win respect and carry with him the votes of 45 Democrats in Congress, one of them from South Carolina. We foretold calmer sailing than most people expected after the Nov. reverse, and this set forward does not indicate a failure of our prediction. The case is won, and it may not be this tim, but it is coming boys, wait a little longer.

The King of Song.

This title has been well earned and fairly belongs to Phillip Phillips, who as a bird of passage with gilded Christian plumage and soul ravishing songs, has made his way through all countries, among all nations around the globe, singing Zion's war songs as he has marched along. He has just concluded a season of six evenings in Ames Methodist Episcopal Church, of New Orleans, and will now appear in several of the others. All who heard him (and who has not) either here or elsewhere, can testify that his merits are solid and enduring, it always pays to spend an evening with him in song. For his sake and the sake of those who ought to have the blessed influence of his songs upon their hearts, we urge a full attendance in every church each evening while he remains, and performs in this city, and the same wherever he goes, when he shall leave here.

Some new facts of interest are worthy of mention concerning this the only man who has belted the world with his voice in song.

From 1866 to 1884 he has conducted 3,360 entertainments in aid of Christian objects, paying his own expenses and leaving a profit to different charities of $107,520. This large sum of cash has been distributed into every State in the Union, and also in other countries. The spirit of his services are always refining and elevating in character.

In Great Britain and Ireland, he has visited every town of importance from

Cowes in the Isle of Wight,
Dougass in the isle of man
And Wick in Johnny Groat's land.

It is sometimes a source of wonder to the worldly-minded, that a man singing Christian Songs alone could draw audiences sufficiently remunerative to pay all the expenses.

In an engagement of one hundred nights in Great Britain, there were one hundred and twelve thousand and five hundred tickets sold, leaving a net profit (after paying Mr. Phillips) $4,445 for the purpose of establishing Sunday-schools on the Continent of Europe.

At least three thousand of his Evenings of Song have been of financial benefit to local, Christian objects, as he almost always leaves a per cent. for such purposes. By this means he has been of service to needy charities, helped himself along, and above all, left the sentiment of Sacred Song ringing in the ears of his hearers.

A few years ago Mr. Phillips, accompanied by his family, left his home in New York for San Francisco. From thence he visited the Sandwich Islands, New Zealand, the colonies of Australia, Tasmania, Ceylon, India, Egypt, Palestine, the Continent of Europe, England, and then back to America. They were three years on this tour of the world, and five hundred and seventy-four services were conducted during that time.

In Australia the "Singing Pilgrim" was most heartily received, and for one hundred and forty-one nights, lifted his voice in praise and song, to the evident delight of all who heard.

In India, four months were consumed in visiting all points of interest between Madras, Calcutta, and Bombay. The English speaking population is so numerous in the Empire that large audiences greeted him wherever he went.

In Cairo and Alexandria, his songs were listened to with interest by good-sized gatherings, and especially did they cheer the hard working missionaries on their way—who labor so incessantly for God's glory in those far off fields.

Mr. Phillips regards his visit to Palestine as one of the most delightful memories of his world-wide peregrinations. There, in the old city of David, was he privileged to sing the grand "Old Story," and near the supposed manger where Christ was born, did he break forth with his song—

"I will sing of Jesus,
With his blood he bought me;
And all along my pilgrim way
His loving hand has brought me."

Loth to leave the hallowed surroundings of Jerusalem, they journeyed to Naples, stopping awhile at Sicily, and thence over the Continent of Europe.

Upon his several visits to Europe, he has sung in nearly all the great centres, including Naples, Florence, Rome, Milan, Vienna, Prague, Dresden, Leipzig, Berlin, Paris, Hamburg, Bremen, Copenhagen, Stockholm, Upsala, Orebro, Gottenburg, Brussels, Antwerp, Rotterdam, The Hague, etc. etc. Among his latest travels he has sung in every parish in Jamaica, West Indies, and has completed an engagement of fifty consecutive nights in the same building in Amsterdam, during the great Exposition. At the close of this engagement he was presented with a testimonial in the form of an album, beatifully ornamented with silver and gold, signed by five hundred persons, in appreciation of his services.

The question naturally arises when we think of the foregoing facts, how can people of foreign languages understand his songs, or does Mr. Phillips speak many languages? The answer is simple enough, for his songs are translated wherever he goes, to suit the tongue of his audience, and distributed so that they can follow every sentiment with nearly as much pleasure or benefit as though they spoke or understood the English. He is the author of several books of Sacred Song, aggregating a sale of over five million copies, many of which have been translated.

He has experienced the novelty of singing his songs in English, while the audience joined in the verses in four different languages without discord. He is the pioneer of sacred solo singing, of whom Mr. Sankey says: "I shall ever look upon Philip Phillips as one of the biggest factors of my life, for it was he that opened up to me the wondrous power there is in singing the blessed Gospel of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ."

The remainder of his services in this city will beheld as follows:

Friday, and Saturday Dec. 26-27, at Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church; Monday and Tuesday Dec. 29 30th at Union Methodist Episcopal Church; Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 31st, and Jan. 1st, Mt. Zion Methodist Episcopal Church; Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 5 6th at Clinton Methodist Episcopal Church; Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 7 8th at Thomson Methodist Episcopal Church. After the 10th of January he goes into Texas and thence home to New York.

The New Orleans University.

After the holiday recess this grand old institution will be opened with improved facilities for the accommodation of students. The aim will be to attain the highest excellence, and efficiency by thorough work. The St. Charles street entrance will be open from 8 to 8:45, each morning, at other hours pupils and all other persons desiring admittance will gain it by ringing the bell. Pupils are expected to be in their places in time for chapel service at 8:45 each morning. Much earnest and laborious work has been required to put the building and grounds in their present good condition, and the SOUTHWESTERN now calls upon all who claim the least denominational pride or interest in our educational work to assist Pres't Hoyt in making the New Orleans University the first institution under Methodist Episcopal auspices in the Southwest.

Through the agency of Bishop Mallalieu, who has taken this school upon his heart, a plan has been formulated by which one scholarship may be secured by each Methodist Episcopal Sunday-school in the city gratuitously, and this if properly appreciated may be extended to each school in Louisiana Conference. The examinations for such scholarship will be held January 5th at 9 a. m. in the University building. It is a precious New Year's gift, who will step forward and take it? Now brethren what we need, and must have is a little genuine old fashioned Methodist enthusiasm over this school in the Louisiana Conference.

Suffer a Word of Exhortation.

To our dear brothers and sisters of the Methodist Episcopal Church residing elsewhere than in the State of Louisiana: You expect to visit New Orleans, spend the winter and attend the Exposition now in full progress. We bid you welcome and will do the best we can in our line to render your sojourn here a pleasant one if we can get the [illegible]. The daily papers here are not likely to do anything towards enlightening your mind upon the [illegible] of God's church. The SOUTHWESTERN is the only paper devoted to that work in this city. We have [illegible] good churches with white and [illegible] colored congregations [illegible] city. Three of the four [illegible] are German, whose pastors [illegible] to preach in English, [illegible] one is an American [illegible] with Rev. Thomas Stalker, of Michigan, as its pastor. These churches and pastors are such as would have the social place in the best circle of Northern people if located there. It will help them to gain their true place in society here if you will visit their churches and lend them the support of your social influence by a full and bold Christian recognition and fellowship. We, therefore, affectionately exhort you, for Jesus' sake, to do this when you come here. Find our office, get information, go where you please, but hold on to our church and thus help us in our Southern work.

Caught Napping.

The Christian Advocate, always wide-awake, well posted and scholarly, like the rest of them, fails in its accuracy when it comes to state matters concerning the colored people. The number for Dec. 18, 1884, speaking of Sunday services in Baltimore for Dec. 21, says, "At Sharp Street African Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. J. C. Price, A. M., of Salisbury, N. C." Now the point we make is that no such church as that exists in the city named. Sharp Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. J. W. Dansbury, of the Washington Conference, pastor, is, we presume, the one referred to, and it is the strongest, wealthiest, oldest and best known Methodist Church among the colored people in Baltimore. This mistake was not intentional, of course, but it shows the necessity of an official paper such as the SOUTHWESTERN is to look especially after these matters.

The Latest New Books from our Book Concern.

HYMN STUDIES—An illustrated and annotated edition of the Hymnal of the Methodist Episcopal Church. By Chas. Nutter. New York: Phillips & Hunt. Cincinnati: Cranston & Stowe. 1884. Price, $2.50.

This work is gratefully dedicated to the ministers and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church by the author. It is really something new and exceedingly useful in its line. Without seeming to intend, possibly without knowing it, the author has placed within easy reach of all, and their name is legion, who love and take the greatest delight in singing our grand old standard hymns. It contains not only the hymns themselves, but also a perfect encyclopediæ of those who wrote them. It is a large, well-bound 12 mo volume, cloth cover, red edges, 475 pages, 1117 hymns, 19 doxologies, with full index of first lines to hymns, of authors, of scripture texts, of subjects, first lines of stanzas, and concludes with the ritual. The type is clear and bold. We have read it with profit and interest for its historic as well as its great poetic value. All our people should have it.

"CENTENNIAL HISTORY OF AMERICAN METHODISM"—Inclusive of its ecclesiastical organization in 1784, and its subsequent development under the superintendency of Francis Asbury, with sketches of the character and history of all the preachers known to have been members of the Christmas Conference; also an appendix, showing the numerical position of the Methodist Episcopal Church as compared with the other leading evangelical denominations in the cities of the United States, and the condition of the educational work of the Church. By John Atkinson, D. D. Price, $2. New York: Phillips & Hunt; Cincinnati: Cranston & Stowe.

This is a most opportune publication. It meets a want felt by every one who has undertaken to prepare a sermon, or an essay, or an article for the public during this Methodist centennial year. It does not sum up, like Bishop Foster, or analyze the development of our Church like Dr. Dupuy, but, in a way wholly original, it furnishes us a complete biography of the remarkable and romantic lives of the individual members of the Christmas Conference of 1784, a careful exposition of our educational work, and our comparative grasp on the cities of the country, with a biography of the Hon. W. C. DePauw, of New Albany, the patron of Methodism, of education, and great benefactor of DePauw University, at Greencastle, and of DePauw College at New Albany, constitutes the appendix His index of authorities quoted makes a Bibliotheca of Methodist authors invaluable to ordinary readers and students of Methodist history. The volume is 12-mo.; it contains 559 pages, and a full index, It is embellished with Barrett's Chapel in Kent county, Delaware, as a frontispiece, and striking life-like portraits of Bishops Asbury, Coke, Whatcoat and McKendree. The mechanical work is in all respects similar to Hymn Studies, except in this work the edges are white. The book cannot fail to greatly facilitate and encourage the study of Methodist History. Not the least valuable of its precious contents are the full, accurate and recent statistics which it contains. The arrangement is so systematic and natural that the study of it requires no unusual effort. It is just the book for the times, and will, we trust, obtain a good and appreciative reception.

—Rev. Joseph Cook, of the Boston noonday lecturership, is in New Orleans. He preached in Dr. Palmer's Presbyterian Church on Sabbath, and lectured on "Ultimate America," in Werlien's Hall on Monday evening. The lecture is as are all his productions, scholarly and original as to matter, and his manner natural and free. The lecture has been previously printed, generally read over the country, and therefore is not reproduced here. We are facing the question of a mighty increase in our population and a consequent strain upon our resources, and change in our customs. Whatever is lost in the transition Christianity and the Negro will remain. Amalgamation and liberalism, twins of like parentage, have reached their climax. Christian cultivation is in reach of the Negro, this genders patriotism, and the latter is the implacable foe of license in theology or society. Ultimate America is to be a country contented, industrious, prosperous and happy.

—Rev. I G. Johns, editor of the Texas Christian Advocate, has resigned that position after 18 years faithful and efficient service. Rev. G. W. Briggs has been appointed in his stead, and the latter enters as the former retires from this responsible trust, with the best wishes of his church and the general press. Here's our hand Bro. Briggs, long may you flourish, and may the peace of his retirement be no less to your predecessor than the success of your efforts is gratifying to you.

The Colored Race at the World's Exposition.

By our Special Reporter.

It is our special care, before commencing to write upon the grand effort of the colored people at the New Orleans World's Exposition, to call the attention of our representatives to the fact that they cannot be too energetic and far-seeing to establish the credit of our race at home or abroad. The colored people should bear in mind and appreciate the privilege and opportunity extended them at this revolution of events. We have the advantage of unloading ourselves of much opprobrium and nicely winning the admiration of all great nations, by linking together cheer, spirit, industry and gentility. The world knows the many disadvantages under which we have labored, and, if we have been faithful over a few things, we may eventually enjoy many. Again, from displaying our wealth and talent here, a new life will spring up among our young people. It will exert a grand and glorious influence over our institutions of learning, from the common free-school to the house of science. Our agricultural men will be more careful to prepare for future occasions of the kind, and more of a consolidated feeling will spring up among the race. Of course we are not seeking the blessings of Jacob, but those of Esau; and we must hunt up things which will gain them. For instance, there is a young man living near Greenville, who has constructed models of several of the great steamers from corn-stalks—perfect things of the kind. Suppose one of these be brought. In the long-leaf pine country of Mississippi and Alabama, the round-rock country of Middle Tennessee, the Alleghany country of Virginia, and such other places from which representatives are least expected, are much in the way of wealth and curiosity among the colored people.

We sincerely call upon our people of wealth and intelligence to do all they can in forwarding a grand race display among other races, and to visit the Exposition with their children. Through the generous effort of distinguished colored citizens of New Orleans, a restaurant has been established on the Exposition grounds for our people. Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, is using untiring energy to provide a place of comfort, in the heart of the city, where our business men can resort and spend their leisure hours in reading, writing to their friends, interchanging ideas and the like. These actions reflect great credit upon the colored people at the Exposition already, and will be appreciated by the entire race.

In brief we will give a sketch of the grounds and buildings of the Exposition. The Main Building is a structure beyond ordinary conception. In looking at this edifice our fancies are kindled into strains of sublimest song. It covers more ground than anything of its kind in the world. Eastern travelers who love to celebrate the Coliseum of ancient Rome for space, will find enough to give vent to their passions in beholding this tiresome capacity. Looking out from this building we face the grand Mississippi river, marching on to pay his golden tribute to the sea, while ships and steamers ride his mighty breast like huge balloons on the ides of March. At a distance is Horticultural Hall, tenderly caressing the plants and fruits of tropic climes. Mossy oaks are set off in line around this rosy bower, and aerial songsters love to warble there. Back of the grounds is St. Charles street. Entering here we arrive at the Government Building, a rendezvous of curiosities, in which all the states are represented. A Michaelmas of wonder! In this building is the Colored Peoples' Department.

The great fair was opened on the 16th of December, 1884, and that one event carries immortality in itself.

The royal sun did through the glasses blaze,
From overhead and down upon the floor,
A stream of life did roll; and in the maze
Of distance, were the splendid rich, the poor,
The ruler, and ruled, the queer old Moor;
The awkward Turk, the sweet Mulatto fair;
The gay white belle, all pass a common door;
The Chinaman, all press a common chair;
While music rise and drip their soft notes on the air.

Alabama leads the Colored People's Department in variety and natural progress. It is impossible to tell just now what this State will do, but we will go into a more minute discription of her display in the account of States. It will do well to say to our readers here that the colored people are far in advance of any expectance. It would not be thought by transatlantic visitors that the colored people of Alabama—that old State of Ku-klux—would have made so grand a progress since the cessation of those horrid days. This goes to say to the world that we mean to come to life. The dry bones in the wilder have been touched, and they will live and stand up over their graves. The colored people of that old State have a right to be proud for the reason that they have tasted of death and did not die. They have given to our young men a field of unparalleled inspiration. They show that the colored man is destined to turn the swift currents of time and write his name in the everlasting annals of fame. Philip Joseph is commissioner of the exhibits from that State; and is well worthy of the honor. In regard to the progress of the colored people of Alabama he said: "The colored people of my State have done well considering their chances. They have, in spite of fate, shown their perseverance. Our people seem to have turned over from a long sleep, and will hereafter aspire to a great national station in history. The colored people of Alabama get a'ong well. They are cheerful and contented."

SQUARE Pianos were formerly much more generally used than Upright Pianos, though the latter were undoubtedly the more elegant and convenient as furniture. This was because the square was decidedly the best as a musical instrument. The improvements latterly made in uprights have changed this, and the uprights may now fairly claim to be the best as a musical instrument as well as more desirable as furniture. Especially is this true of the improved Upright Piano now offered by the Mason & Hamlin Company. Their pure musical tones are a delight to every appreciative ear, and in durability they present great advantages. This is the result of adding to all valuable improvements heretofore made, one which is more important than any, being a new method of fastening the strings, by which they are more securely held, making the vibrations more perfect, and the instrument less liable to bad effects of atmospheric changes.—Boston Traveller.

The use of Ridge's Food produces good healthy flesh, not a puffy, flabby skin but sturdy of bone and muscle. The child likes it, and as to nature's supply, so the little one turns readily from all pyanings, and finds complete satisfaction in this, the best substitute for the mother's milk. Do not let your children grow up weak and puny, when Ridge's Food can be obtained at so small a cost. Sold by Druggists everywhere 35¢ and upwards. WOOLRICH & CO., Palmer, Mass; on label.

THE GOVERNMENT ENDORSES

The American Agriculturist,

From the Tenth Census, Vol. 8, just published.

"The American Agriculturist is especially worthy of mention, because of the remarkable success that has attended the unique and untiring efforts of its proprietors to increase and extend its circulation. Its contents are duplicated every month for a German Edition, which also circulates widely."

This tribute is a pleasing incident in the marvelous nearly career of this recognized leading Agricultural Journal of the world.

HALF A CENTURY

WHAT IT IS TO-DAY.

Six months ago the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST entered upon a new career of prosperity, and to-day it is far superior to any similar periodical ever produced in this country. Richer in editorial strength; richer in engravings; printed on finer paper, and presenting in every issue 100 columns of original reading matter from the ablest writers, and nearly 100 illustrations. Dr. George Thurber, for nearly a quarter of a century the editor-in-chief of the "American Agriculturist," Joseph Harris, Byron D. Halstead, Col. M. D. Weld, and Andrew S. Fuller, the other long-time Editors, together with the other writers who have made the "American Agriculturist" what it is to-day, are still at their posts.

What, Free???

Every subscriber, whose subscription is immediately forwarded us with the price, $1.50 per year, and 15 cents extra for postage on Cyclopædia—making $1.65 in all—will receive the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for Dec. 1884 and all of 1885, and will be presented with the American Agriculturist Family Cyclopædia [just out] 700 Pages and over 1,000 engravings. Strongly bound in cloth black and gold.

This entirely new volume is a remarkable storehouse and book of reference for every department of human knowledge including an Agricultural Supplement by Dr. Thurber.

From the Christian Advocate, Dec. 18, 1884.

The American Agriculturist has been greatly enlarged and widened in scope, and stands unrivaled to-day in the high quality of its editorial and general make-up. Every farmer should have it as a permanent visitor to his home. The subscription price is nominal when the Cyclopedia they offer to each subscriber is taken into the count. The paper was never so strong financially as it is to-day. See advertisement.

Send six cents [stamps] for mailing you, postpaid, a specimen copy AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, an elegant forty-page Premium List, with 200 illustrations, and specimen pages of our Family Cyclopedia. Canvassers wanted everywhere. Address,

THE NEW YEAR.

Wisdom ascribe, and might, and praise,
To God, who lengthened out our days;
Who spares us yet another year,
And makes us see his goodness here;
O, may we all the time redeem,
And henceforth live and die for Him.

How often, when His arm was bared,
Hath He our sinful Israel spared!
"Let Me alone," his mercy cried,
And turned the vengeful bolt aside;
Indulged another kind reprieve,
And strangely suffered us to live.

Merciful God, how shall we raise
Our hearts to pay thee all thy praise?
Our hearts shall beat for thee alone;
Our hearts shall make thy goodness known;
Our souls and bodies shall be thine,
A living sacrifice divine.

Domestic Hygiene.

Health Hints.

SUNLIGHT.

Have as much sunlight in the house as possible. "It is a familiar fact that a potato vine growing in a dark cellar is white, puny and without strength. It would be almost precisely the same with a child confined to a dark room." It is an established fact that in some way light is an essential to good health. Often exposure to sunshine will cure disease. "The presence of light, especially of direct sunshine, prevents the development of the microscopic fungi which are associated with putrefaction and decay. When there are germs already present in a liquid it destroys them, and perfectly preserves a putrescible fluid in which they have not yet been developed. While this preservative quality is most powerful in the rays of the sun it also exists in diffused light." Let the sunlight into the house, and drive disease, darkness and sadness out.

Sometimes the sun will shine so hot as to be dangerous. What shall be done then? In extremely hot weather it is wise to avoid sunstroke. This may be easily done with care and attention to habits of life. Sunstroke is not apt to occur on the first day of a heated term, but on the second and third, and even the fourth days. If out of doors, wear a wet cloth on the head under the hat. Do not lose sleep, nor get in a worry, nor become excited. Do not sleep at night in a close room. Refrain from the use of all alcoholic or opium stimulants. Do not check perspiration, but drink what water you need to keep it up, as perspiration prevents the body from being overheated." It is a good plan to walk under a thin light colored umbrella. When much fatigued cease working for a short time. Rest, even for a few minutes, will do much to restore the wearied nature. If there is a sudden whirling or swimming sensation in the head while exposed to the hot sun, lie down immediately in the shade and apply cold cloths to the head and neck. By such precautionary measures sunstroke may be prevented. If a person is overcome by the heat, send immediately for a physician, give the person cool drinks of water, or cold black tea or coffee, if able to swallow. If the skin is hot or dry sponge with, or pour cold water on the body and limbs, and apply to the head pounded ice wrapped in a towel or other cloth. If ice is not at hand, keep a cold cloth on the head, and pour cold water on it as well as the body. "Should the person be pale, very faint, and pulse feeble, let him inhale ammonia for a few seconds at a time, or give him a teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in two tablespoonfuls of water with a little sugar." Even the best of care will not always repair the injury done by sunstroke.

AVOID HASTE.

Avoid haste in all things, as far as possible, for "there is nothing like leisure as haste." "Haste makes waste." This is true in money and everything besides. Do everything quickly, but not in haste. "Make the best speed." Haste heats the body, makes ebullitions the blood, excites the nervous system, accelerates the heart beat and respiration, fills with worry, breaks down health and makes one unusually irritable. Many Americans are dying, not inappropriately, "Nervous Exhaustion." Cultivate the habit of being a little ahead of time, and so you will save all worry, fuss and sweat, and live longer and better.

Mr. Blaine made a brilliant bloody shirt speech to the party that serenaded him on Tuesday evening at his home in Augusta, Me. But it ill suits Mr. Blaine to speak of violence and murder in the South. None was committed during the campaign—the election was fair and free,—and Mr. Blaine in making such assertions is merely giving vent to the feeling of a disappointed candidate. A few years ago, when it was thought necessary by many to put down murder and violence in the South by force of law, it was Mr. Blaine that defeated the "Force Bill." It makes all the difference with "them fellows" whose ox is gored.—Louisiana Standard.

Hon. E. P. McCabe, the colored candidate for State Auditor of Kansas, received a majority of 4,036 votes over Col. Martin, the Republican candidate for Governor. Martin received 147,876 votes, while McCabe received 148,802 McCabe's plurality over Covegain, his Democratic competitor, was 53,810.—Cairo Gazette.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my people. My father's name was Robert Crockett; he used to belong to a Mr. Crockett in Butts county, Georgia. I heard that he is dead. Mother's name was Ann; she used to belong to Billie Strahan, who also lived in Butts county, Georgia. Brothers were Robert Columbus and Dickey Richard; sisters, Hannah, Betsy Matilda and Martha Maria. My name is Chiranda Sarah Jane. Billie Strahan brought us all from Georgia to East Texas. Sam Strahan, a brother of Billie Strahan, took my mother, brothers and sisters back to Georgia, and I was left in Texas with Strahan. I am now in Columbus, Colorado co., Texas. My name is now Amanda Whitfield. Pastors will please read this letter to their congregations and help me find my people. Address Amanda Whitfield, care of John Lacey, Columbus, Texas.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my father and mother, who lived in Farmville, Prince Edward county, Virginia. Mother's name was Nance Eder Ellis; father, Zack Ellis. I have been away from them about fifteen years. Mother belonged to James Spencer; father belonged to John Smith. I had a sister named Cline Ellis. My name is R. Ellis. Address me, in care of Rev. D. Shelby, Coushatta, Red River parish, La.

The Mudir of Dongola, who is hostile to the Mahdi, maintains his power in the near neighborhood of his enemy through excessive piety. He is slight and pale, with immense luminous eyes, and a nose like an eagle's beak.

It is figured up that the drink bill of Tennessee is $200,000 more than the value of the entire wheat crop of that state.

A Remarkable Case.

Mrs. Henry Ellis, 500 Scott street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, writes: "DR. S. B. HARTMAN & CO., COLUMBUS, O.: I am induced by a sense of duty to the suffering to make a brief statement of your remarkable cure of myself. I was a most miserable sufferer from the various annoying and distressing diseases of delicate persons, which caused me to be confined to my bed for a long time, being too weak to even bear my weight upon my feet. I was treated by the most reputable physicians in our city, each and all saying they could do nothing for me. I had given up all hopes of ever being well. In this condition I began to take your MANALIN and PERUNA, and I am most happy to say in three months I was perfectly well—entirely cured, without any appliances or support of any kind."

Mr. G. A. Proehl, New Portage, Summit County, Ohio, writes: "My wife has been sick for about five years. In the first place the doctor called it leucorrhœa, and treated it about one year, and she grew worse, and turned to ulceration of the womb, and was treated for that two years, but she grew worse and the doctor gave her up. Then I employed Dr. Underwood, one of the best doctors of Akron, but under his treatment she grew worse. She was paralyzed; she had lost all of the sense of feeling and her eyesight. She could not walk for nearly two years. About six months ago Underwood gave her up. She tried your PERUNA. She has taken three bottles, and it did more good than any other medicine. The paralysis has about left her; her eyesight is getting better. We will continue the use of PERUNA until she is well."

Mr. Isaac Nicodemus, Schellsburg, Bedford County, Pa., writes: "I am induced, by a sense of duty to the suffering, to make a brief statement of your remarkable help, as a sufferer of catarrh in my head and throat. I doctored with one of the best physicians in our place for that dreaded disease, catarrh, and found no relief. But in 1883 I lost my speech, and was not able to do any kind of work for near three months. I could neither eat nor sleep. PERUNA and MANALIN did wonders for me. I used three bottles of PERUNA and one of MANALIN, and now I am in better health than I have been for ten years, and I can heartily recommend your medicine to all suffering from that dread disease, catarrh."

Mr. I. W. Wood, Mt. Sterling, Ohio, says: "Your medicine gives good satisfaction. My customers speak highly of its curative properties."

The True Elixir of Life

Is AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, a highly concentrated Medicine, scientifically compounded of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, Yellow Dock, Mandrake, Stillingia, Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great strength and curative virtue.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Has been tested by and has received the unqualified commendation of 4,000,000 families in the United States, and 7,000,000 families throughout the world.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Is the only Blood Purifier that has gained and retained the confidence of the people of tropical countries, where such medicines are in great demand.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Is the most popular Blood Purifier among sailors, and is in nine-tenths of the medicine-chests of the best class of American, English, German, and Danish vessels.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Contains no Arsenic and Aloes, as do many falsely called Alteratives foisted upon the credulity of the public.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Has been for many years recognized as the best Alterative and Tonic Medicine in all civilized countries.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Promptly relieves from General Debility, Nervous Prostration, and Derangement of the Vital Organs.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Effects radical cures of all maladies arising from the taint of Scrofulous or Contagious Diseases, or the corruption of Mercury in the system.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
Is endorsed by the medical profession and regularly prescribed by many leading practitioners.

HON. F. JEWETT, ex-Mayor of Lowell, and ex-State Senator, says that the only preparation of Sarsaparilla that seems to do "real, lasting good" in cleansing the blood and expelling poisonous matter from the system, is
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

MILTON FOX, the largest land-owner and farmer of Middlesex Co., Mass., credits his cure of Scrofulous Humor and Dyspepsia to the thorough purification of his blood by
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

WARREN LELAND, the famous New York landlord, testifies, from his own knowledge, that for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, Salt Rheum, and various results of high living, there is no medicine equal to
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

HIRAM PHILLIPS, Glover, Vt., attests the cure of Hereditary Scrofula, in three generations of his family, by
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

THOS. N. COOK, West Somerville, Mass., was cured of severe Eczema, and rescued from a rapid decline, by
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

THE SISTERS OF CHARITY, Dorchester, Mass., vouch for the Alterative and Curative virtues of
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

JOHN J. RYAN, Philadelphia, Pa., professional base-ball player, was cured of Rheumatism by
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

D. B. KERR, Big Springs, Ohio, testifies that his son, fifteen years old, was cured of Catarrh in its worst form, by
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

AMHERST WHITMORE, Brunswick, Me., retired sea-captain, was cured of a Cancer by
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

The attestations of a myriad of unimpeachable witnesses might be cited, were it necessary, to prove the almost miraculous cures effected by this only really Blood Purifying Medicine.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE
TO
Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrants' Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

General News Items.

The trouble between the Philadelphia shoe manufacturers and operators has led to the announcement by the manufacturers of a general shut down. Thirty thousand people will be out of employment.

The anthracite coal companies of Pennsylvania are expected to reduce their prices from twenty-five to forty cents per ton within two months. Under the plea of reduction 18,383 men will be thrown out of employment.

Governor Hamilton, of Illinois, decided on the 2d inst. that the certificate of election in the Leman-Braud contested election case should go to Leman, Republican, on account of fraud in the interest of Braud.

The electors chosen by the thirty-eight states of the Union on the 4th ult. met on Wednesday, December 3d, and elected a president and vice-president of the United States. The result was determined by the choice of electors.

The Civil-Service Record says that any one who knows anything of Grover Cleveland is sure he will carry out the Pendleton civil-service act. This will affect, however, but 10,000 out of 100,000 offices of the country.

Mr. Blaine's profits on the first volume of his book, "Twenty Years in Congress," are estimated to from $175,000 to 200,000. His private fortune is said to amount to $500,000, largely invested in manufacturing and coal interests in West Virginia and Ohio.

J. W. Wilson, of St. Louis, has resurrected the Negro World. It has been dead, lo! there many days. How long before the second death will take place we can not tell, but in the near bye and bye.

The Powers are setting out on a Quixotic plan for the great Congo valley. Utopia and Icaria are fine systems of government on paper, but they do not work. Luckily Africa is thickly inhabited, elsewise the problem of dividing it would surely entail the worst war ever heard of.

A telegram form Paris, makes the following statement. Although the cholera bulletins have been stopped, isolated deaths continue to be reported. It is estimated that fully 100,000 persons left Paris during the continuance of the cholera epidemic. People are now returning to their homes in great numbers.

During the past year there were 404 disasters to vessels on our coasts, on which were 4,223 persons, only 15 of whom were lost; the total value of the property imperilled was $10,500,000, of which $9,950,134 was saved; 64 vessels were totally lost. There were 23 more disasters than in the previous year, when there were 71 more than in any year in the history of the Life Saving Service.

The Congo sub-committee have requested General Sanford's services for a voyage from Vivi to Stanley Pool, and have directed that freight rates shall be assessed, their being placed at £40 per ton. The committee proposes three routes—first, along the cataracts of the Lower Congo; second by way of Ashanti and Ogowe; third, by the River Kwora basin.

The Examiner, of California, says that there are wealthy Chinamen in that State worth from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 each, who have never been naturalized, and who have never been out of China. Mrs. Wasserman, of Sacramento, has been awarded $5,000 damages against Mrs. Campbell, of Marysville, for slander. Mrs. Campbell called Mrs. Wasserman a Jew.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE
TO Harper's Magazine
AND
Harper's Young People.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.

"THE GIANT OF THE MONTHLIES."

Subscription per Year, $4 00.

The SEVENTIETH VOLUME will begin with the Number for December, 1884.

The Volume of HARPER'S NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE beginning in December will conclude its thirty-fifth year. The oldest periodical of its type, it is yet, in each new volume, a new Magazine, not simply because it presents fresh subjects and new pictures, but also and chiefly because it steadily advances in the method itself of magazine-making.

It is the best Magazine for the home. Touching home taste and culture at every point, and bringing to every hearth-stone argosies of wealth from all lands, and the richest treasures of imagination and art, it never intrudes an element of disturbance or controversy.

The leading writers and artists in America and England contribute to the pages of HARPER'S MAGAZINE. Its illustrated descriptive articles cover every portion of the world, and every subject of social interest in the departments of industry, science, art, literature, and polity. The illustrations alone in HARPER'S MAGAZINE during the past year cost over eighty thousand dollars. They are the wonder of our time. Its serial novels are the best published, and its short stories are unsurpassed. While, in many ways, it takes the very color and superficial impress of its time, there is no periodical in which to so great an extent the newer, larger, and deeper currents of the world's life are represented.

In circulation, in America and abroad, it leads all other periodicals of its class.

Entering upon a new year, the publishers of HARPER'S MAGAZINE repeat the promise they have made at the beginning of every year—a promise which will surely be performed—of continued improvement in the future.

PRESS NOTICES.

A model of what a family periodical should be.—Daily Evening Traveller, Boston.

Of all the magazines, this maintains the highest standard of uniform excellence.—Examiner, N. Y.

As remarkable for its pictorial beauty as for the attractiveness of its literary contents.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE ranks first in the world in circulation. Its history is a large part of the literary history of the nineteenth century in America.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

Its illustrations are as superb as its articles are varied, racy, and instructive.—Christian at Work, N. Y.

Its typography, its engravings, its reading, its general make-up, leave few things to be desired. The publishers are determined not to permit any to surpass them.—Southern Churchman, Richmond.

Brimful of seasonable and delightful reading.—N. Y. Observer.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE keeps up its reputation as a periodical fully abreast of the times, not only in the matter of seasonable topics, but in the newest inventions in art letter-press.—Cleveland Leader.

The Volumes of HARPER'S MAGAZINE, for three years back, in cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage prepaid, on receipt of $3 00 each; or, in half-calf binding, on receipt of $5 25 each.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE.

An Illustrated Weekly for Boys and Girls.

Subscription per Year, $2 00.

The SIXTH VOLUME commenced with the Number issued November 4, 1884.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE is about to be published in London. Its subscribers are found wherever the English language is spoken, and the extraordinary rapidity with which this wide circulation has been gained is due to the obvious fact that its publishers have spared neither pains nor expense to secure for it the very best literary and artistic work.

Its serial and short stories have all the dramatic interest that juvenile fiction can possess, are of superior literary quality, and wholly free from all that is pernicious or vulgarly sensational. Pastors and teachers have united in commending it warmly to parents and guardians, as an invaluable means of informing the minds and elevating the tastes of the young people under their care. The humorous stories, articles, and pictures are full of innocent fun, without a trace of coarseness.

The papers on natural history and other scientific subjects, travel, and the facts of life, are by writers whose names give the best possible assurance of accuracy and value. The historical stories, biographical tales, and anecdotes are most attractively presented.

Papers on athletic sports, games, and pastimes give full instructions with respect to those subjects, and fine pictures, representing the work of the foremost artists and engravers on wood, lavishly illustrate its pages.

In all mechanical respects HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE is as attractive as fine paper, legible type, and skilful printing can make it. There is nothing cheap about it but its price.

A specimen copy will be sent on receipt of five-cent stamp.

PRESS NOTICES.

In purity of tone, beauty of illustration, and in variety of attractive, entertaining, and instructive contents of the highest literary merit, it is unexcelled, and deserves a place in every home blessed with children, whose lives it will make better and brighter with its weekly visits.—Zion's Herald, Boston.

This charming little paper is a weekly feast of good things to the boys and girls in every family which it visits.—Brooklyn Union.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE is the best weekly for children in America.—South-western Christian Advocate.

One of the most popular children's periodicals in the country.—San Francisco Argonaut.

It overflows with stories, poems, anecdotes, instructive articles, pictures, and everything else in its line that can be thought of to make children happy, merry, and wise; and it will bear reading over again many times without losing its freshness, vivacity, or power to charm.—Providence Journal.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE continues to lend the weekly publications for youth throughout the country, and probably throughout the world.—The Living Church, Chicago.

BOUND VOLUMES.

Obituary.

In Memory of Sister Louisa Pettis.

In the early morn, when the day had dawned,
Strong voices in the crowded mart were hushed;
And the busy throng, always in the road with the morn,
When they heard the weeping, with excitement were flushed.

For the solemn words to them plainly said
"Some one is dead; some one is dead."
To them the solemn sentence was read,
Our dear, beloved Sister Louisa is dead.

She is dead! and, wiping our tear-stained eyes,
We ask the Lord—our own true God
Who dwells afar above the skies—
To guide her spirit heavenward.

When gazing on her sainted brow
We could see, marked by angel hands above;
She is not dead, but only sleeping, now,
And her soul is in that haven of love.

She has gone where there's no pain nor sorrow,
Where all is joy, and peace and rest;
Where 'tis one long day without a morrow,
And her angel spirit is forever blessed.

She smilingly said, "I am ready to go
To meet my God—our God of love—
I can see, far off on the Golden Shore,
Bright angels to welcome me above."

In Memory of Rev. A. K. Davis.

At the last meeting of the Bryant Literary Club the Society adopted the following resolutions:

Whereas Through the inscrutable will of Providence, A. K. Davis, ex-Lieutenant Governor of Mississippi, the father of our beloved secretary, Miss Alexenia Davis, has been called away from his pleasant home at Canton, Miss., to join the ranks of the select majority that must surround the judgment seat of the Great and Divine Being; and,

Whereas, That during her brief stay in our midst we had learned to esteem, love and cherish her; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Bryant Literary Club of Evanston, Illinois, do join her in this her deep sorrow, and extend, over the many miles of rail that intervene, our heart-felt sympathies, and hope when the clouds and shadows that the Death Angel has cast o'er her bereaved family shall have passed away that she may join us as a student in the Northwestern University where warm hearts and words of comfort await her.

Resolved, That these resolutions be placed on file, and a copy of them be sent to the bereaved family, the SOUTHWESTERN, Conservator and Baptist Herald.

At Pass Christian, Miss., last April, Sister Mellie Howzes. She was a faithful member of the M. E. Church. Bro. Oliver Wright died at Pass Christian, May 12, 1884, in the 66th year of his age. He was a member of the M. E. Church, and left a wife, daughter and a host of friends.

N. CANNON.

Sister Anna Steel departed this life in the full triumph of faith. She said, when asked to pray, "I thank the Lord, I don't have to pray. Many years ago I prayed. I am only waiting for the salvation of God." She was a member of Class No. 11, and of Wesley Chapel. We are willing to let her go because she has gone to heaven. Sister Steel leaves a loving husband and a host of friends to mourn her loss. Her husband promised her that he would meet her in heaven, though he has not started yet. Sister Steel died Dec. 11, 1884, aged 28 years; and was a member of the church 19 years.

Rev. M. DALE, pastor.

Sister Fannie Hays died in the full triumph of faith, Dec. 15, 1884, leaving a husband, mother, and child, with numerous friends to mourn her loss. She was an esteemed member of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Palestine, Texas.

Rev. AARON TAYLOR, Pastor.

Sister Margaret Ramsey was born in [illegible] 1791, and died Dec. 16, 1884. She was a member of the church for 50 years, and died in full triumph of faith.

How to Get Rid of Catarrh and Diseases of the Respiratory Organs.

Why do people who are sick with nasal catarrh, throat or lung trouble, go to Colorado? For change of air, and because the dry air of that region has been found beneficial to diseased lungs and air passages. But to express the truth in another way, people go to Colorado for the purpose of prolonged inhalation of a remedial air. One day's residence there would not help. It is the PROLONGED use of the air that cures.

It is a well recognized fact that air poisoned with sewer gas or decaying matter, if breathed for a continuous period will impregnate the body with disease. Hence come diphtheria, typhoid fever, etc., etc. Let a man put his pillow over the pipe of a sewer and sleep there for a few weeks. Any one knows that at the end of that time he would be a sick or dead man. This proves that prolonged inhalation of any air has a specific effect on the human system. Remedial air for good, poisoned air for bad.

The Pillow-Inhaler is an invention that makes an atmosphere in your room and in your nose and lungs for eight hours out of the twenty-four (whilst sleeping ordinarily at night) that cures Catarrh, Bronchitis, and Lung troubles.

Its results for good, and its power to cure a diseased condition of the nose and lungs is simply wonderful, and without any parallel in the history of the treatment of this class of diseases. In a pillow are hidden reservoirs filled with medicines that are of a remedial vapor or air. The sufferer goes to bed night after night in the usual way, and sleeps upon it. As he inhales the air from it night after night, gradually, the fires of inflammation in his nose or lungs are soothed, discharges and cough ceases, pain gives place to ease, and in an short time he is a well person.

The Pillow-Inhaler has been in existence over six years, and during that time it has cured persons who were hopeless and expecting death.

Send for explanatory pamphlet and testimonials. You will find it will open up to you the hope of life.

Modified Course of Study for Local Preachers.

The West Texas conference, at its session at Waco this month, passed two resolutions which are of importance to all the traveling preachers who have not completed their four years course of study, and all the local preachers within the bounds of the conference:

1. That the local preachers course of study found in paragraph 525 of the new Discipline be adopted as the four years course for the traveling preachers.

2. That the presiding elders be instructed to select a partial course of study for the local preachers below which they shall not be entitled to have their licenses renewed, or be recommended for orders.

In accordance with the instructions in the last resolution the presiding elders have selected the following course of study for local preachers in the West Texas Conference for licenses to preach:

First Year—Outlines of Bible History, by Hurst.

Catechism No. 2.

Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1884.

To be read—Hints to Self-educated Ministers. Watson's Life of Wesley.

Second Year—Bible Doctrines. Outline of Bible History, by Hurst.

To be read—Hundred Years of Methodism, by [illegible]; History of the United States, by Redpath.

Third Year—Bible Sacraments. Plain Account of Christian Perfection.

To be read—History of Missions of the M. E. Church, Vol. 1, by J. M. Reid. Wesley's Sermons, Vol. 1.

Fourth Year—Review of the preceding three years' course. History of Missions of the M. E. Church, Vol. 2, by J. M. Reid. Wesley's Sermons, Vol. 2.

By order of the Presiding Elders of the West Texas Annual Conference.

G. W. RICHARDSON.

Austin, Texas, Dec. 15, 1884.

I concur in the above.

W. F. MALLALIEU.

(This course does not apply to any but the West Texas Conference, and local preachers of that conference who prefer to do so can use the books laid down in the regular course for local preachers, as this is not obligatory.)

THE PILLOW-INHALER!

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION.

THE PILLOW-INHALER is one of the most effective inventions of the age. It does what never has been done before, viz.: batters down the stronghold of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption by a continuous application of Medicated and Curative Air to the diseased mucous membranes of the air-passages of the nose, throat and lungs.

A Radical and Permanent Cure.

Most people who have Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption have tried from one to a dozen different remedies without being cured. Why have they not been cured? Simply because what they took were not cures. How is a snuff to be got into all the intricate air-passages and in the blood (for Catarrh is a constitutional disease)? or, how will inhaling medicine for a few minutes a day dislodge the enemy from its stronghold of decaying tissue? Everybody knows that medicine taken in doses has very feeble effect on diseases of a pulmonary character. They have to take such a roundabout way to get into the blood that they miss their power. Yet after all there is an Absolute Cure, and that is the PILLOW-INHALER—a means of all-night or continuous inhalation. The testimony to its results is beyond all question, by the experience of thousands. The cures it has effected seem almost incredible. It is a comfortable pillow of soft hair, with receptacles in which is put the evaporating medicine, the fumes of which the diseased person inhales all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, without being annoyed and without noticing that he is taking medicine. There is no dosing the stomach, no-douching or snuffing; but, just as a smoky lamp, during the whole night, will leave a thick deposit on a whitened wall, so the PILLOW-INHALER, for eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. It is a constitutional and local cure at the same time. The medicine is applied directly, like a salve, at the seat of the disease, besides going into the blood during its seration. It is inexpensive and within the reach of every one. No matter what you have tried or how despairing you are, call and see it, or write for Pamphlet and Testimonials. Address,

Wilson's Compound of Cod-Liver Oil and Lime. The advantages of this compound over the plain Oil is that the nauseating taste of the Oil is removed, and the whole rendered easily palatable. The offensive taste of the oil has long existed as a great objection to its use, but in this form the trouble is obviated. A host of certificates might be given here to testify to the excellence and success of "Wilson's Cod-Liver Oil and Lime," but the fact that it is recommended and sealed by the medical faculty is sufficient. For sale by A. B. WILSON, Chemist, Boston, and all druggists.

The Emancipation, Progress and Duties of the Negro in Freedom.

An Oration Delivered upon the Occasion of the 22d Anniversary of President Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, in Wesley Chapel M. E. Church, New Orleans, La.

BY JAMES T. NEWMAN, M. D.

PREFACE.

Fellow Citizens—There are times when, and occasions on which, the most gifted intellectual genius has been forced to confess his inability to fill the measure of the general expectation; times when the most consummate orator, the smoothness and elegance of whose diction, and the music of whose well trained voice, had often before been all-sufficient to arouse the populace to revolution, or to restore the public order in a period of excitement and tumult, has found himself bereft of every vestige of the arts by which he had previously controlled Senates, aroused the patriotic enthusiasm of his countrymen, silenced the clamor of ambitious cabals, hushed the voice of noisy factions, and compelled the angry and lawless mob to obey the mandate, "Peace, be still!"

Sometimes, fellow citizens, in the presence of a great national disaster, or a heavy individual bereavement, the most ready debater finds his greatest eloquence in mournful silence. Again, at other times, a due recognition of the gravity of the occasion, a just appreciation of the weight of the responsibility attaching to his utterance, an overpowering conviction of the evil consequences that might spring from a want, on his own part, of intimate acquaintance with the subject he is called upon to treat, or from a lack of fitting words with which to express his ideas with clearness and exactness, or from misgivings of a failure on the part of his auditors to rightly comprehend his meaning, the speaker comes to the performance of his task oppressed by a conscious feeling of doubt and fear. Doubt, as to whether he shall be at all able to intelligently convey to those who hear him the thoughts which burden his heart; fear, lest his failure to rise to the height of the occasion might, instead of meeting with a generous indulgence, render him obnoxious to harsh criticism. He looks here, and lo! before him rises in awful majesty the grim front of Scylla. He looks yonder and there he sees the yawning jaws of dread Charybdis. What Circe shall furnish him the means of safety in his adventurous voyage? Shall he recede or advance? To recede might be to invite censure; to advance might be to meet with disappointment—perhaps with discomfiture. In the midst of his perplexities and doubts he hears the voice of an oracle who has dived deep down into the recesses of human knowledge. It repeats the Italian proverb: "A deed done has an end." It is the voice of Milton, and he at once recalls the sublime magnanimity of that immortal sage who, although warned that if he persisted in writing his famous "Defense of the People" it would doubtless terminate in his blindness, heroically completed the work at the cost of his sight, triumphantly exclaiming: "Cosa fatta capo ha"—"A deed done has an end." He no longer hesitates. He feels the glow of the Promethean fire. He goes forward to the performance of his task with faith and courage.

Such, fellow citizens, has been the condition, at some time or other of their lives, of many men of acknowledged transcendent ability, who have figured during various eras of the world's history. Who that is at all acquainted with English history does not remember that pitiable instance of the truth of what I am now saying, so pathetically presented in the life of Sir Edward Coke, the great Lord Chief Justice of the British realm!

CHIEF JUSTICE COKE.

Richly bedecked with the trophies of victories won during a long and brilliant career at the bar, where he may be said to have stood an intellectual gladiator almost without a rival—his proud coronal gemmed with priceless diadem of a nation's grateful appreciation of the distinguished and inestimable services he had rendered on the bench where, for many years, Atlas-like, he had borne upon his shoulders the full weight of judicious responsibility, we behold him with his honors thick upon him, kneeling as an humble defendant before the Council Board of his irate sovereign, Charles I. At the the bar his wonderful eloquence and consummate legal acumen, like a mad torrent, had never failed to sweep down all opposition before him; on the bench, his deep learning in the science of jurisprudence, his masterly knowledge of the constitutional limitations of his country, his intimate acquaintance with the fundamental principles underlying civilized government, had well enabled him, not only to administer justice with even balance between citizen and citizen, but had more than once served to check the advance of arbitrary power, and to limit the royal prerogative within the bonnds of constitutional authority. And yet this man, whose ability and learning had won for him the just title of "Father of the Common Law"—this fair, consummate flower of English civilization—this man who was the pride of his country, and the enemy of his contemporaries—found himself, on the occasion to which I refer, without the ability or courage to properly defend himself against the criminating arguments of his antagonist—that antagonist being a woman, and that woman his own wife.

And here, fellow citizens, I have frankly to confess that the feelings I have described as being those experienced, at some time in their lives, by men the hem of whose raiment I may not even presume to touch as they pass by, are not at all dissimilar to those by which I am animated on this occasion. To stand forth as one of your orators on an occasion like this—to voice the feelings and sentiments of a redeemed people in the celebration of an event so vast in its importance and so full of interest to us all, to venture upon the discussion of the great topics which, on such an occasion, naturally present themselves for consideration—is an honor so far above and beyond my humble deserts that, under the most favorable circumstances, I could not but be deeply sensible of my utter inability to meet the requirements of the distinguished station to which your kind partiality has so generously assigned me.

My friends and countrymen, to honor freedom; to manifest our high appreciation of the blessings that freedom has brought to us; to draw fresh inspiration from the results already gained; to gather new courage to struggle in freedom's cause, we are met to-day.

THE OCCASION.

We are assembled to recognize in a befitting manner the 22nd anniversary of American Emancipation. The event from which this celebration derives its significance was the issuance by Abraham Lincoln of the proclamation of Sept. 22, 1862, and that of Jan. 1, 1863; the former declaring that the prosecution of the war thereafter, as before, would be for the restoration of the constitutional relation between the United States and each of the States and the people thereof, in which States that relation was or might be suspended or disturbed; that the Chief Executive would, upon the next meeting of Congress, renew his recommendation for the tender of pecuniary aid to such slave States, so called, whose people might not then be in rebellion against the United States, and which States might then have voluntarily adopted immediate or gradual abolishment of slavery within their respective limits; that on the first day of January, 1863, all persons held as slaves within any State or designated part of a State, whose people should then be in rebellion, should be then, thenceforward and forever free; and that the Executive Government of the United States, including the military and naval authority thereof, would recognize and maintain the freedom of such persons, and would do no act or acts to repress such persons, or any of them, in any efforts they might make for their actual freedom; and the latter declaring all persons held as slaves in the States and parts of States then in rebellion free, and announcing "that the Executive Government of the United States, including the military and naval authorities thereof, will recognize and maintain the freedom of said persons."

Who of us that values liberty, that loves freedom for freedom's sake, can recall the past without blessing the memory of Abraham Lincoln, the preserver of the life of his country, the great American emancipator, the illustrious and immortal martyr of human liberty! Patriot, statesman, lover of human kind! His deeds shall live forever in his country's history; his fame shall be more enduring than monumental marble or brass; and above and beyond all, his name shall be rendered forever imperishable in the hearts of a grateful race who have been redeemed from hopeless bondage by his moral courage in performing the right, and whom, under divine guidance, he lifted beyond the reach and influence of the deadly night shade of slaverp's dominion.

THE PROCLAMATION

of January 1, 1863, decreeing emancipation, was preceded by the Act of Congress of April 16, 1862, abolishing slavery in the District of Columbia; and it was indeed fitting that it should be so. It was eminently proper that the great act of national justice which wrought our deliverance should have been preceded by the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia. It was indeed fitting that the accursed bar sinister on the national escutcheon should have been first removed therefrom within the shadow of the national capital; that the fetters which bound the arms of the oppressed black man in the nation's capital and threw a deep shadow on the path of the laboring white man should have first been dissolved by the breath of the people's representatives in Congress assembled, before the giant wrong was overthrown throughout its wide Southern domain. It was indeed fitting that the emancipation of the slaves in the District of Columbia should have been proclaimed to "the waiting and oppressed of the earth as the realized gospel of deliverance." It was indeed proper that the capital city of the nation should be rendered worthy of the name of Washington. To note the proceedings of the 37th and 38th Congresses, in relation to the abolition of slavery, would be as instructive as it would be interesting, but to do so would involve too great a tax on your patience. I must, therefore, content myself with a mere passing reference to a few of the many stirring events of that momentous period. As early as July 16, 1861, Senator Pomeroy, of Kansas, at the special session of Congress, called by the President, introduced a bill proposing the abolition of slavery in the seceding States. It was too bold a measure for that period. The time had not yet come under God's own providence. The nation had not yet realized the fullness of its danger. The American people had not yet been fully awakened from their dream of security against the armed aggressions of slavery.

FEDERAL DISASTERS.

The disaster to the national arms at Bull Run had not yet taken place. The military pride of the North had not yet been sorely wounded. The flower of its manhood had not yet languished in the skeleton-clutch of famine. The stockades of Florence and Andersonville had not yet been even dreamed of. The errors of Libby had not yet been enacted. It still needed defeat after defeat, disaster on the top of disaster, to arouse the sleeping conscience of the nation. The American people had not yet learned the philosophy of "plucking the rose of safety from the nettle of danger." God had not yet held them face to face with their duty. Various measures looking toward emancipation and the confiscation of the property of those engaged in rebellion were, from time to time, introduced and debated in both houses of Congress until July, 1862, when an act combining confiscation and emancipation was passed and approved by the President. While Congress had been discussing the great questions of emancipation and confiscation, the President had not been unmindful of these subjects. On the contrary, they were commanding at his hands the most careful and serious consideration. To the student of history it cannot be but interesting to note the gradual advance of opinion on the part of President Lincoln, which finally culminated in the arbitrary conviction of the absolute propriety as well as necessity of decreeing emancipation. This advance of opinion was, in the judgment of the loyal and Union-loving men of the country, painfully slow. But this slow and cautious movement cannot, in the light of the history of those times, be justly attributed either to a lack of sympathy for the slave or a want of loyalty to the cause of human freedom.

LINCOLN.

Born of humble parentage upon slave soil, he had the good fortune to have been reared on free soil. Removed in the spring-time of youth from the baneful and demoralizing influences of slavery, he had early imbibed the spirit of liberty, and had drank long and deeply from the fountain of freedom. There can be no doubt that he assumed the Chief Magistracy an earnest and unfaltering anti-slavery man. He had a lively sense of the irreconciliable antagonism between free labor and slave labor, between the Pharisaical pretension of the Cavalier to superiority over the rest of human kind and the simple, but rational belief of the Puritan in the universal fatherhood of God and the universal brotherhood of man.

He had a deep abhorrence of human bondage. Yet, with all this, he was a reformer of conservative mould. In his message to Congress, on the 16th of March 1862, he recommended the passage of a resolution declaring the willingness of the Government to co-operate with any State that might adopt the gradual abolition of slavery, and give to such States pecuniary aid, to be used to compensate for the inconvenience, public and private, that might arise from such abolition.

In his appeal to the people of the border States to adopt gradual emancipation, he proved fully his views harmonized with those of the anti-slavery men of the country. In an interview with the representatives of Congress from the border States, in July 1862, he earnestly and solemnly appealed to them to accept gradual and compensated emancipation—pointing out the benefits that would come to all by such acceptance; and in speaking of his recent proclamation repudiating General Hunter's order, freeing forever all the slaves within the States of South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, he placed himself squarely and unequivocally on the record as a votary of freedom.

He said: "General Hunter is an honest man. He was and I hope, is still my friend. I valued him none the less for agreeing with me in the general wish that all men everywhere could be freed."

See how intense was his desire that slavery might cease! Hear him. In a conversation with Mr. Owen Lovejoy, the great apostle of Liberty, and Mr. Isaac N. Arnold, another leader in the anti-slavery cause, on the evening of the 13th of July 1862, in relation to his interview a few days before, with the border States' representatives, he exclaimed: "Oh, if the border States would accept my proposition! Then you, Lovejoy, and Arnold, and all us would not have lived in vain! The labor of your life, Lovejoy, would be crowned with success—You would live to see the end of slavery."

In a message to Congress on the the subject of emancipation, Mr. Lincoln betrayed the tendency of his mind toward universal and immediate emancipation. Among other things he said: "In giving freedom to the slave, we assure freedom to the free, honorable alike in what we give and what we preserve.....Other means may succeed; this could not fail. The way is plain, peaceful, generous, just; a way which, if followed, the world will forever applaud, and God must forever bless."

Those who would deprive the edict of emancipation of the true motives underlying it, very often pretend to the claim that it was dictated solely by absolute and imperative "military necessity." If

Letters from the Pastors.

Rev. W. H. Evans, pastor, of the Asbury Chapel Methodist Episcopal Church, writes: "Dear Editor— believe that we are doing a grand work in Asburry Chapel. We have good meetings all the time, and God has blessed us so far, and we believe will continue to trust Him, he will do so. I have a good set of people to work with. You said, you sent me to Lexington to build a church for our people," and I am glad to say I have commenced, and by the help of the Lord the good sisters and myself, raised $126 30, last Sunday. May God bless you and us. We had a wonderful pouring out of the Spirit at our Thanksgiving Centennial meeting. Brother G. W. Thomas was with us, at three p. m., with his people. The meeting was opened by Bro. Shotle. Bro. G. W. Thomas preached a very interesting sermon, on the "History of Methodism," incited some very appropriate remarks from the presiding elder. After which Bro. Shotle and C. C. Mason, were each allowed to address the meeting for five minutes. We had love feast the same night, and it will long be remembered. We raised $33.25. We held our third quarterly conference on the 16th ult., and Presiding Elder White preached a most influential sermon. Bro. G. W. Thomas was with us at 3 p. m., and he preached wonderful sermon, and we administered the Lord's supper to 359 persons."

Rev. H. Dunlap, Atoka, Tenn., writes: "My last collection before the Annual Conference met at Pleasant Grove Church was as follows: Pleasant Grove Church, $35; Atoka Church, $22 25; Friendship Church, $6; Ledshire Church, $5; making a total of $34.60."

Rev. S. S. Wright, Campte, La., writes: "Our church is spiritually alive. We commenced a protracted meeting on the 17th of November, and had pleasure of receiving three seekers and eight reclaimed, whose names are as follows: Nancy Moore, Louis Presley, Eliza Francis Robinson, Aaron Sanders, Thomas, P. Chesley, Parker, Leon Mary Willaby, and Mary We are making out a list of subscribers for that grand paper, the SOUTHWESTERN. May God grant its editor a long life. Pray for us."

Rev. Geo. W. Ransom, Pinkens [illegible], Miss., writes: "I wish to let the brethren know what I am working for the SOUTHWESTERN and for Christ. I have sent 16 subscribers, and I speak about it every time I get up to preach. We have [illegible] at Union Chapel every fourth Sabbath. Our church and Sunday-school are doing well. T. Jones, Hays [illegible] "I owe to my last [illegible] brethren [illegible] Duvall, [illegible] I do not [illegible] know I do [illegible] and understand this great Church of ours, to mean that we should fight any church, that we believe to be of God. We believe in the church of God, and the communion of saints, and I think we should defend our Church doctrine and Discipline; but I think the office of the minister is to save souls, and let God [illegible] battles for us."

Rev. W. H. Wilson, pastor, writes: "I am doing all I can for the paper, and think I shall have a good list of subscribers for the New Year. I shall send in the name of all cash subscribers by the last of the month. My wife is running for a watch, and says, she would like for your to send her a few votes, ten cents is a vote. Ask some of the pastors to send her theirs by the 15 or 20 the month."

Rev. J. L. Massey, Mason, Tenn., writes: "This is a great cotton country, but little wealth. This town has about 800 inhabitants, seven dry goods stores, two drug stores, one boarding house, one restaurant, three groceries, two blacksmith shops and three saloons. I must say Mr. Editor there is a work at this place that will soon be accomplished, and the old church is to do it. We are surrounded by a church whose pastor, preaches and teaches the people that if God has pardoned their sins that is all there is to be done, they can drink and get drunk. I have been told since I have been in this place that some of the preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, or the preachers who do not go to the bars and tap glasses and drink, will stand in God's sacred altar and tell the people if they have been changed they are all right. God only does His work, and they have failed to read Revelations, 14: "Nevertheless, I have somewhat against thee because thou hast left thy first love." We have this sort of stuff being handed down from the pulpit. They have not only filled their dens with males, but on my way to church, myself and wife saw drunken women on the streets. Walking from my room last Saturday evening I saw not less than 18 people drunk; some good women had hold of their husbands and both drunk. My people in this part of the country are poor, and I do not wonder at it, for a large portion of what they make goes for whiskey. We need a church at this place, and I think it would be a good idea, and pay our cause, to build one here, on high land, as the one we have is in a wet, low place, and bad for winter. We want to make a good start soon, the trustees say they can build it 35x55 for $2,00. It would speak well for the West Tennessee conference."

Rev. J. R. Carnes, Waco, Texas, writes: "These are the names of missionary subscribers: Henrietta Wright, 50cts; Elizabeth Campbell, 50cts; Randle Caldwell, 50cts; J W Danforth 50cts; Fanny Henry, 50 cts; B Thomas, 50cts; Rev Jannary Gordon, 50cts; David Storms, 50 cts; Jane McCune, 50cts; William Henderson, 50cts; J W Mullins, 50 cts; Samantha Lendrum, 50cts; Hixy Jones, 50cts; S Gates $1.50; Lacy Ellerson, $1.50; Minerva Hines, 50cts; B J Henry, 50cts; Topsy Morgan, 50cts; Ida Parker, 50cts; Amanda Taylor, 50cts; J W Jones, 50cts; Martha Shipp, 50cts; Amanda Graves, 50cts; Lizzie Collins, 50cts, G Scales, 50cts; L Scales, 50cts; Fannie Henry, 50cts; Caroline Henry, 50cts; Mary Graves, 50cts; Laura Hinder, 50cts; Melissa Thomas, 50cts; Ellen Ellis, 50cts; Julia Caldwell, 50cts; Fanny Taylor, 50cts; Anna Austin, 50cts; Margaret Dozier, 50cts; Jane Maladey, 50cts; Jane Rumells, 50cts; Alice Richardson, 50cts; Buelah Lee, 50cts; Millie Osborn, 50cts; Emma Jones, 50cts; Lucy Baker, 50cts; Roseann Lutcher, 50cts; David Lutcher, 50cts; Ellen Townsend, 50cts; William Colwell, 50cts; Martha Jones, 50cts; Mahala Abernathe, 50cts; Eliza Harington, 50 cts; Julia Carter, 50cts; Olla Carter, 50cts."

BISHOP ASBURY, 1784.

The Centennial Conference.

On the 15th of Dec., 1884, a number of delegates and visitors will leave for their homes—but the attendance is still large both of delegates and visitors.

Bishop J. W. Hood, of Zion M. E. Church presided during the morning. The first essay had been prepared by Bishop Holsey, of the Colored M. E. Church — Subject "Methodist Means of Grace." The Bishop being sick, the essay was read by another colored man. The paper did not stick very closely to the point, but like many others previously read was of a rather desultory character, but contained some very sensible and pertinent things.

The next essay was by Rev. A. S. Hunt — subject "The Aim and Character of Methodist Preaching." The paper was of a very creditable character—and read well when published. Very strong points were made and well sustained. Following the reading of this essay Dr. Vincent delivered an address on Methodism in relation to youth of the Church. An able address and well received by the Conference.

I was delighted to see Bishop Wilson again in the conference room. He is feeble. May God in His infinite mercy restore him to health, and spare him long to the Church.

In his address Dr. Vincent recommended a sort of Ritual to be used in classes in Sunday-schools and elsewhere—which is almost identical in substance with the Sunday-school Manual, prepared by the present writer some twenty-five years ago and been so extensively used since. I suggest that our manager re-advertise that Manual.

"Our Brother in Black" manifests quite a disposition to let it be known that he is here, and ready for any emergency or any question on almost any subject. His fondness for speaking is clearly shown, and is in wonderful contrast with the reticency of the Indian who says not a word in the way of public speaking.

In the afternoon, Dec. 15th, Bishop Ninde, of the M. E. Church, presided. Dr. Anson West, of the M. E. Church, South, read an elaborate essay, subject, "The doctrinal unity of Methodism."

Next followed an essay by Rev. R. N. Davis, of the M. E. Church, subject, "Guard to the purity of our Doctrinal Teaching." The subjects were handled with ability.

The Conference having accepted an invitation of the ladies of Baltimore to a reception at the Music Hall from 5 to 7 o'clock, adjourned a few minutes before 5 o'clock and most of the members attended the reception where they were welcomed by an appropriate speech by the Mayor which was responded to by Drs. McFerrin and Buckley on behalf of the Conference.

The subject discussed at a number of churches at night was that of Sunday-schools. A number of churches were occupied and two or more addresses delivered at each.

Dec. 16. The present writer was called on to preside during the morning session. The first essay read was by Dr. J. E. Evans, of Georgia, subject, "The four points of Methodism—Heart Conversion, Assurance, Christian Experience and Sanctification." The essay was long and very well written.

The second essay was read by Rev. Dr. King, of New York, subject, "The influence of Methodism on other denominations." The essay was one among the most interesting of those read at the Conference.

In the afternoon Bishop Walden presided.

Dr. Fry, of St. Louis, read an essay, subject, "Value of the Press to Methodism," and Dr. Fitzgerald read another essay, subject, "Value of the Periodical Press to Methodism." Both of which were well received. A good deal of miscellaneous business was transacted during the afternoon.

In the evening, meetings were held at several churches at which were discussed "The Mission of Methodism to the Extreme Societies." It was my fate to be appointed to the Mt. Vernon Church, where after the Rev. Dr. Crooks had read a learned and admirable paper on the subject, I did as well as I could under the circumstances.

The good feeling and pleasantness of the occasion continues and the good feeling increased. So far all whom I have heard express themselves — declare themselves highly delighted. To-morrow will be the last day.

Dec. 17. During the morning session Dr. Hendrix presided and after the morning hour, taken up by some miscellaneous business, the essays on the programme were called for. The first was to have been read by Rev. Dr. H. P. Walker, subject, "Place and Power of the Lay Element in Methodism," but Dr. Walker not being present, the second essay was read by Dr. Buckley, of the New York Advocate, subject, "What Methodism owes to Woman?" The reading was listened to with strictest attention and being the last, was almost universally pronounced the best. It certainly was a superior effort of the kind—notwithstanding the fact that some of the views may not be accepted by all, and the further fact that the writer made no mention of such women of the South as Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Keywood, and others who did much for the cause of Methodism in the early period of its history in this country.

The Church in the United States never produced a woman superior in intellect, in devotion to the Church, in liberal works of faith and charity, and consistent piety than Mrs. General Russell.

At the close of the morning session, it was announced that the closing exercise of the Conference would be held, commencing at 3 o'clock and large numbers then in the galleries remained with their lunches for two and a half hours waiting for the afternoon session, fearing that when the time came they would not find seats. And when the time did arrive, there was not a vacant seat in the large house, neither on the floor nor galleries—such a crowd!

Divers resolutions referring to divers subjects were introduced and acted upon by the Conference, all of which will appear hereafter. A committee had been appointed to prepare a letter to the Methodist Episcopal churches in all the United States and Canada. Through Bishop Merrill the committee reported. The Bishop remarked that circumstances prevented a meeting of the committee and that the letter was of his own production. The letter was read and voted as the sense of a majority of this Conference.

The love feast then commenced. Three persons, namely, Folsom, a Choctaw Indian, Bishop Wayman, a blak man, and Dr. McFerrin had been designed to made five minutes speeches—which they all did—with good effect on the audience. After these the venerable Trimble, Merrick, Brown, Lemmon, old men, bore testimony to the power of renewing grace. Many others followed with like testimony. Bishop Foster stated that he was born in 1820, licensed to exhort at the age of thirteen, at seventeen was admitted into the Ohio Conferences and has been engaged in the work of the ministry ever since. The testimonies continued, following each other in quick succession till the time expired. Many of them were of a most touching character, and a deep religious feeling pervaded the large assembly and most of the members were deeply effected.

After this, the hymn commencing, "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love," was sung, the venerable Dr. Merrick read a parting address, full of tenderness, and godly admonition, Rev. Dr. Trimble, who presided during the afternoon session, led in prayer, and with living hearts and tearful eyes, the Centennial Conference adjourned sine die.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

From the Districts.

Holly Springs District Conference—Nov. 27-29, 1885.

REV. A. M. TROTTER, SECRETARY.

The conference convened in our church at 8:30, on the first day above mentioned. Rev. B. L. Crump, the pastor, extended a kind welcome to the brethren of the district, who at this time had largely gathered from all parts of the district. His address was fittingly responded to by the presiding elder, J. C. Eckles. During both of these addresses all felt "it was good to be here." The conference was then favored by a spirited speech by Rev. N. H. Williams, subject: "African Mission, Its Origin and Growth." He was followed by Rev. A. D. Payne in an able and well prepared paper, subject: "Our Duty to It."

The Conference reassembled, at 8:20, on the morning of the 28th. The first part of the day was spent in appointing the usual committees and hearing reports from the presiding elders and pastors, each showing success in the district, especially when compared with the stringency of the times. Rev. M. H. Foster offered a resolution requiring each candidate, before he received license to preach, to promise to wholly abstain from the use of tobacco. This was ably discussed, pro and con, by several brothers. The yeas and nays were ordered on the final vote, and the secretary was ordered to send the vote to the SOUTHWESTERN for publication. The resolution was lost by the following vote: Yeas—A M Trotter, R Brown, E G Gates, L O Crowder, B L Crump, R B Isom, M H Foster, Beverly Tolbott, Robert Hart, Rufus Johnson Henry York, A Jackson, S A Cowan, N H Williams, R M Pegues, A J Cooper, S D Hatson, Ned Pegues, Mack Williams, Lee Nelson—20. Nays—A C Boon, E Smith, H Rollins, Johnson Terry, Prentice Terry, Mack McEwin, R P Threlkill, Wm Parks, J L Wilson, S Newsom, A Harman, J H Blakely, S Dawson, W H Pegues, R Cooper, S H Hunter, A D Payne, J H Moore, W C Herron, Henry Isom, Burrel Crawford, J E Powell—22.

At 3 o'clock p. m., a memorial service of Bishop I. W. Wiley was held. Rev. S. A. Cowan, chairman of committee appointed to arrange for this service, presented appropriate resolutions and other arrangements for this service, which he doubtless will forward to you for publication. This was a service of deep feeling, for many of us loved Bishop Wiley. But we leave Bro. Cowan to report. During this day I observed rain, snow and sunshine, but notwithstanding this 8 o'clock p. m. found our church crowded with anxious folks desiring to hear something of the wonderful works of the Freedmen's Aid Society. A M Trotter, M H Foster and S A Cowan were the speakers for the occasion. Presiding Elder Eckles followed with a brief address, during which time $5 responses were common. A collection was asked for this Society and $12 was collected. At a late hour at night the meeting was closed, all leaving resolved to be more earnest in their efforts for the Freedmen's Aid Society than ever before.

Saturday, the 29th, the Conference met at 8:30. The usual business of the Conference was finished by 2 p. m., nothing being omitted. Not less thon fifty members attended the Conference, and each one received proper attention. Mr. M. Canada, a devoted member of the M. E. Church South, was introduced; also Rev. G. A. Griffin, of the C. M. E. Church. Each of the following resolutions were adopted, as stated by Rev. A. D. Payne:

Whereas, There is a great want of regularity in the reports of local preachers, exhorters, etc.; and

Whereas, It is time, and high time, we were making advancement in this particular; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of this District Conference, do hereby order that a committee be appointed by the chair, whose duty it shall be to secure carefully prepared blanks for each of these officers.

By A. M. Trotter: Resolved, That we gladly welcome Profs. Hatfield and Green as representatives of Rust University, and that we extend them a hearty invitation to visit us at some subsequent meeting of our district conference, for our advancement both spiritually and temporally. This was adopted by a unanimous rising vote.

At 3 o'clock a large number of the Sunday-school scholars had gathered, and many others, and Prof. J. T. Hatfield held all present, as it were, spell bound for nearly an hour, telling us about China and India. When he was through we all arose and followed Elder Eckles in thanking him three times. Rev. Wm. M. Parks addressed the children, and the Conference adjourned.

Report of Huntsville District, Texas Conference.

REV. EDWARD LEE, P. E.

Huntsville district takes up 14 counties; the chief business is sawing lumber. Owing to the drouth throughout the southwestern part of the State, and, as I learn through the papers, throughout the entire State, it made a poor sale for lumber, hence the people could get but little work, which made money scarce with the people. This, of course, hindered us in building as much as we intended to. But in spite of this we have been successful in erecting four churches on the district, one on the Lovelady circuit, one on Walker circuit, one on Town Bluff circuit and another nearly completed near Town Bluff.

Beaumont, Rev. H. W. Wilson pastor in charge, added 40 to the church, 11 conversions. Anderson Williams, in charge of Orange, has done a grand work; more than 30 have been added to the church, 2 conversions; built a nice church and parsonage, had a good well dug, and collected $30 benevolent money, which averages $1 to each member for benevolent purposes. At Liberty Bro. G. W. Norris failed to go to the work assigned him at the last conference, on account of sickness, so Bro. A. Gillum supplied the work. He has done good work on one portion of the circuit; he has bought an acre of ground to build a church on, and six acres for another site for a church. Wallisville circuit, in charge of Spencer Kelley, has had 25 accessions to the church, 6 converts, and raised $52 benevolent money, nearly 50 cents to each full member. Montgomery circuit, Rev. Aaron Adair has been in charge; he has added a new work to the circuit known as the Beckwith settlement. At this pott alone Bro. Adair has had 30 additions and 15 converts, and throughout the circuit 50 accessions. Rev. Jeremiah Smith, in charge of Willis circuit, has put new pews in the church costing $6 each; 24 added to the church, 8 conversions, and $25 benevolent money collected. On Danville circuit Bro. A. Britten had a hard time in gathering the people, but has been successful in doing so; he has 15 or more conversions, and many added to the church. At Huntsville Station, Rev. W. W. Brown in charge, there are many oppositions to contend with; notwithstanding this he has held the better class of the people to our church, and taken up $40 benevolent money. Rev. A. C. Galbreath, in charge of Huntsville circuit, has done about the best work this year that ever has been done since it became a circuit. He collected $80 for Sunday-school expenses, bought one acre of land on which to erect a new church at Mount Prairie, and took a good benevolent collection. Richard Williams, in charge of Walker circuit, built a new church at Shady Grove and has been blessed with 8 conversions and attended strictly to collecting the benevolent money. Leadady was left to be supplied by the last annual conference. Bro. Benjamin Fisher supplied the work with credit to himself as a Christian minister and the church; he has finished one neat little church at White Rock, and put in a nice set of pews. Town Bluff is a new work just taken up this year. Rev. Toby Ward attended this work. He has bought and paid for a nice lot and church in Town Bluff, costing about $600, and has started to build a church at Wolf Creek, and has two more preaching places at Belvelort, Bro. A. J. Neley has done nobly. He has gathered a good congregation and has 80 probationers, and a large Sunday-school of intelligent young men and women who take part in the school with the children. At Livingston, Bro. John Guess had a good well dug, and bargained for some more acres of land to add to the two acres we now own, and the money raised to pay for the same. At Somerville now we have a good church house, but a poor membership, so we are getting very bad. At Camilla [illegible] the Cold Springs circuit, Rev. W. M. McKenzie has built up one of the best congregations on the district. He has been blessed during the year and many [illegible] and has great prospects [illegible] the leading [illegible] the district.

Mrs. Jennie F. Willing arrived in New Orleans Thursday evening, January 1, from Cincinnati, where she has been in conference with the authorities. She is now domiciled at the New Orleans University, where she may be visited or addressed by those who desire to meet or correspond with her. Her present tour in the South embraces a visit to Atlanta, Chattanooga, Hot Springs, Little Rock, and probably Mobile and Houston. On Wednesday evening, Dec. 7, she will address the women of New Orleans in Union Chapel at 7:30. Mrs. Willing comes to us with the cordial endorsement of our great Church and with the personal recommendation of many very prominent people. She is the sister of a Bishop, and the wife of an eminent minister in the Rock River Conference. Besides and above all, Mrs. Willing commends herself to the favor and help of our people for her own and her work's sake. She represents the Woman's Home Missionary Society.

A letter of interesting correspondence comes to us from the City of Mexico. The Rev. J. W. The 22d Anniversary of Freedom.

The twenty-second anniversary of the emancipation of the American Negroes was properly celebrated in Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church, Thursday evening, January 1st. The people of New Orleans were intelligently, though not numerously represented on the occasion. We are sure it was not for want of a just and grateful recognition of the momentus occurrence it was intended to commemorate, and we congratulate those whose good fortune it was to be present, upon the masterly address to which they were treated. We also congratulate the learned speaker for his chastly worded and profoundly sensible address. We can think of no man, and we have never listened to any who was better prepared or more skillfully preformed such a task. We give the address in full in this number. It will amply repay a careful reading, and we congratulate our readers upon the fortunate circumstances which places it within their reach. An original poem which we shall print was also read. Rev. W. O. Forest, Pleasant Plain Methodist Episcopal Church, was called to the chair. Bishop Mallalieu opened the exercises with prayer. A vote of thanks was tendered both to the orator and poet of the hour, a resolution requesting the publication of the paper in the SOUTHWESTERN was passed, and Rev. T. J. Montgomery pronounced the benediction. If the audience was not large, it was no fault of the spendid literary, and instructive character of the proceedings. Among important persons present, were Bishop Mallalieu and son, Dr. Otker, J. B. Gaudet, Esq., Prof. C. T. Simpson Prof. R. R. Green and Miss. Talbott of Rust University; Prof. J. W. Bowman, Miss Cowgill and others.

An Episode.

Minister—Judge, I want to get a divorce from my wife."

Doctor, who happened to be present—"Why, my dear sir, your wife has the consumption and cannot live more than six or seven months at."

Minister—"Well never mind the divorce then, Judge, as I can stand anything six or seven months."

Story from real life by Rev. Emperor Williams.

Our Party—The best men, women and childern we can find.

Our Platform—Slay liquor, the slayer of manhood and all the virtues of womanhood.

Our Work—To divide the vicious, unite the virtuous, lift the fallen, assist the reformed, strengthen the weak, succor the needy, confront the wayward, rally the falter-ing, rescue the yielding, and equip the saved for further conflicts and victories.

Our Candidate—The Lord Jesus Christ.

Our Congress—The general assembly of the saints.

The Holidays are over. We have come to the middle month of winter but we are not out of the woods yet, with our Centennial rally. We must have just $200,000 and the harder the times the more brilliant will be our victory. The South will give new proof of its merit, by contributing at least one fifth of the amount. The colored people will vindicate the or claim to the high consideration the Church has given them by raising $50,000 of this, and if ever the Louisiana Conference get down to earnest work for their New Orleans University, now is the time to do so. If $10,000 is raised it will be applied to this Institution. Let us now go into this work with earnestness and accomplish it.

We are under many obligations to Bro. McKinney, of the Central Alabama Conference, for quick returns from the recent session of his conference, which we sincerely regret our inability to attend. This, with the East Tennessee, adopted the SOUTHWESTERN as their conference organ.

MEHARRY MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

Meharry Medical Department Central Tennessee College.

GEO. W. HUBBARD, M. D., DEAN.

The Meharry Medical Department of Central Tennessee College, is the only medical school under the care of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church; and with one exception, the only one in the United States in which all, or even a majority of the students are colored.

It was organized in 1876, and has been in successful operation since that time.

During these eight years forty-four young men have received the degree of Doctor of Medicine, and nearly all of them are now practicing their chosen profession in the Southern and Southwestern States. They have met with gratifying success, and have won the confidence and respect, not only of their own people, but also that of the white physicians of the localities in which they reside.

The demand for properly qualified colored physicians far exceeds the supply; and we know of no field that presents a more promising outlook for usefulness and success. In many places, especially in large cities of the South, the death rate among the colored people is much greater than among the whites, and this indicates that they need physicians of their own race, not only to minister to their necessities when sick, but also to teach them the laws of health.

Through the liberality of the different members of the family whose name this Institution bears, a beautiful and healthy location was secured, and a handsome four story brick building erected, sufficiently large to accommodate one hundred students.

During the past year Rev. Calvin Pickett visited several of the principal cities of the North, and secured liberal contributions in money for endowment and students aid, and two hundred dollars worth of books from the publishers at New York and Philadelphia for the Medical Library.

This institution is now supplied with a good Medical Library, laboratory, and apparatus.

The professors are experienced and well qualified for their work.

The present class is larger than any that has previously attended at this time in the session, and has one more representative from the following States:

North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Tennessee, and District of Columbia.

Partial arrangements have been made for establishing departments of dentistry and pharmacy, and which will be opened as soon as there is a sufficient demand for them.

We would be glad to hear from any who desire to pursue a course of study in either dentistry or pharmacy.

Nashville, Tenn.

A Salute from Georgia.

Griffin, Ga., Dec. 19, 1884, Rev. M. W. Taylor, D. D.—Dear Sir: The last session of the Savannah Annual Conference, by a unanimous vote, made the SOUTHWESTERN the official organ of this Conference. Therefore I send herein my appointments of quarterly meetings for first round, to be printed in the SOUTHWESTERN, according to vote of conference. Resdectfully,

R. T. ADAMS.

There is plenty of room here. All honor to the Savannah Conference, and to Presiding Elder Adams. We do not need to make room; the door was open, and room a plenty. Enter freely.

We have one more favorable response to our appeal for aid to the Girls Industrial Department of Central Tennessee College, Nashville. This makes $10 of the $100 we want to place at Mrs. Barnes' disposal for use in her department, and we are sure the Lord has 18 good men who will give $5 each to aid deserving young women to learn the duties of the home life.

Mr. Henry M. Stanley has found his greatest auxiliary to unmolested progress through Africa to be the disunited order of society there, and he argues that any steps toward unity of action on the part of the Congo tribes will be against European domination there. Yes, any slave-driver of ante-bellum days in this country could affirm that the best way to enslave a people is to divide them. But God's in this Congo business, gentlemen.

Baltimore hospitality has fully sustained the reputation of old for its great generousness in entertaining the Centennial Conference.

Personal.

—The address of Rev. E. Roberts, until February 19, will be at Sweet Home, Ark.

—Instead of James as we had it, his name is Rev. Jefferson John Wesley Bowman. We gladly make the correction.

—Rev. Jabez Brooks, D. D., is stopping at 181 Canal Street, city, Prof. of Greek, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minnesota conference.

—Among the last arrivals in the city, is Rev. J. D. Norton, of East Ohio Conference. May be found by inquiring at the parsonage of Amen Church.

—Dr. Hartzell informs us that Mr. John D. Slayback, of New York, has given another $5,000 to aid in seminary work among our white membership in the South.

—We were pleased to meet our brother, G. P. Sullivan, pastor Methodist Episcopal Church Pecatonica, Ill., who is on a visit to this city.

—Prof. R. R. Green, of Rust University, together with Miss Talbot, also a teacher in this Institution, are in the city taking in the Exposition. They gave the SOUTHWESTERN a call.

—The mother and son of Mr. Emerson Bentley, the son has recently been summering in Ohio, where the mother resides, arrived in New Orleans, Dec. 21st, in good health.

—Sister and Rev. W. H. Jackson are about settled down in their new pastorate at Brenham, Texas, and promise to remember us both with news and subscribers. We are pleased to hear of the prosperity of these dear friends, whose letters, and kind words, none are more highly appreciated at this office.

—Pierre Landry, a gentlemanly minister, is doing grand work on his district, as his last report, which will apear in its place in our columns, shows. He has been using the trowel and broad-ax. We do not know if he used also the square, conpass, level, plum, guage, hour-glass, scythe, shovel and pick; nor whether he employed them in an operative or speculative manner, but of one thing we are assured, that so excellent a master must have substantial trestle-board, and the best of design books for drawing his models. We learn that all his buildings are distinguished for their strength and beauty, which proves a wise master builder.

—The following sad information has just reached our office, and calls out our deepest sympathy for one of our dearest friends. Oberlin, Ohio, Dec. 29, 1884, "Mrs. Drs. Dora Brown, is very sick and her Doctor says she cannot live. Death is hovering over her and before this reaches you she may have entered that peaceful abode, that rewards the faithful followers of Christ. She has resigned to the will of God and therefore is not afraid to die. Pray for us, that we may have grace in our day of trials. I am yours in the Gospel."

SONG: "Pilgrimage Around the World"—Illustrated by pen and pencil; including Experiences, Sights, Anecdotes, Impressions of Men and Things, Throughout 20 Different Countries. By Phillip Phillips, with introduction by Rev. J. M. Vincent, D. D.; edited by Alfred H. Miles. Published by Phillips & Hunt, New York. Price, $3.50.

This volume is a royal 8-mo., in cloth and gold bindings; the type is large and clear. It is copiously illustrated, and will force the young people into a love for the study of geography, while it at the same time charms them by the easy, fluent, graceful, and often romantic, and always charming manner in which the author tells the story of his travels and his observations. The older people will find no less delight in a perusal of its pages than the young, and its large type perfectly adapts it to their use. Mr. Phillips is at present singing in New Orleans, and copies of the work can be had at the close of each concert. The illustrations in the book are thrown on canvass with powerful light, magnified to their natural size, and illustrated by his inimitable songs and singing. It will richly reward the student of history to spend an evening with Mr. Phillips, to purchase his book, and to read it thoroughly. In these holiday times it would be difficult to select a more appropriate gift for a friend than this volume contains.

Our attention being called by Elder Booker to misprints in notice of his district conference we are glad to make the following corrections:

The Second District Conference of the Bowling Green District, Lexington Conference, will be held at Leitchfield, Grayson co., Ky., on March 27-30. Ample arrangements will be made with the Chesapeake, Ohio & Southwestern Railroad Company for reduced rates. Members of the district are requested to be present. Pastors, you have had your statistical blanks at least six months. See that they are correctly made out. There can be no lawful excuse for failing to raise your full assessments this year.

A. BOOKER, P. E.

The remainder of this notice was correct as printed. Readers may turn to it for the connection.

The story advances rising in grandeur of imagery, and beauty of conception, pathetic, thrilling, and sublime, leading the reader entrancingly forward to its close. The lord, the lady, the statesman, the lover, the aged, the young, the pious and the gay may read this work with profit and pleasure. It is just the thing to present a freind whose mind is in a formation state. It is loyal to real life, and points a moral to the recklessness of youth. It ranks with the best works in English verse.

proof were at all wanting to show the fallacy of such a claim, the evidence would not be far to seek.—A careful perusal of the Emancipation Proclamation will disclose the fact that, instead of merely performing an act forced upod him by the exigencies of war, Abraham Lincoln rested his action upon the exalted and sublime principle of natural justice; and that, instead of "military necessity," being the cause or motive for his action, it was but the means by which he was enabled to gratify the desire of his heart without doing violence to the Constitution of his country. Hear him!

"And upon this act, sincerely believed to be an act of justice, warranted by the Constitution upon military necessity, I invoke the considerate judgment of mankind and the gracious favor of Almighty God."

There this act must forever stand—upon the proud pedestral of justice—relieved, if you please, by "military necessity" from all legal objections and all technical Constitutional limitations.

CONGRESS.

While the President and Congress were earnestly and anxiously seeking a proper solution of the perplexing problem, the tide of Humanity was sweeping forward; public sentiment in the North was becoming more intense in its demand for immediate and unconditional emancipation. "From the church, cottage and cabin, all through the North," says an historian of the war, "daily prayers were ascending to Heaven, beseeching the Almighty to guide the President to the right conclusion."

At the same time the country was threatened with foreign intervention. France, Italy, Germany, Great Britain and other European powers, began to assume a menacing attitude and the Government was advised by some of its ministers and ambassadors at foreign Courts, that such intervention could only be surely averted by making the distinct issue with slavery through the decree of immediate emancipation. Again, the northern armies had met with repeated defeats. Campaign after campaign had resulted in disaster.

In the midst of all these events, General Robert E. Lee began his first invasion of Maryland and Pennsylvania, during which was fought the battle of Antietam. Victory preched upon the banners of the Union. General Lee was hurled from Northern soil.

The previous successes in the West and Southwest had been counterbalanced by the signal disasters that had attended the campaign of McClellan and Pope. The triumph of Antietam was, therefore, hailed as the turning point in the contest.

For the first time during the struggle, through the dark, portentious clouds of civil war which hung over the Republic, like a pall, was seen the silver lining of ultimate triumph.

It was immediately after that battle that President Lincoln issued his proclamation of the 22d of September, 1862, not only as an act of justice, but in fulfillment of a solemn compact made by him with God, that if General Lee was driven back from Pennsylvania, he would crown the result by the proclamation of freedom to the slaves. General Lee was driven back, and Abraham Lincoln kept his faith pure and true.

VICTORY.

From that time onward to the surrender at Appomatox victory followed fast after victory. Gettysburg paged with Antietam; the hero of the Wilderness snatched victory out of the brazen jaws of defeat; the grand old hero of Donelson and Vicksburg and a hundred other battle fields—the silent man on horseback who had always been an utter stranger to defeat, assaulted the strongholds of the Confederacy with a force that was irresistible, while Sherman went thundering through the gates of Atlanta, on to the sea. On the first day of January, 1863, the final proclamation of emancipation was issued, and, in the language of an orator, "Abraham Lincoln earned for himself a place in freedom's holy fane, surrounded with the symbols of Freedom and radiant with the light of Liberty. In that place he stands proudly, nobly, gloriously, with shattered fetters and broken chains, and slave whips beneath his feet. The fame which he won was a fame worth living for; aye more, it was a fame worth dying for, though that death led through the blood of Gethsemane and the agony of the accursed tree. It was a fame which had in it glory and honor, and immortality and eternal life." Emancipator, liberator, savior of a race, thy name has not only been indelibly inscribed upon the hearts of a grateful people, but it has been traced on "the living stones of that temple which spans itself amid the thrones and dominions of heaven—whose top stone is to be brought in with shouting of grace, grace unto it." And so the slave became a man, with all the rights and responsibilities and duties of manhood.

ANTECEDENT CAUSES.

But, fellow-citizens, it is not to be concluded that all this was the result of the war, or of the secession which made the war necessary. Other causes long existing—existing before the oldest secessionist was born—before the great West which produced Lincoln knew its first settler—before the Constitution was ordained or the Union dreamed of—other causes, causes independent and long antecedent, conspired to bring about this consummation that was so long devoutly wished for. From the day the first slave was imported in Virginia, powers hostile to his enslavement were working for his redemption—powers unseen and unperceived, but not less certainly existent, and not less effectively working. While the Cavalier was seeking his fortune on James river through the unpaid labor of his slave, the Puritan was seeking a home on the bleak shores of New England for freedom to worship God, and the Quaker was establishing a commonwealth in Pennsylvania, where civil and religious liberty might be enjoyed by all—as well those who settled the land as those of other nations who might come after. [illegible]—the Puritan and the Quaker differing from the Cavalier in this, that they felled the forests and tilled the land by the labor of their [illegible] homes [illegible] managing [illegible] for the good [illegible] ment of [illegible] The independence of habit [illegible] of all, brought [illegible] their nations] [illegible] and that freedom, at all [illegible] [illegible] to-day is little more than [illegible] five years since British West [illegible] is emancipation. BY MARSDEN.

Thou too art gone, sweet leader of the choir,
Thy soul of music with a seraph's lyre.
When royal David made his final will,
Swift fancy caught this last codicil:
"To Solomon I give my crown and throne;
This sacred harp shall Watts and Wesley own."
And thou hast touched the strings with so much skill,
The Hebrew melodist enchants us still.
Thy peerless hymns each nice distinction trace,
Each shade of mind, each lineament of grace,
From the first pious thought of infant ray
Of moral light to God's refulgent day,
Thy muse from every rose on Zion's hill,
From every fountain and from every rill,
Has culled divinest sweets of every kind,
To charm the ear, to purify the mind;
Thy living lines, a moral mirror prove,
They show us all we fear, and hope and love,
And give us back, in fairest beauty drest,
"The image pre-existing in our breast."
When shady grief has o'er my bosom stole,
When fears and doubts have paralyzed my soul,
Some sweetly pleasing strains of thine have charmed;
With light illumed me, and with comfort warmed.
How oft, through thy seraphic hymns have I
With rapt affections mounted to the sky;
Pleased have I read each stanza, till I blest
The tuneful tongue that charmed my fears to rest,
Applied a balm to heal my every woe,
And taught my eye to smile, my heart to glow;
To my enraptured musing Eden showed,
Then bade me fly along the blest road.
But thou hast gone where every note is love,
To live the Laureat of the realms above;
To chant, to warble, in angelic ears,
Strains that delight us in this vale of tears.
O may they charm us, till our spirits rise,
To meet the sweet minstrel in the skies!
Where every Saint shall wave his golden palm,
And David, Watts and Wesley lead the psalm.

Domestic Hygiene.

What Every Girl Should Learn.

To sew.
To cook.
To mend.
To avoid idleness.
To respect old age.
To mind the body.
To darn stockings.
To hold her tongue.
To keep a house tidy.
To be above gossiping.
To make home happy.
To humor a cross man.
To use neither paint nor powder.
To control her temper.
To take care of the sick.
To sweep down cob-webs.
To see a mouse without screaming.
To read some books besides novels.
To be neat and clean about her own person.
To get into a mother-in-law's good graces.
To wear shoes that won't cramp her feet.
To live on more healthful diet than pies and candies.
To be polite to all people at all times and in all places.
To dress in suit of clothes suited to her means.
To be economical in expenditure of time, in appreciation of pleasure, in the gratification of the taste, in the choice of company, in the selection of books, in everything.
To shun the society of people in which she cannot improve herself.

Letters From the Laity.

J. C. Thurman, Esq., Sunday-school Superintendent of Wiley Chapel, Washington charge, Little Rock Conference, Ark., writes: "We have had our Children's Day exercises at Willis Chapel. We were delayed for want of aid as we had last year from the pastor, but we have done the best we could under the circumstances. However I here give the matter desired to be published by the Sunday-school:

A Beautiful Rose, by T S Sampson.

All Things New, by Thos Sampson.

Closing Address, by Miss E Gamble.

R. F. Hale, Esq., presiding elder New Orleans District, writes: "The Lord visited us Sunday night at his supper. We had a glorious time, and the Lord was with us. On the past week he has visited the hearts of six from off pice of the Enemy of the church, and we had them on at the table with us last night. We also had 250 children at the table with us, and the Lord blessed us."

Geo. O. Moore, of Neptune, Ky., writes: "Neptune is about six and one-half miles from Flemingsburg, and had its origin with the Maysville branch of the Kentucky Central railroad. I am teaching here, and find a very clever set of people both white and colored. The Baptists have a neat little church here, of which Rev. J. H. Lewis is pastor, who, on Sunday, Nov. 23d, closed a three week's series of meetings, which was the means of bringing 25 souls into the fold of Christ, 5 reclaimed and 24 by experience. The writer gave a lecture here Nov. 25 at 3 o'clock p. m., on the general improvements or the needs of our people, and tried to impress on the people the need of more virtue, more endurance, more integrity, and less nonsense and foolishness among our young people.

Now, Mr. Editor, I see that the girls at the Central Tennessee College have a sewing machine, and I will be one to give them $5 to help them in their good work; so just as soon as pay day comes I will send it to you for them."

That Sums it Up.

We could use all sorts of extravagant words about the effect of Parker's Hair Balsam. But the simple truth is enough. It is the best thing of its kind. Cures falling hair, dandruff, dryness, restores original color, is a delicious dressing and perfectly pure and clean. It will satisfy you. The only standard 50c. dressing.

The Church South Press on Bishop Wiley.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate, Dr. Charles B. Galloway editor, says:

"We had the pleasure of entertaining Bishop Wiley at our home for a week, last winter, and learned to love him. He left the fragrance of a sweet, blessed Christian influence. Every member of the household bade him a very regretful good-bye. He had a singular faculty for lucid statement. His words were chosen without effort, but with remarkable aptness. Just the exact synonym, and of the purest Anglo-Saxon, always came at his bidding. We heard several of his conference addresses, and each time to profit and admiration. For almost perfect equipoise of character, clear discernment, power of principle without passion, and devotion to one work, his church had no superior. One evening far toward the "high noon of night," we spent with him in discussing the great interests of the church. That experience will linger with his name as a precious memory. Though in all his views we could not sympathize, we rejoiced in claiming the friendship of a man so broadly catholic and of such distinguished ability.

The Texas Advocate, Galveston, Dr. I. G. John, says:

Bishop Wiley was a man of superior administrative ability, and as a preacher was clear, forcible and instructive. Though frail in body and often a sufferer, he met all the demands of the office his church called him to fill. He was one of the first missionaries his church had sent to China, and it seemed a fitting close of a useful life for him to die in the mission field, and in the city where he had in his early ministry labored to plant the Gospel of Christ.

The Nashville Christian Advocate says:

We sympathize in the bereavement that has fallen upon our sister Church in the death of Bishop I. W. Wiley. He died at Foo Chow, China, whither he had gone in discharge of his duty as a Bishop. He was strong, scholarly and devout. Our last glimpse of him was on the educational platform in Nashville. We shall not forget the scene nor the Bishop who showed such genuine Christian feeling when the proper chord wrs touched.

In the new Mason & Hamlin Upright Pianos the strings are held by screws and secured directly to the cast plate, each string being held by a separate screw. In pianos generally the strings are held by the friction of wrest-pins (tuning pins in wood). The rapidity of the Mason & Hamlin improvements and unmistakable quality of tone (resulting in part from the easy method of tuning the many strings by separate screws, thereby avoiding the possibility of getting out of tune or of being affected by climatic changes. This improvement has been pronounced the greatest made in Uprights during the last half a century.—Boston Jour.

Fred. Douglass has said: "The effect in his judgment would be deplorable, as the colored people would regard the change as an indication of reaction in popular sentiment."

Patti, it is said, guards herself carefully against cold. She evidently does not believe in free concerts, but does believe in the free use of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, as it has cured her several times.

Worth Thinking Of.

What Ayer's Cherry Pectoral does:—

It prevents the growth, to serious illness, of a dangerous class of diseases that begin as mere trivial ailments, and are too apt to be neglected as such.
It alleviates even the most desperate cases of pulmonary diseases, and affords to the patient a last and the only chance for restoration to health.
It breaks up a cold, and stops a cough more speedily, certainly, and thoroughly than any other medicine.
It spares mothers much painful anxiety about their children, and saves the little ones' lives.
It cures all lung and throat diseases that can be reached by human aid.

How Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Does Such Good.

It expels the mucus from the throat and the air passages of the head, and cleanses the mucous membrane.
It allays Inflammation, puts a stop to tickling in the throat and coughing, and enables the patient to rest.
It heals sore throat, reduces the swollen tonsils, and restores natural tone to the affected vocal cords.
It soothes to natural and refreshing slumber, during which Nature regains strength to combat disease.
It clears out and heals diseased air cells in the lungs, and helps Nature to repair the waste made by the corrosion of pulmonary disease.
It puts a stop to the cankerous decay of Catarrh.

Why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is so Perfect a Medicine.

Because it is a scientifically ordered compound, of great potency, the product of years of study, observation, and experience in the treatment of throat and lung diseases.
Because it is prepared from the purest forms of the drugs employed in it, chemically combined by a process of such perfection and accuracy as would be unattainable, even by the most skillful pharmacist, dealing with small quantities.
Because it is not only the most effective medicine for the uses to which it is designed, but, owing to the enormous quantities in which it is made, is sold at so low a price that it is placed within the reach of every household.
Because it is an active curative agent, that must be taken by drops, as prescribed in the directions accompanying each bottle, and not a mere palliative syrup that may be swallowed by mouthfuls.

Where Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Stands Before the World.

It is popularly known to be a medicine that has cured laryngeal, bronchial, and pulmonary affections where all others had failed.
It is a favorite household remedy to-day with people whose lives were saved by it, when they were young, a generation ago.
It has held the first place in popular estimation for nearly half a century in this country, and is more and more highly appreciated, year after year, both at home and abroad.
It evokes daily, from all over the world, expressions of gratitude for lives saved by its use.
It is everywhere recommended by reputable druggists, who know, from conversations with their patrons, and from their own experience, how almost magical are its effects for good.
It is regularly prescribed by many physicians of the best standing, and is recommended by Professors of Medical Colleges, to their students, as invaluable for all diseases of the throat and lungs.

General News Items.

Saturday December [illegible], there was snow and ice, with the thermometer 14 degrees below zero. In New Orleans at the same time the weather was mild and pleasant.

Professor Straker, late Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor of South Carolina, thinks that "Cleveland's election will be the means of obliterating party distinction in the South, and inaugurate the highest prosperity of both the white and colored races."

Col. Barr of Jasper county, Ga., who shot down and killed the Negro man Nichols for simply taking possession of a bale of cotton which was his own justly earned property, has paid the rope richly. According to our Madison correspondent, Barr acknowledged the right of Nichols to the cotton by asking him for the loan of it to assist in paying for the land on which it had been raised. Nichols refused this, and Barr shot and killed him. Now let the State of Georgia prove that she can do justice alike to all her citizens, regardless of color.—N. Y. Sun.

Director General Burke was asked whether in the future machinery would be run during Sundays. He answered that there would be no machinery in motion on the Sabbath during the Exposition. The buildings would be open for visitors, who could inspect the displays, but no exhibitor was compelled to show his goods on Sunday unless he so desired. Each exhibitor had now, or would probably have in a few days, cloth coverings for whatever he might have in the buildings, and if he wished he could cover them up on Saturday night and they would be undisturbed until Monday morning. This leaves the matter entirely with exhibitors.

[illegible] all R. Cross, of Moorestown, Burlington Co., N. J., says:—"Eighteen months ago I had dropsy around the heart. The first bottle of Hunt's [Kidney and Liver] Remedy gave me great relief. I continued its use for three months, and was entirely cured. I refer to Hunt's Remedy and its proprietors."

Centennial Methodist Catechism.

CHAPTER III.

Is there more than one true Church of Jesus Christ?

There is but one true Church.

Who belong to it?

All who believe in and love the Lord Jesus Christ. These constitute the Holy Catholic Church.

What does Paul call it?

"The whole family in heaven and earth." Eph. iii., 15.

Has this one true Church more than one outward form?

It has many outward forms, usually called "denominations," such as the Baptist Church, the Congregational Church, the Presbyterian Church, the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Reformed Episcopal Church, and many others.

With which denomination or branch of the one Church of Christ are we connected?

With the Methodist Episcopal.

When was the Methodist Episcopal Church organized?

We believe that its doctrines, usages, and spirit are found in the New Testament as belonging to the Apostolic Church; but as a separate denomination it was organized in 1784.

Where may we learn the peculiar doctrines of Methodism?

In our Church Catechism.

What are some of the peculiar usages of Methodism?

The itinerancy, the class meeting, and the love-feast.

What are its Church officers?

In the ministry: bishops, elders, deacons, and local preachers.

In the laity: exhorters, class-leaders, Sunday-school superintendents, stewards and trustees.

How many bishops has it had since its organization?

Forty, including two missionary bishops for Liberia, and one missionary bishop for Africa.

Who were they?

Thomas Coke, Francis Asbury, Richard Whatcoat, William M'Kendree, Robert R. Roberts, Joshua Soule, Elijah Hedding, James O. Andrew, John Emory, Beverly Waugh, Thomas A. Morris, Leonidas L. Hamline, Edmund S. Janes, Levi Scott, Matthew Simpson, Osmon C. Baker, Edward R. Ames, Davis W. Clark, Edward Thomson, Calvin Kingsley, Thomas Bowman, William L. Harris, Randolph S. Foster, Isaac W. Wiley, Stephen M. Merrill, Edward G. Andrews, Gilbert Haven, Jesse T. Peck, Henry W. Warren, Cyrus D. Foss, John F. Hurst, Erastus O. Haven, William X. Ninde, John M. Walden, Willard F. Mallalieu, Charles H. Fowler.

Who were the missionary bishops for Liberia?

Francis Burns and John W. Roberts.

Who is the missionary bishop for Africa?

William Taylor.

Who were its first bishops?

Dr. Thomas Coke and Francis Asbury.

What bishops have died?

Bishops Coke, Asbury, Whatcoat, M'Kendree, George, Roberts, Hedding, Emory, previous to 1844. Waugh, Morris, Baker, Burns. (Missionary bishops Clark, Thomson, Kingsley, Roberts, missionary bishops) Janes, Ames, Haven, G. Hayes, E. O. Scott, Peck, Simpson, and Wiley since 1844.

What bishops withdrew?

Bishops Soule and Andrew.

What bishop resigned?

Bishop Hamline.

Who are the bishops at present?

Bishops Bowman, Harris, Foster, Merrill, Andrews, Warren, Foss, Haven, Ninde, Walden, Mallalieu and Fowler.

What are the principal organs through which the Church of the Methodist Episcopal Church [illegible]?

The General, Annual, District, Quarterly Conferences, and Official

[illegible] book may we find the [illegible] and usages of Methodism?

[illegible] Discipline, which contains [illegible] Twenty-five Articles of Religion," the "General Rules," and many other valuable matters.

How are candidates for membership and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church classified?

1. Members of its Sunday-schools; 2. Those baptized in infancy; 3. Probationers; 4. Full members.

What are the Benevolent Societies of the Methodist Episcopal Church?

1. "The Missionary Society."
2. "The Sunday-school Union."
3. "The Tract Society."
4. "The Board of Church Extension."
5. "The Freedmen's Aid Society."
6. "The Board of Education."
7. "Woman's Foreign Missionary Society."
8. "Ladies' and Pastors' Christian Union."
9. "Woman's Home Missionary Society."

What promise (among others) are parents or guardians required to make to the Church when presenting their children?

That the child to be baptized "shall read the Holy Scriptures, and learn the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments, the Apostles' Creed, the Catechism, and all other things which a Christian ought to know and believe to his soul's health."—Discipline, page 240.

Opposed to Strong Drink.

"Parker's Tonic is delicious to the palate; it invigorates, but does not promote a love for strong drink; it cures coughs and colds; it purifies the blood, thus curing kidney, liver and lung troubles and rheumatism. It should be kept in every home." G. H. Sherman, photographer, Elgin, Ill. Place it in yours.

By order of the Board of Bishops.

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, Secretary.

New York, Nov. 4, 1884.

New Orleans District.

The New Orleans District Conference will convene in Thomson's Chapel, on Thursday, January 29, at 10 o'clock, a. m. A large attendance is expected and earnestly desired. Bishop W. F. Mallalieu D. D., will preside; Rev. A. H. Gillett, D. D., General Sunday-school Agent for the South and West, with other eminent Sunday-school workers, will be present to conduct a Sunday-school Congress. The opening sermon will be preached Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, by Rev. A. J. Feed. L. P. CUSHMAN, P. E.

Fare to Mississippi Conference.

Modified Course of Study for Local Preachers.

The West Texas conference, at its session at Waco this month, passed two resolutions which are of importance to all the traveling preachers who have not completed their four years' course of study, and all the local preachers within the bounds of the conference:

1. That the local preachers course of study found in paragraph 525 of the new Discipline be adopted as the four years course for the traveling preachers.

2. That the presiding elders be instructed to select a partial course of study for the local preachers below which they shall not be entitled to have their licers s renewed, or be recommended for orders.

In accordance with the instructions in the last resolution the presiding elders have selected the following course of study for local preachers in the West Texas Conference for licenses to preach:

First Year—Outlines of Bible History, by Hurst.

Catechism No. 2.

Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 1884.

To be read—Hints to Self-educated Ministers. Watson's Life of Wesley.

Second Year—Bible Doctrine. Outline of Bible History, by Hurst.

To be read—Hundred Years of Methodism, by Simpson. History of the United States, by Redpath.

Third Year—Bible Sacraments. Plain Account of Christian Perfection.

To be read—History of Missions of the M. E Church, Vol. 1, by J. N. Reid. Wesley's Sermons, Vol. 1.

Fourth Year—Review of the preceding three years' course. History of Missions of the M. E. Church, Vol. 2, by J. M. Reid. Wesley's Sermons, Vol. 2.

By order of the Presiding Elders of the West Texas Annual Conference

G. W. RICHARDSON.

Austin, Texas, Dec. 15, 1884.

I concur in the above.

W. F. MALLALIEU.

(This course does not apply to any but the West Texas Conference, and local preachers of that conference who prefer to do so can use the books laid down in the regular course for local preachers, as this is not obligatory.)

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP, should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once. It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

The centennial of American Methodism is to be observed in Japan. The Canadian Methodist Mission and the Evangelical Association Mission united with our brethren in a meeting on the 18th of Dec. Rev. Charles Bishop writes us of an interesting item which appeared in a Tokio paper, Nov. 26, saying that Japan was about to remit $400,000 of the indemnity exacted from Korea. Let Europe ponder.

The Had Confidence.

Mrs. H. C. Harshbarger, Manor Hill, Huntingdon County, Pa., writes: "Dr. S. B. Hartman & Co., Columbus, O.: I have been afflicted for three years, caused by over-work too soon after confinement. My kidneys became seriously affected; could not retain my urine day nor night. It was high colored, thick and bloody. My monthlies had left altogether for fourteen months, during which time I was confined to my bed with a beating in right ovaries. The discharge from the womb was so offensive no one could stay in the room. The urine continued bloody, with pain in voiding it, and when in bed would pass from me in my sleep. I have had three doctors attending me regularly, one for four months, one of the others one whole summer, and the third all winter. We had two others in consultation with them, and used twenty bottles of different kinds of patent medicines, all to no good. I then got a bottle of PERUNA, and before I had three-fourths of the bottle taken I quit wetting the bed and could retain the urine sufficient to attend church, which I had not done for three years, and my monthlies came back as natural as ever; indeed, I considered myself a well woman again. Since that time I have had pneumonia. My confidence in PERUNA was so great that I did not send for a doctor. I followed the directions in your "Ills of Life" and am over it, as well as can be expected of one so delicate as I have been. Others in my neighborhood had the same disease, and among them were strong men, and had the best physicians, and yet died, while I sailed through in safety on PERUNA and MANALIN. I sincerely believe, and would say to all the afflicted in the wide world, that PERUNA and MANALIN are the only two medicines that any one needs in any disease, if used as directed in your book entitled "The Ills of Life."

K. E. Fleming, publisher of the New Dominion, Morgantown, W. Va., writes: "Some months since, I received some of your medicine in exchange for advertising. My wife has taken five bottles of it, and has derived great benefit from it."

Mr. M. C. Pershing, Bradenville, Pa., writes: "My wife has been using PERUNA for some time for weak lungs and liver and kidney complaint, and thinks it is doing her great good. Has used only one bottle as yet. Please send your book on the 'Ills of Life,' as we can't get any from our druggist."

Mr. John Denny, Mt. Vernon, O., writes: "We have a large sale in PERUNA. It gives satisfaction."

Neither by intrigue or for self-interest of designing men can we allow the least division in the ranks of the really representive Negroes. Our stength is in justice, truth and unity.

"This is my first letter to your paper, and I was persuaded this time by my uncle, (Rev. G. H. Washington who is a subscriber to your paper). I am very much pleased with your paper and wish you great success. I am trying to make my mark in this world, that I may leave behind my "foot-prints on the sands of time".—Basil Washington.

The Bethel Anniversary will take place on Thursday, January 15th, at 7:30 p. m., at the Upper Bethel, New Orleans. The address will be delivered by Rev. T. D. Witherspoon, D. D., LL. D., of Louisville, Ky., moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly. The occasion and speaker should assure a good attendance.

The Negro has come from four to seven millions in the United States since freedom, and they are property holders to the amount of $14 each, for the whole 7,090,000 or $98,000,000 in the aggregate. This growth from nothing when they were freed, and in spite of every hindrance by law, violence, and fraud, is a mathematical demonstration of their industry and responsible frugality.

Mayaville, Ky., common school, after an unsuccessful attempt to employ foreign, now proposes to use home talent, and so far their experiment has proven very satisfactory. The teachers are Charles G. Harris, Esq., principal; Maria J. Powers, first assistant; Carrie J. Smith, second assistant; all of them well known to the editor, as gifted, virtuous young people, they have our very best wishes for success. Help home whenever it will serve as well as any other.

The January number of The Methodist Episcopal Review, with other matter of interest, will contain a Democratic Re[view]. Papers will be [by] the Rev. Fred[erick] P. B. S. Pinchback, Peter H. Clark, [Rev.] H. Green, Wm. [and] others of our well-known [citizens]. In a sense, this January may also be called a ladies' containing poems from [Mrs.] E. Lambert and Miss Cor[nelia] papers from Mrs. W. Harper, and Miss Frazelia Miss Josephine J. Turpin and Miss A. E. Geary.

Their church at Shreveport being blown down and destroyed a call was made for aid, and one of our sisters who owns two mules, one buggy, four head of cows, and other property in proportion agreed to give the widows mite. Upon the suggestion brother A. S., the pastor, called on her with ropes and chains to take away the Lord's property, when he found out that she had been reading some revision of the new testament according to Mark. "The widows mite did not [include] her living". She gave [it] and that very grudgingly. We have rarely hear of stingy women. As a general thing they are [liberal] in every generous work. We would say to that sister "Re[member] the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand."

The Congo Conference.

The Congo conference discussed last week the question of admitting spirits into the Congo and Niger countries. Germany, France, and Holland opposed any restriction, but the conference finally agreed to a proposition to restrict the traffic as far as possible. It would be a conspicuous mark of advancing civilization if this terrible business could be prohibited from central Africa.—Northwestern.

This means that the liquor traffic is to be opened in Central Africa under an international protocol, then when it shall have done its perfect work, which it will quickly do unless African barbarians prove firmer in their resistence to this criminal business than either European or American civilizations have. When liquor shall have done its perfect work in the center of Africa, then the men who sold it, or the countries that allowed it to be sold, will find an excuse for taking from these natives their land on the plea that they are a class of drunken and worthless wretches, just as charges were made against Indians and Negroes of America, who were first made drunk and then deprived of land and liberty because they were so.

Last Sunday was quite a day for Bishops in this city. Bishops Hargrove and Keener, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; Bishop Mallalieu, of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Bishop Wayman, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, and Bishops Potter and Gallelier, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, all preached to New Orleans congregations.—New Orleans Christian Advocate.

The above is the first notice of Bishop Mallalieu's presence in New Orleans which we now remember to have seen in the columns of our neighbor and simultaneously there appears a communication touching the matter on the first page of the paper, and a call at our office requesting the Bishops services in one of their Churches on Sabbath following. We are pleased to note this recognition, which is none the less acceptable because a little tardy. As to Bishop Mallalieu's work in the South it will be the Disciplinary work of a Bishop in the Methodist Episcopal Church, performed in the same manner that it would be in Europe, Asia, Africa, or the Isles of the sea. When it comes to personal matters he will probably follow his own inclinations and preferences here the same as in Boston. We behold with genuine satisfaction the rapidly growing spirit of tolerance if not of the essence of fraternity in all parts of the country. Our Brother in Black stands with an open hand and the compliments of the season for everybody. Only waiting for some one to grasp it.

The following is the Bible Distribution in Texas, in November 1884, by 14 Colporteurs of The American Bible Society: days of service, 291; miles travelled, 3331; families visited by them, 2693; families found without a Bible, 315; families supplied by gift or sale, 245; destitute individuals supplied in addition, 104; number of books sold, 1426; value, $645,05; number of books distributed by gift, 273; value, $60,62; contributions received from churches and individuals, 9,66; returns were received from 3 auxiliary societies. Reports of distribution were received from three Pastors on mission fields.

The fourth general supply is being vigorously carried on. Help is greatly needed. Contributions may be sent to A. L. Taylor, Ass. Treas., Bible House, New York; or W. B. Rankin, Dist. Supt., Austin, Texas.

Sermon Sketches.

The Leadership of the Spirit.

Text—Rom. viii, 14: "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God."

Introduction—The Giver of the spiritual life nurtures and directs it. John vi, 57-63; C. viii, 1.

Man's boasted freedom is but a choice of leaders—God or Satan. Eph. iv, 27; v, 1.

A glorious leadership is that of the eternal Spirit, vide all the 8th chapter following the text, 2 Cor. iii, 8, as developing the results of this divine ministration.

There is a divine guidance which is exterior to the individual soul, and is included in the conception of God's providence, C. viii, 28. That which is intended in the text is the interior leadership of the believing human spirit by the Holy Spirit of God, C. viii, 9.

The exterior providential leading of the Spirit is analogous to generalship in war; this interior leading is analogous to the work of an educator, John xvi, 7 11.

The Spirit of God.

1. Represses excesses and perversions of Nature. The works of the flesh, Gal. v, 19-21, are crucified through the Spirit, id. v, 24 25. Some lusts and deeds of the flesh the natural man persuades himself to be consistent with the commandments. The Spirit of God creates in the soul spiritual desires which make the carnal indulgences distasteful. Thus does he crucify avarice, drunkenness, etc.

2. Encourages and develops the incorrupt nature in us: e. g. natural affection, of parents for children, etc. The heathen lack natural affection, Rom. i, 13. Christianity intensifies, Eph. vi. The fruit of the Spirit, Gal. v, 22-23, in all its forms is purified and elevated natural feeling.

3. Draws out and cultivates affection toward God, Eph. iii, 16 19.

4. Establishes fellowship with God, Rom. viii, 26 27.

5. Enlightens the understanding so as to discern between right and wrong, between the moving of God and that of Satan. Eph. i, 17 18.

6. So sanctifies the affections and desires that every one moves harmoniously with himself, Heb. ii, 11; 1 Cor. vi, 17. Application, 2 Cor. xiii, 5.

NORTH CHINA.—The good influence of the closing labors of Bishop Wiley will never cease. Letters are constantly received speaking of the harmonious spirit evident in the annual meeting of the above mission. One says "It was an eloquent lesson to the native preachers and Church as well as to ourselves. The Bishop's coming so far, at his age, in so much weakness and pain, and so patient and and hopeful and full of sympathy for all. The physicians and others advised the Bishop to return home from Shanghai, but he was determined, if possible, to visit Kinkiang and Foochow and finish the work he came to do. The year opened well. The war has so far made no disturbance or interruption in our work. Let the Church pray for the North China Mission."

"Congressman Smalls predicts bloodshed in South Carolina at no distant day if something is not done to protect the colored voter there in the exercise of his rights.—Cleveland Gazette."

Now, if we remember rightly, the trouble in South Carolina has been that there was too much bloodshedding already. What we think they need is to put a stop to it, and proceed to honestly counting the votes cast by the legal voters of that State.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

A Word of Greeting and Acknowledgment.

BY REV. A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D.

After five weeks loitering under the influences of malarial poison and the shades of death, with a heart full of gratitude to Almighty God, I now greet my brethren with a Merry Christmas and a happy New Year. Since I last addressed them through the medium of the SOUTHWESTERN, I have been within hearing distance of the Stormy river. Its waves have threateningly washed at my feet, and chilled me to the knees; while the dews from its far off shores had well nigh settled on my brow, but thanks be to him, who is the Author of life and the Preserver of souls, I am now both physically and spiritually alive, and renewed like the eagle. It had been sixteen years before since I had been brought so near the time and place of crossing the Jordan. At that time, when friends wept, and physicians despaired of my recovery, full of the Holy Ghost, and with the glory of heaven opening to my sight, I was like Paul, ready to depart and and be with Christ, when a heavenly message came to me that I should not die then, because I had to preach the Gospel of the Kingdom to a lost and perishing world. From that hour I stepped in the highway to perfect health and vigor, and in the course of a few weeks thereafter I was in old Southern Chapel pulpit, in New Orleans, exhorting dying men to repent and accept the parconing grace of our blessed Savior.

During my recent prostration, for nearly four weeks, I continued my solemn march toward the valley of the shadows of death. One physician was called in, then another, but their skill seemed to fail in their efforts to stay my onward march. Sympathizing friends came with cheering words, and offered fervent prayers. Nothing apparently, availed anything.

My dear wife, the constant companion of my youth and riper years, she who had comforted me through all those years, stood at the foot of what was thought to be my dying bed in need of comfort. Her tears, which she sought to hide, melted my heart. In the self-same hour, as if my melted heart had moved a Savior's love, the message of sixteen years before again flashed like sunlight upon me, and I was able to assure my wife, mother and friends, upon heaven's authority, that I was not to die then, as I had not fully accomplished my mission, which God himself had given. From that hour may be dated the change which resulted in my restoration. Taking again, my accustomed place among my brethren, I came out of the furnace of affliction, with a heart full of doxologies; and with a stronger faith in the saving, comforting and all sufficient power of the Divine Gospel which we preach. I have examined this Gospel with all the intellectual, moral and spiritual light I could command, I have experimented with it for eighteen years, in sickness, in sorrow, in prosperity and adversity, in pains, and near the verge of death. I believe in it, and hope to preach it while I live:

"Preach Him to all and cry in death,
Behold, behold, the lamb!"

To Rev. Dr. Taylor, Sister Cowgill, Bros. Cushman, Priestly, Forest, Landry, Duncan, and others, who so affectionately contributed to my comfort, by their visits and favors, I extend many grateful acknowledgements.

I am now closing my fourth quarterly round, condensed account of which I hope to be able to communicate shortly.

A Word to Pastors About the Sunday-school.

REV. A. H. GILLETT.

I. The season of renewed activity in all lines of Church work is rapidly approaching and while you are prayerfully considering how to improve the prayer meeting, reorganizing the class meetings, laying plans to gather larger congregations, and making resolves to do better preaching and pastoral work; allow a suggestion concerning your relation to the Sunday-school. If you regard merely your own success or the temporary success of the church under your pastorate you will likely use all your time and strength in inducing adults to attend Church service, and securing names to add to your probationer's roll. You will court and pet the more wealthy and influential members of the community, attend and become prominent in the management of secret and social, or so called benevolent societies; you will preach sensational sermons; and to make yourself popular with the presiding elder and conference officers, push the claims of benevolent societies in such a way as to secure large amounts during your pastorate and fail to educate the people to the duty and responsibility of giving. If however you love the cause of Christ and the Church, and desire her success for all time to come, you will reach earnestly, visit faithfully, manage with ingenuity, but keep self out of sight; without neglecting any of the well known duties of the pastorate or pulpit, you will devote some time and thought to the school of the Church. If you would secure permanent and lasting fruit to your ministry, you will not undervalue, as some do, the importance of careful and pains-taking instruction. In your pulpit efforts you will seek not only to stir the emotions of your congregation or win their praises for the grace, elegance, fluency, or eloquence of your discourse, but will seek to foster thoughts in the minds of the people, so they will stay, and not only stay but provoke thoughtfulness. You will carry the same spirit and methods into your prayer and class meeting. Teaching, teaching, every where and always as the Master did. With such a purpose and such a spirit, the pastor who seeks permanent and enduring growth for the Church will be awake to the opportunities the Sunday-school affords for the work of instruction. Another article will suggest some ways in which the pastor may use the school in his efforts to build up the Church of Christ.

Dr. Reid last week, received $10 for the missionary treasury and $10 for the treasury of the Women's Home Missionary Society, from Mrs. A. Buell, of Greenville, Alabama, now aged 84 years, a neighbor of his while they resided in Lima, New Jersey. She had two sons, one had gone South and entered the Confederate army, the other was a Union soldier. The old lady writes "David (a pupil of years at Lima), died here November 18th, 1884, in certain hope of a glorious immortality, leaving a wife and five children." Many will be glad to know that this mother in Isreal still loves the Master.

Letters from the Pastors.

Rev. J. F. Mason, pastor at Still Pond, Md., writes: "Still Pond has four churches, with an official second to none in the Delaware Conference for zeal and powerful stick. We arrived here July 3d, family and all; found work to do, and we concluded work we must, hence we went at it soul and body, with all on deck. We found our people without a parsonage in a proper place, hence we proposed to the official to build one in Still Pond. The voice of the presiding elder, Rev. L. Y. Cox, put the project into an early effect. We went to work on that line, and the blessings of the Lord came down on our labor, and to-day our parsonage is going up in Still Pond, with lot paid for and property deeded. We stand [illegible] not as the abomination of desolation, but as God's workers. We have collected as follows: On repairs of church, $45; old debts, $17; [illegible] and ground, $507.05; [illegible] conference, $639.05. We expect to have, when completed, a parsonage in this place that will [illegible] passer-by the hand of the Great Head of the Church is [illegible] us. Pray for us. We are pulling for the shore. Your paper must have our support."

Rev. E. Williams writes: "We have laid the foundation of a new [illegible] to be occupied by the Methodist Episcopal colored congregation [illegible], Tenn. Rev. Jas. [illegible], our presiding elder, was with us the first Sunday, and so was the Lord. Collections, $20."

Rev. F. J. Yeargin, pastor at [illegible], Texas., writes: "On the [illegible] of our first quarterly conference our new presiding elder, C. [illegible], was with us. He preached at 11 a. m., Sunday. It was a good sermon and all were much pleased. Collections $5.25. Both [illegible] $21.85. Our African [illegible] in numbers here, but we shall see if we can't gain strength by [illegible] and under the most effectual [illegible] church."

Rev. [illegible], pastor at Cleveland, writes: "Sunday visited [illegible] I believe [illegible] who [illegible] Nov. [illegible] had witness of the presence of the Holy Spirit by the clapping of hands and loud hallelujahs. At 2:30 p. m. we had an old-time class meeting. At night I preached to a large congregation, and received a handsome collection. On Monday morning I had the pleasure of meeting the Knoxville Preachers Meeting at Mabrey Street M. E. Church. I was profitably entertained by its exercises, and I hope to meet it often. Friday, the 12th, I visited Rising Sun (Knoxville circuit) and found a splendid public school, frame building, and a good five-months school in session, with an enrollment of 84 scholars. The Professor is a live young man, and deserves credit for his efficient work. He is not a member but is a friend to our church. It affords me great pleasure to say that a goodly number of the colored people at this place own land and very good houses. On Saturday we succeeded in settling a contest which resulted in the deeding of a quarter of an acre of land and an old church to the M. E. Church that we can hold services in for a while. We anticipate building soon. The inclemency of the weather Sunday prevented very many from turning out, but enough, however, to get one more subscriber for the SOUTHWESTERN; it has had no circulation on this work as I have found yet, but I am resolved to place it in every family if possible. I have only two subscribers as yet, but I am not discouraged; many have said "send in my name," but I said "not so." I am determined to do a cash business this conference year. "Out of debt, out of trouble."

Rev. James Taylor, Cleaves, O., writes: "Our work has been poor but profitable. We have built a church, and parsonage this year, and paid some old debts. We have raised in all $317, with about 30 members on the circuit; 23 at Cleaves and seven at Rising Sun. We have had a protracted meeting for three weeks, but have not made much headway on account of the election. But the outlook is more favorable now, and I think we will have a revival before we quit."

Items from Big Springs, Tenn.

REV. A. J. FLETCHER,

Immediately after conference I returned to my charge, finding matters awaiting my arrival. As we did not have to move, we began at once to arrange for a successful year's work; but as the election was on [illegible] talk very little could be done, but our quiet little place has settled down to the condition of things, and we are all head at our work again, expecting grander results than ever before. I have succeeded, through the earnest help of Bro. Provine, our presiding elder, to get the minutes of our conference [illegible], and I will take this chance to say, that if any of the brethren would like to have more than they ordered for, please increase your [illegible] and I will supply at short notice.

Our district conference was a pleasant occasion indeed. The good people of Dayton acquitted themselves nobly in caring for the conference. Rev. P. P. Brooks, the pastor, deserves commendation for his painstaking in providing for the comfort of the members. Owing to pressure of time Elder Provine was necessitated to ask me to hold the quarterly conference for the Soddy district, Dec. 20-21, so, Friday morning, 7 o'clock, found us at Dayton waiting for passage over the C. S. Railroad. In a little while we are whisked through meadows and around hills and reach our destination at 11 a. m., where we were met by Rev. Geo. W. Cowans, the pastor, and by him conducted five miles in the country, where the meeting was held. We were met by warm friends and good fires. Saturday evening the conference was held and everything passed off lovely. Sunday was a sabbath day and [illegible] could be done, but I [illegible] appear of peace and prosperity [illegible] Soddy circuit and its [illegible], to-day, that Rev. [illegible], pastor at Cleveland, has been suffering from chills of late, but trust there is nothing serious.

Letter From Bishop Taylor.

Steamship City of Berlin, Dec. 20, 1884.

Rev. Marshall W. Taylor:

DEAR BRO.—I wrote Bro. W. H. Nelson accepting him on his own offer for Central Africa, if he and Sister Nelson could stand the conditions to which all others of my party of about 40 cheerfully consent. Many weeks elapsed, and having no response from Bro. Nelson, I wrote him again, proposing to send him to Monrovia. I spoke to Dr. Reid, also, about his going to Monrovia, and asked him if they would pay the passage of Bro. Nelson's wife, as that was in the Societies work. Dr. Reid said he did not know Bro. Nelson. I told him what I learned about him at the General Conference from his presiding elder, and what you had written us, and he seemed to encourage my proposal. Later I received a letter from Bro. Nelson offering to take charge of the school in Monrovia, and saying that he had also written Dr. Reid. I went at once to see Dr. Reid about it, for I wanted Bro. and Sister Nelson to get off in time to go with me from Liverpool, about the 1st of January. I found that the Doctor had gone to Baltimore. I wrote him, urging the desirability of prompt action. On the eve of my departure from New York I received a reply from Dr. Reid saying, "I am powerless to move. If our Committee on Africa would recommend reopening the school in Monrovia, I suppose the Bishop in charge of Bro. Nelson would transfer him. But I do not know Bro. Nelson," etc. I have no complaints to make of any one in the matter, and I do not write you in the hope that you can help it much at your distance, but I want you to know that I have done my best to get Bro. Nelson into our party. I still hope that the said committee and all concerned in the transaction will so co-operate as to secure his appointment. We ought to reopen that school, and it ought to be done now. We have any number of offers for a new field in the interior of Africa, but none besides Bro. Nelson for Liberia. I expect, however, Doctor, to have a good time with the brethren at the conference in Monrovia, to commence January 29. I hope to put in a few days of solid preaching before the opening of conference. Pray for us.

Your Bro.,

WM. TAYLOR.

A Call for Explanation.

BRO. EDITOR—I only ask for protection against a communication I see in the Conference Standard signed Wm. G. Tilghman, against one Rev. Horsey, no distinction as to which Horsey is meant and some of the readers of the paper think it is me or M. H. Horsey. Now I hope it is not the disposition of the editor, if it is of the writer, to cover both Horseys with one soiled blanket. If my brother has entered the battle he must expect to meet the sword and I want it understood I am not attempting to fight his battle, I am only trying to defend myself at present. I have interfered in several controversies that I thought were going on too harsh. I did it in order to defend the paper, but since then I have declined having anything to say in any thing of the kind. I think the letter written by Rev. Charles A. Horsey and the reply by Wm. G. Tilghman were both unfit to enter the Conference Standard, and if I had been in the editor's place I would have refused to print them. First, for the paper's sake; second, for the conference's good name; third, for the writer's credit; fourth, my own credit as editor of a conference paper; fifth, for the ministry of which I was a member. These are only a few of my reasons. Others may think differently, and I think also the publishing committee should be empowered with the editor to withhold all such communications, because no intelligent gentleman or lady, Christian or unchristian, can cherish reading such abuse and slander as has been in our conference paper for a year or more, nothing less than blackguard the very lowest niggerism, nothing more than a laughing stock for other denominations. Now, brethren, I think it a weak thing for men of inteligence and full of aspirations to do. How can we stoop so low as to grapple with unbounded ignorance?

Now, brethren, I am not satisfied with the paper and have not been for sometime, and unless the paper is improved hereafter I shall dispute its being the paper for every family. Now I am expecting some of the brethren to jump into me like hungry lions or other carnivorous animal and make a hearty supper of my sentiments. Well you can do so, I am not on the war path. I close by saying I hope and pray the paper may be better in future days, and if not I think the sooner it is removed the better. I am the only man that speaks in this way, but some are behind the door talking in a whisper, calling the paper and editor a fraud. I am plain in what I say, it had better all be editorial than have such trash as some have been writing. I hope for the better.

M. H. HORSEY.

Dialogue Between the Devil and the Rumseller.

BY REV. J. L. P.

Reply of the Devil to the Rumseller:

My dear brother—I address you by this endearing appellation because of the congeniality of our spirits, and of the great work we are both engaged it.

I most cordially accept your proposals.

For five thousand years I sought in vain for a man so fully after my own heart to do my work among men.

1st, I ransacked the lowest depths of hell for spirits who could do for me the whole work of distraction. But little success attended this efforts.

2d. I sent out the demon, Murder, and he slew a few thousand, most generally the helpless and the innocent. But his mission was a failure.

3d. I bade my servant, Lust, go forth; he led innocent youths and beautiful maidens in chains, destroying virtue, wrecking happiness, blasting character and causing untimely deaths and dishonored graves. But, even then, many of the victims escaped, through the power of God, my enemy.

4th. I sent out Avarice, and in his golden chains some were bound, but men soon learned to hate him for his meanness, and comparatively few fell by him.

5th. I then sent out the twin sons Pestilence and War; they went forth, but they slew indiscriminately the old and the young, men women and children, the good as well as the bad, and heaven gained as many as hell. In sadness my Satanic heart mourned over the probable loss of my crown and kingdom as I contemplated the tremendous strides which the Gospel of Christ was making in saving men from my clutches. But when I received your most welcome letter I shouted till the welkins of hell rang again, Eureka! Eureka! I have found him! My dear friend, I could have embraced you a thousand times. Now I have given orders to reserve for you the next best place in my kingdom, which of course, is the most honorable. You shall be nearest to my person. In you are combined all the qualifications of just such a friend and partner as I have long desired, and in your business are the elements of success. Now shall my throne be established forever. Only carry out your designs and you shall have money even though it be wrung from the broken hearts of helpless women and from the months of innocent, perishing children. Though you fill the jails, work-houses and poor-houses; though you crowd the insane asylums; though you make murder, incest and arson to abound, and erect scaffolds and gallows in every village, town and city, you shall have money. Your heart I will harden so that your conscience will not trouble you. You shall think yourself a gentleman, though the men and women who are your victims shall call you a demon. You shall also be devoid of the fear of God, the horrors of the grave and the solemnities of eternity, and when you come to me your works shall prove to you an everlasting remard, as promised, in my kingdom. Yours to the end,

LUCIFER.

Ohio Wesleyan University.

This great institution of our Church continues with unabated vigor its career of remarkable and uninterrupted prosperity. It was thought that the financial pressure would seriously affect the number of its students this year, but more than 650 have been in attendance during the Fall term which has just closed. The chapel has been crowded at its daily religious services. The prayer-meetings have been unusually well attended, and have invariably been seasons of great spiritual quickening. At the first meeting there were several seekers arose for the prayers of their fellow students and throughout the term conversions have occurred. At the last Tuesday evening (the 16th inst) meeting President Payne, who makes it a point to lead this meeting himself, as a pastor does the regular prayer-meeting of his Church, called for testimonies from those who had received special religious benefit during the term. Some sixty or seventy responded, several of them young converts. At the close of the meeting a goodly number of others arose for prayers and all covenanted together to pray daily in secret during the vacation for wonderful blessings on the coming Winter term, and to come back resolved to devote themselves still more energetically to the Lord's service. There is a great hope for the Church in this vast number of consecrated young men and women. It is an invaluable part of a liberal education to breathe such a religious spirit as surrounds them, and to enjoy its molding influence on the character. There is a refreshing spirit of harmony between faculty and students. At Monnett Hall, 125 young women, filling the building to its utmost capacity, have enjoyed all the pleasant social life of a delightful Christian home, under the wise supervision of Professor Austin, the genial register, and Miss Martin, the much-loved preceptress. The conservatory of music under the new and popular director, Professor Blakeslee, recently of Oberlin, has had a wonderfully successful term, closing with a musical entertainment on Monday evening, the 22d, which has probably never been equaled in Delaware, both in respect to excellence and popular effect. This university, in its several departments—collegiate, academic, normal, music, art, etc.—furnishes every inducement to every class of students, as well because of its scholastic advantages as its religious influence and refined social life. Whatever new student of either sex may enter the Winter term, beginning January 7th, will not only find classes suited to his or her wants, but will be sure of a cordial welcome by religious students, and hearty invitatation to join them in their delightful services.

In thirty years' successful experience in the manufacture of 150,000 instruments, the Mason & Hamlin Company have accumulated facilities for manufacture without which they could neither produce as good organs as they now make, nor with as great economy. Said an experienced manufacturer in witnessing the operation of a single machine in their factory recently: "One boy with that machine does as much work as ten skilled workmen could could do without it, and does it better at that."

These accumulated facilities, including experienced and skilled workmen, are the secret of their producing organs which are unquestionably the best, yet can be sold at prices which are little more than those of the poorest.—Boston Traveller.

William Taylor Missions.

Bishop Taylor's South and Central American Missions have been divided by their founder into four districts, and a superintendent appointed over each of them to "plant and superintend self-supporting churches and schools according to the Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States of America."

1. Panama District. Embracing U. S. Columbia, Ecuador, Venezuela, and British, Dutch, and French Guianas. Superintendent Rev. Richard Copp, with headquarters at Panama.

2. Central American District. Embracing Costa Rica, Nicaragua, San Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala, and Belize, Superintendent, Rev. E. Wright, with headquarters at San Jose, Costa Rica.

3. Chilian District. Embracing Chilia, Bolivia, Peru, and Patagonia. Superintendent, Rev. Ira H. La Fetra, with headquarters at Santiago, Chili.

4. Brazilian District. Embracing the Empire of Brazil, Superintendent, Rev. I. H. Nelson, with headquarters at Para, Brazil.

The Panama Taylor Mission.

There is in Panama (a city of 24,000 people, with no Protestant Church) a splendid opportunity for some benevolent person to present a memorial church, or for some generous-hearted persons to contribute toward the purchase of a lot, and the construction of a church and school building. The necessities are very great. The possibilities for work in and from that center for a distance of thousands of miles, among many millions of people, are grand beyond description. Contributions to be forwarded to Richard Grant, Treasurer of the William Taylor Transit and Building Fund, 181 Hudson Street, New York, stating that it is for Panama. Further particulars can be obtained, if desired, from the Rev. Richard Copp, Superintendent Panama District, care Richard Grant, 181 Hudson Street, New York.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Death of John Baldwin, Sr., the Christian Philanthropist.

REV. W. S. FITCH.

The whole Church will be interested in the mournful announcement that Father Baldwin, the founder of Baldwin University in Ohio, Baldwin Seminary in Louisiana, and the Baldwin Schools in India, is dead. He passed away peacefully from the field of toil, to the "blessed rest that remaineth for the people of God," Sunday, Dec. 28th, about 10 o'clock a. m., at his cottage in Baldwin, Louisiana. The whole community was profoundly stirred by the event, and on Monday, before the hour appointed for the funeral service had struck the people, both white and colored began to assemble in the yard near the venerable patriarch's residence to pay the last honors to his sleeping dust.

At the appointed hour the solemn procession, headed by Dr. W. D. Godman, the writer (who was Father Baldwin's pastor), the pall-bearers, and the aged widow and children of the deceased, moved slowly to the Chapel of the Seminary where the funeral services were held. The chapel was soon filled to its utmost capacity with the large audience. The pulpit, organ and platform were decorated with the emblems of mourning under the direction of Mrs. Anna M. Fitch, the preceptress of the Seminary; and the words "We mourn the loss" displayed in large letters on the wall in the rear of the pulpit. The services were introduced by the choir singing the hymn "Asleep in Jesus." Rev. E. Lyons pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, (colored) offered prayer; Rev. W. D. Godman, D. D., president of Gilbert Seminary, read the Scriptures, the choir sang "Happy soul, thy days are ended." The writer then preached from Revelations 14, 13, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord;" after which Dr. Godman read the following sketch which he had prepared at the request of the family:

"John Baldwin was born in North Branford, Connecticut, Oct. 13, 1799, being 85 years of age last Oct. He departed this life Sunday Dec. 28, 1884, about ten o'clock in the morning, at the ringing of the bell that summoned worshippers to the chapel erected by him. He had been an invalid for more than a year and had several times thought his end to be very near, but he had a firm purpose to live as long as God would permit, and heroically kept his face toward the east, and in Eastern harbor returned alone and unattended, and buried himself much as would a younger man. When we looked on him, then, and saw how much better he appeared, we thought he would [illegible] for several years [illegible] but his disease took a new [illegible] he became [illegible] He was [illegible] paroxysms of [illegible] found very weak, and continued so until the time of his death. Many long weeks he was confined to his bed, and much of the time was unable to move himself. It is evident to his friends that his end was drawing nigh. He saw it also himself. Last Wednesday we had an interview with him and a sacred season of prayer; he said he had for some time thought that his body would be consumed by the disease and that he should go up again." His putting this thought in the past tense showed that he no longer entertained it, but on the contrary, was expecting his end. He rejoiced greatly and heartily to [illegible] He expressed in the [illegible] as he had often done before, his confident expectation that the foundations here laid for [illegible] education would be permanently successful through the [illegible] of God. This had been a favorite thought with Father [illegible] for many years—Christian [illegible]

A remarkable man has gone from [illegible] We shall do well to consider the lessons derivable from his noble life and character. When about the age of ten years, his family removed from Branford to Litchfield. His environments at that period were those of poverty. He grew up to his majority without much education and had to endure persecution from boys in more favored circumstances. The jeers and taunts of such folks did not make him a hater of education; but they did engender in his mind a resolve to do what he could to save other young men from like persecution. His long, active career proves how well the resolve was kept. Let the young men who are here to-day remind themselves hereby that persecution may do them no harm if it come; and that the real evil attaches to the persecutors themselves, not to their victims. John Baldwin was not the man to be discouraged. He found the way to get to school in Harrington, Connecticut, also at Bethlehem. He did not disdain to pay his way in part by chopping fire wood as so many great and good men have done, in Northern countries, while getting their education. He qualified himself at length to teach school, which he did in Dutchess county, New Jersey, and in the State of Maryland.

In the year 1818, when about 19 years of age he was clearly converted to Christ and became thenceforth an active Christian. In the early part of his Christian life he received license to exhort, which, I believe, he has renewed from year to year. At all events he has been an active exhorters and has often conducted religious services and addressed the people. His labors of this kind were often very fruitful.

In the year 1828, in Dutchess county, New Jersey, he was married to Miss Mary D. Chappell, who survives him, at the age of 83, and has been the faithful partner of his toils, and a sharer in his good deeds. In the spring of 1828, he, with his wife, removed to Berea, Ohio, with which place the larger part of his life course has been identified.

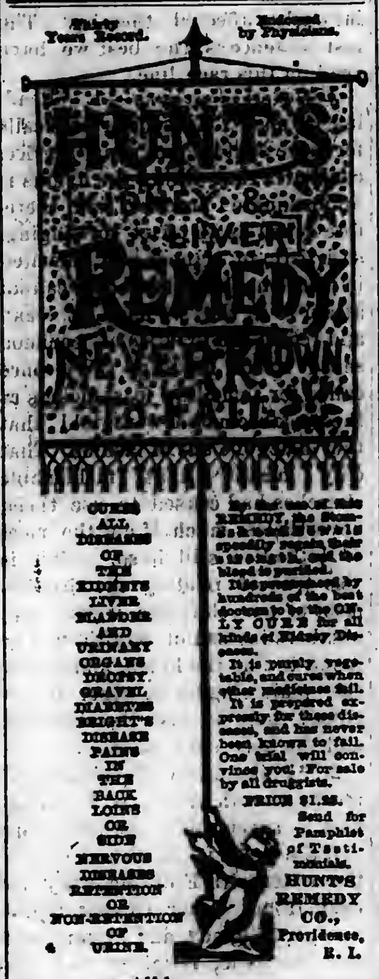
He had in earlier years formed a purpose to consecrate property to God; he was now the owner of a farm; he utilized water power to run a mill; he discovered a fine sandstone on his place and opened it to market; he gave the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church an interest in a quarry, which was retained by the Society for many years, until they could profitably sell it. About the year 1845 he founded Baldwin Institute in Berea, which became a very successful school of grade intermediate between academy and college. To this institution he gave buildings and a partial endowment in land. Baldwin Institute in 1857 became Baldwin University, and Mr. Baldwin contributed liberally to its endowment fund [illegible] In the Centenary year of American Methodism, 1866, he donated to Baldwin University 20 acres of quarry land, which were then valued at $100,000. Some years previous he had established Baldwin City in the State of Kansas, and by his liberality founded the location of Baker University, an institution under the patronage of Kansas Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church and named after Bishop Baker.

In 1867 Father Baldwin came to Louisiana and purchased the Darby Plantation, the land which lies round about us to-day, and which is this day to be consecrated afresh to the cause he loved, by the deposit of his remains on the ridge over yonder nigh the precincts of this Baldwin Seminary, and overlooking the peaceful waters of the Teche. Here in Louisiana, the same spirit, keeping watch over humanity's weal, has donated to the the Freedmen's Aid Society thirty acres of beautiful land with various buildings and improvements, for the uses of a seminary which the Freedmen's Aid Society agree to maintain. Already for two years, the beneficent, humanizing, elevating influences of education, under Christian inspiration and guidance, have been distilling upon the hearts of our youth and have done much to purify the moral atmosphere about us. Brother and Sister Fitch have been faithfully sowing excellent seed and the harvest has already begun. Thanks be unto God.

Last year, 1883, Father Baldwin gave about six thousand dollars to purchase a property for a mission school at Bangalore, India, within the limits of the South India Annual Conference. This school is reported to be vigorous and useful and is named Baldwin School. Nothing that has come to Father Baldwin of late years has made him happier than the privilege of giving to this mission school. Thus has his benevolence reached out to all points of the compass and started the agencies that shall bless the generations yet to come. We should not omit to state that during the year just past Father Baldwin donated to Baldwin University at Berea, Ohio, some 40 acres of land in this vicinity being part of the Fusilear plantation purchased by him some years since. It will thus be seen that he has crowded the years with his benefactions, and now the record is closed; he can toil no more here; he will give no more here; he has gone to a better country, perhaps to begin a new order of activities for the glory of the same good Lord.

Bro. Baldwin's character is an interesting study. Through a web of contrarieties runs a golden thread of consistency and unity. Close calculation and parsimony find their outcome in enlarged benevolence. Contempt for display and conventionalities harmonizes with a charitable interpretation of the peculiarities of other men and of the ways of the world. A respect for social institutions and a love of humanity dwell without a challenge alongside a persistent defiance of common sentiments and usages. He manifested great strength of character in pursuing an end—and that a good one—through any amount of obloquy and opposition. Without much profession he had a deep religious experience and always felt at home with profoundly religious men. It is not ours to judge the sum total of character; this belongs to God. It is our part to contemplate reverentially the character of a strong, good man, and to treasure up its suggestions for the improvement of our own lives.

The writer of this paper modestly refers to the fact, known to some of you, that he and Father Baldwin had at one time some passages of controversy, but two men, both loving the Lord Jesus with sincerity, cannot remain long and widely apart. Years have elapsed since we buried all the asperities of controversy, and we have lived and worked together for our common Lord. I desire to record my declaration, that throughout the controversy we preserved our faith in each other, and nothing ever passed that was inconsistent with either the Christian or the gentleman.



We must, before closing, advert to the fact that Father Baldwin came South with the cherished purpose to do something for the education of the colored race. Providential arrangements seemed not to conspire with his plans and the foundation which he first laid did not endure. Thomson University did not become an established fact. I know that while he has rejoiced in the establishment of Baldwin Seminary, he has been grieved that he could not do more for the colored race. But he has found great satisfaction in the fact that he opened the way for so many of them to get comfortable homes. This thought was prominent in his mind at the time of our last conversation.

Our friend and father has gone from us and we are here, of various hues and races, to pay a last affectionate tribute to his memory. We are glad he went to heaven from this place; we are glad that his ashes will rest in our soil. He 'being dead yet speaketh.' His voice is to-day that we 'love one another,' and that we 'work while it is day.'"

After the reading of the above the choir sang "Heavenly Home" in a very tender manner The procession then formed again and reverently followed his remains to their last resting place in the grove just North of the Seminary grounds on a ridge overlooking the Teche. The people of this community will long cherish the memory of one who has done so much for them. Here as elsewhere he has sown the seed that will bring forth a harvest of blessing to generations following.

IN INDIA ONCE MORE.—Rev. E. W. Parker, writes: "Rejoice with us that we are back safe and sound in our old home at Moradabad. We arrived at Cawnpore Nov. 3. The Cawnpore church is all that you could desire, or will be when ready. Other work in Cawnpore is doing well. Since our arrival we have visited Oudh and Rohilkhund district conferences, and now we are on our way to Bro. Zahur-ul Haqq's district conference. At the conferences the native brethren show no signs whatever of the dissatisfaction that Bro. Bose talked of. When I referred to it the brethren gave very decided signs of dissent. All the meetings were as harmonious as the conferences you attended, and no man could receive a heartier welcome than the native brethren here gave Johnson and myself. All the work of the mission seems moving. Bishop Hurst is in the country. We are as happy as children, and are just going into camp on the old ground until conference. Miss DeVine and Miss Hyde are going with us. When we got to Moradabad the school boys and girls, teachers and preachers, missionaries and all were at the station, and made more of us than we were ever worth. It is very nice to be kindly treated when it seems to come from the heart. May the good Father help us at both ends of the line.

Rev. Edward White, of London, in a lecture on the English Peasantry, expresses his opinion that if the workingmen of England would abandon their drinking habits, in five years they would carry all the great reforms they desire.

Please take notice that the $1.50 is a cash rate, and must be paid in advance or within three months.

The Holly Springs District, Mississippi Conference, at its session Nov. 27-29, 1884, passed the following resolution touching the SOUTHWESTERN:

Resolved, That the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is in the right hands, and that the General Conference made no mistake in electing Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., Editor of the organ of Methodism in this part of our work; that his very boldness is the need of the hour, and that we heartily appreciate the reduction made in the price of subscription; and farther Resolved, That each pastor and member of this conference go down from here with a firm determination to do more for the SOUTHWESTERN in 1885 than in any previous year, and that it is the sense of this conference that each brother should settle all he owes it at once.

Bishop Taylor Pressing his Voyage to Africa.

Bishop Taylor has gone down to the sea in the great ship City of Berlin, from which he writes, us via Queenstown, Dec. 20, 1884, that he is well, and prosecuting a prosperous voyage. He will hold the Liberia Conference Jan. 29, 1885, and preach at large among the churches pending the maturing of his plans for entering the interior. Let incessant prayers be made all over the Church, and especially among the Negroes of our Church, for the prosperity both of Bishop Taylor and his work, which is, in the best of the best sense, our work.

Death of Father Baldwin.

Father John Baldwin died at his home in Baldwin, La., Sunday, Dec. 28, [illegible] o'clock a. m. He was buried Monday afternoon, Dec. 29. The funeral services were held in the Chapel of Baldwin Seminary, and were characterized by deep solemnity and interest. A large concourse of friends, both white and colored, were present to pay their last tribute of respect to this devout and benevolent man. Rev. W. F. Tibbs, Principal of Baldwin Seminary, conducted the services, assisted by Dr. W. D. Godman and Rev. [illegible] Bijoux. We are able to present a more extensive notice of this sad event, with a sketch of the life and Christian labors of Father Baldwin, in another place in this issue.

Bishop Wayman was standing on the floor of the Senate and [illegible] Haven (Bishop), was in the [illegible] him standing, Dr. [illegible] a card to Senator [illegible] requested a page to [illegible] seat near Bishop Ames, [illegible] Episcopal Church. This is characteristic of the man. We are [illegible] caused to wonder that [illegible] things are not more related by those who [illegible] by them; than an [illegible] deal of actions which are [illegible] not more frequent than [illegible]

The Methodist Review.

Vol. 1, No. 1, of this bi-monthly publication, successor of the hoary old Methodist Quarterly Review, is upon our table. Daniel Curry, D. D., L.L. D., Editor. Price, $2 50 per year; 50 cents single numbers. New York: Phillips & Hunt; Cincinnati: Cranston & Stowe, publishers.

With its name this publication has also laid aside its rich covering of green, by which it reminded us of the charity of the Church it represented, and was distinguished from all the other quarterlies we have seen. The present color is of autumn leaves nearly and may indicate the maturity of both the magazine and its learned alumnus. It is certainly a compliment to our genial friends at 631 Pine street, Philadelphia, that the two magazines, theirs and ours, can scarcely be distinguished in mechanical make-up, with only 61 pages more of matter in ours than theirs. We have followed them in the choice of a color, so for once the daughter may honestly claim that she led the mother. The volume opens with a frontispiece likeness of Bishop Simpson, as he looked last May. Then follows "The Historical Position of Bishop Simpson;" by Henry Bascom Rigaway, D. D. We have not given the exact title of this article because the exact title is not sufficiently descriptive of it. It is, as the writer says, an attempt to find the historical place of Bishop Simpson. This place he, with characteristic modesty and some little diffidence, claims to be the chief point in the American Church. Of American Methodism he claims that in Asbury was the root and in Simpson the full bloomed flower and fruitage. In Bishop Simpson, he thinks, we have an illustration of the power of the ministry to retain, influence and guide the masses of the period if preaching is conscientiously done, and preparation for it as life's chief work carefully made by the preacher.

"Constitutional Law in the Methodist Episcopal Church;" by Joseph Pullman, D. D. This paper alone is worth more than the subscription price of the Review for a year. It is a well digested, fairly exhaustive and authoritative document. Much that it contains will claim consideration of thoughtful Methodists in the years 1887-8. The writer evinces ability as a clear thinker. The article has high merit for clearness of statement and consecutiveness of thought. There is such proofs of research as establish his familiarity with ancient land-marks of Methodistic jurisprudence.

"Christian Education;" by Rev. E. McCheseney, Ph. D., covers several important points, but chiefly these two: 1st. The necessity of reaching the students of secular institutions with religious teaching, and the feasibility of so doing by the establishment of halls of residence. 2d. The necessity of a higher and better grade of religious instruction than is now provided in the religious educational institutions of the country. This want he would meet by the creation of a chair of Christian science; and he thinks, with Mons. Jules Simon, it is not Godly but Nihilistic education that we are to fear. The weakest point in the paper is the one that hints at a dangerous class in our society, which he fails to point out. It is a weakness in any writing to hint when a class of people are to be affected by the application of the hint. It is better to speak out, or be silent when it is not fit to speak. After all, the discussion of this topic is, at present, a timely one. It looks to saving our young men and women from the baneful effects of purely secular or an education which is at least neutral, as to both Christian truth and Pagan error; classing each as a superstition, and reason alone as worthy of confidence, with logic as a god.

"Christ Preaching to the Spirits in Prison;" by Dr. Daniel Curry, is an article that doesn't seem to have any real meaning. The author confesses that he has ended as he began it, and that seems to us to be in confusion. There is a right smart Greek and Latin used, and these would help to deepen the mist somewhat but for the fact that in our days even many of the common schools require that, and very many of our young people fairly riot in their familiarity with these tongues. However, in this article translations follow or precede every quotation. We do not see the purpose of the article except it is to state the position of several scholars on the subject of which the paper treats, and with whom the writer disagrees. It seems to us that a very simple interpretation of 1 Peter iii, 19, "He went and preached unto the spirits in prison," would be. That after his crucifixion Christ went and preached or proclaimed redemption to all those who, without prophesy or Gospel had died from Adam to Noah, and had thus submitted to them the very same terms he has to us, "salvation by faith." It could not be that he went to denounce a woe upon them, for that would at once destroy two things, namely, the intermediate state and the final judgment, both of which the Doctor admits and believes in.

"Ethnography of Northern and Central Africa," by Richard Wheatley, D. D., is a strong paper. It gives evidence of a good deal of reading on the subject which it treats, but there is evidence of that carelessness in writing about the Negroes which is so widely prevalent. For instance, in speaking of Dr. Edward Wilmot Blyden, 94th page of the Review, this learned and well-known Negro is called "Dr. Blyden Williams." The object of the writer seems to be to prove that the higher and lower types of Africans are of a common stock, and therefore ultimately that they are of common origin with all the races of man everywhere. The discussion of modern events in the Soudan is highly creditable to the writer, and must be helpful to the reader. A great deal of faith is placed in English intervention as a sure means of destroying the slave trade. We have not so much faith at that point. England has discovered a wonderful capacity for letting barbarism take its own course in her colonnial dominions when her trade has not been injuriously affected thereby. The last sentence is the best we have read on this race line.

Editorial Miscellany.—1. "Reading Hymns." The editor here calls for more soul in our song service; concludes that lining the hymns is an antiquated practice, and therefore asked as an offset for singing, so artistic in manner and elevated in position that the people cannot attain to it, that we have at least, and retain the practice of common sense hymn reading. We once called for some love feast tickets at the book room and were told that they had gone out of fashion. That only meant that fashionable churches had ceased to use them, nevertheless much, if not the most of Methodism still do so. This is also true of reading the hymns, most of our churches, if you count numbers instead of wealth, will be found to line the hymn, and where the plain singing is, other things equal, there is also the shouting, and the holy enthusiasm.

2. "Philosophico-Theologizing," is a twirl with Mr. O. B. Frothingham's speculative ratiocinations and the point is much in favor of the writer, with Frothingham yet to hear from. Other current topics, foreign, religious and literary matters, domestic, religious and missionary intelligence, and a review of the magazines finishes the work. It cannot fail to be of interest and benefit to every class of readers. It touches the living questions of the hour. It is an epitome or a brief resume of the history of passing times, scientific, religious, social, political and philosophical economics.

The colored people of the country have sent out a call for a great industrial convention in New Orleans, February 12th, which they hope to hold in the Exposition building. Our citizens should prepare to give them such a reception as the distinguished occasion and visitors merit.

Useful Information.

We wish to inform our young friends who may visit this city in charge of exhibits or to see the Exposition, that we have both churches and gambling houses here. We have the Home and the brothel also, but there is a great gulf between them. Our interested eyes are peering after the prominent colored people who come here, because we hope to be able to help the moral men of this race on to higher prominence and the immoral to penitence and reform. Go to church on Sundays while you are here, and keep away from every man who plays cards, and from every house where they are played. It is only a question of time until the man who plays cards for fun will play them for money. He, who plays cards for money will soon learn to cheat in order to prevent losing his own money. Then he is near the end. Wine, women and blood are in the back ground, with the shade of a felon's cell or the gallows in the dim distance. If New Orleans society is bad put the impress of your superior opportunities upon it. Prove that your own home places are better than this wicked city, by the superiority of your deportment amongst us. Let your company be decent women, there are plenty such here; and then you can find others who are not so, don't find the others. Don't be offended at this exhortation, it certainly will not hurt you to do as we say, and you will be hurt if you do otherwise. When you leave home get a note of membership from your pastor where you live and hand it to some of the pastors here. The Christian people of this city would be glad to form your acquaintance and to know more both of you and the communities, and interests you represent. But they can not find or know of your presence here unless you are in some way brought in contact with them. We are not concerned as to which church you attend, only we would have you attend some one or all of them. We have also many schools here, visit them, encourage our educational efforts, our leaders ought to be interested in this. Show them by your gallant attention to good colored women that you love and honor them.

The Women at Work.

A fair audience greeted Mrs. Jennie F. Willing in her meeting for women, in Union Chapel Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans, Wednesday evening, Jan. 11. A number of interested sisters sat around and in front of her. The attention was marked, evincing the fact that the colored woman is sensible of her wants, and is deeply anxious to supply them. The following ministers were present, viz: Revs. E. Williams, S. Priestley, J. W. Hudson, T. G. Montgomery.

MRS. WILLING

Is an earnest, pleasing and impressive speaker, whose heart goes out with her words when she talks about the elevation and enlargement of the sphere of woman's usefulness. She is, in the very best sense, a preacher albeit she has no human call or church authority to exercise her high calling. We have listened to and been moved to our heart's depths by the eloquence of Bishop Fowler as when swayed and influenced by his concern for the evangelization of this earth he has poured forth his soul in burning utterances. Then we have listened to Mrs. Willing, and our query is which of them has been tutor and pupil to the other? It is not certain how far the Church can with safety permit this class of impassioned orators to go free of all ecclesiastical restraints, save as laymen are restrained, and as their own fancy may direct. The time must yet and soon come when there will be some further and more definite action than any yet taken by the church upon this subject.

THE MEETING

Was mainly for the purpose of outlining the modes of working in this country for the immediate and possibly the ultimate future.

OBJECT.

The first purpose of the Woman's Home Missionary Society is the salvation of the soul. And as a means to this end they aim to elevate and purify the homes of the people. Women and girls will be advised, instructed and assisted in the culture of children and the general duties of the home. If this requires the establishment of a school in any place as an auxiliary to their main work it will be done, but theirs is not a work of education in books.

LOCAL WORK.

As to their work in New Orleans it will be chiefly under the direction of Miss Cowgill. For the present one hour each day will be devoted to the training of women, missionaries and girls for home and Christian duties. Then there will be also a private hour weekly in which each individual woman may privately meet Miss Cowgill at the appointed times and places for consultation. They will insist upon these helping women being ensamples to the flock in housekeeping, cooking, talking and morals, with a strong impression that they must aid in saving souls.

THE IMPORTANCE.

No work now undertaken by the church is of superior importance to this. Two thirds of our members are women, black and white, many of these are wives and mothers, many more are soon to assume these responsible relations. As touching the Negroes they can only hope for solid moral growth and worth in proportion as the women are purified and elevated.

There is a tendency just visible in some quarters to leave the Negro women behind and advance by the line of atheogamus relations. The cure for this lies in making Negro women in all things the peer of the Negro man. The work of this society becomes of vital importance especially as it militates in favor of the abatement of this tendency by improving the women.

WHITE WORK.

This society will carry its work into destitute localities among the white people just as among the colored people. In all cases aiming at the ultimate salvation of souls, and the elevation of the home with reference to it.

WHAT THEY NEED.

These ladies in their movement require sympathy, prayers and money to aid them in their efforts to save the homes and thereby save the nation and the church.

The meeting then adjourned to meet at 1 p. m., in Wesley Chapel, on Thursday, January 10.

The adjourned meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society met in Wesley Chapel at 1 o'clock p. m., Thursday, January 11. The editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, in a brief address, introduced Mrs. Jennie F. Willing to the following ministers who were present; Rev. J. Qualls being in the chair, and the SOUTHWESTERN reporter acting as Secretary, viz: Rev. Stephen Duncan, P. E., of Shreveport district, Louisiana Conference; Rev. Emperor Williams, P. E., Lafourche district, Louisiana Conference; Rev. M. L. Dale, P. C., Wesley Chapel, New Orleans; Rev. A. J. Ford, P. C., Clinton Street Church, New Orleans; Rev. M. J. Dyer, P. C., Sixth Street Church, New Orleans; Rev. M. D. Fairfax, P. C. Gretna Church; Rev. R. C. Barrow, P. C., Algiers Church; Rev. John Qualls, P. C., LaHarpe Street Church, New Orleans; Rev. Joseph Gould, supernumerary Louisiana Conference; Rev. Z. T. Gayden, P. C., Thomson Chapel, New Orleans; Rev. E. E. Ronssean, local preacher, St. John Baptist circuit; Miss Josephine Cowgill and Rev. J. W. Hughey, Second Baptist Church, St. Louis, Mo. Mrs. Willing then explained the plan of an organization for the New Orleans work, which was read seriatim and adopted, on motion of M. J. Dyer and S. Duncan, without dissent. A vote of thanks was then tendered Mrs. Willing, after which a meeting for 10 a. m., Monday, January 15th, was announced, to which all pastors and others interested were invited, and the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. Willing, Miss Cowgill and others then visited Mr. Dale's Wesley Chapel Mission School, where Mrs. Willing carefully advised the pupils in the better way of living. Her visit will doubtless prove a blessing and result in great good to our work here.

Take a Hand.

The great Southern Exposition is upon us. We were not called upon for advice in planning it or we should have urged a different way of doing some things. But it is upon us now, and the credit of New Orleans is involved to make it a success. It will not serve any good purpose to say that the management has been inconsistent or to the end of personal agrandizement. The onus of defeat will lay upon the community, and the impeachment will settle at last upon its business capacity. Is Major Burke ambitious? be it so; what American, white or black man with good sense, is not? Ambition for popular preference and favor is a strong incentive to fairness and square dealing. More laudable, well founded and well bounded ambition to do great things and arise to great estates would be a blessing to all classes of American young men and women also. If more money is needed to help on let Congress appropriate it. Why not? The occasion is a great one, and the money is spent with all classes of people, making work for the laborer, and thus supplying bread to the eater.

Personal.

—Bishop Payne left Wilberforce for his Southern field on the 6th inst.

—Rev. T. M. Woods, late of Alliance, Ohio, is a visitor to the Exposition.

—A telegram from Rev. C. W. Drees, dated January 2, announces the safe arrival of Bishop Harris and J. M. Phillips, Esq., in Mexico.

—Mrs. Dr. Newman is now there, and will remain some time, with her husband, visiting different places in California.

—Rev. W. S. Lankford and family has arrived safely in Little Rock, and he has entered upon the duties of his new pastorate in that city with his usual vigor.

—Rev. J. F. Page, of Elizabeth City, N. C., was in the city this week. He was located in this State several years and has many friends who were glad to see him.

—Rev. Theo. J. Carver, of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and E. P. Mackie, Esq., were pleased to, and pleased us, by looking in upon us at the SOUTHWESTERN'S office.

—Rev. David Shelby, who was recently married in Mansfield, with his wife and brother has been paying a most agreable holiday visit to Bro. Solomon Shelby, at Columbus, La.

—Mr. Lynch's wedding seems to have created a genuine sensation in Washington society. It would have saved some people a deal of trouble to have been born either black or white.

—Hon. Fred Douglass, for his services in the cause of emancipation, will receive the interest of $10,000 during his life time, left him by Miss Assing, a noted abolitionist of France.

—Rev. William Dean, a veteran missionary of the Baptist Missionary Union among the Chinese of Bangkok, Siam, where he has labored fifty years, has returned for a visit to this country at the age of 78 years.

—Mr. S. B. Bowman, who, is son to Bishop Bowman, was married in Cincinnati, Nov. 20, to Miss Mary, daughter to Bishop Walden. The home of the young happy couple will be 3029 Washington Avenue, St. Louis.

—We were gratified and pleased at a visit of President R. C. Hitchcock, of Straight University, a few days since. Visitors can find him at 490 Canal street. He is a veteran educator, and doing good work here.

—Mr. Bruce, of Washington, D.

C., has taken charge of the dining room of the St. Charles Hotel, New Orleans. This ought to increase the patronage of the house, as Mr. Bruce has much experience and wide reputation for efficiency in his line.

—Bishop Taylor will in a few weeks start for Liberia, via England. He will preside over Liberia Conference, at Monrovia, January 29th. He will then proceed Southward, intent on finding for his missionaries a practicable route to the interior.

—We extend our congratulations to our good brother, Rev. E. W. Green, who has taken unto himself a helpmate, Miss M. J. Mason. The ceremony was performed at Maysville, Thursday evening, Nov. 27th. We wish them long life and happiness.—America Baptist.

—Rev. C. Herbert Richardson, pastor of the Broadway Methodist Episcopal Church, and Richard M. Smith, Esq., all of Baltimore, Md., and the former of the Baltimore Methodist Episcopal Conference, are doing the Crescent City, and for one week will be domiciled at Mrs. Tarrants, 212 Camp street.

—Calvin F. Ladd, of New Orleans, La., Grand Master of Eureka Grand Lodge of Louisiana F. and A. Masons, with the following staff, are at work at the Court House, at Natchitoches, La., organizing a Lodge: Peter Joseph, J. E. Trosclair, New Orleans; P. H. Osborn, J. H. Dennis, of Alexandria, La.; John G. Lewis, A. B. Blount, H. J. Wright and Andy Bosley, Natchitoches, La.

—Miss Josephine Robinson, of Maysville, Ky., and Mr. F. G. Brady, of New Richmond, Ohio, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Thursday evening, November 6th, at the Bethel Baptist Church. The matrimonial services were performed by Rev. J. W. Moreland.

—Eminent colored persons visiting the city, gleaned from our Exposition Register at 115 Union street: J. J. Spellman, of Jackson, Miss., improperly called Reverend two weeks ago. Miss Anna Coleman, teacher, St. Louis, Mo., domiciled at 2054 St. Mary street. Mr. A. J. Curtis, Marion, Ala., at 331 St. Louis street.

—Rev. W. R. Davis, B. D., recently pastor of the Metropolitan Baptist Church, Paris, Ky., has accepted a call to the pastoral care of the Second Baptist Church, Terre Haute, Ind., and has entered upon his work.—Baptist American.

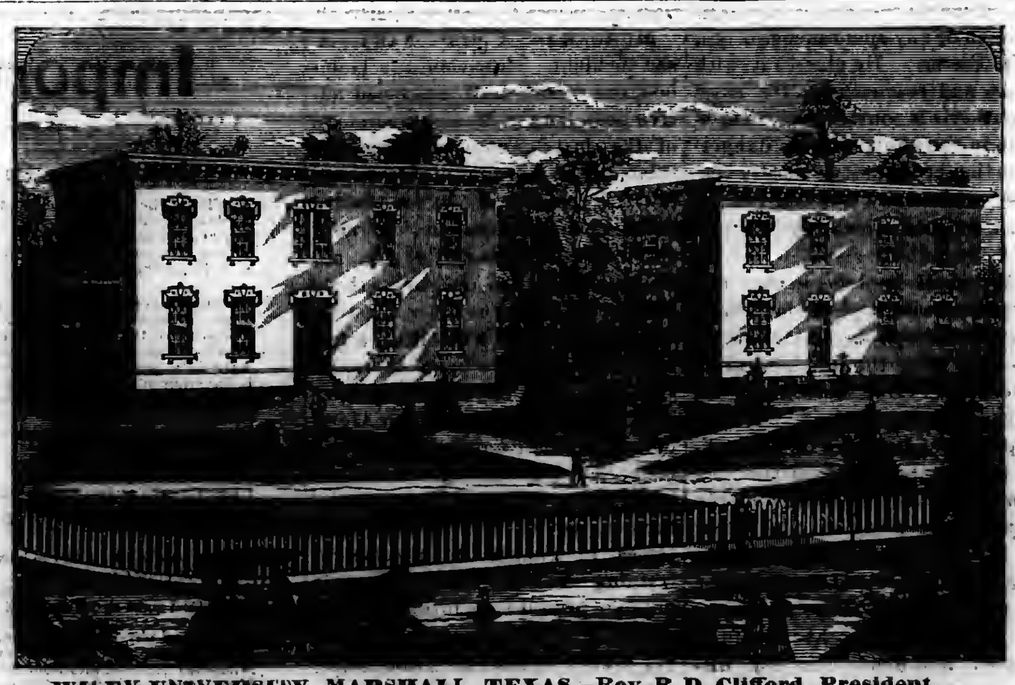
—Bishop Turner said in his speech before the West Tennessee Annual Conference of the A. M. E. Church, "It is no matter who is President. In the near future the colored people will have to fill the purpose of providence—that is, return to Africa and redeem the land and give it to God and civilization."

—Hon. J. R. [illegible], of Mississippi, [illegible] Thursday morning in the parlors of the Southern Hotel, Maysville, formerly of Mobile, Ala., The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. J. Grimke. Then followed a wedding breakfast and a brilliant reception at night. They left the same night on a tour North.—People's Advocate.

—Dr. S. M. Angell, 184 Julia street, New Orleans, represents the local temperance work in this city, and it would be well for visiting pastors, minister and other temperance [illegible] with counsel and sympathy by calling upon him and making his acquaintance. We do not know his personally, but we say this much for his work's sake.

[illegible] a tribute to the memory of his brother William with the following touching words: "Playmate of my childhood, chum of my college days, companion of my early ministry, brother greatly beloved, [illegible] wandering, and [illegible] gentle hopes by-and-by, [illegible] survivor of that dear old household, to meet them at [illegible] home, to meet them at [illegible] and sit down [illegible] at Jesus' feet!"—Methodist Advocate.

—Mrs. W. S. Lankford has been tendered, and accepted, a position in the faculty of Philander Smith College, Little Rock, Ark. There is no longer any question as to the willingness of the Freedmen's Aid Society to employ colored teachers. It is using all it can, and increasing the number as rapidly as it can. One by one the disturbing questions are being settled, and always in favor of the efforts of our grand old Church to elevate the human race.



—The following well known educators are visiting New Orleans, stopping at Straight University, guests of President R. C. Hitchcock, viz: Prof. Gordon, acting President of Tillottson Collegiate and Normal Institute, Austin, Texas. Prof. Hogan, Principal Lewis Normal School, Macon, Ga. Prof. Sessions, Superintendent of Agricultural Department, Atlanta University, Ga. Prof. Burger, Superintendent Industrial Department Lewis Normal School, Macon, Ga. Misses Shattuck and Edwards, for many years prominent teachers at Mt. Holyoke Seminary, So. Hadley, Mass. Mrs. Lucy Green, Principal Model School, Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn. Miss Edwards, Fisk University; Misses Beard, Goldsmith, Longlove, Sessions, Greene, and others. A party of about 20 teachers from Iowa visited the University this week, also Prof. Terrell, a graduate, now Supt. of Schools at Fort Worth, Texas, and Prof. Ensley, of Alcorn University, Rodney, Miss.

—Henry E. Baker, Esq., of the U. S. Patent Office, Washington, D. C., was in New Orleans the past week, called upon the SOUTHWESTERN and dined with the editor. Mr. Baker is a model for the young colored men of our country. He is industrious, sober, skilful, faithful and perfectly honorable in all his dealings. He loves, and shares his income with his parents and sisters who to some extent depend upon him. Mr. Cleveland ought not only to see that he is retained but promoted. He is of the class who have merits.

—Rev. John Motte Arnold, D.D. We were made sad by the news of the sudden death of this much-esteemed brother, editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate. We made the personal acquaintance of Dr. Arnold at the National Camp meeting, Lansing, Mich., last June. He was deeply interested in the subject of holiness, and was praying for Jesus for present purity of heart. We became unusually interested in the man. Dr. Arnold was sixty years of age at his death. His death, resulting from heart disease, was sudden. He went to work in the morning in his usual health, and in the afternoon returned to his home, as he entered, laying his hand upon his heart, he said to his wife, "I feel quite ill," sank down, and almost instantly expired. This was a sudden call to a glorious coronation. Dr. Arnold was ready for the change.

—Rev. Allen Allensworth will shortly publish a work called the "Lights and Shadows of Slave Life," with an appendix containing 40 years experience, or 20 years a slave and 20 years a man. Few men to-day alive are better calculated by experience and culture to perform this valuable service for the Negro race, and for mankind in general than the author. He was sold in the New Orleans slave market, was incarcerated in Poindexter & Little's Slave Pen, which was situated on Baronne street near Gravier, in 1860. Mr. Allensworth is a distinguished minister and writer of ability of the Baptist denomination. He has recently been called to the pastorate of Mound Street Baptist Church of Colored People, Cincinnati, O., which is one of the wealthiest and most aristocratic colored congregations in the country. The former pastor immediately preceding Mr. Allensworth was Rev. Joseph Emery, a white Baptist clergyman well known as the Cincinnati missionary, and a most just and estimable gentleman.

Now is the time to push the canvass for the SOUTHWESTERN.

WILEY UNIVERSITY, MARSHALL, TEXAS.—Rev. R. D. Clifford, President.

Schools and Colleges.

Wiley University M. E. Church—Marshall, Texas.

A. WEBB.

As President of the Board of Trustees and acting agent of the this school, I attended the examination at the close of the fall term, as far as my time would permit, and desire to make this report through your paper. The examinations were thorough, partly oral, partly written, and showed that no pains had been spared by the teachers, to give a thorough knowledge of the branches taught. Prof. Coleman had some bright pupils in mental analysis; Miss Greenman, in practical arithmetic and grammar; President Clifford in Greek. There is no sham work here, all was solid and after the most approved methods. The school is on a solid foundation, with pleasant recitation rooms, a beautiful chapel, and charming location, water excellent and plentiful; with good board and at the lowest figures. The new president has shown himself equal to the position. We have two organs, and a fine new piano, presided over by Sister Clifford, an accomplished and thorough teacher of music, offering as good an opportunity to study music as will be found in any place. But with all this outlay, and with such teachers, there seems to be a great lack of interest on the part of the great masses of people for whom this school is maintained. There are hundreds of young men and women that could be in school if they had the interest. What can be done? My brethren in the ministry, cease not to cry aloud, and warn the people of the danger of ignorance, and their duty. Wake up the sleeping intellect, and arouse the stupid. These schools must be filled with our best young men and women or we remain in darkness. Brethren, talk, sing, and pray and give for Wiley University and kindred schools.

Breaking Ground for the New Hall of Gilbert Seminary at LaTeche.

W. D. GODMAN, D. D.

MR. EDITOR—Some weeks ago Mr. G. Q. Adams, of the firm of Adams Brothers, Chattanooga, Tennessee, arrived here and began collecting material for our new seminary building. Very soon after his arrival, came Mr. T. R. Colston, the builder. The work was delayed for a time by Mr. Colston's illness, but his recovery thank God, has made it practicable to go forward. Last Monday, November 17th, the ground was broken. A small number of friends, a good number for the busy season of sugar making, assembled in the campus at 5 o'clock p. m., and stood within the chord that showed the outline of the building. The exercises were as follows:

1. Singing "Tolling on," led by Mrs. Lyon and Miss Godman.
2. Reading Scripture, Kings 1, Chapt. VI part, by Rev. E. Lyon.
3. Prayer, by Rev. E. Lyon.
4. Dr. Godman said: "The answer to prayer has come, and the fulfillment of long deferred hope. We are profoundly thankful to Almighty God for His remembrance of this cause. The building now about to be commenced is the gift of W. L. Gilbert, Esq., of West Winsted, Connecticut, who contributed the munificent sum of $5,000. The needs of this cause were first very impressively brought to Mr. Gilbert's notice by our agent, the Rev. W. R. Webster, of the New York Conference. The added and potent influence of the Freedmen's Aid Society through Bishop Wiley and Dr. Hartzell, secured the consummation of the gift. It is a part of the arrangement that the institution shall hereafter be known as Gilbert Seminary, and the village shall be called Winsted. These are the designations in which hence forward we shall rejoice."

Then began the excavation of the ground for the brick pier at the southwest corner, in front: The spade was thrust in and the ground upturned in behalf of the Louisiana Annual Conference, by Rev. E. Lyon; in behalf of the Messrs. Adams, by Mr. T. R. Colston; in behalf of the Freedmen's Aid Society, and the Orphans' Home Board, by W. D. Godman.

It was noticed that among the people present were many of the Seminary scholars. The entire company joined heartily in singing the doxology, and after the benediction, we retired with a glad persuasion that a new era had opened for our place.

Dear Dr. Taylor—I thought you and your many readers might be interested in a word from Philander Smith College, hence this card. We are now in the midst of the closing exercises of the fall term. We have had a good degree of success. A greater number of students have been enrolled than for same period in any previous year. Rev. Prof. H. R. Pinkney, our newly appointed assistant has adjusted himself to his new relation and we are moving on pleasantly. Our winter term opens January 7th, 1885. We expect to let you hear from us and our work more frequently in the future. We appreciate the weekly visits of the SOUTHWESTERN to our reading room. THOMAS MASON.
President.

There are 362 colleges and universities in the United States, of which 271 are directly controlled by religious denominations, and 91 are secular.

Books and Current Literature

The American Reformer has just closed its second year of publication. It enters upon its third year with an established reputation as the leading Reform Journal of the country and with gratifying evidences of hearty popular appreciation. Its editorials are strong and convincing, its list of contributors includes the leading Reformers of the country; its news is carefully collated and covers the world at large, while its Home Department is liberal in extent and variety of unsurpassed quality. The Reformer is a 16 page bi-weekly, printed on tinted paper, and is among the very handsomest specimens of the typographic art of the age. Publication Office, No. 59 Tribune Building, N. Y. City. Send a postal for sample copy.

Missionary Exercises. Eugene R. Smith, publishes a convenient pamphlet containing Dialogues, Concert Exercises etc., which we can recommend to all desiring such a Manual. Address Eugene R. Smith Baltimore, Md. Price 25cts.

A genuinely delicious revival of a positive genius in Negro dialect, by Samuel W. Small ("Old Si"), in his most brilliant efforts, "Old Si's Christmas Reminiscences," will be found in the Christmas number of the Current. James B. Cable, also tells of "Christmas in the Southland," which will touch the tender chords in many Southern hearts.

Mr. E. P. Roe's new story, "Driven Back to Eden," will begin in the February St. Nicholas.

The January number of the Popular Science Monthly teems with thoughtful articles, first comes "A Glance at the Jury System," by C. H. Stephens, who makes the defects of the system very evident, and shows by a sketch of its history that it was not established as a bulwark of popular liberty. In "Agnosticic Metaphysics," by Frederic Harrison, and "Last Words about Agnosticism," by Herbert Spencer, the religions discussion by these able thinkers may be said to be closed, for Mr. Spencer states that he shall say no more. "Influences determining Sex" is an interesting statement by Professor W. K. Brooks of the results of a curious scientific research. The story of Tyndall's student-life, told by himself, under the title "My School and Schoolmasters," will be early read. F. A. Fernald contributes an illustrated article on the "Gladiators of the Sea," in which he describes the sword-fish, the saw-fish, and the narwhal. "Studying in Germany," by Horace M. Kennedy, contains valuable information for American students. Sir Auberon Herbert's article on "State Usurpation of Parental Functions" is profitable reading for those who put their trust in reform by act of Legislature. J. H. Pooley, M. D., describes that curious affection, "Bloody Sweat;" W. Mattieu Williams writes on "Condiments" and "The Cookery of Wine;" and "Protective Mimicry in Marine Life," by Dr. W. Creitenbach; "The Advantages of Limited Museums," by O. W. Collet; "The Architecture of Town-House," by R. W. Edis, F. S. A.; and "Mountain Observatories," are all valuable articles. The subject of the portrait and sketch is that eminent chemist, Sir Henry Roscoe. The editor writes on "Harrison and Spencer on Religion," "A Healthy Materialism," and "Politics and Science." The "Miscellany" and "Notes" contain the usual pleasing variety. New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents a number, $5 a year.

The November Century is on the press for the fourth time. The first edition of the February number, containing Gen. Grant's "Shiloh," will be 175,000.

"The Trouble with the Stage" will be discussed in the January Century by a writer who claims that the managers first need reforming. Dr. Gladden writes of "Christianity and Popular Amusements" in the same number.

Another of Huckleberry Finn's adventures, by Mark Twain, entitled "Jim's Investments, and King Sollermun," will appear in the January Century.

Pulpit Treasury, one of the most valuable of the Homelitic periodicals, has given all their moneys worth to subscribers for 1884, and gives thereby a pledge of its usefulness in 1885. It is a very useful helpful work for Preachers and Teachers. Price $2,50 per year. Preachers $2; single number, 25c. E. B. Treat, Publisher, 757 Broadway, New York.

Belated Pamphlets on our Table.

Messers Prang & Co. continue to supply the market with goods in their line of unexceptionable merit as the sample cards sent out from their establishment amply testify. Any one trying them will try again.

Haus & Herd for January 1885, fresh and unusually vigorous is at hand. Its claim to popular support rests upon enduring basis. It is printed in German and deserves, as it receives, a wide patronage.

Original Humorous & Dramatic Recitations, in 4 vols., 10cts. each by Eugene J. Hall, 11 Michigan Ave. Chicago, Ills., illustrated, is a lively and useful work.

Stephen Peet's Antiquarian has peculiarly high claims to popular favor. It only needs inspection to secure favor and patronage. Chicago, F. H. Revell, 150 Madison st. Bi-monthly.

The Chatauquan makes its first visit for the New Year with the same old feast of reason and flow of soul as of yore.

LAMENT FOR WILLIAM WELLS BROWN.

BY W. C. CONWAY, ESQ.

Lament to-day my countrymen,
In every city and town,
For to-day the great Wm. Wells Brown
His manly frame laid down.

Let every man with honest heart,
Let children, great and small,
In this day's solemnity take part,
On bended knees in honor fall.

To-day he laid his garments by—
Clean and spotless are they—
To take his flight to that other world
Where there is ne'er a cloudy day.

Well may we lament for this noble man
Whose country he never wronged;
With pen and tongue he always spoke
In behalf of the weak against the strong.

Ne'er contented could he be
To see his fellow-man in fetters;
But always strove for their liberty
By deeds and argumentative letters.

He offered prayers to the country above
To hasten Israel's redemption;
And glad he was, with many millions,
To meet Liberty's proclamation.

So let us erect a monument,
Not of gold or marble white;
But in our memory we must build,
To rest it day and night.

Written January 5, 1885.

Domestic Hygiene.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Diphtheria.

REV. GEO. L. CURTIS.

This is the season of year when this disease most prevails, though it may be found at any season. It is a disease whose ravages are sure and whose control is difficult. It is not a new disease, as some suppose, but it was recognized at Cappadocia about A. D. 80. It was thought to have come from Egypt or Syria, and was hence called Egyptian or Syrian Ulceration. It appeared in Holland and raged severely in 1557. Since then its occurrences have been frequent, and its study has engaged some of the world's best minds. It has prevailed in some localities as a loathsome scourge, and when carefully studied has been found connected with filth and some poison developed in each individual case, and communicating the disease to others. The following are facts:

1. Diphtheria is a disease attacking the membrane of the throat, and soon becomes constitutional.

2. "It is contagious in some sense."

3. "Its infectious particles are somehow conveyed in the air." They are capable of so infecting milk, water and food upon which they fall as to make them unwholesome and dangerous.

"Its miasm may find its way from cesspools and from the surface of the earth where foul slops are thrown, into the wells that are near, and thence be taken into the system with the water." Hence all discharges and ejections from a diphtheritic patient should be destroyed by fire, and not thrown at least upon the ground, or into the sewer or even into the vault.

4. The greatest prevalence of the disease is in localities where the [illegible] are generally [illegible] imperfect, and the air is loaded with foul odors. The disease is really "filth disease."

Some hold that the cause of most diphtheritic cases is "contagion from individuals sick with the disease." There are instances where it undoubtedly spread into [illegible] spontaneously. There can be little doubt that the existing condition of the disease united with all manner of filth and vile compounds is the usual cause of an outbreak of the disease. It ought to be remembered that there is a latency in this disease wherein the poison may remain dormant for some time and then break out suddenly with great violence. A person may be exposed to the evil influences of this disease and go to another locality where diphtheria does not exist, and for a few days, possibly weeks, remain in apparently perfect health, and then be stricken down and recover with great difficulty, or perish. Dr. [illegible] thinks many of the mild and really most prolific [illegible] are to others. He would have the most perfect disinfection of [illegible] and washing of persons with mouth wash before they [illegible] be pleaded free from the disease, especially where there are children.

The writer does not believe there can be any spontaneous origin of diphtheria. He classes it with cholera and scarletina. He says: "Diphtheria is contagious." "Diphtheria in the adult proves dangerous to the community, mostly because it does not restrain the patient from communicating the disease."

What shall be done in case one is attacked with diphtheria? Send for a good physician, and follow his directions as to the administration of medicines. But there are some things beside to be done. Isolate the patient. Let none but the direct attendants come into the sick room. Especially keep the children away. Clear away all filth about and in the house. Thoroughly cleanse the bedding used by the sick one. On recovery the room and all within it ought to be fully cleansed and disinfected for disease germs may linger around waiting to infect some innocent one. This disease is to be dreaded, but when taken in its earliest stages may be easily controlled.

Great things have ever hinged on trifles. The first family difficulty on record was caused by an apple core; the last we heard of was the negligence of a father to keep up the supply of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, when all hands had a cold.

RICE PUDDING.—Two tablespoonfuls of rice, one quart of milk. Put the rice in cold milk, which place on the stove, and allow to simmer until the rice is burst, season to taste with sugar and a little nutmeg, and then bake.

COOKING ONIONS.—An important question is, "May onions be cooked in such a way that the consequences may not be disagreeable?" Different methods are recommended. Boiling in two waters well salted, or letting them lie in cold water is thought to be effective. Boiling in milk used to be thought the best way to remove the rank flavor, but the onions we are able to purchase now, even in the country, are not so strong in odor or taste as was the onion of our fathers. The Bermuda, the ideal onion of the Spanish, needs nothing beyond boiling in two waters.

Gratefulness.

Mr. H. Sampsel, Ottawa, Kansas, writes: "Dr. S. B. HARTMAN & Co., Columbus, O.—Gentlemen: I have suffered for seven years; have tried every thing and many physicians, and all have failed. I went to Pittsburgh, and while there fell on the street, my breath seemed to leave my lungs, and dumbness overpowered me. I determined to give PERUNA and MANALIN a fair trial. I used four bottles of each, and my trouble left, never, I hope, to return. I left Pittsburgh three weeks ago for Kansas, and thought, as I was going to a new country, I had better take a bottle of MANALIN with me, so [illegible] water, as I arrived [illegible] the last bottle. I found one [illegible] a pretty bad condition. [illegible] were waiting her for skills, [illegible] I did not know what her [illegible] was, though. I prescribed her [illegible] and Manalin. She did so and the [illegible] relieved in wonderful manner. She [illegible] it will [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

General Church News.

Rev. C. H. Spurgeon recently issued his 1,800th printed sermon in regular succession.

The Presbyterians of Philadelphia numbered 8,000 communicants in 1810. There are now 28,000.

The Southern Baptists support fifty missionaries in foreign lands. Their food, raiment, lodging and places for public worship will require this year $100,000.

A Methodist church costing $40,000, a Congregational church costing $20,000 and a Presbyterian church costing $25,000 are approaching completion at Lincoln, Neb.

Roman Catholics can hereafter participate in our national Thanksgiving day, the Plenary Council having graciously included it among holidays that they are permitted to observe.

The American Baptists have taken hold of the large mission work on the Congo. There are twenty-three missionaries distributed through seven stations, heretofore known as the Livingstone Inland Mission.

The Chinese are so angry at the French that they have begun to destroy Christian churches, both Catholic and Protestant. Personal outrages have driven away the missionaries. Let us pray for the safety of our brethren there!

The Brith drink bill for 1884 foots up $628,386,375. The quantity aggregates 1,032,142,158 gallons. This would make a lake a mile long and a mile wide, with a depth of tairty-five feet, or sufficient to float men of war.

The fact that the town of Greeley, Colorado, with 2,500 inhabitants, has six churches and a $30,000 school-house, but no paupers, no jail, no police and no liquor-selling saloons, has a suggestion for the rulers of the land.

The Methodist Episcopal Woman's Foreign Missionary Society has, the past year, raised for its work $443,199.14. The general missionary society of the same church, is now the parent of ten well organized conferences in foreign lands.

The Protestant Episcopal Church has 12 colleges, with $8,700,000 endowment; Congregationalists, 28 colleges, with $9,000,000; Presbyterians, 41 colleges, with $7,000,000; Baptist, 46 colleges, with $10,300,000; Methodists, 32 colleges, with $11,800,000 endowment.

By the manufacture of intoxicating liquors, 40,000,000 bushels of nutritious grain are destroyed annually. This wholesale destruction of food is equal to 600,000,000 five pound loaves of bread, or annually more than seventy-nine loaves for each family in the United States.

The Centenmary conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, held in Baltimore last month, represented nearly four millions of [illegible] as follows:

"Bright's Disease" is regarded by many as incurable and it is well nigh so, except when opposed with Hunt's [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY. This old and reliable medicine has special power in this and all diseases of the kidneys and bladder. It is purely vegetable and is highly endorsed by physicians.

Christmas Echoes.

REV. AARON JONES.

A word to all, and what I say to one I say to all. After a brief life's experience, having passed the marks of 13 and 31, and now being near 39, I have found that the world is guilty of one great sin in regard to the 25th day of December. As the birth day of our Savior Jesus Christ it should be kept holy; and every grog-shop should be closed, every church door opened, and the heavens be made to ring with his praise. Brethren and sisters, we should remember that on the 25th day of December, it is said in the 2nd chapter of Matthew that his birth was announced, and that the very heavens shouted for joy. But now, instead of it being a day of worship, it is one of drunkenness; and some of the very people that were at church in the morning go home and get drunk in the evening. I think that, after serving God the whole year, it is a pity to undo all we have done by abusing him in this manner at the end of every year. I wish I could get at the bottom, and top and breadth of this subject, but as it is I will leave it for you yourselves to do it

A Clear Head and a Strong Heart.

If you muddle your brains with any of the whiskey compounds which are sold under the name of "bitters," and which topers delight in for stimulants, you do your system irreproachable mischief. Brown's Iron Bitters is not one of these. It promotes healthy action of the heart, liver and stomach. It cleanses and enriches the blood, and fits the brain for the best mental work. The best physicians prescribe it, and it is well worthy of a trial by all.

Publisher's Agents.

In order to facilitate the transaction of business with our customers we have arranged with Edward Alden & Bro., Fifth and Vine streets, Cincinnati, O., and 140 Nassau street, New York, making them our Special Publisher's Agents, and giving them charge of the foreign advertising patronage of our paper. All communications in relation to this department should be addressed to them. tf

THE PILLOW-INHALER!

TRADE MARK.

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION.

THE PILLOW-INHALER is one of the most effective inventions of the age. It does what never has been done before, viz.: batters down this stronghold of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption by a continuous application of Medicated and Curative Air to the diseased mucous membranes of the air-passages of the nose, throat and lungs.

A Radical and Permanent Cure.

Most people who have Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption have tried from one to a dozen different remedies without being cured. Why have they not been cured? Simply because what they took were not cures. How is a snuff to be got into all the intricate air-passages and in the blood (for Catarrh is a constitutional disease)? or, how will inhaling medicine for a few minutes a day dislodge the enemy from its stronghold of decaying tissue? Everybody knows that medicine taken in doses has very feeble effect on diseases of a pulmonary character. They have to take such a roundabout way to get into the blood that they miss their power. Yet after all there is an Absolute Cure, and that is the PILLOW-INHALER—a means of all-night or continuous inhalation. The testimony to its results is beyond all question, by the experience of thousands. The cures it has effected seem almost incredible. It is a comfortable pillow of soft hair, with receptacles in which is put the evaporating medicine, the fumes of which the diseased person inhales all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, without being annoyed and without noticing that he is taking medicine. There is no dosing the stomach, no douching or snuffing; but, just as a smoky lamp, during the whole night, will leave a thick deposit on a whitened wall, so the PILLOW-INHALER, for eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. It is a constitutional and local cure at the same time. The medicine is applied directly, like a salve, at the seat of the disease, besides going into the blood during its aeration. It is inexpensive and within the reach of every one. No matter what you have tried or how despairing you are, call and see it, or write for Pamphlet and Testimonials. Address,

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.

"THE GIANT OF THE MONTHLIES."

Subscription per Year, $4 00.

The SEVENTIETH VOLUME will begin with the Number for December, 1884.

The Volume of HARPER'S NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE beginning in December will conclude its thirty-fifth year. The oldest periodical of its type, it is yet, in each new volume, a new Magazine, not simply because it presents fresh subjects and new pictures, but also and chiefly because it steadily advances in the method itself of magazine-making.

It is the best Magazine for the home. Touching home taste and culture at every point, and bringing to every hearth-stone argosies of wealth from all lands, and the richest treasures of imagination and art, it never intrudes an element of disturbance or controversy.

The leading writers and artists in America and England contribute to the pages of HARPER'S MAGAZINE. Its illustrated descriptive articles cover every portion of the world, and every subject of social interest in the departments of industry, science, art, literature, and polity. The illustrations alone in HARPER'S MAGAZINE during the past year cost over eighty thousand dollars. They are the wonder of our time. Its serial novels are the best published, and its short stories are unsurpassed. While, in many ways, it takes the very color and superficial impress of its time, there is no periodical in which to so great an extent the newer, larger, and deeper currents of the world's life are represented.

In circulation, in America and abroad, it leads all other periodicals of its class.

Entering upon a new year, the publishers of HARPER'S MAGAZINE repeat the promise they have made at the beginning of every year—a promise which will surely be performed—of continued improvement in the future.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE.

An Illustrated Weekly for Boys and Girls.

Subscription per Year, $2 00.

The SIXTH VOLUME commenced with the Number issued November 4, 1884.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE is about to be published in London. Its subscribers are found wherever the English language is spoken, and the extraordinary rapidity with which this wide circulation has been gained is due to the obvious fact that its publishers have spared neither pains nor expense to secure for it the very best literary and artistic work.

Its serial and short stories have all the dramatic interest that juvenile fiction can possess, are of superior literary quality, and wholly free from all that is pernicious or vulgarly sensational. Pastors and teachers have united in commending it warmly to parents and guardians, as an invaluable means of informing the minds and elevating the tastes of the young people under their care. The humorous stories, articles, and pictures are full of innocent fun, without a trace of coarseness.

The papers on natural history and other scientific subjects, travel, and the facts of life, are by writers whose names give the best possible assurance of accuracy and value. The historical stories, biographical tales, and anecdotes are most attractively presented.

Papers on athletic sports, games, and pastimes give full instructions with respect to those subjects, and fine pictures, representing the work of the foremost artists and engravers on wood, lavishly illustrate its pages.

In all mechanical respects HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE is as attractive as fine paper, legible type, and skilful printing can make it. There is nothing cheap about it but its price.

A specimen copy will be sent on receipt of five-cent stamp.

PRESS NOTICES.

In purity of tone, beauty of illustration, and in variety of attractive, entertaining, and instructive contents of the highest literary merit, it is unexcelled, and deserves a place in every home blessed with children, whose lives it will make better and brighter with its weekly visits.—Zion's Herald, Boston.

This charming little paper is a weekly feast of good things to the boys and girls in every family which it visits.—Brooklyn Union.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE is the best weekly for children in America.—South-western Christian Advocate.

One of the most popular children's periodicals in the country.—San Francisco Argonaut.

It overflows with stories, poems, anecdotes, instructive articles, pictures, and everything else in its line that can be thought of to make children happy, merry, and wise; and it will bear reading over again many times without losing its freshness, vivacity, or power to charm.—Providence Journal.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE continues to lead the weekly publications for youth throughout the country, and probably throughout the world.—The Living Church, Chicago.

Sun.—Watchful at all times, Prov. viii, 22 36.

QUESTIONS FOR HOME STUDY.

1. The Counsel, v. 28 31.
What charge did the Apostles give?
Who would enter the flock?
What is said about internal enemies?
How did Paul incite to watchfulness?
2. The Commendation, v 32.
To what did Paul commend the brethren?
What was the word able to do?
3. The Appeal, v. 33 35.
What did Paul say of himself?
How had he been supported?
By this what lesson had he taught?
What word of Jesus did he quote?
4. The Parting, v. 36 38.
With what did the conference close?
What was the special reason for grief?

PRACTICAL TEACHINGS.

How does this lesson teach—
1. The dangers thatbe set the church?
2. The d.sinterestedness of Paul?
3. The duty of benevolence?

Doctrinal Suggestion—The visible church.

Children's Work—Bible Trees.

5. Is this ever done now?
6. How does Moses describe the fruitfulness of the land of promise?
7. With what did he threaten the people if they sinned against God?

Our Christmas Tree.

James T. Moore, Handley, Tex., writes: "We have a Sunday-school of 25 pupils here. Four weeks ago we offered them the following rewards: $1 to the one committing the highest number of Scripture verses to memory; a Bible to the next, and to the last a French harp. It was a very cold day, few attended. Here are the names of the successful ones: John Burton, 26 verses; Mary Mickle, 24; Susie Mickle, 20. Every one enjoyed our Christmas Tree exercises. Mr. Thos. Bonner, a white gentleman, put $3 on the tree to pay for books to be presented to the school.

Mr. Editor—Will you please tell me, through the SOUTHWESTERN, which is the longest verse in the Bible? SUNDAY-SCHOOL BOY.

Certainly. The longest verse in the Bible is the 9th verse of the [illegible] chapter of the Book of Esther. [illegible] 90 words, taking compound words as but one word. It also contains the word Ethiopia, which was at one time the common name for Africa. The two next longest verses are Esther iii, 12, and Jer. xxi, 7.

An erraud boy in a Philadelphia fancy store has just been left $500,000 but it is thought he will die early of consumption. There is nothing better for young children that are daily exposed than a spoonful or two of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Obituary.

Sister Fanny Frazier died at Allen, La, Dec. 5, 1885. She had been a probationer in our church for seven years or more, but a few days before death she professed a hope in Christ. She passed away in peace after taking an affectionate leave of her children, who stood weeping around her bed. S. R. HASON, Pastor.

Sister Mary Ann Cooper died at Allen, La., Dec. 26, 1884, after more than three months suffering. She was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Her mother, two brothers and three sisters are left to weep, while she rests from her labors. S. R. HASON, Pastor.

Sister Betsey Sain died at Allen, La., Dec. 2, 1884. She professed religion under my ministry five months ago. She was in her 13th year, and the idol of her family. She was borne to the grave from Hason Chapel. She was a member of our Sunday-school, and was a faithful worker. S R HASON, Pastor.

Bro. Reese Duckett, a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Floresville, Texas, died Dec. 15, 1884. He was both a class leader and a trustee in the church at the time of his death, and we shall greatly miss him. J. T. GIBBONS, Pastor.

Minnie Tillery, the five year old daughter of Rev. John A. Tillery, died Dec. 10, 1884. Her mother and father are sadly bereaved at the loss. Bro. Tillery is pastor at Courtney, Texas. W. H. JACKSON, Pastor.

Sister Sallie Madison died in Forrest, Miss., Dec. 28, 1884. She was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal church. She leaves three children to mourn her loss. REV. J. J. GARRETT.

Miss Annie, daughter of Sister Maggie and Bro. Milton Wynn, after a protracted illness and a blessed Christian experience, died Dec. 14, 1884, at White Hall, La. REV. A HILTON, Pastor.

Sister Sarah Jones professed religion under Rev. H. Prim, united with the Methonist Episcopal Church in Murfreesboro, Tenn., was a member of Class No. 1, Henry Sharp, leader. She died in that village in great peace, Dec. 27, 1884. The bereaved husband, children and many friends attended the last services. REV. C. L. SEWARD, Pastor.

At Pearlington, Miss., Nov. 22, 1884, Miss Margaret Burton, daughter of Geo. and Farvine Burton. She was a faithful member of the Sunday-school, and died trusting in the Lord. N. CANNON.

Bro. Thomas Lindsey departed this life Nov. 18, 1884. He was a faithful member of the church, and died believing in the Lord. N. CANNON.

In Macon, Miss, Rev. L Clayton, pastor of Shuqualack circuit, died at 11 o'clock, a. m., Monday, Dec. 8, 1884. Bro. Clayton came to the Methodist Episcopal Church from the Baptist, in 1877, at Lauderdale Springs, in this State. He left that church because he could not believe in close communion. He regarded as a right of all Christians to communetogether at the Lord's table. It was for this cause he came to our church. He was in good standing otherwise. He was received into the Church at Lauderdale, under the pastoral care of Rev. H. Heslup, in 1877, received into the conference by Bishop Haven, at Oxford, Miss., in 1878, sent to Paulding circuit, of which he served as pastor for three years. His next and last appointment was where he fell a victim to death. Bro. Clayton was successful at all of his appointments. He was a church builder, and he always built one or two churches, as his appointment mark. The last church he built was at Shuqualak, out of which his remains were carried. His funeral was preached by Rev. W. H. H. Gallion, pastor at Macon. He was a member of the Masonic Fraternity. Bro. J. W. Longstreet, Most Worshipful Master of King Solomon Lodge No. 6, of Macon, Miss., led the procession when the remains were carried to their last resting place. He leaves a wife, two brothers and a sister. He took leave of his relatives as one trusting in the Lord.

At her home in Shelbyville, Tenn, December 4, at 7:30 o'clock, Mrs. Coldwell, wife of Judge T. H. Coldwell, released her feeble hold on life and quietly passed away. She had for several months been a patient sufferer, and welcomed the pale messenger when he come to bid her rest. Mrs Coldwell was a native of Cincinnati, Ohio, and was a daughter of the late Rev. J. W. Hopkins, a prominent minister of the Methodist Episcopal church. She first came to Shelbyville as a teacher in what was then known as Bedford Seminary, and as such is fondly remembered by many of her old pupils in Bedford county. She left Shelbyville in '72, but returned a few years later a bride, and became a permanent resident amongst us. In all the relations of life, as teacher, wife, mother, friend, she was ever the same loving character laboring always for the greatest good and happiness of those she loved. In her daily life were mirrored the Christian graces for which she was so justly noted, and it will be long ere their influence will cease to sway those with whom she was closely associated. To the bereaved husband and children, and to the brothers and sisters of the deceased, the warmest sympathies are tendered.

Sunday at the Exposition.

The following are the States and individuals who cover their exhibits on Sunday: Government Building—Oregon, covered; Dakota, doors closed; Colored People's Department, open but no one on duty. Main Building—Chess-Carley Company, Louisville, Ky.; American Machine Company, Philadelphia, Pa.; H. Haller, agent for Buck's Brilliant and Favorite stove works, New Orleans; Charter Oak Stove, St. Louis, Mo.; B. F. Avery & Son, Louisville, Ky.; Bridgeford & Co., Louisville stoves, covered; Wrought Iron Range Co., St. Louis, covered; Lancaster Mills, Clinton, Mass., partly covered; Hohenstein & Lange Berlin, Paris and New York, dealers in Japanese goods, partly covered. It is impossible to ascertain just now who will or who will not keep open on the Sabbath. The work went on Sunday almost as usual, except the machinery. Reporter interrogated a policeman upon the subject who said: "I think those covered are so because they are not complete in their work."

The above is a statement of what our special reporter was able to glean about Sunday exhibits, but from what we learn, the fair inference from the standing of the parties above mentioned is that they will not exhibit on Sundays. It looks as if there will be a very partial exhibit on Sundays, although the managers have concluded to open the gates and reduce the entrance fee to 25 cents on Sunday instead of 50 cents the price of admission for other days.

Really Progressive Negroes.

J. L. Wimby & Co. General Commission Merchants and Cotton Factors, New Orleans, La., whose card will be found in our advertising columns. Are enterprising young colored men, good for all they have undertaken, and are making earnest and commendable efforts to win public favor upon the basis of solid merit.

REPORTS FROM INDIA—The progress made in Rohilkund District, Rev. D. W. Thomas, P. E., during the past year is very encouraging. There has been 334 conversions, 119 more than the previous year; 318 adults baptized the membership has increased 351, making now on this district 1505 full members, and 1161 Probationers. The number of Sunday Schools is 233, with 8520 scholars, an increase of schools 13, and of scholars 380 during the year.

The reader will find the houses of Saal, Albert, Landry, Sullivan, Heath, and Crescent Insurance Company, all of whom are advertised in our columns, number straight forward reliable dealers in their respective lines. We commend them to the trading public.

Church Polity.

Mr. Editor—Please answer the following questions, and oblige a subscriber:

Has the M. E. Church South, or the C. M. E. Church any appointments north of the Mason & Dixon's line; if so, in what States are they?

It is improper to use the initials instead of the name of a Church, but we presume that you have reference, 1. To the Methodist Episcopal Church South; 2. To the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America. And so presuming to both questions we answer, yes, both of these denominations have, here and there, a feeble appointment north of the Mason & Dixon's supposed line. These appointments of the Church South which are north of the Mason & Dixon's line are in the States of Illinois, Indiana and Kansas, and District of Columbia, with missionary efforts in California and the far west. The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church has its Northern charges in Ohio and Pennsylvania, but they are of little or no significance numerically. Indeed we are not sure that they have already died out in Ohio.

The Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co.

The advertisement "Blymer Manufacturing Company Bells," familiar to our readers for so many years, in this issue of our paper gives way to that of "The Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co." The growing importance of the Bell business of the Blymer Manufactoring Co., has led to its separation from their other business; and to the formation of "The Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co," with Mr. D W. Blymer as President, and Mr. S W. Skinner as Treasurer. This new company succeeds to the Blymer Manufacturing Co., in all that pertains to its Bell business, and will continue the manufacture of Bells for Churches, Schools, Fire Alarms, &c. As the Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., has ample capital, and will be under the management of Mr. D. W. Blymyer, who since 1873, has had charge of the Bell business of the Blymer Manufactoring Co., it may be safely assumed that the reputation of these celebrated Bells will be fully maintained. The Cincinnati Bell Foundry has now in press its Catalogue for 1885, containing full description, prices, &c., of the bells, and over 1500 testimoniales, which will be sent free on application.

Abert: Dear Sir:—To yours of the 24 h, it is with pleasure I announce that I am advised by our General Passenger agents to name rate of $1.45 for round trip from New Orleans to Baton Rouge and return; tickets to be sold January 26 and 27, good to return through Feb. 7 Yours truly
R. F. REYNOLDS, Gen. Ag't.

Notice.

Houston, Texas Jan. 1, 1885. To the preachers of the Waco district, by Rev. W. A Davis, P. E: A happy and a prosperous New Year to you all. Try to do more this year than ever for the Master. I am now on my way to meet you and to do all I can for God, the Church and to pray for the prosperity of West Texas Conference at large.

Notice.

The Arganta District Conference, of the Little Rock Annual Conference, will meet at Fort Smith, on Monday, at 10 o'clock, a. m Feb. 16th, 1885 All of the members are requested to be present, and especially the Pastors. Yours Respectfully, G. W. SAMS, P. E

Notice.

The members and friends attending the Little Rock Annual Conference, which meets at Van Buren, Ark., Feb. 19th, and paying full fare going, will be returned for one cent a mile by the following roads: Little Rock and Fort Smith. Little Rock and Memphis, and Little Rock, Mississippi and Texas Roads. G. W SAMS.
Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 5, 1885.

New Orleans District.

The New Orleans District Conference will convene in Thomson's Chapel, on Thursday, January 22, at 10 o'clock, a. m. A large attendance is expected and earnestly desired. Bishop W. F. Mallalieu D. D., will preside: Rev. A. H. Gillett, D. D., General Sunday-school Agent for the South and West, with other eminent Sunday-school workers, will be present to conduct a Sunday-school Congress. The opening sermon will be preached Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, by Rev. A. J. Ford. L. P. CUSHMAN, P. E.

Fare to Mississippi Conference.

Mr. A. H. Hanson, General Passenger Agent of the Illinois Central Railroad, writes me, Dec. 22d, that ministers and delegates attending the Mississippi Conference, who pay full fare going, will be returned to points on their line in Mississippi at one-third of the regular rates, upon presenting at the ticket office at Aberdeen certificates issued by the authorized officer of the Conference, properly accrediting them. Mr. John J. Waller, General Passenger Agent, Mobile & Ohio Railroad, says that agents on his line between State Line and Corinth, Miss., will be instructed to issue to delegates and others desiring to attend excursion tickets to Aberdeen and return, at 2½ cents per mile each way, commencing sale Feb. 4th and closing Feb 6. making return coupons not good after February 12, 1885. F. S. Davant, Esq., General Passenger Agent, Memphis & Charleston Railroad, also says that ministers and delegates attending the Mississippi Conference to be held at Aberdeen on Feb 5, will be returned at one-third regular fare on surrendering certificates of attendance signed by the presiding officer of the conference to the agent at Corinth. Since the Illinois Central has completed their line to Aberdeen it will be much nearer for many of the brethren in the northwestern part of the State to go via Durant. Yours truly
J. M. SHUMPERT.

MARMION. By Sir Walter Scott Bart. Cloth, Illustrated. Gilt, 8mo., James R. Osgood & Co., Publishers, Boston, 1885.

This work is a mechanical beauty, nothing is desired to increase its attractiveness on that score. Marmion, the hero of the poem is an English knight valiant and wise, but profligate and unscrupulous, who meets with many adventures in Scotland and at last is slain upon the battle field of Flodden. The opening scene is laid at Norham Castle on the Tweed, with the Cheviot mountains in the back ground.

"Day set on Norham's Castle steeps
And Tweed's fair river, broad and deep,
And Cheviot's mountains lone."

The story advances rising in grandeur of imagery, and beauty of conception, pathetic, thrilling, and sublime, leading the reader entrancingly forward to its close. The lord, the lady, the statesman, the lover, the aged, the young, the pious and the gay may read this work with profit and pleasure. It is just the thing to present a friend whose mind is in a formation state. It is loyal to real life, and points a moral to the recklessness of youth. It ranks with the best works in English verse.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. July 17-1y

Jealousy is born of slighted love."

The Catholic Examiner, for Jan. 16, appears in new paper manufactured expressly for its use. It is a lively paper.

"Love is strong as death, jealousy is cruel as the grave, the coals thereof are coals of fire which hath a most vehement flame."

Rev. P. Martin, Nashville, Tenn., sends a list of twelve new subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. Earnest work always counts.

Our figures showing the number of Methodists represented at the centennial in Baltimore, printed in our 15th of January issue, were correct.

If we would continually remember the sacrifice of Christ's death we must not fail of attendance upon the Lord's Supper for thereto was it ordained.

"Oh that thou wert as my brother, that sucked the breast of my mother; when I should find thee without, I would kiss thee; yea, I should not be despised."

There is a new list of subscribers. The SOUTHWESTERN is cheering us each week. Be of good cheer, Sister Price and children send love to you."—Jessie Price.

Our subscription list is running up rapidly. Never was it so large at this season of the year as now. On the second week in January we had a very large number of new subscriptions, and 50 per cent. of them were from the North.

We hear that Gov. St. John, would have sold out the Prohibitionists if he could have got money enough. We dont know anything about that, but we know that he did not sell out, and that is all we care to know on the subject.

The Foochow Conference.

An inscrutable providence brought our beloved Bishop Wiley once more to the scene of his former and earliest labors, but did not permit him to preside at the conference. The attitude and feelings of all during the entire session were like those that prevailed at the late General Conference when the sainted Simpson was daily expected on the platform. Not a service was held, hardly a prayer was offered without the tenderest allusions to our suffering Bishop. The whole congregation was frequently bathed in tears, while imploring health and comfort from Him who alone is able to bestow. Daily a few of the native brethren would seek admission to the sick room, and after a few words of greeting and sympathy, tearfully withdraw to resume their supplications for the recovery of Hevai, La Kang-tok.

While we were thus sorrowing on account of our sick Bishop we rejoiced greatly in behalf of the brethren from the interior who had passed through fears and dangers during the conference year and came up to the conference with messages of peace and prosperity.

Thousands of poor Chinamen fell before the French cannon. Many were put to a cruel death by their own countrymen because suspected of treachery or incendiarism, while the ostracised Christians came off without so much as a hair of their heads being touched.

The conference sermon was preached by Ting Ka Sing, one of our promising young men from the Hokchiang district, in the absence of the brother who had been appointed by the conference. His remarks on the theme: "Through self-denial on to Victory, evinced considerable thought and careful preparation. Thursday morning, Nov. 13th, the conference was organized by the election of a president, and one English and two Chinese secretaries. One new committee was added to the usual standing committees; composed of the missionaries and presiding elders, namely: a committee on Church property and architecture. In some parts of our work we are in need of plans and appliances similar to those now so successfully worked in America by the Church Extension Society. In our larger districts more system and regularity in this line of work is desirable, and steps were taken by the conference which we trust will lead to something that will meet the demands of our growing Church.

The missionary sermon was preached by Rev. G. B. Smith, in the absence of the brother who had been regularly appointed. It consisted of an instructive outline of the history of the Church and quite a comprehensive survey of the missionary field now open to the Church. The discussion of the Sabbath-school work took an unexpected turn, pictorial works, cards, maps, flags, etc., were recommended as helpful in building up live schools; but the majority of the speakers, especially our elder brethren, such as Hii Yang Mi, and Li Teo Mi, urgently recommended the singing of Christian hymns to Chinese tunes. Hii Yang Mi said: "My organ has become an old institution among the heathen neighbors except when I begin to play native airs, when suddenly every window is full of heads, with here and there one or two humming the tune I play. Many of our tunes are associated with vileness and obscenity, let us rescue them out of the hands of Satan as other nations have done before, and are doing with their popular music, and not only will the children come to our Sabbath-schools to learn to sing, but even the respectable heathen will thank us for our efforts." It might seem hazardous to launch out upon this turbid sea, but we only wait for a distinct; Put out into the deep and let down your nets for a draught. Maybe at our next conference, the singing, fairly like "jasmine flowers" will be heard in the devotional exercises. Why should it be more difficult to Christianize the popular airs of civilized China, then those of barbarous tribes and savages. Conference Sunday was a day long to be remembered. The love feast speeches were unusually good. Hii Yang Mi's sermon was earnest and timely.

In the afternoon a memorial service was held in connection with the celebration of the Lord's supper. Two of our young and highly promising preachers on trial had passed to their reward. Touching allusions were made to their life in our Biblical Institute and the few years they spent in God's work some of the remarks seemed to sink so deep into the hearts of the hearers that the only sentiment one could think of was, better work, more work, holier work for the Master. The sacrament service was an occasion of deep solemnity. In the evening Rev. M. C. Wilcox preached from the words: "But far be it from me that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ. The sermon was listened to with unbroken attention, notwithstanding the weariness one cannot help discovering after attending three services on one day. Monday morning, our beloved Bishop Wiley was reported "much worse," and the conference occupied the greater part of the forenoon in getting ready for the ordinations which he hoped to perform at his bedside late in the afternoon. At noon the word was Bishop Wiley cannot attend to the ordinations.

Sia Sek Ong said: "This is the remnant of work he must needs leave undone to keep up the connection between this conference, and the mother Church."

On Tuesday morning the conference assembled for prayer and roll call, after which it adjourned to meet at the call of the president. Everyone was anxious to hear a last word from the dying Bishop. He shook hands with a few of the native brethren, and mentioned them by name. Once after medicine had been given him he seemed to dwell intentionally on the word give, repeating it several times without being able to say more. We asked: "Do you want us to to give you something?" He repled: "No." "Do you want to give us something?" He answered with all his remaining strength: "I do not want to give you anything, I only give you God's blessing. God bless you! God bless you! God bless you forevermore, forevermore, for ever-more! A-men! A-men! A-men!" We sang a verse of the hymn: "Forever with the Lord, amen, so let it be." During which he sank into a sweet slumber. When he awoke he said: "Well, we are still here." After giving him a little nourishment he said: "You had better let me go." We asked, "Where do you want to go?" He replied, "I want to go to heaven." Again, "Do yon remember Bishop Simpson?" He answered with joyful emphasis: "Yes, I do." He was aware that he spoke incoherently at times, and it seemed to give him great satisfaction whenever his remarks were understood. To one expression he added, "I said that all right, didn't I." On Wednesday afternoon he spoke quite at length and said: "My wish is to go home and do ten years more service, but if it be simply a question of life and death, that does not weigh heavily on my mind. Thirty-three years ago I came here and now I think I may as well remain here and finish my work. I think it might be a good thing to have the same one who for some reason has been called the missionary Bishop of China to die here. I have had some pleasurable thoughts about dying here where my work began. Well, if I die, I will die in the same faith in which I have lived. I have been a licensed preacher in the Methodist Church for forty years, and have always tried to do my duty. I have not been a joyous creature or a joyous preacher, but I have been a peaceful, happy, hopeful Christian. I am at peace with God and man. I have never been an enemy to any man, and I do not know that any one has ever been an enemy to me. I have never intended to harm anyone, and have no knowledge of any one ever having done me any harm. With a little modification I can say what Paul said at his end: 'I have fought a hard fight.' I wont go so far as Paul, I have fought a hard fight, I have kept the faith, I have finished my work, henceforth, my faith is not so strong as Paul's, Paul saw more than I have. My faith is in the same Christ for whom I have lived and worked, and the same Christ, through whom I hope to attain eternal life. I believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as the Savior of the world; I believe in the Apostle's creed, I believe there is no redemption for the world except in the Lord Jesus Christ, I have lived a Christian for forty years, and when I die, I will die a Christian."

The next day an old associate in the work said to him: "I hope the Savior is precious to you." He replied, "Yes, indeed he is." Again: "The Savior says, 'I will come and receive unto myself.'" He responded; "Yes, he will come in due time to all of us." Once, he said: "I cannot talk much, I ought not to talk I suppose; you have my record." Refering to his remarks on Wednesday, "I want to go home to heaven, let me go." The day before he died he said, "If I die here, it will be true, that Bishop Wiley is the first missionary Bishop you've got there, that's beyond question." The last sentence he uttered was, "Let me go."

Some beautiful traits of characters could be observed everytime one entered his sick room. He was ever the polished Christian gentleman. No degree of suffering could make him forget the nice points of etiquette. He was exceedingly tender with the feelings of others, and repeated assurances were required now and then before he could believe that so and so did not "feel hurt." His solicitude for the Church was always very evident. One of his last expressions was, "Do the Church allright, do the Church allright, I am more concerned about the Church than anything else."

The closing session of the conference was called on Friday evening, Nov. 21st, when appropriate resolutions were passed and a committee appointed to write a letter to Mrs. Wiley. During the night and on Saturday (the 22d of Nov.) he did not speak much and seemed to be suffering but little. He remained in one position and breathed like one in a sweet sleep often for nearly an hour at a time. It was evident that he was gradually sinking, and at 4 p. m. he quietly passed away. Death has hit a shining mark. The whole conference had remained to show him the last token of reverence and love; the leading men of the body, especially those who had been or ordained by him seven years ago, begged to be allowed to act as pall-bearers, and all wished to do something to express their high esteem of the departed. They cheerfully availed themselves of the opportunity to buy a pillow and lining of beautiful white silk for the coffin, saying: "Yes, that is very appropriate; on the pillow his precious head will rest, and the lining will be very near him." The funeral services, in English and Chinese, were such as might be expected, and were participated in by all the members of the mission, by Elders Hu Yung Mi and Sia Sek Ong, by Revs. G. C. Baldwin, D. D., and C. Hartwell, of the American Board, and by Bishop Burdon, of the Church Mission. The words of these silver-haired colleagues of Bishop Wiley will never be forgotten by the large audience that filled Tieng Ang Tong to overflowing that memorable Sunday afternoon. While we were taking a last look at the dead form a messenger pushed his way through the crowd and delivered the following cablegram: "Do all that is necessary. Reid." It was a reply to ours sent 24 hours before: "Wiley is dead." Thank God for the telegraph; our friends can talk to us when we are in distress out here. The few words were not sent in vain; they did lighten our burden, and we proceed to lay our Bishop by the side of several loved ones under the olive trees. He was satisfied, we will not murmur.

Such a conference we have never had before. Every one goes to his work with a silent determination to make the best of his opportunities. Bishop Wiley's last visit to China will not fall short of that of Bishop Kingsley in its far-reaching and blessed results. His example was just the sermon we needed. I enclose a few items from the statistics: Members, 1787, increase 107; probationers, 950, increase, 83; pupils in Sunday-schools, 1387, increase, 3; contributions for support of pastors, $708, increase, $76; contributions for church building, etc., $995, increase, $604; missionary collections, $171, increase, $7.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Bishop Wiley Memorial Service at Wiley University.

At a called meeting of the trustees of Wiley University, recently held, action was taken with regard to holding memorial services to Bishop I. W. Wiley. It was voted that the time of these services be deferred until the visit of Bishop Mallalieu, which it is expected will occur in March or early in April. It is hoped that Drs. Rust and Hartzell and Dr. Taylor of the SOUTHWESTERN will also be present to participate, together with other prominent brethren of the church. These services to the memory of our lamented bishop, held here at the University which bears his name, are of interest to the entire church, and should be attended by pastors and people throughout our own and the neighboring conferences. Due notice of the time of the meeting and the programme will be published in the SOUTHWESTERN. Personal notification will also be given to the pastor. Let all the preachers, and especially those of our own conference, keep these services in mind and plan to be present. Entertainment will be provided for all visitors.

From the Districts.

Letter From G. W. Richardson.

To the preachers on San Antonio District, West Texas Conference.—DEAR BRETHREN—There are a few things that I would like to say to you at the beginning of the conference year, that I will ask the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN to publish; and if anybody else listens while we are holding a "council of war," and can get any good out of our talk they are welcome to it. But my talk is especially with you because San Antonio district is my special field. I am responsible for the building up of the Church and salvation of sinners in my own district, but I share that responsibility with each of you. I am none too strong when I have the cordial support of every pastor in the district and the support of him who sent me and said at the same time "all power is given unto me in heaven and earth," and you are none too strong individually when you have the sympathy and support of all the other preachers in the district, including the presiding elder, and the same Omnipotent Jesus who said: "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you."

The first thing I want to suggest is that we should work together for the advancement of the Church. The Church is organized by the blessed Savior for the express purpose of saving the world. Every institution of the Church is intended to help accomplish this end. Now I desire to have a spirit of emulation among the preachers of this district, a desire to have our district excel in every department of Church work. While we desire to excel, we have no wish to keep the other three districts in this conference back so we may come out ahead.

We are willing Bro. Madison, should stir up his preachers to look carefully after all the interests of the cause of Christ, and if his district is richer than ours, and can bring up the apportionments for the various benevolent collections, a little closer than we can, we will bid him God speed in his good work. But we will not show the white feather till we have tried our strength. There is one department of Church work where I know we can excel, that is in the Sunday-school work. Nearly all the preachers in this district have taken lessons in at least one Sunday-school convention, and some of them in three conventions, and if there is any failure in the Sunday-school work on this district the failure will not be on account of the inability of the preachers to do that kind of work, but it will be on account of indifference.

Brethren let us see to it that the Sunday-school work this year shall be done so intelligently, so religiously, so earnestly, that hundreds of our Sunday-school children shall be converted and become members of the Church before you report your work at the next conference. Study especially to make the Sunday-school so interesting that the adult portion of the congregation will gladly attend.

One of the best means of making your people intelligent and religious, one of the greatest helps to your pulpit and pastoral efforts, is to get them to take the SOUTHWESTERN and read it. Ignorance and superstition are the hardest demons to cast out. If you get a man converted and leave him without intellectual food, he craves only that which ministers to his emotions, and cannot be in sympathy with the worldwide interests of the Church to which he belongs. The SOUTHWESTERN is your paper, edited by a man of your own blood, competent to watch over, and defend the interests of our own Church. He is giving us a paper brim full of interesting accounts of our work at home and abroad, of glorious revivals, of triumphant deaths, of sparkling editorials especially defending the interests of our people. I know of no way that $1.50 can be used to bring so much help to the pastor and his people as to pay it for the SOUTHWESTERN. Now brethren here is another field of usefulness where we can excel. We can get more subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN than any other district in the conference. Shall we do it?

Another place where the preachers of this district can equal, if they do not excel, the preachers of any other district, and that is in intelligence. Please to look at the names of the preachers in our district, and you will see that seven of them are elders, beside the presiding elder. Six are deacons, five of whom are entitled to be ordained elders at the next conference if they bring up their studies. Now these seven that have gone through the four years course of studies, and have passed their examinations, and these five that have gone through the three years course, all of whom have said before the Bishop, conference and before God, "I am resolved to devote myself wholly to God and his work," all these ought to be skillful in saving souls. They ought to be wise in the things of God; if God has called them to the work of the ministry, they ought to show it by their work, by building up the Church in holiness, and by bring sinners to Christ.

This brings me to the last point I will mention where I desire to have our district excel, and that is in the number of genuine conversions. As near as I can ascertain there were 400 conversions on this district last year. More than half of this number were converted on two circuits. I hate to be obliged to put all the rest of my preachers in a bunch to match Bro. Harvey and Bro. Jones in the work of saving souls. I know some of you had more difficulties in the work than they had; but I do not see why, with the same earnest devotion to God, and the same directness and diligence in the work, the results would not have been similar. Wesley said to his preachers, "you have nothing to do but to save souls." Every thing a preacher has to do conducting public worship, prayer meetings, class meetings, Sunday-schools, all these are means of saving souls, and we ought to expect conversions at all these gatherings. Corvosso expected that somebody would be converted at every class meeting. Mary C. Ninde, of Minnesota, had an average of one conversion every two weeks, in her class meetings. We get together at prayer meetings to pray, but it ought not to be for ourselves entirely; we ought to do that before we get there; we ought to meet to pray for sinners, and with the sinners who come, we ought to make every gathering a soul saving time. Then when the harvest is ripe, have camp meetings if you choose or protracted meetings, and direct all the energies of the Church to that special work for a time. But don't put off soul saving till these great occasions.

Now, brethren let me exhort you to have every department of your work in your own hands as much as possible. The Discipline makes it your duty to change improper leaders. I suppose that means if you can find better ones. A good way to have better leaders is to help those you have to be better. Advise such leaders to study some help for his work, a book the called "Class Leader, His Work and How to Do It," will help any man that has ability enough to lead a class. The class leader is your best assistant if he learns how to do his work skillfully.

Be careful to recognize your local preachers and exhorters, and assist them in their study of the Bible and such books as help them to understand the Bible. Attend the Sunday-school teacher's meeting as often as you can, and enlist the best men and women in the Church to work in the Sunday-school. If you and all your members work together to keep up every interest of the Church, and all of you work together with God, your success this year will surpass anything ever known in your charge before.

Jackson District.

REV. J. M. SHUMPERT.

The first District Conference of the Jackson District, Mississippi Conference, was held at Edwards, Miss., Nov. 18, 1884, Rev. J. A. Shumpert in the chair. The conference was opened by reading the 1st and 23d psalms, which was followed by singing and prayers by Revs. A. Davis and P. Dennis, after which the conference proceeded with the business on hand.

On motion J. I. Garret was elected Secretary and E. Graves Assistant Secretary; the appointment of all committees was left to the chair.

The following committees were appointed: To examine candidates to preach, C. P. Head, J. W. Parks, and S. Jossell. To examine local preachers in their four years course of study, A. Davis, P. H. Davis and H. W. Wallis. To examine candidates for admission into the traveling connection, A. Handy, E Graves and G. Steward. To examine for orders, R. McAlpin, J. Simmons, R. Anderson. On Home Mission, J. I. Garrett, J. W. Parks and C. Steward. Each pastor was authorized to appoint the local preacher and exhorters to their work. Committee on programme for the literary exercise for the next conference, A. Davis, J. I. Garrett and J. W. Parks.

On motion it was decided that 9 o'clock a. m. should be the hour of opening and 1 p. m. for adjourning; the evening exercises to be left to a committee; that visitors should be seated to the left of the enterance, and that the pastors and presiding elders be the committee on public worship. The Chair was requested to appoint the conference stewards, and appointed the following: J. W. Parks, A. Handy and P. H. Davis; after which the conence adjourned.

SECOND DAY.

The conference was opened the second day with singing, reading of the Bible and prayer by Rev. R. McAlpin. After these preliminaries were through with the conference at once proceeded with the business on hand. A committee on resolutions was appointed, and the following reports were heard: Jackson District, Rev. J. M. Shumpert, P. E; Brandon circuit, by A. Handy, P. C.; Bolton circuit, by P. H. Davis, P. C.; Clinton circuit, by Rev. R. McAlpin, P. C; Edwards circuit, by R. A. McBeth, P. C.; Hickory circuit, by Rev. B. Steward, P. C.; Forest circuit, by Rev. J. I. Garrett, P. C; Madison circuit, by C. P. Head; Mt. Salem circuit, by R. Anderson; Pelehatchie circuit, by E. Graves.

On motion the Chair was empowered to hold the brethren to report according to rule; after which a few more reports were received from the pastors and local preachers.

On motion of J. I. Garrett, the examination regarding the character of the local preachers and the renewal of their licenses to preach. The following is a list of the brethren who passed: S. S. Taylor, E. Collins, J. P. Starkey, J. Holly, C. W. Williams and A. McCullain. This closed the business of the second day.

THIRD DAY.

Memorial services were conducted by Rev. R. J. Parks, after singing some appropriate hyms. The minutes of the two preceding days were read and approved. The local preachers reports were then read, after which the conference adjourned to meet at 12.30 p. m.

Asbury Centennary Association.

This Association, designed to build a Memorial University, in honor of Bishop Asbury, on the foundation of Albion College, in Albion, Michagan, has now been in existence about one year. It has secured certificates and medals for churches and Sunday schools, and done a vast amount of other preliminary work, and is now pushing forward its enterprise with great vigor. The Presiding Elders in Michigan are an able and earnest set of men, and both in Michigan and Detroit Conferences they are taking hold of this work with a will. Centenary conventions in the interest of this Association are about to be held in every Presiding Elder's District in the State. It has an elaborate report of its form of organization and work of the Minutes of both the above Conferences, and their unanimous endorsement. It is about to send out a manual to every Methodist Episcopal minister in the world, giving a full account of its organization, and describing its character and methods of work, and appealing to the whole Church to contribute towards this Asbury memorial. Without any desire to antagonize or crowd out any other object, or to in anyway interfere with any local interest, it hopes to find Methodists in all parts of the world, who will delight to participate in this effort to honor this great name.

It would be absurd, indeed, almost a crime, to pass through this centennial year without some personal recognition of Francis Asbury, the organizer of our itinerant system, the man first to be ordained Bishop on this continent, who, with his own hands ordained 4,000 of our first ministers, among whom was the first minister in the valley of the Mississippi.

He is to be honored above all our other Bishops, as he stands at the head of the Episcopacy of America, both as to the time of his ordination, and as to the work he performed. He came to this country in 1771, and found but nine preachers and six hundred members of the society. In 1784, when the Church was organized, there were eigty three traveling preachers and 14,988 members. In 1816, when he died, there were 695 traveling preachers, 2,000 local preachers, and 214,235 members.

Now, including all the branches of the Methodist family in the United States and Canada, there are in round numbers 27,500 traveling preachers, 36,700 local preachers, and 4,000,000 members.

It may be said in a higher and truer sense than of any other man, that Francis Asbury, under God, is the father of this family. To build a magnificent monument to his memory at the end of a hundred years after his unanimous election as the head of this great Church, is a beautiful act of filial devotion, which can hardly fail to find a response in the heart of any true Methodist.

His work was marvelous, and has no parallel in the history of the nation. During his forty-five years of ministerial labor in this country he preached 16,500 sermons, an average of one a day; he traveled 270,000 miles, an average of sixteen miles a day, more than ten times around the world, and held 224 Annual Conferences.

Dr. Abel Stevans, the great historian of Methodism, well says: "We will venture the remark in all deliberation, that if ever an impartial ecclesiastical history of this nation is written, he, as well for his personal character as for being the chief founder of its largest religious denomination, will occupy a position in it above the competition of any other names whatsoever."

As he was the most conspicious character in the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church, so should his name be most honored in this centenary celebration.

If the design of this Association were simply to build a monument to his memory, and nothing more, it would be but natural that every Methodist should be pleased to contribute to its erection. But in this memorial it not only erects a monument but devotes its offerings to the noblest and best uses by laying them upon the altars of Christian education, where they will do good forever.

We take pleasure in commending this enterprise to the generous consideration of our people. The officers of the Association are President, Bishop William L. Harris, D. D., LL. D., of New York. Vice presidents, Rev. L. R. Fiske, D. D., L.L. D., of Albion, Mich.; Gen. Clinton B. Fiske, of New York; Hon. Thomas W. Palmer, of Detroit; and Julius Berkey, Esq., of Grand Rapids, Mich. Secretary, Prof. Samuel Dickie; corresponding secretary, Rev. J. S. Smart, D. D.; Treasurer J. W. Sheldon, Esq., all of Albion, Mich.

A Centennial Appeal.

To the Ministers, Members and Friends of the Methodist Episcopal Church:—At the close of a century of unparalleled religious prosperity, our widespread communion pauses for a moment on every continent to give God thanks. Each one of us is revolving in a glad heart the common question, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits?" A grand world-wide centennial thank-offering is about to be laid on God's alter, and we are determine to what sacred purposes it shall be consecrated. What shall these purposes be?

Two successive General Conferences and the Board of Bishops have given careful attention to this question, and their unanimous recommendation is that whatever else may be remembered by generous givers, "the cause of education should have the first place." That this is a wise counsel, no truly intelligent and impartial judge can for a moment doubt. And that the greater portion of the approaching thank-offering will be consecrated to the strengthening of the educational appliances of the church, is as good as certain.

Under these circumstances the trustees of the oldest of all our schools for the ministry esteem it their duty to lay before the whole church the following facts and appeals:—

1. Our School of Theology in Boston deserves the liberal remembrance of centennial donors the world over, in view of its achievement as the first, and for a long time the only, champion of theological training in the Methodist Episcopal Church. It is was the school which fought the battle for all our later theological seminaries, and made their founding possible. Its founders and first conductors were men of heroic will, as well as of far-sighted comprehension of the needs of new generations. Hampered by poverty, misrepresented by opponents, neglected by the indifferent, their success in creating the present public sentiment of the church is one of the most brilliant chapters in the history of our closing century. How much this victory cost— how much of labor, how much of prayer, how much of heart-ache and brain-ache, how much of sacrifice on the part of the few devoted ministers and laymen who fought the battle —eternity alone can reveal. In our centennial felicitations and centennial thank-offering it surely should be shown that all this heroic pioneer labor and sacrifice is gratefully remembered.

2. Though located in the East, our School of Theology has blessed and strengthened our church in every part of its wide domain. At times the students in attendence have come from nearly thirty of our States and territories, and from nine or ten foreign countries or provinces. Of late from seventy to eighty per cent. of all young men are from States outside the bounds of New England. There is hardly an important Conference of our church which has not directly and repeatedly shared in the benefits of this School. It cannot be too much, once in a hundred years, to ask all those Conferences to be mindful of their indebtedness. Do not the ministers who in past years have been favored with instruction, and rooms, and furniture, and library-privileges at the expense of the supporters of the School, owe it to themselves to obtain this year some handsome gift as an expression of their gratitude?

3. Our School of Theology has rendered the church an inestimable service in her foreign mission work. In the year 1880, we were able to report to the General Conference that one-sixth of the entire missionary staff of the church consisted of former members of this School. This was irrespective of William Taylor's work in South America, in which we had more representatives than any other school. In the mission in Mexico the superintendent and almost every missionary are from this institution. From the beginning our faculty and students have been full of an aggressive missionary fervor, from which the church has reaped untold advantage.

4. Our School has rendered the whole church another inestimable service, and that is in its effect upon the cause of the higher education generally. Its friends and supporters organized the first complete University ever organized under the auspices of Methodism. And they organized it in a location and on a scale and according to standards which chalenged the attention and the confidence of the civilized world. No one thing has probably done so much to enhance the respect entertained for our church by other churches, and by the world at large, as the work of this School and the University which has grown out of it. Such a service should have some recognition, particularly in this year of greateful review and of wise forecast.

5. The needs of our School are as great as it deserts. It has no building of its own. By reason of its poverty it has to dwell in hired apartments. Its own endowment fund is wholly inadequate to its support. Its friends and local supporters desire to give it a permanent building both for greater convenience and to save several thousands of dollars annually in rent. For the purpose we need, in our city location, not less than $100,000. Would that some one man could make it his own centennial monument of gratitude and joy! This, however, we can hardly expect. Our appeal must be to the many. It should be remembered that the pecuniary ability of New England Methodism, cannot be compared with that of the Methodism of the Middle and Western States. Shall we not have assistance, then, in erecting this home for our future ministers in training, especially when eight-tenths of its rooms are likely to be occupied by young men coming from the Middle and Western States, and returning thither at the close of their studies? From the beginning, the gifts of New England to the West and South have been great and constant; ought not at last a little reciprocity to be shown, particularly as the enterprise in question is more largely for the benefit of the church as a whole than for the Conferences in New England? We directly appeal to every minister, member and friend of the church, asking that the past services and pressing present needs of the mother of all our ministerial training schools may be remembered in the thank-offering just before us. Especially do we lay this appeal upon the hearts of all those, the country over, who, through the generosity of New England givers, have here spent happy years in the acquisition of the trainning which has made them what they are.

Signed in behalf of the trustees of Boston University School of Theology.

ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTEEN MILES OF ORGANS.—In numbering the organs of their manufacture, Mason & Hamlin have reached No. 150,000. Arranged in a line these would reach one hundred and thirteen miles, or would fence the railroad on one side from the Grand Central Station in New York, to within twenty miles of Springfield, Mass. Not only does this show the great popularity of American organs, but it illustrates what was declared by James Parton to be a general fact, that he who makes the best article in his line always has the greatest success.

We understand that the Mason & Hamlin Company's new Upright Piano is now commanding a large sale, and is, in every way, up to the standard of their unrivalled organs. We predict a large success for this piano, which is constructed on a new system, said to be a decided advance over the prevailing wrest-pin system.—Boston Journal.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Eulogium.

To Sirs William G. Brown and J. Henri Burch, of New Orleans.

Pronounced by Sir J. T. Newman M.D., Before the Grand Lodge F. M. A., of Louisiana, in a Lodge of Sorrow.

What means this sombre drapery? What means these dark habiliments of mourning? They impress my senses like clods of earth falling upon some funeral pile!—And they remind me of the fact that the remorseless hand of Death has been in our midst during the past year! And, Most Worshipful Master, I might well ask: could not some one more fit have been chosen to have pronounced the virtues of these illustrious dead?

Brethren, there are times in the history of men's lives, when they stand so near the veil that separates mortal from immortal, Time from Eternity, and men from their God, that they can almost hear the rustling wings of angels and feel the pulsations of the very heart of the Infinite.

When its parting folds admitted our beloved Brothers William G. Brown, J. Henri Burch, Joseph Oscar, Joseph Follin, and A. S. Degruise, our beloved Order stood so near the veil that the whispers of God were heard by the children of men.

Is not this such a time? And may we not lean forward and place our ears near the opening and catch the whispers of God to us?

Me thinks, brethren, they come to us with the mournful cadance often made, but not often heard. Be ye therefore ready, for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh.

This is a solemn admonition announced to us from the cradle to the grave, by the mighty and the lowly, as they successively fall before the great destroyer.

Brethren, only a little while since, these loving Brothers whom we mourn to-night, were strong and vigorous.

Life seemed to them one broad extended plain, filled with usefulness and pleasure, and for aught we know, they bid fair to fill the measure of three score years and ten.

Brethren, the tidings of the mournful events which this Lodge of Sorrow is intended to commemorate, have months ago been heralded to every Lodge, in our wide spread Union, with which we have fraternal relations, with our own, and they lament with us, that these wise, virtuous and distinguished masons, have been stricken down and that they are no more numbered with the children of Earth.

Tears have ceased to flow, and hearts, the most deeply wounded and penetrated by the afflicting visitations of Providence, have learned to contemplate it with that spirit of resignation which time ever supplies as a healing medicine for all the sorrows of earth with which poor humanity is afflicted.

Most Worshipful Master, I feel confident that there is not a brother in this jurisdiction, nor in sister jurisdictions, to whom the life and virtues of William G. Brown are known, who would not be ready with some offering either of public respect or personal affection to be strewn upon his tomb.

There have been but few men who have made more friends; and [illegible] I am sure, ever left fewer enemies. Nor was his one of those cold and impassive characters which shed their light without heat, whose kindly influences fell with [illegible] friendly warmth within [illegible] he might move.

[illegible] thing for the fair [illegible] lives of its members thrown freely open to [illegible] and challenge its closest [illegible] with a consciousness of [illegible] the friendly critic should [illegible] able to be concealed, [illegible] fault which a love [illegible] him to deny, and [illegible] right scarcely al[illegible] [illegible] Note is [illegible] life there can be [illegible] instance of a mean or [illegible] action, none of a de-parture from the self-imposed restraints of a refined and lofty sense of honor; and none in which either the fear of men or the seductions of ambition tempted him to deeds which could destroy either his own self-respect or the respect of others for him.

He trod the difficult and devious paths to political preferment successfully, and yet he kept his robes unsoiled by the vile mire which so often pollutes those ways.

It is said that the story of every human life, if rightly told may convey a useful lesson to those who survive.

Of all public men whom I have known, there are none whose lives teach more impressively the great moral strength which public virtue gives, than that of our beloved brother, W. G. Brown. His was an instance in which greatness was achieved without the aid of those brilliant qualities whose rare assemblage the world calls diplomacy; but by what is better far—a sound judgment, a resolute purpose to pursue right, and a capacity to gather wisdom from experience.

He had none of that presumptuous self-confidence which so often misleads ourselves and others, and which, though a dangerous, is still a commanding quality; but he knew how to inspire a people with a just confidence in the soundness of his judgment and the integrity of his purpose, so as to be looked to as a safe depository of trust and power.

Although gentle and kind in his intercourse with others, he could be stern enough when his personal honor required it.

He was a man whose whole soul would have sickened under a sense of personal dishonor.

I will describe him to you as I last saw him in health.

Mark well that short figure, with restless gait and swaying motion and speaking gesture. He, with uplifted face and firm set lips and eyes like living diamonds—see how men cluster round him. Observe the spell-bound gaze—hark to the ringing laughter! that is Brown, the unique, wondrous, the inimitable Brown, who spake as poets in their most divine inspirations wrote, and who squandered with a reckless prodigality, the most brilliant wit.

William G. Brown, whose words, merry or mournful, like the music of our race, commanded tears or laughter at his bidding.

William G. Brown, always stood erect amid the groveling; pure amid the tainted. Masonically, he was the most consistent of Masons; in private life, the most social, exquisite and enchanting of companions.

His voice was not naturally powerful, but he managed it so skillfully, that he gave full expression to every feeling and passion which it had to convey. Its unrivalled excellency lay in communicating solemn and pathetic sentiments.

In private and serious conversations, it was remarkable for a certain plaintive sincerity of tone, which incessantly reminded those who knew him of the melancholy that predominated in his constitution.

His delivery, both in public and private, was slow, and his articulation uncommonly distinct.

He was scrupulous in the choice of words, and often paused to search for the most expressive.

His powers of language and delivery were the result of assiduous industry and and observation.

There was nothing, however minute, connected with the subject, which he deemed beneath his attention.

He was a friend to humanity. He ever wielded his intellectual sword in defense of destitute widows, helpless orphans, and the Christian religion.

He was deeply learned in secrets and arts of our Mystic Institutions, a devout soldier of the royal and distinguished Order of Knights Templar, and the perfect embodiment of Masonic Knighthood.

"Brother! Friend forever loved, forever dear;
What fiend less than his have bathed thy honored bier!
What sights are echo to thy parting breath,
Whilst thou was struggling in the pangs of death!
Could tears retard the tyrant in his course?
Could sighs avert his darts relentless force?
Could prayer and love claim a short delay?
Or friendship charm the spectre from his prey?
Thou still hadst lived to bless our sight—
Thy Frater honor and thy friends delight.
If yet thy gentle spirit hover nigh
The spot where now thy mouldering ashes lie,
Here wilt thou read recorded hearts,
A grief too deep to trust the sculptor's art.
No costly mansoleum marks thy lowly conch of sleep,
But living statues here are seen to weep."

Most Worshipful Grand Master, you are aware that God in his inscrutable but supreme will, has removed from our midst one of the brightest luminaries that long shone resplendent in the constellation of our Masonic Galaxy.

Sir, when the voice of some future panegyrist shall have occasion to speak in this Grand Lodge of the life and virtues of the Masonic dead, as he recounts the names borne on that glorious roll of immortality, he cannot fail to pause with unalloyed satisfaction at the name of J. Henri Burch.

Providence from time to time raises up men to lead armies on to victory through the clash of the battlefield, or by rare gifts of written or spoken thoughts to wield, at will, the fiercest impulses of nations. Such men, if they have a superlatively splendid career, yet have an agitated one. They create events and they partake of the vicissitudes of events.

They may, they often do, have shaded sides of the mental foundation, without which the bright would be too dazzingly brilliant. They come to be praised or dispraised alternately, according to the light in which their actions are viewed, and the fing or refing of the tides of popular emotion.

If J. Henri Burch be not these, yet he has an appropriate and, perhaps, more enviable place in the temple of fame and in the hearts of the fraternity. From him it is with plainest truth to be said, that with the lofty elements in his character to merit and receive commendation, there is nothing in it open to censure.

He stands to the memory, in sharpe outline, as it were, against the sky, like some chiselled column of antique art, or some consular statue of the imperial republic wrapped in its marble robes, grandly beautiful in the simple dignity and unity of a faultless proportion.

The last time that I saw him in perfect health, his commandry was out on parade.

Mark well that nervous figure. That man of medium height, with his sword folded upon his breast. His eyes sparkling like some mountain eagle flying straight into the very face of the sun. Listen at that voice like the shrill notes of some clarionet which issues forth from lungs of iron and a throat of brass.

Look at that plume which proudly waves like some feudal chieftain when he surveys the plains beneath him.

He was ambitious, haughty, which sometimes was displeasing to his opponents. But the correctness of his views, the integrity of his purposes, the broadness of his soul, always served as a healing balm for wounded sensibilities.

Those who differ with him knew by the purity of their own motives, how to do justice to the sincerity of those by which he was influenced; and this, the more readily, because the courteous bearing of this distinguished man deprived his opposition of all appearance of bitterness, drew from the defeat of his opponents, when their defeat ensued, the sting of mortified self-esteem, or imparted to his own discomfiture the ease of gentlemanly submission.

Masonically, he was one of the most gifted and famous men of the age. He was at home in jurisprudence, philosophy and the governmental policy which rule this Great Order. In fact he was a perfect walking encyclopedia in all that pertained to the sublime mysteries which we practice.

He was honored by the fraternity, both at home and abroad, and arose to the third office in the gift of the Grand Commandry of Ohio, and its jurisdiction, which extends over the United States and the provinces of British North America.

He attained that position in the midst of all his grand Commandry's greatness; in the midst of all her amplitude of extent, and in the midst of all her profusion of means. More than that, in the midst of all her munificence of Masonic talents.

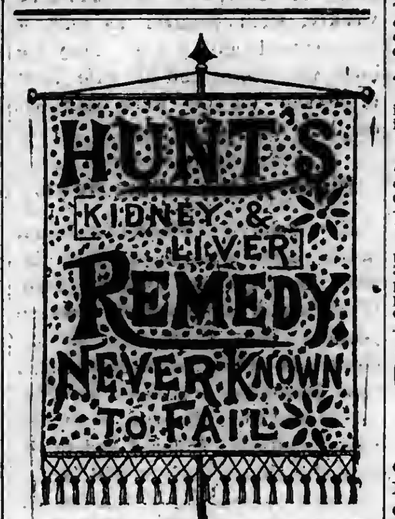
We think of him almost as an historical monument of Masonic Knighthood, rather than as a man.

Like that gallant soldier who receive the baton of marshal in the very scene of his achievements, and fell struck by a cannon-shot, in the act of grasping the ensigns of his command, so J. Henri Burch did but reach the pinnacle of his Masonic ambition, to die.

Had it pleased the Great Architect of the Universe to have permitted him to have completed his intended pilgramage to Cincinnati, on the 6th of last August, I believe, from the bottom of my heart, his earthly desires would have been complete.

"When the last sunshine of expiring day
In summer's twilight fades away,
Who hath not felt the softness of the hour
Sink on the heart, as dew along the flower?
With a pure feeling which absorbs and awes,
While nature makes the melancholy pause,
Of light, and darkness forms an hour sublime
Who hath not shared that calm so still and deep
The voiceless thought which would not speak but weep
A holy concord—and a bright regret,
A glorious sympathy with an hour set?
'Tis not harsh sorrow—but a tender woe,
Nameless, but dear to gentle hearts below,
Felt without bitterness, but full and clear,
A sweet dejection—a transparent tear,
Unmixed with worldly grief or selfish stain,
Shed without shame—and sent without pain.
Even as the tenderness that hour instils
When summer's day declines along the hills,
So feels the fullness of our heart and eyes,
When all of genius which can perish dies.
A mighty spirit is eclipsed—a power
Hath passed from day to darkness
He was your brother—bear his ashes hence
With Powers of mind almost of boundless range
Complete in Kind as various in their change,
While Eloquence, Wit, Poesy, and Mirth
That humbler Harmonist of care on Earth
Survives within our souls—while lives our sense
Of pride in Merit's proud pre-eminence.
Long shall we seek his like, nor seek in vain,
And turn to all of him which may remain,
Wondrous Nature formed him for the Church
And she broke the die—in moulding Burch.

Most Worshipful Grand Master, last, though not least, I come to the names of Joseph Oscar, Joseph Follin and A. S. Degruise, our Worthy Brothers, who have gone the way of all the earth.



I am glad it is my high privilege to know these distinguished craftsmen, and have felt that mysterious power of the mystic tie which binds our soul's affections together with theirs.

The fraternal relations existing between all mankind as Masons is more enduring than marble and more imperishable than brass.

We will gather their ashes in the urn of affection and plant the amaranth of acacia and the myrtle by their tombs, and water them ever with our heartfelt tears.

Foochow Conference Resolutions on Bishop Wiley.

Resolutions presented by the Foochow Annual Conference to Bishop I. W. Wiley, Nov. 19, 1884, on the occasion of his third visit to Foochow:

Whereas, We look forward with joy to the coming to Foochow of our beloved Superintendent, Bishop Wiley; and,

Whereas, Bishop Wiley has long been connected with our work by peculiar ties, having, more than thirty years ago, taken part in it as a missionary, and later organized it as a conference when Bishop; and,

Whereas, When now here for the third time he is prevented by serious illness from presiding over our deliberations; therefore,

Resolved, That we express our gratitude at being permitted to see him again, and that, though we have been deprived of his presence in our conference sessions, we devoutly render thanks to God that for so many years his wise counsels have been given for the advancement of the cause of Christ in China; and,

Resolved, That we express our heartfelt sympathy with him in his affliction, and pray that if it be the Lord's will he may be restored in full vigor to the Church, but if it be ordered otherwise, that an abundant entrance be given him to the Kingdom our of God; and,

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to Bishop Wiley.

On motion of M. C. Wilcox the following were adopted by a rising vote:

Whereas, At the time of final adjournment our beloved Bishop Wiley is gradually sinking away and will probably be with us but a few hours longer; therefore,

Resolved, That we, as a conference; hereby express our sorrow at our great loss, and our sympathy with Mrs. Wiley and all the members of the family; and,

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions and of those in reference to the Bishop, adopted a few days ago, be sent to Mrs. Wiley and to our Mission Rooms.

The Louisville, Ky., Nat. Turner Club gave a new year's dinner and had some fine speaking but nothing has yet reached us equal to the magnificent address delivered by Dr. Jas. T. Newman, at Wesley Chapel. There has been such a demand for it that we have provided a large supply of extra copies.

"As subscribers and constant readers of your valuable paper, we find it a great delight, not only to preachers but to church members as well. It is full of instruction and valuable information. We are glad the General Conference acted so wisely in choosing Rev. M. W. Taylor, D. D., for its Editor," W. H. Spears, J. H. Jackson.

The Negroes are in the Methodist Episcopal Church of choice, not of necessity. Take away its money, but leave love, its Holy fellowship, saving doctrines, wholesome discipline, and glorious principles of Human Brother and divine Fatherhood, and we will still be here. They ask not money but Christian development.

The Church Review.

The African Methodist Episcopal Church Quarterly Review for January, Rev. Benjamin T. Tanner, D. D., managing editor, volume 1. No. 3., published at the Denominational Book House, 831 Pine Street Philadelphia, Penn., is at hand. From beginning to end this is a good number. The contributions as well as the editorials, all run along lines of current thought. Glancing into the volume you first encounter these gifted writers, two gentlemen at the extremes with a lady in the centre. Passing these you fall into a symposium of prominent, scholarly Negroes discussing the return of the Democratic party to power from divergent points of view. It is pleasant to note how closely these writers follow in the path we marked out for them in the SOUTHWESTERN before it was officially announced or generally conceded that the Democratic party was now to return once more to power. These are followed by other good papers and some original verses in poetry by well known amateur writers.

"Our Duties, Responsibilities, and Negro Literature" by Rev. H. Edward Bryant, presiding elder, Selma district, is pretty a clever paper. Its doctrines on the subject of "Raceology and Amalgamation" are the only ones which a man of Black African descent can hold without an explanation. Why he omits our worthy confrere Rev. B. F. Lee and ourself from the list of Negro editors is hard to tell, as we represent in point of age, solidness, and wideness of circulation, the two greatest literary enterprises in the world controlled by Negroes. What he says of the colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church and of that church itself may explain what he did not say of its schools, of its great and successful efforts to help the colored people in every way, and of its present declared position on color questions. There are local difficulties in all churches not less in ours than others. If the reason for what he did not say, but could and should in fairness have said of our Church is clear, it is not so clear why he leaves the editor of the Christian Recorder out of his list of editors or assigns colored members to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when that Church has had no organized colored membership since 1870. He certainly did these things unintenally. He must have forgotten them. He ought not to forget the official editor of his Church, the ex-president of their greatest school and a very scholarly gentlemen. The paper, any paper is weakened by departing from facts to indulge in prejudices or gratify selfish ambitions. Even though we have now passed the place for a criticism of Bishop Turner's paper, we must return just to say that it is a characteristic one, and no one can accuse him of being either strategic or in any way compromising, in this he differs from others. Bishop Turner and Robert Toombs, both of Georgia, both Methodists might be called political iconoclasts. We admire both of them and hope they may never realize their wishes touching our country. The logic of their position compared to their Christian station need not now be discussed. We honor the black and stand for all there is in its elevation alongside not inside or separate from the white. The volume closes with its usual quantum or sprightly editorials, and a "Review of Current Publications." In reply to Prof. Gilliam's repetition of the "Old, Old Story," that this is "a white man's country," the editor cooly answers, "Very well. If it is his, let him take it." The usual friendly reference is made to the SOUTHWESTERN, with a call for the use of higher forms of ceremony as a higher rank in society is attained. The occasion served to give a timely hint on this line, "Familiarity Breeds Contempt," but in the two cases under the editorial microscope it was not contempt, but ebullitions of genuine joy, by one who in many ways had proved a father to this writer, and an other who was authorized by the church ties of fellowship to use as they did the titles of our boyhood. Organizations as well as individuals are entitled to the use of their unabbreviated names, and we trust we shall hereafter not as here tofore have the African Methodist Episcopal, instead of the A. M. E. Church Review. The outside cover of the Quarterly states the grounds of its origin, and claims for it the high character of being the "only outlet" for "Negro Scholarship." A claim which is hardly warranted by the facts in the case. It must be borne in mind that what is called "Negro scholarship" is a very elastic thing, just as the term itself is a very indefinite one. By Negro scholars is sometimes meant a class of persons who can barely clear the ordinary forms of common English. Then there is another class whose attainments are varied broad and steadily growing, but whose reputation is not yet made as thorough scholars. Lastly there is the reputed and tested Negro scholar, conversant with universal literature, he has or can force an outlet where ever he wishes to. The middle class we have named must have an "outlet" such as the Review and the Alumni magazine offers. But our latter class of scholars embracing such names as Douglass, Greener, Langston, Harper, Tanner, Payne, Blyden, Crogman, Crummell, Dr. Newman, P. H. Clark and others can find an outlet for their scholarship in any one of the great magazines of the country if they choose to enter them.

Dr. Theodore S. Bell.

Louisville, Kentucky, has recently lost by death two of her distinguished sons—Dr. Bell, and Professor Chase. The former was a man of great learning, and both were held in high esteem by the public—Central Methodist.

It was our good fortune to be well acquainted with both of those eminent Kentuckians, and to Dr. Bell, we are under everlasting obligations for saving our life when we were prostrated by the most fatal form of small pox. It was during the war; we lived in a neighborhood of wealthy people. We are colored and was then as now, poor and worse than all we belonged to that miserable class in Anti-Bellum days the free Negroes. The neighbors were determined we should go to the Pest House. Our people were powerless to withstand them, but Dr. Bell stood up against them and said we should not go. He had our brother bring us to his office, where he kept us and treated our disease until it was healed. We remember also Miss Mary, as we used to call Mrs. Bell, and if ever woman deserved to be a mistress it was she, although she never was. When we went to the army this dear, dear lady wrote us weekly, such counsel as only a mother could give a son. They are both, the Doctor and his wife now in heaven for they were both exemplary Christians here.

The Industrial Conference at New Orleans is changed from Jan. 15th to Feb. 12, Peter H. Clark, has become suddenly popular; a weekly paper publishes his picture and biography. Gen. Mahone predicts another civil war. There are a great number of callers at the White House. Alfred Froman, Esq. has defined his position as a colored Democrat. The New Orleans Christian Advocate goes for Bishop H. M. Turner. Mrs. Maria Clark Gaines is dead. Mr. W. H. Vanderbilt has tendered Mrs. Grant a donation of $150,000 loaned the General, and she has declined to accept it. The illustrated Methodist Monthly is the latest Baltimore invention. The wife of Senator Lamar, of Mississippi, is dead. Bishop Sharp, of the Mormon Church, is on a tour to the East. Gen. Wolsely did not take his Christmas dinner in Khartoum, as he said the Negro General El Madhia was too much for him. The Sunday observing people have not yet united on any plan of opposition to Sunday exhibitions at the Exposition in New Orleans. Congress will soon consider the means of preventing the spread of contagious diseases.

Many inquiries come to us asking for places to stop during a visit to this city for the Exposition. We take a pleasure, therefore, in advising our friends that a number of them can find first-class accommodation in furnished rooms, with required meals, near the Exposition Grounds, at a reasonable and popular price, by calling on E. J. Souby, 113 Canal street, New Orleans.

The St. Paul Chronicle, organ of the St. Paul M. E. Church, Cincinnati, Ohio, gives us a very kindly notice in the January number. The SOUTHWESTERN returns a hearty God bless you; Our field is hard, but our trust is in God. We shall be glad to invest any money that friends may send in the manner you suggest. General Grant, in his article on "The Battle of Shiloh," in the forthcoming number of The Century relates how sentiments regarding General Buell were attributed to him which were never expressed, and how he tried to correct the misunderstanding which grew up between him and Buell after the battle.

Personal.

—The address of Rev. L. P. Cushman is 1428 St. Charles street, New Orleans, La.

—General Grant is suffering from nicotine poisoning. Another evidence of the injurious effect of tobacco.

—Bishop Mallalieu has gone to Lake De Funiak upon an invitation to preach the opening sermon and remain there about one week. His address will be as heretofore 32 Natchez street.

—Dr. Daniel Curry spent his holidays in Chicago, and there is a good many of the Doctor's friends in New Orleans who will envy Chicago none the less therefore.

—Rev. Moses Baker, colored Baptist minister, and member of the Executive Board of the State Convention, and efficient preacher, pastor and worker, died recently at his home, in St. Joseph, Louisiana.

—Rev. Thomas Jones, colored, of Kentucky, will exhibit at the Exposition the only complete Hemp break and cleaner combined in the world. It is his own invention. He is an uneducated man, and a former slave.

—Rev. Charles Schuler, the new pastor of the Second German Church is making his home with Bro. Kienle. He has take hold of his new charge with zeal and a purpose that is sure of success. We cordially welcomes these brethren to the city and to our office.

—"Allow me, through your paper, to congratulate our Presiding Elder, Pierre Landry, upon the success of his duties during this his fourth year in the responsible position which he occupies. Judging from his great success in arousing the people and holding them to their duty, he has undoubtedly shown himself a master of his position, and worthy not only of it, but of a higher place." Rev. Addison Moore.

—J. J. Kienle, pastor, of First German Methodist Episcopal Church, corner of Franklin and St. Andrew streets, has arrived in the city and will hereafter be found at 470 Franklin street. Bro. Kienle is well known in New Orleans, having served in this pastorate in former years. He was nearly six years a member of the Louisiana now of the Southern German Conference.

MR. EDITOR—Please answer the following questions through the SOUTHWESTERN and oblige a subscriber:

1. What are the names of all the Methodist Bishops who have died since 1844?

2. Where are they buried?

3. What were their last words?

1. Thomas A. Morris, died at Springfield, Ohio, September 2d, 1874; Leonidas Lent Hamline died in Iowa, March 22d, 1865; Edmun Storer Janes died in New York City, September 18th, 1876; Levi Scott died in Odessa, Delaware, July 13th, 1882; Matthew Simpson died in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, July, 1884; Osmon Cleander Baker died in Concord, New Hampshire, December 20, 1871; Edward Raymond Ames died in Baltimore, Maryland, April 25th, 1879; Francis Burns, died in Baltimore, Maryland, April 18th, 1863; Davis Wasgatt Clark died in Cincinnati, Ohio, May 22d, 1871; Edward Thomson died in Wheeling, West Virginia, March 22d, 1870; Calvin Kingsley died in Beyront, Syria, April, 6th, 1870; John W. Roberts died in Liberia, West Africa, January 30, 1875; Isaac W. Wiley died in Foochow, China, November 22d, 1884; Gilbert Haven died in Malden, Mass., January 3d, 1880; Jessie T. Peck died in Syracuse, New York, May 17th, 1883; Erastus O. Haven died in Salem, Oregon, August 2d, 1881.

2. They are buried at the following places: Morris, Fern Cliff Cemetery, Springfield, Ohio; Hamline, Rose Hill Cemetery, between Chicago and Evanston, Illinois; Bishop Janes, near New York City; Bishop Scott, Odessa, Delaware; Bishop Simpson, Philadelphia, Penn.; Bishop Baker, Concord, New Hampshire; Bishop Ames, Baltimore Maryland; Bishop Burns, Monrovia Cemetery, Liberia, West Africa; Bishop Clark, Wesleyan Cemetery, Cincinnati, Ohio; Bishop Thomson, Delaware, Ohio; Bishop Kingsley, Beyrout, Syria; Bishop J. W. Roberts, Monrovia Cemetery, Liberia, West Africa; Bishop Gilbert Haven, Malden, Mass.; Bishop Peck, Syracuse, New York; Bishop Erastus O. Haven, Salem, Oregon; Bishop Wiley, Foochow, China.

3. Their last words were these: Bishop Morris said: "All is well." "All is right." "All is right." "All is right." "The future looks bright."

Bishop Hamline said: "I do not want one thought that is not fit for heaven. I have of late thought much of that, and when any wrong thought comes into my mind I say, that it is not fit for heaven, till I get rid of it. Jesus is able to give us victory over our hearts. O, wonderful! Wonderful! He came to seek and save that which was lost. He goes out and seeks them, hunts them up and saves them. Just think of it, out seeking those that are wandering and bringing them back. I know this to be true."

Bishop Janes, "I have not been disappointed." Bishop Scott, unknown. Bishop Simpson, "Heaven." Bishop Baker: "Give my love to Dr. Barrows and tell him to meet me in heaven." Bishop Ames, "All right." Burns, no last words recorded; Bishop Clark, last words reported only in substance.

Bishop Thomson's last words were: "O Yes, and that is the best, that is the best." When asked by Dr. Homer J. Clark, if he found support in this hour. Bishop Kingsley's last words to Dr. Bannister, his traveling companion, were: "I shall soon get over this, and we shall go on board this afternoon." Bishop J. W. Roberts died peacefully, no last words reported.

Bishop Gilbert Haven said: "There is no death!" "There is no river!" "I am surrounded by angels." "I am floating away, away." "Glory!" "Victory through the blood of the Lamb!" Bishop E. O. Haven's last words not recorded.

Sermon Sketches.

The Fruit of the Spirit—No. 2.

Text—Gal. 5, 22-23: "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith. Meekness, temperance; against such there is no law."

5. Gentleness, or kindness, manifest in a forgiving spirit, a disposition to put the best construction on our neighbors' acts. 1 Cor. 13, 5, in counselling, reproving, or opposing with a fraternal spirit; Prov. 27, 9; James 3, 17; Gal. 2, 14; in bearing burdens, Gal. 6, 2.

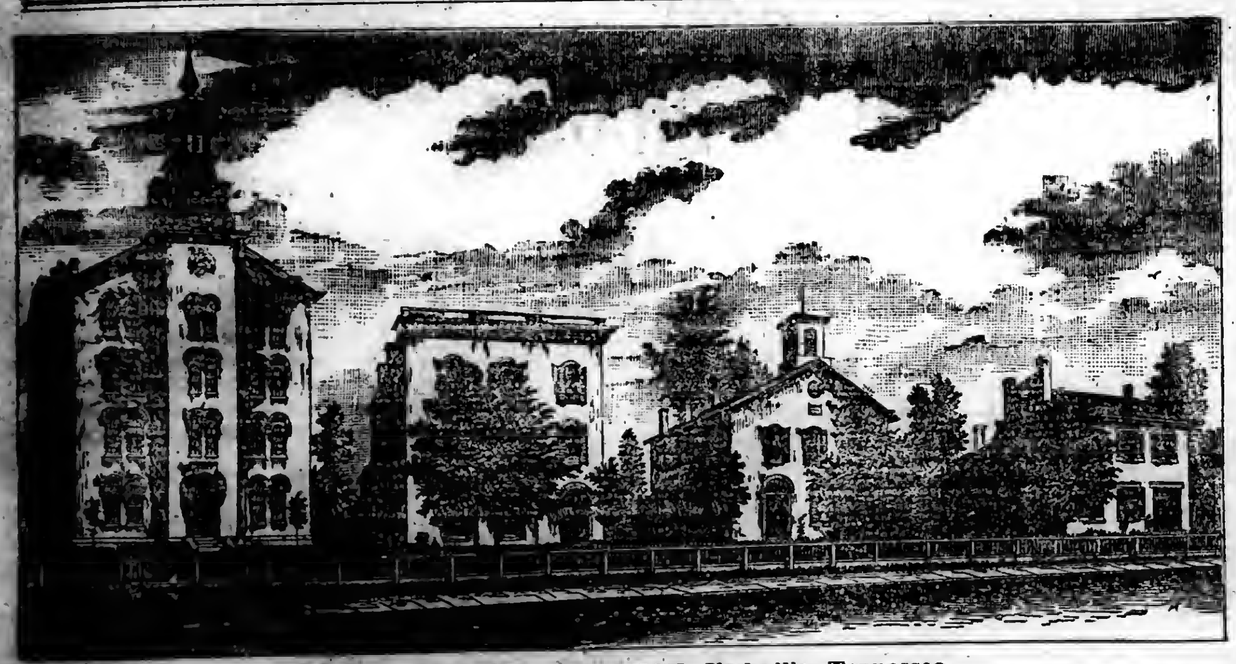
6. Goodness—As the previous fruit is goodness in the sense of kindness to others; this is goodness in the sense of excellence of character. A "good man" is not only a benevolent man, as in the former paragraph, but one in whom the qualities of true manhood are excellent. Rom. 15, 14.

7. Faith—Faith, as a trust, binds man in filial relation to God, producing fellowship; Rom. 15, 13, 1 Peter, 1, 8; and works out unity of the brotherhood; Gal. 5, 6; Eph. 4, 13.

8. Meekness—This is the opposite of what we call "ill-temper" or "high temper." It is a capital Christian virtue; but is despised by the world. It does not "vaunt itself;" 1 Cor. 13, 4; it is not easily provoked; 1 Cor. 13, 5; when smitten turns the other cheek; Matt. 5, 39.

9. Temperance, i. e. Self control. —The Lord requires of his disciple first of all to "deny himself," i. e. to renounce himself. Then when self renunciation has led on to his being possessed by the Spirit he is graciously to control himself. He must have grace enough (and enough is promised) to keep every thought, appetite, desire, passion in subjection to Christ. 2 Cor. 10, 5; 1 Cor. 9, 27; 1 Thes. 5, 23.

Application—Let us note that these are the fruit of the Spirit—wrought in us by the Sanctifier. They may be like traits among men bearing the same name. But they have a vitality that does not belong to the natural man—a communicative, gracious power that comes from above. To keep these fruits and grow in them we must continually keep fellowship with the Spirit.



The New Orleans Preacher's Meeting.

The New Orleans Preachers Meeting adjourned on Jan. 15th, until after the meeting of the Annual Conference. Rev. John Qualls offered the following:

Resolved, That we, the preachers of the New Orleans district, tender our thanks to Rev. Stephen Priestley, president; Thos. G. Montgomery, vice-president, and James W. Hudson, secretary, for the faithful manner in which they have, as officers, performed their duties.

The issue of a volume by Bishop R. S. Foster on any subject is hailed with pleasure by his numerous friends in our own and other Christian communities. His latest book, "Centennary Thoughts," which we have already noticed, is timely in its appearance, and is just what we need in awakening a deeper interest in our centennial work. It is written in the bishop's most impressive style, and his fiery logic and eloquent appeals will move the heart and quicken the liberality of the reader. The time for downright earnest centennial work is short, and what we do in this matter must be done quickly. Every member of our Church, and every friend to Methodism should make a thank-offering to God for benefits received from and through the Methodist Episcopal Church. That this may be done the more intelligently and worthily, we commend to our readers the prayerful perusal of this excellent work, assuring them that a rich treat awaits them for their effort.—Western Advocate.

John F. Hume's articles "Are We a Nation of Rascals?" from the August and December numbers North American Review, are out in pamphlet form.

CENTRAL TENNESSEE COLLEGE—Nashville, Tennessee.

Schools and Colleges.

Central Tennessee Methodist Episcopal College—Theological Department.

REV. R. W. KEELER, D. D., DEAN.

MR. EDITOR—I was much interested in your remarks in regard to "The Theological Course of Study," in your issue of Dec. 18th. I think all can appreciate the difficulty in attempting to pass a rigid examination in our present course of study without having had some previous training. Even with a fair education to start with the pastor will find it a great task to master this course fully while prosecuting his circuit and pastoral work. Those who have been forced into the work without previous training, can not feel discouraged as he faces this task. Many have been thrust into the work in this condition.

Such is the demand for preachers, especially among our colored people, that it is difficult for our young men, thirsting for the work, and seeing the need of "laborers in the harvest" to delay long enough to make that preparation necessary for the most successful prosecution of the work of the ministry. Many, therefore, have entered the pastoral work and are doing all they can, while they are painfully conscious that they lack preparation to make the most out of themselves—most for God, most for the Church, most for sinners.

But what is now to be done? Many of these cannot, for various reasons, leave the work to attend college, nor would it be wise to ask it of them. The Central Tennessee College seeing this condition of things has undertaken to provide for it. This institution has arranged a "pastors course" to be pursued by our brethren in connection with their pastoral work. It will render all possible assistance to the conscientious and studious pastor who determines to do all in his power to improve himself and acquire a greater preparation for his work. We ask attention to the following circular which is now being sent to all our young preachers of the various conferences in the South, both of our own Church and other churches, where their post-office can be ascertained.

Dear Brother:—Allow us to call your attention to the "Pastors Course of Study" of the Central Tennessee College. This Course has been arranged with special reference to the wants of our Ministers, who are compelled to enter the active work of the Ministry without such preparation as will render their work most successful. Many would gladly avail themselves of the advantages of an attendance upon school if they could do so. But not having this opportunity, they feel the need of help in securing a better preparation for their work.

The "Pastor's Course" will furnish help. If it shall be entered upon with determination and [illegible] vigor, it will do much [illegible] this lack in early [illegible] before entering the [illegible]. Most ministers while in the active work, read only [illegible] than will be required to [illegible] this "Pastors Course." But they read whatever [illegible] without reference to any system. Hence their [illegible] books read is extensive. It is believed that [illegible] and study, [illegible] will enable every minister who fully masters it, to do much better work for the Master, than would be possible for him to do without it.

By putting yourself in the "Course" and entering heartily upon it all possible aid will be rendered you by correspondence and otherwise. At stated times written examinations will be had to note the progress made, and when the entire course is completed, and a satisfactory examination in Common English passed, a certificate of graduation will be given.

Young ministers who are in their conference studies are especially invited to pursue this "Pastors Course" as it is designed to embrace all the studies required for conference. Examination, together with such other aid as will be immediately helpful in their work, will be given.

Such additions and alterations in the "Course" will be made from time to time as may seem to be required.

We invite correspondence.

By entering upon this course, and putting yourself in correspondence with the college, much needed help will be obtained. I will gladly answer any inquiries addressed to me, and would be specially pleased to enroll a good list of our brethren from all parts of the South as pursuing the "pastors course of Central Tennessee College." As the connection with the college and the instruction given are by correspondence, distance from Nashville should be no hindrance to any who desire the advantages afforded by the above course of study. Brethren, let me hear from you. Send me your post-office address that I may forward you the above circular. All our local preachers, Sunday-school superintendents and teachers would be be greatly benefitted by pursuing the above course of study. Address me at Central Tennessee College, Nashville, Tenn.

The Centennial Exposition and the Freedmen's Aid Society.

BY A. F. HOYT.

Quite a number of our schools have not yet sent on their exhibits. There is plenty of time. Put things in the best shape you can and express or mail them to me at 1428 St. Charles avenue, New Orleans, La. Essays, orations, examination papers, maps, drawings and especially any articles of fancy work, may be forwarded to me before Feb. 1, 1885. We are anxious to make a creditable exhibition of the work of all the schools connected with the Freedman's Aid Society. Plenty of space has been set apart for our use, and we wish to fill it up. The wall space especially should be covered with rugs, mats, and other articles of handiwork.

Missions.

COBLEIGH SEMINARY, NAGASAKI, JAPAN.

Through the courtesy of Rev. W. C. Kitchen, principal, we have received the first catalogue of Cobleigh Seminary for the years 1884 5. Hitherto there has been no established curriculum or rules of government for this school. This year a four year's course has been laid out, with a preparatory of one year. The English language and literature is the classic of the school. The study of its grammar, history and literature constitutes all the required studies of the course, which is otherwise elective. It is thought that this plan will work well, as the Japanese love independence in everything. The attendance is small as yet, 26 names being on the roll. The religious interest is encouraging. Since the term opened in September two pupils have professed conversion and joined the church; another confesses his belief in Christianity; and a third that he is carefully considering the question. The catalogue is a good sized pamphlet, well gotten up, in Japanese. The pages are headed with the subjects in English.

The catalogue and report of the Bareily Theological Seminary and Christian High School, for 1884, is at hand. During the ten years of its existence this school has sent out after whole or partial courses, 111 gradnates. It presents a thorough course of study, besides annual series of lectures upon special subjects. Two literary societies and several religious services are kept up by the students. In December last a class of 12 graduated, and have been secured, generally, as workers within the bounds of our mission. An earnest appeal is made for the following objects: 1st, Donations for the endowment of a native professorship, $12,000; 2nd, Donations for the endowment of a principalship, $20,000; 3rd, Contributions of any amount toward forming an endowment fund for other teachers and current expenses. Rev. T.J. Scott, is at present in America acting as agent of this institution. Let him be encouraged, the work established and generous hearts blessed by a hearty response to this appeal.

SOUTH INDIA.

A note from the Rev. D. W. Fox, dated Hyderabad, Nov. 26, says the conference adjourned Nov. 25th, after an excellent session pervaded by a good spirit. The presence of Bishop Hurst was a profit and pleasure to all. Bro. Fox, who went to India in 1872, is to come to America expecting to leave with Bishop Hurst about the 10th of February. He is commissioned to collect funds for school work in South India and is especial agent for the school in Poona. We bid him a hearty welcome after his long absence from his native land, and bespeak for him a hearing among our people.

[FAC-SIMILE OF TYPE-WRITER LETTER.]

TO THE PUBLIC, GREETING:

Boards of Health are now everywhere correcting the faults of sewerage and advising the people how to prevent future epidemics.

But other precautions are necessary, without which no amount of Sanitation can avail. Dr. Koch says that cholera has but little chance among those who keep the digestive organs and the liver, skin and kidneys (the sewers of the body) in healthful operation.

Warner's SAFE Remedies are the best scientific Curatives and Preventives, and we cannot too much emphasize the importance of using them now, as a safeguard against any future scourge

Much of the common ailments are caused, not primarily by bad blood, but by IMPAIRED LIVER AND KIDNEYS. This results in blood corruption and injury to the entire system. Remove this impaired action, and most ordinary ailments will disappear. Other practitioners have held that extreme liver and kidney disorders are incurable. We, however, by the severest tests, have unanswerably proved the contrary. Please note:

FIRST.--WE DO NOT CURE EVERY KNOWN DISEASE FROM ONE BOTTLE. Warner's Safe Remedies are specifics, which have been successively put upon the market ONLY IN OBEDIENCE TO STRONG PUBLIC DEMAND. These remedies are: Warner's SAFE Cure, for kidney, liver, bladder and blood disorders, General debility, Impotency, gravel, female irregularities; Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure, for Diabetes—the only known specific; Warner's Safe Rheumatic Cure for Rheumatism, Neuralgia; Warner's Safe Pills for constipation, diarrhoea, biliousness; Warner's Safe Nervine for nervous disorders; Warner's Safe Throatine for Asthma, catarrh; Warner's Tippecanoe for all stomach derangements.

SECOND.--Warner's Safe Remedies, spite of all opposition, have won the victory and are everywhere recognized as leading STANDARDS.

THIRD.-After six years of unequalled experience, we give these unqualified guarantees:

GUARANTEE I.--That Warner's Safe Remedies are pure, harmless, effective.

GUARANTEE II.--That the Testimonials used by us, so far as we know, are bona fide, with a forfeit of $5,000 for proof to the contrary.

GUARANTEE III.--That Warner's Safe Remedies are NOT MERELY TEMPORARY, BUT PERMANENT, IN THEIR CURATIVE EFFECTS AND WILL SUSTAIN EVERY CLAIM, IF USED SUFFICIENTLY AND PRECISELY AS DIRECTED.

FOURTH.--Special inquiry among hundreds of our oldest patients results in unequivocal testimony that the cures wrought six, five, four and three years ago, were PERMANENT. And most of these Patients were pronounced INCURABLE when they began Warner's Safe Remedies. Read a few of Thousands of examples:

N. P. CHEDESTER, Asheville, N. C., four years ago sprained his back and was lame for over three months; several physicians failed to do him any good. Warner's SAFE Cure, he writes, Nov. 26th, 1884, "cured me then and I have since been sound and well. It cured my wife also." — N. P. Chedester

THE REV. J. P. ARNOLD, Baptist, Camden. Tenn., in 1873 was taken with Bright's disease, which produced two large abscesses. In 1878 another abscess formed, which discharged for eighteen months. In 1881 two abscesses formed. He then began Warner's SAFE Cure, "which restored me to perfect health." June 1884 he wrote "my health is as good as ever." — J. P. Arnold

B. J. WORRELL, of Ellaville, Fla., in 1879, was prostrated with Bright's disease of the kidneys and under the best treatment, grew worse. "On the advice of Governor Drew's sister, I began Warner's SAFE Cure, sixty bottles of which restored me to full measure of health. I have now been cured about four years and my case is regarded as miraculous." Governor Drew of Jacksonville, Florida, April 20th, 1884, says "Mr. Worrell's case and cure gives me great confidence in Warner's SAFE Cure and I unhesitatingly indorse it." — B. J. Worrell

MRS. J. B. DESMOULIN, 2411 Morgan street, St. Louis, Mo., in 1882 wrote "I have been in delicate health for many years but Warner's SAFE Cure made me the picture of health." June 23rd, 1884, she wrote "My health has been good these two years." — Mrs. J. B. Desmoulin

DAVID TOOKE, Esq., Columbus, Texas, in 1877 was attacked with black Jaundice followed by a hemorrhage of the kidneys, and was pronounced incurable. Seven bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure restored him to health in 1880, and July 1st, 1884, he writes, "My health has been excellent." — David Tooke

EX-GOV. R. T. JACOB, Westport, Ky. In 1882, during a political canvas, health gave way and was prostrated with severe kidney trouble. Lost 40 lbs. of flesh. Used Warner's SAFE Cure in 1882, and June 23, 1884, writes: "I have never enjoyed better health,—all owing to Warner's SAFE Cure." — Richard T. Jacob

CHAS. E. STEPHENS, 1223 3rd street, Louisville, Ky., in 1882 used Warner's SAFE Cure for his daughter, who was afflicted with dropsy, nausea, chills, vomiting, difficulty in breathing, and Bright's disease of the kidneys. A celebrated New York specialist said recovery was impossible. In Nov., 1884, he reported that his daughter was in excellent health and gave the credit wholly to Warner's SAFE Cure. — Chas. E. Stephens

FIFTH.-It is no small satisfaction to us to know that very many thousands of people owe their life and health to Warner's Safe Remedies.

Rochester, N.Y., Jan. 1, 1885 — H. H. Warner Co

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

The Future of the Negro.

BY J. T. B.

Our twentieth weight on Liberation's scale,
Ye cheerful faces gather round this ever,
To see and hear it counted; oh, the gale
Of dark oppression, yonder did we leave.
The mighty billows did our vessel heave,
On board our children cried aloud for bread.
Our mothers sat them down to weep and grieve,
While fathers struggled 'gainst the awful dread
Of things around, but, yet our incense flames we'll spread.
But we have hope some nobler things to do
Than we have done, and pitty wars with pain;
Are these too much? they cannot be; why so?
There is a deep fertility of brain
That richer grows, and make us feel the strain
Around our heads; the pensive horizon
Of our weak minds do widen as the main
Of Freedom we do sail, and moving on,
Thought multiplies, and Fear is like a phantom gone.
Nor are these all; there is some dormant hope
For better things than ever we have seen;
And as we through this mortal darkness grope
We see our image on the distant screen
Of blossomed Fate; Desire now is keen
To cut new figures; Pride doth whisper "go,"
But lazy Caution laggers on the green
Of looked-for Ease; well, let them all be so,
We'll not digress for them, and lose our sight. O, no.
The first great thing a child must learn to think,
And after thinking, he can execute;
And 'tis more trouble to stoop down to drink
Than 'tis to rise, and so we may compute
Our future by a glimpse across the chute
Of our dark days; we'll ply the golden oar
To Poetry's stream; we'll strike the silver lute
Of science; and we'll put on wings and soar
To Art's pinnacle; Hist'ry soon we will make hoar.
Yes, tell the feats in poetry's softest strains,
And hand the things from sires down to son,
And celebrate our Boyd's boiling brains,
Our Phillis Wheatley's; tell the all they've done;
Yes, all our poets; for our name they've won
From stygian caves; we love to tell the thing;
And if our future Poetry rests upon
We are immortal; back our eyes we'll fling
To our old Mediterranian shores and hear them ring.
We've dragged pure virtues from religion's founts,
And drowning honors drawn up by the locks;
We've soared from Superstition to the mounts
Of jurisprudence; Grecians left their flocks
For poetry; and Orpheus moved the rocks
Of Hatred from a nation's front; the streams
Which followed him was Science; Hist'ry mocks
At what is said, but Reason even beams
In these nice shades of thought and fine poetic dreams.
Yes, we will help to steer the ship of State
And we will send a Franklin, too, to France.
We do not mind a land of scorn and hate,
We are determined; and we will enhance
A nation's pride; so let our children dance
At Freedom's jubilee, and strew around
The tropic flowers; let us all advance,
As heroes struggling for the battle ground
With fervent heart, inspired at one marshal sound.
The weeping statue and the caving mound,
The merry anthem, and the toiler's song,
The sleeping oak now kneeling on the ground,
To them their portion of the rains belong.
The white, the black, the lazy red, the throng
Of human life must have their rain and tome
Have had it; while the others thought 'twas wrong.
But no!; the others' kingdom had not come;
For when some nations feast the others may be dumb.

Lucknow Centennial School.

REV. B. H. BRADLEY.

If a business man of large wealth could possibly secure the contract of making converts of India's millions, upon visiting the land, seeing its people sunk in idolatry and superstition, his first movement would be to establish thousands of primary schools all over the country, in city, town, and hamlet. Bishop Thomson said to the India Conference at Lucknow, in 1864: "Your converts are not in your Churches, the members of these will soon be dead—but in your heathen schools!" As a matter of course, after the primary schools we must have those of higher grade; highest of all, the college.

There are several special reasons why investments in a growing mission college, like the Centennial School, at Lucknow, are bound to yield large dividends:

1. The school is established, and in good working order. So long ago as 1866, our missionaries in India decided that the conference must have a first class educational institution, and that Lucknow, with its large population, its central location, and manifold facilities, should be the place. Since its opening in 1877, the school has had an encouraging history, and much of [illegible]. It is not a "paper" institution, but a thorough going, wide-awake school, where 300 Asiatics, brown, browner, brownest, are mastering the English language, learning mathematics, literature, and the sciences, and reading the Bible day by day.

2. The British Government not only favors our school, but has given and contiues to give largely to its support. For the new building it gave upwards of $4,000, the largest sum ever received by our North India missionaries for this purpose. It gives a monthly grant in aid of nearly $100, and will increase this amount as rapidly as we increase our appropriations and donations. Were the school inefficient this would not be done. The government approval gives the school a high standing in the city, among natives of all classes. Our students are having marked success in the annual examinations prescribed by the government, and two promising classes have already matriculated.

3. It is a training school, preparing our young Methodists for great usefulness. The students not only read the Bible as one of their daily studies, passing examinations in it, but also attend lectures on Biblical and religious subjects, and are otherwise helped spiritually. The older Christian students render valuable services, and are themselves profited by serving as teachers in our heathen Sunday-schools in the city. Two or three years of this experience serve as excellent preparation for religious work when they leave the school. The older boys also accompany us to the street-preaching and religious fairs and help us in our work there, singing and speaking to the heathen people. Some of them are fine singers. We look upon these young men as our future preachers, teachers, colporteurs—helpers of various grades; all are needed. Many of them are longing for the time when they shall finish their studies and enter the Lord's vineyard. We must have native preachers; and while we are constantly seeing men converted and going out, just as they are, as preachers among their countrymen, we are realizing more and more that to reach and influence the educated heathen about us we must have educated preachers.

4. Large results are secured from comparatively small donations. The sum of $30 educates a native youth for a year. The sum of $500 establishes a perpetual scholarship, by means of which one student after another will be educated. The money is carefully invested and economically expended. Each dollar counts.

And now a new proposal. The proposition made in a recent Western to endow a scholarship in honor of Bishop Taylor was quickly accepted. A good brother in Plymouth, Ohio—the State of Presidents, bishops and missionaries—gives the $500. A Methodist preacher in Kansas and his noble wife give $500 to endow the "Dr. William Butler scholarship." The Des Moines Conference, with the help of Bishop Andrews, has given $500 for a "Des Moines Conference Scholarship," to perpetuate the names of its pioneer preachers. Other donations are coming in. Bishop Warren has just secured a telescope for the school. "It is a fine instrument and will be sent ont complete"—the gift of the maker of fine telescopes, Rev. J. Peate. A thousand thanks for this!

It is now proposed that each of our beloved bishops be honored with memorial scholarships in this school. We want a picture of each to hang in our chapel, so that our young Hindo Methodists—our Ram Chandra Boses—may see the faces of these noble men. It is thought that readers of the SOUTHWESTERN would enjoy helping this far-off school by endowing a scholarship in honor of Bishop Mallalieu, now in New Orleans, and Bishop Walden, who goes to Atlanta. These honored men would be glad to be remembered, and the writer (appointed by Bishop Foster as Financial Agent of the school) would greatly enjoy carrying back to India the proposed sum. Who will give the $500? Here is a splendid opportunity for a centennial thank-offering. Who will help Christ's "little ones in India? My address is 805 Broadway, New York.

Letters from the Pastors.

Rev. J. F. R. W. Summerhill, Springville, Tenn., writes: "Rev. J. P. Price, presiding elder, held our first quarter accompanied by Rev. R. Plamer. The presiding elder stired up the work very much. We are going to build two new churches on this circuit; we pray for a great harvest for the Lord this conference year and are working for the same. Elder Price is a man full of energy and work for the Lord."

Rev. J. W. Hudson, Mount Zion Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans, La., writes: "Our fourth quarter was held Friday, Dec. 26th, 1884, Rev. L. P. Cushman, presiding. On motion A. Cloud was appointed secretary. Reports being the first order of business, those from pastor showed the Sunday-school in a prosperous condition with an average attendance of 95, the financial condition of the Church very good, and the spiritual standing never better; 50 persons joined the Church this year. Class reports as follows: No. 1, 22 members, $12.65; No. 2, 37 members, $12.65; No. 3, 38 members, $15; No. 4, 17 members, $5; No. 5, 30 members, $6; No. 6, 34 members, $12; No. 7, 24 members, $7; membership 200, total collections $70.30. All of the officers were re-elected, and the preachers recommended to the district conference to be held Jan. 22, 1885, to have their license renewed. The following resolutions passed:

1. Resolved, Whereas, Rev. L. P. Cushman, has been our presiding elder four years, and not knowing whether he will be continued or not, we the officers of Mt. Zion Church, voicing the members and friends of this congregation, take this opportunity of expressing our thanks to Bro. Cushman for his efforts put forth in our behalf. When our financial troubles here were like a dark cloud, he caused them to break in a blessing upon our heads.

Resolved, That wherever Bro. Cushman may be the prayers of the members of this church, are that the blessings of God follow him and family.

Resolved, That, if in the judgment of the Bishop Bro. Cushman be continued another four years, we will again receive him as our elder, brother and a true friend. Signed Van Blackman, Edward Hunter, Wiley Hunter, P. Smith, A. Wallace, Noah Dennis, F. Groom, John Felix, Louis C. Madison, M. Ross, Edward Burk, Berry Hubard, J. H. Reid, Robert Hall, Robert Coleman, and Arthur Cloud, recording stewards.

A Mother's Love—A Practical Illustration of Its Power.

A mother's love! What a potent thing it is! It will melt the heart of the most hardened criminal, when no other influence would be effectual. No one but a mother knows its full meaning, but every one can appreciate it if they will. It is known, though, that it means sleepless nights, care, inconvenience, and, if necessary, want, hardship and death. But the subject has been too eloquently treated by the sweetest poets and the ablest writers to furnish an essay for these columns. Too many practical illustrations occur in every day life for it to be dwelt upon, so that it is unnecessary to speak of the subject further in order to make the reader understand the full meaning of what is to follow.

Mrs. Henry Schualen, of Ashland, Ky., writes that her daughter has been cured of deafness which resulted from chronic catarrh. She tells how she had lost all hope of her daughter (her ideal) being cured, and how overjoyed she is at the result. After trying many remedies, she says PERUNA brought a cure, and that the daughter's hearing is restored. She concludes, by speaking in the most flattering terms of PERUNA, and then describes in the most lovely manner the happiness it has brought her, and reviews the distress she experienced while her daughter was afflicted.

Dr. A. R. Ong, Martins Ferry, O., writes: "I have a large trade on your PERUNA. Think it is a grand remedy."

Mr. Robert C. Hannah, Tolesborough, Lewis county, Ky., writes: "I write to inform you of the great benefit I received by the use of your medicines, PERUNA and MANALIN. I had been low spirited and very sick for about six months with a bad cough, and my friends thought I had consumption; tried a number of patent medicines, and most of the doctors in the vicinity (and we have some as good as you can find in the country), but they did me no good whatever. Our merchant, Mr. Gillespie, insisted upon me trying your remedies. I did so, but must say, I had little faith in them at first; before I had consumed my first bottle, I noticed a change for the better, and to-day I am entirely well, and as sound a man as there is in the vicinity. I credit my cure to your valuable remedies, PERUNA and MANALIN, and recommend them to all of my friends."

MRS. LORENZO S. RUGGLES, Auburn, Me.: "AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has proved its superiority to all others." [Cured by it of Feminine Weaknesses.]

Almost "all the ills that flesh is heir to" spring from, or are intensified by, impurities in the blood, the result of hereditary taint or of a wrong manner of living. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA thoroughly purifies the blood, gives tone and vigor to the digestive organs, and imparts new vitality to the nervous system. The only preparation of this class for which these claims can be truthfully made, and the only one that does "real, lasting good," is

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE TO Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practial route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, for emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrants' Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

The M. E. Church.

Annual Meeting of the Freedmen's Aid Society.

The annual meeting of the Freedmen's Aid Society was held in Cincinnati, Dec. 29th.

A sadness of feeling pervaded the session because of the death of Bishop Wiley, who had been identified with the work of the society from the first, and who had for several years been its president. His presidency had been signalized by personal and laborious attention to every phase of our educational work in the South. He believed that the Church had no more important work than this, and any service he could give it was freely and heartily rendered.

Bishop Walden was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Bishop Wiley. The Bishop, like his lamented predecessor, has been officially connected with its work from the first, and has aided in the establishment and developmet of our educational work in the South. His residence there will closely identify him with the interests of the society.

Amos Shinkle, first vice-president, presided during the greater part of the meeting. Among those present, and participating in the business and discussions, were: Bishop Walden, Drs. Rust, Hartzell, Hypes, Hight, Starr, Liebhart, Lane, Krehbiel, Cranston; Messrs. Dale, Shinkle and others.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

The financial report closed July 1, 1885. The following summaries are from the treasurer's report:

Amount received this year from collections	$133,458 05
Amount received last year from collections	118 153 72
Increase	$15,299 33

This increase in the current receipts is from the following sources:

Conference collections	$2,786 67
Easter fund	4,000 00
Episcopal fund	500 00
Individual donations	6 943 83
Tuition and room rent from students	1,068 83
	$15,299 33
It has expended this year	$147,652 79
Expended last year	147,337 14
An increased expenditure of	$315 65
Total receipts this year	$127,458 05
Total receipts last year	154,258 72
Total decrease in receipts this year	$16,800 67
Grand total this year	$166,195 26

The most encouraging fact in this showing is the increase in regular collections. The total decrease in receipts results from large endowment gifts the year previous.

REPORT OF THE CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

An encouraging resume of the year's work was given in the report of the corresponding secretary. The excellent character of the schools supported in the South has been maintained. The teachers had been faithful to their duties, and a goodly number of students had graduated and gone forth to useful and honorable effort, to bless the church and nation. The enlargement of the work so as to include the educational work among the whites had not brought into the treasury as much money as was needed. It takes time to inaugurate a new movement or to widen the sphere of one already inaugurated. The wisdom of the Church in placing the entire educational work in the South under one agency, has been demonstrated, and many not heretofore interested in the work have become enlisted, and the outlook for a large increase in financial income is good. Twenty-one institutions of learning are maintained among the Freedmen, in which are 100 teachers, and 4,623 students. Aid has been extended to the work among the whites as it could be done without interfering with the work among the Freedmen. Our white people, with great heroism and sacrifice, have laid the foundations of an educational system in the South. Already there are [illegible] institutions with 86 teachers and [illegible] 2,000 students. The society has been compelled during the year to refuse many urgent and very meritorious appeals to aid this work for lack of funds.

AUDITOR'S REPORT.

The auditing committee consisting of Bishop Hendrix and Dr. Hight, reported that they had personally examined and canceled every voucher for money paid out during the year. They had found the books of the treasurer and secretary properly kept, and every voucher was on file in the office.

OUTLINE OF THE WORK.

Although the year's work showed an increase in receipts and in the amonnt of work done, still the managers look with anxiety upon the future. Among the freedmen alone the increasing demands of the work have been such as to require a much larger amount of money than have been received. The enlargement of responsibility so as to extend aid to educational work among our white people in the South opens an equally important and needy field for which the society ought to have at least an additional hundred thousand dollars a year. A third and very serious item is the financial depression which is now affecting the country, leading the society to fear that no large increase in income can be expected very soon. The growing demands of the work are far outstripping the financial resources of the society. The officers were directed to issue an appeal to the Church setting forth the claims of this work upon the benevolent sympathies and gifts of the people.

Like all the benevolent causes of the Church, this one too must depend upon the pastors mainly for its success. The General Conference directed that this year the society should ask the Church for half a million dollars as a centennial gift for Christian education in the South. This amounts to about 33⅓ cents per member. It is hoped that no pastor will fail to let the people know of this appeal, and to inform them of the imperative demands of the great cause, upon which the appeal rests. It is confidently believed that if every pastor in the Church would give a service and special collection to this work, that the income of the society would be doubled.

Happy Thoughts in the Night.

For years Mr. Jas. Ackley, of 163 West Fayette street, Baltimore, had suffered with neuralgia so that he could hardly sleep. But he writes, "One night I was suffering very much, and the thought struck me that Brown's Iron Bitters would do me some good, and perhaps cure me. It was a happy thought, and to my great joy it has entirely cured me after using two bottles. After three months I have had no return of the symptoms. I cheerfully recommend it as the best tonic I have ever used." Neuralgia sufferers, take the hint!

THE PILLOW-INHALER!

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION.

TRADE MARK

THE PILLOW-INHALER is one of the most effective inventions of the age. It does what never has been done before, viz.: batters down the stronghold of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption by a continuous application of Medicated and Curative Air to the diseased mucous membranes of the air-passages of the nose, throat and lungs.

A Radical and Permanent Cure.

Most people who have Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption have tried from one to a dozen different remedies without being cured. Why have they not been cured? Simply because what they took were not cures. How is a snuff to be got into all the intricate air-passages and in the blood (for Catarrh is a constitutional disease)? or, how will inhaling medicine for a few minutes a day dislodge the enemy from its stronghold of decaying tissue? Everybody knows that medicine taken in doses has very feeble effect on diseases of a pulmonary character. They have to take such a roundabout way to get into the blood that they miss their power. Yet after all there is an Absolute Cure, and that is the PILLOW-INHALER—a means of all-night or continuous inhalation. The testimony to its results is beyond all question, by the experience of thousands. The cures it has effected seem almost incredible. It is a comfortable pillow of soft hair, with receptacles in which is put the evaporating medicine, the fumes of which the diseased person inhales all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, without being annoyed and without noticing that he is taking medicine. There is no dosing the stomach, no-donching or snuffing; but, just as a smoky lamp, during the whole night, will leave a thick deposit on a whitened wall, so the PILLOW-INHALER, for eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. It is a constitutional and local cure at the same time. The medicine is applied directly, like a salve, at the seat of the disease, besides going into the blood during its aeration. It is inexpensive and within the reach of every one. No matter what you have tried or how despairing you are, call and see it, or write for Pamphlet and Testimonials. Address,

HARPER'S WEEKLY.

A JOURNAL OF CIVILIZATION AND A PICTURE HISTORY OF OUR OWN TIMES.

Subscription per Year, $4 00.

The TWENTY-NINTH VOLUME will begin with the Number issued on December 31, 1884.

For twenty-eight years HARPER'S WEEKLY has maintained its position as the leading illustrated newspaper in America; and its hold upon public esteem and confidence was never stronger than at the present time. It presents, week by week, in faithful and graphic pictures, the noteworthy events of the day; portraits of men of the time; reproductions of the works of celebrated native and foreign artists; cartoons by eminent pictorial satirists; and humorous illustrations of the ludicrous aspects of social and political life.

Every one knows the value of pictures in conveying immediate, vivid, and permanent impressions. Pictures are a universal language, understood by people of every tongue. They supplement and interpret the words of the poet, the historian, the scientist, the traveller, and the novelist. "A picture paper" ought to come to every house, and it pays to get the best.

Besides the pictures, HARPER'S WEEKLY is full of good reading. It always contains instalments of one, occasionally of two, of the best novels of the day, with fine illustrations. Its short stories are bright and entertaining. Poems, sketches, and papers on important live topics by the most popular writers, and columns of humorous and personal paragraphs, make it interesting to everybody.

Every one who desires a trustworthy political guide, an entertaining and instructive family journal, entirely free from objectionable features, should subscribe to HARPER'S WEEKLY.

PRESS NOTICES.

For years the WEEKLY has enjoyed the distinction of being the best illustrated paper in America, and every successive volume shows new strength and enterprise.—Boston Transcript.

HARPER'S WEEKLY is beautifully illustrated and filled with the choicest matter. In politics it is thoroughly independent. It is one of the best weeklies in the world.—Christian Advocate, San Francisco.

The only illustrated paper of the day that, in its essential characteristics, is recognized as a national paper.—Brooklyn Eagle.

HARPER'S WEEKLY is the leading illustrated paper of this country. * * * It is always fresh and lively, and its illustrations indicate the progress and highest advance of the pictorial art.—Lutheran Observer, Phila.

Incomparably ahead of all similar publications.—Boston Traveller.

Confessedly at the head of American illustrated weekly journals.—Living Church, Chicago.

It is the best of all the illustrated weeklies.—Southern Churchman, Richmond.

The ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Its presence in the household is a never failing delight.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

HARPER'S WEEKLY should be in every family throughout the land. A purer, more interesting, higher toned, better illustrated paper is not published in this or any other country.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

An indisputable fact that HARPER'S WEEKLY and HARPER'S MONTHLY are indispensable in every intelligent and cultured family.—The Journal, Mason City, Ill.

A most welcome visitor at many thousands of firesides; enlivening the social and family circle; giving instruction and delight to old and young.—Rochester Express.

HARPER'S BAZAR.

AN ILLUSTRATED JOURNAL OF FASHION, INSTRUCTION, AND DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

Subscription per Year, $4 00.

The EIGHTEENTH VOLUME will begin with the Number issued on December 19, 1884.

HARPER'S BAZAR is the only paper in the world that combines the choicest literature and the finest art illustrations with information about the latest fashions, methods of household adornment, and all the minor useful arts that are dear to the model house-keeper, and make home attractive.

HARPER'S BAZAR is acknowledged as an arbiter of taste and fashion. Its weekly illustrations and descriptions of the newest Paris and New York styles, with its useful pattern-sheet supplements and cut patterns, spread the news of the changes of fashion all over the land, and, by aiding ladies to be their own dress-makers, save many times the cost of subscription. It also furnishes information concerning the materials in vogue, with suggestions as to the best methods of making them up at home, and adapting last year's wardrobe to the style of to-day. Its papers on cooking, the management of servants, and house-keeping, from the best sources, are eminently practical. Its illustrated articles and designs for household adornment, art needle-work, etc., are from the highest authorities. Its pithy editorials are marked by good sense and good taste.

In literary and artistic merit, HARPER'S BAZAR is unapproached by any journal of its class; its stories, sketches, and other articles being furnished by the best writers of America and Europe, while its superb wood-engravings are marvels of perfect execution. A host of novelties is in preparation for the new volume.

PRESS NOTICES.

To take it is a matter of economy. No lady can afford to be without it.—Chicago Evening Journal.

This is certainly the first of American fashion weeklies. Its literary features are excellent.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The ladies' favorite paper. It is finely and profusely illustrated, and is highly attractive in its literary and artistic features.—Lutheran Observer, Philadelphia.

It has been a potent factor of culture in many households, a teacher of etiquette as well as of fashion.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

To dress according to HARPER'S BAZAR will be the ambition of the women of America.—Boston Transcript.

HARPER'S BAZAR is not only an authority in the world of fashion and on matters relating to the home, but it also contains in every number an abundance of useful and entertaining reading of general interest.—Observer, N. Y.

With HARPER'S BAZAR there is no opportunity of instituting a comparison with any publication of its kind.—Brooklyn Eagle.

So interesting and useful that every woman wants to see it.—N. Y. Star.

A necessary companion for all who wish to keep up with the latest styles. It is also an artistic journal of high order.—Worcester Spy.

Par excellence the ladies' paper of the country, a mirror of fashion, a minister of comfort and ornament in the family.—The Watchman, Boston.

It is supreme in its department, and that department is a very wide one.—Providence Journal.

In its literary and artistic features the BAZAR is unquestionably the best journal of its kind in the country.—Saturday Evening Gazette, Boston.

It has become an established authority with the ladies of America.—N. Y. Evening Post.

QUESTIONS FOR HOME STUDY.

1. Voyage to Cæsarea, v. 1-7.
Trace the voyage from Miletus to Cæsarea.
Why did Paul land at Tyre?
Whom did he find there?
How long did he remain there?
Of what was he warned?
2. Philip the Evangelist, v. 8-9.
What city did Paul next enter?
Who intertained him at Cæsarea?
With what gift were Philip's daughters endowed?
3. Agabus the prophet, v. 8-9.
Who came from Judea to welcome Paul?
What did Agabus do with Paul's girdle?
What prophecy did he utter?
4. Paul the hero, v. 12-14.
What counsel was offered Paul?
What was Paul's heroic reply?
What effect did it have on the disciples?

PRACTICAL TEACHINGS.

How does this lesson illustrate—
1. Christian sympathy?
2. Christian heroism?
3. Christian resignation?

Doctrinal Suggestion—The supreme authority of Christ.

Sunday-school News.

The superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday-school at Adamsville, Tenn., writes: "We have just closed our year's quarterly review, and had a joyful time. Our Sunday-school has also had a Christmas tree and a festival for the benefit of the Sunday-school literary department. We have had a good year of it, and have only missed three Sundays.

Opposed to Strong Drink.

"Parker's Tonic is delicious to the palate; it invigorates, but does not promote a love for strong drink; it cures coughs and colds; it purifies the blood thus eating kidney, liver and lung troubles and rheumatism. It should be kept in every home." G. H. Sherman, photographer, Elgin, Ill. Place it in yours

Books and Current Literature

1,500 CONUNDRUMS.—We have just received from the publishers, a handsome little book with the above title, which contains over fifteen hundred conundrums, suitable for home and fireside amusement. One feature of it is that the conundrums are all original and have never appeared in print before. They are the production of a talented society lady, and if parents desire to have their children amused, and also amuse themselves, they cannot do better than to send for this book. It contains 116 pages, with handsome paper cover, and will be sent by mail, postpaid, to any address, upon receipt of 15 cents, by J. S. Ogilvie & Co., Publishers, 31 Rose Street, New York.

The illustrations of General Grant's paper on Shiloh, which is to appear in the Midwinter (February) Century, will be more profuse than those of the other War Papers already published. Articles in the same number by Colonel Jordan, the son of the Confederate general, Albert Sidney Johnston, and by Colonel Jordan, of General Beauregard's staff, will tell the story of the Confederate side of Shiloh. A letter will be printed from General Fitz John Porter describing the circumstances of the offer of a high Federal command to General A. S. Johnston, who, at the breaking out of the war, was in charge of the department of the Pacific. General Porter declares that General Johnston intended to turn over to the secessionists the defenses of California, or any part of the regular army, is false and absurd.

A PICTURE GALLERY OF EMINENT COLORED MEN.—Dear Sir: Permit me to call your attention to a series of fine steel-line engravings of eminent colored men. These pictures are published in order to fill an increasing demand on the part of the colored people, now rising with unparalleled rapidity in all the essentials of modern civilization, to adorn their houses and to inspire their youth by the portraits of their most eminent representatives.

This series is designed to embrace the most eminent Negro-Americans of national reputation, whether in politics, the field of literture, in the pulpit or at the bar. The first ones of the series will be of Hon. Frederick Douglass, whose service in the anti slavery era, and the reconstruction period of progress of his race, has made him pre-eminent in its history and that of the country; of Hon. B. K. Bruce, whose career in his adopted State, in the United States Senate, and as Register of the U. S. Treasury has given him a place in the very front of our eminent men; of Hon. John R. Lynch, whose rapid and substantial progress since emancipation, signalized by membership in and speakership of the legislature of his State by repeated elections to Congress, by distinguished honor in the councils of his party—but epitomizes the history of his race.

As to the order of future numbers of the series, due regard will be had to popular preferences ascertained through our trusted agents. Yet we shortly hope to add among others, Toussaint L'Ouverture, Hon. R. B. Elliott, Cetewayo, John M. Langston, Robert Smalls, the hero of the Planter; Judge George L. Ruffin, Rev. Alex. Crummell, Bishop D. A. Payne, Dr. Marshall W. Taylor, Rev. Joseph C. Price, Wm. M. T. Forrester, G. M. Grand United O. of O. F., Prince Hall, Henry Highland Garnett and Bishop Henry M. Turner.

These pictures are all to be executed, like those now published, in first class and artistic style, and copied from the latest and best photographs, the engraving being done by a house standing at the head of the profession.

They are printed on heavy yellow-tinted plate paper and at the popular price of fifty cents each must find a wide and ready sale, alike in the cabins of the humble and the parlors of the more thrifty.

Active Agents can realize a handsome profit by selling these pictures. Teachers, preachers and ambitious students, who have large acquaintance, should have little or no difficulty in rapidly disposing of these pictures,—thus serving the double purposes of stimulating a laudable race-pride and establishing a profitable business.

It is to be hoped that you will find it to be to your pleasure, as well as to your advantage, to buy yourself and to co operate with us in giving six and a half millions the opportunity of beholding the picture gallery of "Our Eminent Colored Men," Trusting to hear from you, Truly Yours,

J. W. CROMWELL & Co.

The Theology of Christ, from his own words, by Joseph P. Thompson, D.D., LL.D., with an introduction by Wm. M. Taylor, D.D., LL.D., published by E. B. Treat, 757 Broadway, New York. One volume, crown, 8vo., 310 pages, price $1.50. This book does not attempt to delineate the life of Christ, but to evolve, directly and exclusively from His own words the doctrine that He taught. It has been the author's object to present a system of theology perfectly free from all sectarian or denominational bias, and free from all preconceived notions or ideas of the past. It has the commendation of eminent divines in various denominations, and is calculated to be a valuable help to Bible students generally.

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this receipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh Cold in twenty-four hours. Address Craddock & Co., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, naming this paper.

Dear Brethren—Push things ahead and let us bring up all of our benevolent causes this year. Do all you can, brethren; live among and work with your people, go from house to house, singing and praying with them, and they will pay you if you live right among them and let them feel that you care for them. Brethren, you must live on our works or you can not do the work you have to do. The people want you and the time. Now, dear brethren, do all you can to bring our district up. That Sums it Up.

We could use all sorts of extravagant words about the effect of Parker's Hair Balsam. But the simple truth is enough. It is the best thing of its kind. Cures falling hair, dandruff, dryness, restores original color, is a delicious dressing and perfectly pure and clean. It will satisfy you. The only standard 50c. dressing.

Sedgwick STEEL WIRE Fence

Is the best general purpose wire fence in use. It is a strong net-work without barbs. Don't injure stock. It will turn dogs, pigs, sheep, and poultry, as well as horses and cattle. The best fence for Farms, Gardens, Stock ranges, and Railroads. Very neat, pretty styles for Lawns, Parks, School-lots, and Cemeteries. Covered with rust-proof paint, or made of galvanized wire, as preferred. It will last a life-time. Is better than boards or barbed wire in every respect. Give it a fair trial; it will wear itself into favor. The Sedgwick Gates made of wrought iron pipe and steel wire, defy all competition in lightness, neatness, strength, and durability. We make the best, cheapest, and easiest working all-iron automatic or self-opening Gate, and the neatest cheap Iron Fence now made. The New folding poultry netting is a late and useful invention. The best Wire Stretcher, Cutting Pliers, and Post Augers. We also manufacture Russell's excellent Wind Engines for pumping, and Geared Engines for grinding, etc. Price and particulars ask Hardware Dealers, or address, mentioning paper,

Editorial Notes.

When at the voice the lute of Wesley woke
In sweetest notes of tenderness and grace,
As once to Whitefield, long estranged, it spoke,
And cheered him heavenward in the weary race;
How rose to vision in the magic labors
The scenes which battle cloud had covered o'er;
How dawned glad hope in prospect of the Savior!
When Zion's chieftains on th'elysian shore should meet, with triumph crowned and separate no more!

Do you pray?

"Prayer is the offering up of our desires unto God in the name of Christ."

If the live coal off God's altar touch your lips, then will iniquity be taken away and sin be purged.

Bishop Taylor is now in Monrovia, holding the Liberia Conference, which meets to day. Pray for both him and it.

Bread and wine must not only be received, but it must be in accordance to Christ's command to constitute a valid Eucharist.

"There is no remembrance of former things; neither shall there be any remembrance of things that are to come with those that shall come after."

Before unconsecrated men approach to burn incense upon the altar of the Lord, let them remember the pride of impious Uzziah, and his fate.

Ex-Secretary Boutwell, of Massachusetts, is reported as expressing the opinion that the question of prohibition is soon to become the great political issue in this country.

"God loves a cheerful giver." If we give cheerfully, he will accept the gift; but if we withhold that, he will come and take nine tenths and leave us only one tenth.

The Plant Seed Co., of St. Louis, is an extensive concern and are making legitimate and commendable efforts to secure the trade of the Southwest.

Major Burke has been presented with [illegible], and it is reported that he was pleased with the presentors. The Major is a [illegible]. That was fine [illegible].

[illegible] are meeting. [illegible] will go for us! Let the [illegible] the veteran [illegible] aiming for an [illegible] they [illegible] to [illegible] have not been found fully competent. The [illegible] and [illegible] others [illegible] inquirers. This work deserves success and needs aid."

Do you know the Lord's prayer exactly as it is written in the Bible?

We regard Bishop William L. Harris as the greatest expositor of Methodist law living or dead. Few, if any, of his decisions have ever been questioned.

Mrs. Anna Young, a colored lady who died recently in Washington, D. C., was at the time of her death, 113 years of age, and her mother, it is said, was 128 years old when she died.

Hon. George T. Downing, has written an address to the colored men of the country, and also to the Democratic party calling for new poltical affiliations, and uriging proper recognition for the race by this now dominant party.

"I communed with mine own heart, saying, so, I am come to great estate, and have gotten more wisdom than all they that have been before me at Jerusalem. Yea, my heart had great experience of of wisdom and knowledge."

Prayer should be made publicly in the house of God, and privately in our families, and in our closets personally; men, women and children are entitled to pray or lead in prayer in each of these places. They should do, and be encouraged to do it.

We are pleased to learn that Bishop Harris and Mr. J. M. Phillips, the latter of the Methodist Book Concern, 800 Broadway, New York, contemplate a visit to New Orleans, on their return from Mexico, where they are at present looking after the affairs of our mission there.

Rust University, Holly Springs, Mississippi, December 19, 1884. Dear Editor—"Please send my paper to me at Ebenezer, Mississippi. My time is about out, but I shall renew my subscription when I go home. I like the SOUTHWESTERN, and the tone of its editor. Go on to perfection. A. J. Howard.

One of the neatest, highest, and best of the college papers that comes to our office is the Elevator, published by and in the interest of Clark University at Atlanta, Georgia. Its mechanical and literary work is done by the students under the eyes of those veteran, unselfish, clear headed directors Messrs. Thayer, Thirkield, Crogman and associates. Viva la Elevator, viva la University.

"I can but congratulate you on your paper, and express the earnest hope that your largest wishes in respect to it may be fulfilled. I shall be glad to be of service to you in any way that I can. Yours very truly."—J. C. W. Coxe.

We are to be favored with a series of letters on the progress of our brother in Black by this gentleman. He was one of the first to give us his name as a subscriber at Philadelphia, and has hastened to renew with the above sentiments.

The third annual report of the Hebrew Christian work in New York City lies before us. Rev. Mr. Freshman is the energetic leader in this department of missionary labor, and reports continued preaching, prayer meetings, Sunday-schools, and private visitations. During the year (1884) there have been eleven baptisms, though many more have applied and have not been found fully competent. The [illegible] and [illegible] others [illegible] inquirers. This work deserves success and needs aid."

Thoughts on the Presiding Elderate.

REV. D. W. HAYS.

The thought has frequently occurred to me that the churches might be more largely benefited by the presiding elder's quarterly visitations, if the meetings were so arranged as to give him an opportunity to set forth, in a series of practical talks, discussions bearing upon the various departments of service in which the membership, old and young, are called to engage. It is a common mistake to expect nothing further of him than to hold the conference, preach and raise his assessment. These constitute but a part of the duties which he owes to the people. His function is peculiar. Next in authority to a bishop, it devolves upon him to look after every interest, great and small, connected with the welfare of the churches and Sunday schools within the bounds of his district. He is to have, as far as practicable, a thorough knowledge of the people and their surroundings and be able, whenever the occasion will allow, to touch the springs of activity and arouse all to earnest effort in carrying forward the work.

Besides presiding in the conference and preaching on the Sabbath, he is to instruct the people concerning our benevolent agencies; their nature, importance and the best methods of promoting their success. He is also, to formulate and assist the execution of plans for local church improvement; stimulating where there is lethargy, improving where there is ignorance, encouraging where there is despondency, regulating where disorder prevails, and curbing where zeal, without knowledge, clamors for control. Now, in order that he may thus influence and help on the work, one or more meetings ought to be set apart during each visitation for the purpose. Let something freely, timely and inspiring be expected from the presiding elder, and the people will more eagerly watch for his visits. Mere routine work, however valuable in its place, takes from the office much of its savor, and deprives its incumbent of much of the confidence and respect which he would otherwise secure by faithfully endeavoring to meet all the demands of the hour. The churches need ideas, counsel and intelligent guidance, as well as stirring sermons from the presiding elder, and supplying these he appears, not as a pendulum, swinging from place to place, but, as a living, active, sympathizing, helpful brother, to be regarded with reverence and supported with cheerfulness.

African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church.

The Louisiana African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church Annual Conference, was held at Pontchatoula, La., commencing Jan. 15th, 1885; Bit., Rev., Bishop T. H. Lomax presiding, L. W. Oldfield secretary. Twenty-six members were present during the session of conference. The opening sermon was preached Wednesday evening, by Rev. L. W. Oldfield. The business sessions were pleasant. The character of the following members was passed: James Allen, A. Tarker, L. W. Oldfield, A. Washington, William Freeman, Isom Nichols, A. Scott, H. W. Barnett, W. D. Lee, R. Wilson, J. P. Wesley, C. Donahoo, B. Washington, Henry Glass, Joseph Seals, William Snowden, Henry Holmes, A. James, A. Vincent, C. F, Gnwtro, J. H. Ange, J. T. Pool, H. C. McNeal, J. Pitts, F. P. Loney.

A. Vincent was elected to deacon's orders, and A. James to elder's orders. C. F. Guwtro, was continued in his studies another year; Solomon Johnston, Henry Jennings, H. Y. Jones, Ezekiel Leonard, B. Pitts and Henry Johnson, were located. Sandy Thomas, J. W. Brooks, C. J. Murphy, B. Ewing were suspended. J. N. Davis withdrew from the connection. J. Cummings died during the year. On Saturday, Judge Akers, of Pontchatoula, was introduced to the conference and made a short address.

On Monday, Rev. G. P. Sullivan, representing the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE of New Orleans, was present and presented the claims of that paper, also making a short address on education.

The Sabbath services were interesting, Bishop Lomax preaching in the afternoon. The Bishop is a fine speaker and preached an earnest sermon, full of the Gospel and power. This conference is weak but a spirit of perseverance was manifest and a determination to press on the work. We enjoyed the hospitality of Judge William Akers and were most pleasantly entertained. G. P. S.

Sermon Sketches.

Subject: Praise and Thanksgiving.

REV. H. M. MANSON.

Text—Psalm 69, 30: "I will praise the name of God with a song and will magnify him with thanksgiving, 28-2.

1. "The Lord is my strength and my shield, my heart trusteth in him, and I am helped, therefore my heart greatly rejoices and with a song will I praise him; XC Psalm. It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praise unto thy name."

2. We are exhorted to praise God for making us, in the 139th Psalm, 140: "I will praise thee for I am fearfully and wonderfully made."

3. Praise him for his works, 147; Marvelous are thy works. Then "sing unto the Lord with thanksgiving."

4. For his judgment, Isiah xxv, 1, O Lord, thou art my God. I will exhalt thee, I will praise thy name, for thou hath done wonderful things.

5. We should thank him for our Christian government, and pray for the continuance of it.

6. And the last but not the least, 1 Cor. ix, 15.

Thanks be unto God for the unspeakable gift of his Son.

1. It was a good gift.
2. A perfect gift.
3. An unspeakable gift; Col. 3, 17; And whatsoever you do in deed or word, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him.

Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D, Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN pays us a handsome compliment in a recent issue, and also states that that he was offered a place on the programme of exercises at the Centennial Conference, but could not attend. The explanation comes in good time, for we did think hard of the apparent slight, and we are very proud of our colored Editor in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Delaware Conference Standard. That is correct.

MISSIONS AND THE WAR—The effects of the war on mission work in China are different in different places. It has not effected Foochow unfavorably, but in the other parts of the Empire it has wrought disaster. In both the Southern part of the province in which Foochow is situated and in that still farther South the Christians have been persecuted severely. About Canton several chapels have been destroyed and a very bitter feeling exists against the Christians. They are called by their heathen neighbors the "hands and feet" of the French, and are subjected to the most painful trials. The Mandarins do nothing to protect them: In Foochow, the colporteur of the American Bible Society, who daily sold Scriptures by the score before the war began, now sells them by the hundred. A growing desire is being felt to know the contents of this foreign Bible.

From the Districts.

Columbus District—West Texas Conference.

P. M. Carmicheal, presiding elder, writes: "It has been sometime since I have written to your paper concerning my district, and I thought a few words about it just before going to conference would not be out of place. I finished up the third round on the district Sept. 13-14 at Bro. P. Gate's work, on the Columbus circuit, and began the fourth at Columbus on the 17th, which was in connection with the district conference. The quarter passed off nicely, with nearly all the brethren present. Next morning (the 18th) the district conference convened with a full attendance of the district conference members. There were two things about the district conference that I enjoyed much, and that was the model Sunday-school conducted by Dr. N. H. Middleton, and his lecture on the condition of the Negro and the pulpit, notwithstanding the brethren all had their essays and sermons well prepared. Sept. 27th and 28th I was with Bro. E. Cogswell, on the Alleyton work. Here we found Bro. Cogswell and his people striving through the hard times, trying to pay off the debt that hung over the parsonage. Bro. Cogswell, I think, felt better after we left than he did when we came. From here went to Oakland, where, on the 4th and 5th of October, we held Bro. E. E. Cooper's quarter. Bro. Cooper and his people were in fine spirits, and seemed confident of raising all the benevolent money, as did Bros. Davis and Cogswell. The following Tuesday and Wednesday nights we were on the Boxville work. Bro. R. H. Ponton was sick, and did not meet us; however, we held the quarter. On this circuit there will be two new church houses built this year. On the 11th and 12th we were at Flatonia, where we found Bro. Jas. Browley and one or two of the brethren preparing for a supper, the proceeds of which were to pay off the pastor's salary. Times looked a little dry and dull, but, after all, we had a nice time. On the 18th and 19th we were at Peach Creek, with Bro. L. Carper. We found Bro. Carper some what ill, but he was able to attend the quarter. Bro. Carper and the brethren had done a little better than Bro. Jas. Browely at Flatonia. He had raised some of his benevolent money. There was some dissatisfaction but everything passed off nicely, and the next Saturday and Sunday we were at Luling, where we found Bro. Reed, who, though suffering with his throat, was standing firm at his post, trying to raise all the money he could for the new church house. We held the quarter, and on Sunday I tried to preach as best I could. The collection of the forenoon was given to the writer, and that of the afternoon to the new house. The day's collection resulted in the sum of $130.25—$114 for the new edifice, and $16.25 for the writer. I think that in a few months these struggling people will have a $2000 church to meet in. The trustees let the contract for $1,885 before I left. I found, also, that Bro. Reed had raised nearly all his benevolent money, though he was very poorly paid himself. We had an old hull of a house at Luling that we held service in, but we had the misfortune to have it burned down and had it not been that the Congregationalists were good enough to let us have the use of theirs we would have had no place to meet; but the Lord will bless us with a church soon. Nov. 1st and 2nd found me at Lockhart, where I held a real business-like quarterly conference; everything was not done to suit the feelings of all, but, I think, was done for the best. Anyhow, we left every one feeling better, as their actions expressed. Bro. Harris had all his money raised; God bless Bro. Harris and his people for their faithfulness. The next place was Weimar. Here we found a new house of worship nearly finished but so we could hold services in it. It is a nice house, and, though small, it will do our people here for some time. Bro. Banks and the brethren deserve great credit for the work done here. They had, with the aid of $100, built a house according to plan No. 1, and raited all their benevolent money, though Bro. Banks has got very little himself. The Lord is certainly with these Methodist preachers who live almost on nothing all the year. But I need not stop here to speak of that, time has long since proven the same. God bless the Weimar circuit. We will complete two more houses on this circuit this year. We went from there to the Ellinger and Toland work, where, on the 15th and 16th, we met Bro. Chase and a few of the brethren. Some of the brethren are very slow on this work. However, they had raised within $11 of the benevolent money, and promised to get it before conference. I will not be able this round to reach Caney, but I hear they are moving on nicely. Bro. Hall has got another church lot, and intends building, and he will bring all his benevolent money to the conference. I got Bro. E. Cogswell to go to Wharton for me. After the death of Bro. Jack Ceasar I appointed a local preacher to that work, and Bro. Cogswell tells me they are doing finely down there and will raise all the benevolent money. I did not hold Bro. Jarmon's quarter at Industry, but Bro. P. Gates held it for me. They had not raised all their money, but were in hopes. I now leave for Columbus circuit, where I expect to meet Bro. P. Gates and his people. I learned from Bro. Gates that he raised all his benevolent money. I think that we will come to conference with all our assessments, and that our district will be the banner district this year of the West Texas Conference. We are now preparing to meet Bishop Mallalieu and Dr. A. H. Gillett, in a centennial congress for our district, in which we expect a grand time. Pray for us."

Columbus, Texas.

Columbus West Texas Conference.

Rev. P. M. Carmichael, presiding elder, writes: "I expect you will be surprised to hear from the Columbus district, so long as it is after conference, but the continued illness of a part of family has caused the delay of this writing. I cannot say much more for my district than I have already said. According to the minutes of the year 1882, there was 1924 full members; and in 1883, the minutes showed about the same; in 1884, instead of there being 1924 members, there was only 1564 full members. The mistakes occur from chance in appointments on the districts, and the secretaries take the minutes of the previous year, and draw the appointments from it and therefore fill up and make up the minutes of the present, instead of using the preacher's blanks; and if there are not reports from a certain appointment they should fill up that appointment with figures of last. This is the way so many mistakes occur in our annual minutes.

The Columbus district for 1884, show 15 appointments, with 21 Sunday-schools, with 1375 scholars of all ages and has an average of five officers, making 105 officers and teachers. There has been an increase in Sunday-schools of four; of scholars 122; in officers five; in membership, 219; there being 1564 on the district at the beginning of the year, and 1783 at the end. There is an increase in probationers of 140, there being 124 at the beginning of the year, and 264 at the end. There has been a wonderful increase in the benevolent collections. I was asked to raise $443 for all purposes. There was reported at conference $356.75, but there was $17.35 that I have the receipt for, that was raised for education which was not reported at conference that will make an aggregate of $374.80 for the Columbus district. Hurrah for Columbus district! She is the banner district of West Texas Conference for raising money, to say nothing of the distance she is ahead in building churches. Elder Madison may tell his preachers to follow but not to lead as they are already behind. I am glad to have Bros. E. Henderson and W. H. Moesby on the Columbus district, but I could have kept the same men and lead this year. Brethren let this report inspire you to do more. Don't be idle, "let him that thinks he stand take heed, lest he fall," Set to work, be faithful and we'll come out at Austin next-year bearing the flag. We are $465 ahead.

Letters from the Pastors.

W. Hopewell, Boyds, Harrison county, Kentucky, writes: "I am in the field of the Lord and I find in His Word, the 25th chapter of Matthew and 20th verse 'Go, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.' I have been here at Mt. Pleasant Methodist Episcopal Church three years, and when I was appointed to this charge by Bishop R. S. Foster, I found an old log church almost decayed, and unsafe to hold service in, so I went to work with my brothers and sisters putting our wits to gether until we raised enough money with what the Church Extension board donated to us. March 25th, 1884, the old church was blown down by a cyclone, also the parsonage and destroyed all I possessed, with a great many of our members houses; but we put our trust in the Lord and went to work, and now we have a splendid church up and finished all but plastering and painting the seats. The times are hard with me and our financial condition on this work is low, but the church is spiritually alive. The Lord blessed us when we had our protracted meeting with twenty four conversions. Our Sunday-school at present is in a good condition, fifteen of the conversions were in the Sunday-school. There has been fifteen received into full membership this conference year, excluded four, eight have died, also fourteen children have died, and five remain on probation; received by letter two, dismissed by letter two. Full members males, 17; females, 30. Financial report for the year $577.52. We solicit the prayers of the conference."

Rev. George W. Baber, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church Ozan, Arkansas, writes: "I wish to make a few statements through the SOUTHWESTERN. Our fourth quarterly conference convened at Wiley Chapel, Rev. G. B. Donnelley in the chair. We had a glorious love feast on Sunday and the elder preached one of his best sermons, and we paid him $7.70 of his claim. The weather was bad and the people could not get out. Our people here want the Annual Conference here at Wiley Chapel. If we are in the woods we are able to take care of the conference. The church is about a mile from the depot. We wish the conference here that our people may see our beloved Bishop. I hope dear Doctor you will help me in this matter, and every brother of the Annual Conference, that we may have the conference here. Now Mr. Editor, I hope you will not throw this letter in the waste basket but give it space in your columns."

Rev. H. W. Tate, Springfield, Ohio, writes: "My charge is still in a prosperous condition temporally and spiritually. We began our protracted meeting November 23d, and continued four weeks with unabated religions interest, sinners were converted, backsliders reclaimed and the church much revived. Our meetings were well attended, and the spiritual interest increased daily. Eight were converted, eleven were at the altar, thirteen united with the Church, four were baptized. These are the ministers and local preachers who rendered acceptable service, Revs. A. B. Leonard, D. D., of the Central Methodist Episcopal Church; J. W. McAdoo, supernumerary of our conference; W. H. Brown, of 12th street Methodist Episcopal Church, Portsmouth, Ohio. Each preached one or more sermons. Local preachers, S. T. Jackson, Eben Jackson, James Justice and O. S. Hoffman, of Wittenburg College. This was a profitable season to all of us, and our faith in God was greatly strengthened. The meeting closed with the fourth quarterly meeting at which Rev. J. Courtney, presiding elder, was present and preached interestingly and acceptably morning and night to full congregations. Eighty-seven commnnded, and the love-feast was held Monday night following. A general good time prevailed. The quarterly collections amonnted to $38.29. On Tuesday December 23d, we held our Centennial service, and Presiding Elder Courtney delivered an animated address on "Centennial Thourghts on Methodism." The pastor read a condensed history of "Wiley Chapel Methodist Episcopal Church," and Rev. W. C. Echols added some appropriate remarks. A collection for the educational work in the South was taken after the addresses. We were pleased to learn that our beloved Bishop I. W. Wiley was to have held the ensuing session of our Annual Conference, and had already secnred a comfortable home for him when the painful intelligence of his unexpected death came to our ears. This news created general sadness to us all. The memorial service of him was largely attended and was a solemn occasion. Bishop Wiley had a warm place in the hearts of our colored Methodism here. Through the SOUTHWESTERN we have learned that Bishop Thomas Bowman will now hold our conference. The prospect to entertain the next conference looks quite encouraging and it will be a welcomed body to our city by Wiley Chapel's congregation. The SOUTHWESTERN is loved more and more up here and is doing good among our people. I am urging all to subscribe. Some of my subscribers are members of other denominations. Enclosed fined a list of 13 subscribers for this year. my charge has raised the following sums up to date, this year. Trustees income, $459.07; Sunday-school income, $33.77; paid on parsonage furniture, $12; raised and paid on benevolence, $24.66; Bishops, $5; conference claims, $2; donated to ministers, $6.64; stewards receipts for pastor, $313.10; paid presiding elder, 72; total $933.24. Last year our financial income for all purposes was $1,600. The "dull times" here this year has greatly retarded the church in financial success, but under the pressing hard times we think we have done well. There have been 27 accessions during the year."

Rev. Felix Ross, North Middleton, Ky., writes: "I have had a good time this far in my meetings. At Greenrick, there were 38 conversions, and at this point 48. The Church is in a good condition. Pray for me that I may grow in grace."

Rev. J. Snell, Pastor of Mount Vernon Church, Houston, Texas, writes. "I entered upon my work on the 6th of Dec., I preached on the 7th, and we had a good time. The Sunday-school was one of the greatest I have ever found before. Bro. Lewis Nicholson is our superintendent, Sisters Polk, and Simpson are the teachers. We have raised $17.20 as our Centennial jubilee collection. The sisters in this charge are determined workers. The Lord give me grace in the sight of these people this year."

Letters From the Laity.

M. A. Hobson, Esq., Sunday-school superintendent, writes: "Doubtless your paper will contain something concerning the Centennial Jubilee at other places and we wish to be known as having observed the same on the day set apart by our church. At our morning session we used in a general rehearsal of our prepared Centennial programme, preparatory to evening session, 3, p. m., at which time was assembled the Church and Sunday-school. At the close of our services addresses were made by Rev. J. Campbell and Prof. J. H. Brooks, touching the purpose of the Centennial contributions. Better times never prevailed and will not soon be passed from notice. The amount raised will be furnished for publication by our beloved pastor, which sum we feel safe in saying will not be less than $40."

Miss Addie H. Williams, Houston Seminary, writes: "We have been reading the SOUTHWESTERN to day; as our teacher is very anxious to get the scholars in the habit of reading, we thought it would be good to adapt such a paper as the SOUTHWESTERN, which is suitable to our wants. It teaches us to obey the laws of our God, and the laws of health. We read to-day "Greeting and Retrospects," on page four the issue of January 1st. I think the advice given to our young men concerning professions and trades is just the thing needed among our people, for it is all that. I hope you will bring them up where they ought to be. I hope you will continue to impress these important facts on the minds of our young people for it is through them that we expect to be represented. With our best wishes for your success in all good efforts."

Methodism in Troy, Ohio

BY REV. W. W. HESTON.

There are three colored Churches here, Methodist Episcopal, African Methodist Episcopal and Baptist. The first is, and the others are not paid for. The African Methodist Episcopal Church is in a situation every way inferior to the locality of our church, its loss in eligibility of position is made up in impudence. Pastor and people manage to keep up the old cry of slave church, under the white people, white Bishop, and so on. Even if slaves, our people have the advantage of theirs in this, that we change masters annually, while the same task-master come yearly to them. The old colored people used to prefer a white master with power to a black driver with limited orders. So do we. Do the white Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church prevent the three colored Methodist denominations from uniting? It is pride, desire for office and love of money in the leaders which prevents union among them, not color. Their talk is only the cry of the flying thief to divert attention from himself. Why do these independent colored churches keep their members constantly seeking donations from these same white people whom they censure us for living in church-fellowship with? Where does Wilberforce get its means of support, and whence originally came the institution itself but from our white people? Ask Dr. Rust or Bishop Wayman about it. Take out the contributions of the white people, and very little of the property of the African Methodist Episcopal Church will remain, and that little will be more than covered with liabilities to these much-abused white people. The members of the Methodist Episcopal Church are free, but loyal. Now and then one of the members of these other churches comes to us in sheep's clothing, but in a little while we find the claws of the wolf sticking out, as in the case of H. W. Chase, in 1880. We prefer such leaders as Dr. Taylor, under whom we look for nothing but success and better relations with our members of all colors. It is a hard case when a church must hold its membership by distributing falsehood against a sister church. What will they do when the stock of falsehood is exhausted or the people can no longer be duped? The Methodist Episcopal Church can exist without either such methods or people as need to be retained by the use of them. The revival of the worn-out fabrication about the churches belonging to the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church gains credence in the mind of some very young converts to the African Methodist Episcopal faith, but they will learn the truth when it will answer their purpose as well as an untruth. A Mr. Henderson was proposed to debate these questions with me but I was too busy to accommodate him. It has been shown that white and colored people worship together in many of our churches in the North. There is no independence where there is constant begging. "Behold how good it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Day of Prayer for Colleges.

Encouragements to prayer for students by the inter-collegiate, athletic activity of students, we often hear and read much. It is pleasant to know that there is a corresponding activity on the part of Christian students for the spiritual benefit of one another and of their comrades. Through the college department of the International (Y. M. C. A.) Committee, we learn that there are now one hundred and eighty one Young Men's Christian Associations in as many colleges. There are thirty-seven thousand students in these colleges, one third of whom are professing Christians; the majority of the latter being members of the Young Men's Christian Association. During the past year at the various State and college conventions some two thousand students have met in groups of from fifty to a hundred or more, have taken counsel about the Christian work they were doing for their fellows in college, have received stimulus from each other, and in answer to united prayers, and have gone back to be a blessing to their fellow students, specially to the twenty-five thousand who in these colleges were unconverted at the beginning of the year. In response to their prayers and efforts, seventeen hundred of the students professed conversion before the end of last year. Very many of them are now at work with their older Christian fellow students to make this year the most fruitful one spiritually, ever known in the history of American colleges. It is interesting to know that all these associations conduct meetings for prayer, and more than half of them have meetings or classes for in Bible study. Eighty-six maintain meetings for the promotion of interest in foreign mission work. One hundred and seven observed the day of prayer for colleges, and we hope a much greater number will do so the present year. We believe this whole volunteer inter-collegiate Christian movement is in direct answer to the prayers that have been offered on this day of prayer. Two thousand one hundred and nineteen of these Christian students are candidates for the ministry and of these candidates, eighty-three have been converted since entering college, and twenty-five during the last college year. Eighty-one report that they were influenced in their decision by the work of college associations. One hundred and eighty-two intended to be foreign missionaries, seven of these having been converted since entering college, and twenty six report that they were led to decide upon the foreign field by the missionary interest awakened in the meetings of the association. We are glad to add that if any pastor or any other of our readers interested in holding meetings for prayer on this day would like more information on this subject it will be cheerfully sent them from the office of the International Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations, Y. M. C. A. Building, corner 23d street and 4th avenue, New York City.

"The truth in masquerade" is Byron's term for a lie. But it is the truth, and no masquerade, that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup cures coughs and colds, and so prevents worse evils, that may end in death. No cure so speedy.

Canada is working vigorously for Dominion prohibition; the Scott act being the stepping-stone to that end.

As a raindrop foretells a storm, so does a pimple upon the human body indicate health-destroying virus in the blood, which can be neutralized and expelled only by Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic.

Central Alabama Conference.

BY REV. W. H. NELSON.

The Central Alabama Conference, contains within its bounds the Marion, Huntsville, Ashville and Dadeville Districts, bounded as per the Discipline, being one of our lately organized Southern conferences, deserves, as one of the members of that great body of over one hundred annual conferences of the M. E. Church, some notice and words of commendation and praise. We do not claim that it deserves all the praise any other deserves, even in proportional consideration, or all that we may think; yet it fully merits a consideration. It is not one of those conferences that has had much real attention given it by the Church, as some others. Seldom does it have General Conference officers visit it, and very seldom our Sunday school workers. It has not a Clark University nor a Central Tennessee College over which to boast and feel proud, located within its bounds; and but very little attention has ever been given it in the way of educating its ministers and the laity at large. This we do not feel to be, at all right, when in some States, besides the universities, there are several grammar schools. We could make out very well in this State without a university, as we are doing, being so centrally located, but taking into consideration the thousands of ignorant people who cannot possibly get to our central universities but must be educated or always prove dangerous citizens, the Church ought—yes, thrice I repeat the Church ought—to give us one or two more grammar schools or seminaries in Alabama. It is true it has one normal school, carried on by the Freedmen's Aid Society, situated at Huntsville, Ala., and this school is at present doing excellent work under the accomplished Mrs. M. Baines and other associate teachers. Notwithstanding, this school might have all the while done much more for the Central Alabama Conference at large than what it has, (for it has done the conference, strictly speaking, very little good) but it was, in our judgment, unwisely located which consequently has rendered it inaccessible very largely. Aside from this school and place, the Church has done scarcely nothing in this State to better the intellectual condition of the people. But returning more directly to the conference, as a whole, we would first speak of its organization, second, of its progress and work during eight years; third the present condition of the conference; fourth, the future outlook.

II—

It is to be remembered, however, that the Central Alabama Conference, once formed a part of what was called and still is known as the Alabama Conference. But with the other [illegible] the colored and white [illegible] were in huddles to [illegible] And in the fall of 1870, on early Oct. 23rd, after the General Conference, the colored members found themselves, under Bishop Scott, organized into what was known as the Central Alabama Conference. This title, however, the brethren assumed manfully and have worn gracefully ever since. This separation, though, did do good in one particular if in no other. For when this conference was organized on Thursday morning under that sainted man, Bishop [illegible] there could not be seen what [illegible] be seen—a number of [illegible] mostly young men, rather than was to [illegible] of very old men [illegible] taken [illegible] and [illegible] know- [illegible] this state, [illegible] the pale faces and those of the [illegible] Church [illegible] However, there [illegible] assisted the [illegible] gentlemen, [illegible] this limited weakness [illegible] tly when the Bishop had to [illegible] peatedly "Brethren you are [illegible] a conference of your own and to yourselves; therefore, you must get up and act when the work of the conference lies before you. It may on a moment's reflection, be seen why these good brethren were so slow to act; for first, they mostly were untrained and secondly, they had the white men to do the greater portion of the talk before while now it all is upon them. Though this state of affairs was seen then it is to my mind now great and marvelous, that these things no longer exist. Very soon this conference ran up to manhood over all backwardness in speech. It was astonishing even in that first conference to see the latent power of speech brought out although it was not very logical, grammatical, nor pointed. Yet, it was speech. One could not help feeling tickled to hear some brother address the chair, "Mr. Bookkup" or rising and addressing no one say "I move if I can obtain a second" or even make a motion sitting down. But so much for organization and first session. Second, during these eight or nine years this conference has been met with and presided over by Bishops Scott, Harris, Wiley, Simpson, Bowman, Andrews, Foster, Walden, and Foss. Of course some have been here more than once making out the eight or nine sessions. Bishops Andrews, Harris, and Dr. Walden, (now bishop) all spoke on their return the second and third times, of marked improvements in all the conference workings. The last session was repeatedly praised by Bishop Walden. Since organized Revs. Lakin, Lonis, Franklin, Nelson and McCauley, have presided. This conference has never been reinforced much by transferes from other conferences, but the doors through the pastors and elders have always been open to worthy and intelligent young men. We have all the old men, and uneducated (such as we have), that we need, and I was about to say some to spare. At no conference meeting has there been seen a decrease in the laity. Every year the statistics show an increase which has run from three thousand at first up to seven thousand in spite of all the emigration, and losses by death, withdrawals etc. The conference roll has grown from twenty-five up to nearly sixty. Steadily the work grows on, and has settled itself in nearly every prominent town, and through the country generally.

Third, Just now is to be seen a body of men in that conference who, for looks, (and looks has much to do with a Methodist preacher) for moral ideas, for intelligence and discipline in Methodistic economy, taking all things into consideration, are not to be surpassed by a single Southern conference. While the Church has not done much for education in this State, yet, this conference has drawn on such institutions as Clark University, the Central Tennessee College and from these got intelligent aid in numbers a half dozan young, sprightly, and consecrated men who, are enthusiastic, and willing to spend, and be spent in the service of the Master. Some of these young men have done more than taken a course in theology; they, on the other hand have taken the classics, and they, all, report good revivals and church work. This last session in November brings to us four young active, and vigorous men, viz.: Rev. J. J. Holland, A. M., B. D., Rev. A. N. Jackson, Rev. M. McKinney and Rev. A. W. White, respectively of the Lexington, Louisiana and two of the South Kansas conferences; these are now stationed with us, all except one, and since two have been tried one year, we have knowledge of them and the others are highly recommended.

Brethren, welcome among us for our God is your God, and your faith is ours. This conference stands in proportion to its membership [illegible] on a level with others in our [illegible] financial schemes. The business like manner of the conference at the last session in disposing of and proposing questions, received the good words of that highly cultured parliamentarian, Bishop Walden. This conference has always stood very firmly and at present stands firmly on moral questions. A very few cases have come up before it, but whenever they do, they generally come ont the little end of the horn. From time to time, this conference has opposed in every form the use of tobacco, wines, whiskies, the desecration of the Sabbath in excursion rides and have passed very strong resolntions against their patronage any way or at any time. The bar of admission has been raised from time to time, so that candidates coming for entrance are required to be free from all the above named four habits, and to be mentally strong. Already this conference has away in Clark University or soon will have in all, four of its members who are preparing themselves for the work of preaching the Gospel whereunto they are called.

Fourth, this outlook, judging from the present and past, we can but say is flattering and encouraging to all. It is really encouraging to see the coming forth class of young men, whose works are destined by God's grace to be heroic in the saving cause of Christ, and in the alleviating suffering humanity. It is encouraging to have had a bright class of young men enter on probation, the conference at its last session. It is enconraging to see what grounds this conference takes on issnes of right and wrong. Very soon with the present class of men now on deck, and the incoming regiment, this, the Central Alabama Conference will be worthy of its collocation at the alphabetical head of the entire course of annual conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Amen!

What We Saw By the Way.

BY REV. WILLIS H. JACKSON.

Leaving Brenham on the 8th, on the 2:05 p. m. train, en route for the Second District Conference, Navasota district, we were soon landed at Hempstead, where we spent many of our boyhood days. At 9:40 we boarded the H. T. C. R. R. which soon landed us at Bryan, a distance of 48 miles. I spent one happy day and night with my father, Rev. B. Taylor is pastor. I preached for him. Leaving here we arrived at Hearne at 12 30 p. m. on the night of the 9th. Rev. W. H. Hamilton is pastor, and ever ready to accommodate every member of the conference. This is a new work but speaks well for its pastor. Rev. W. B. Pullam, presiding elder in the chair. Conference proceeded to business, which was transacted with creditability. Adjurned Sunday night. We boarded the 8:10 train on the I. & G. N. R. R. in company with Elder S. Gates, presiding elder of Waco district, and Jesse Dawson, of Brenham. We were soon at Malno Junction, and called on Rev. Samuel L. Klaxston, an old superannuated minister of the Texas conference. He talked of many of his past labors which were fresh in his mind, but he has lost much of his Methodist faith and treatment of a brother, especially of a colored brother. At 11:20 we boarded a train on the G. C. & Santa Fe R. R. The many things we saw by the way, which seemed so horrible was 100 State convicts at work on this road, part of them were white and part colored. A Mexican broke ranks just then, and the guards guns failing to discharge their contents, he escaped. After a somewhat weary ride we arrived home safely. Pray for me."

America's Pride.

True American men and women by reason of their strong constitution, beautiful forgal rich complexions and characteristic energy, are envied by all nations. It is the general use of Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, which brings about these results.

The Voice has an open letter to Mr. Chaffee, of the Republican National Committee, pointed questions to that gentleman concerning the alleged corruption of Mr. St. John. Will be reply.

The M. E. Church.

Action of the Centennial Conference on the Oxford League.

A committe was raised by the Conference, on the Oxford League, consisting of Dr. J. H. Vincent, (chairman,) Dr. M. C. Briggs, Lieutenant Governor G. D. Shands, Rev. H. A. Monroe, Judge J. W. F. White, Rev. Dr. C. B. Galloway, Rev. C. S. Smith, Rev. J. H. Anderson, and Rev. F. M. Hamilton.

This committee's report was adopted, as follows, with a slight amendment as noted below:

The Oxford League has for its objects:

I. The commemoration of the meetings of certain students at Oxford, England, between 1729 and 1737, principally under the leadership of John and Charles Wesley, from which meetings were developed the great religious awakenings and revivals of the last century by which the doctrines and spirit of the apostolic Church were again given in their fullness to the world, and the power of the primitive Church once more established.

II. The furtherance of the fourfold objects of the original Oxford Club.

1. The more careful and devout study of the Holy Scriptnres.

2. The cultivation of a nobler and purer personal Christian character.

3. The study of the ancient* classics for literary culture.

4. The devising of methods for doing good to others.

The Oxford League will, in the fuller development of this scheme, encourage Methodist youth,

1.) To study the Holy Scriptures with a view to the promotion of personal piety.

2.) To become familiar with the biblical origin of the doctrines, spirit, and methods which characterize their own Church.

3.) To trace the presence and development of the Methodistic force in the Holy Catholic Church from the days of the apostles to the present time.

4.) To trace the origin of the modern evangelical and apostolic revival, known as Methodism—"Christianity in earnest"—in the rectory of Epworth, the halls of Oxford, and in the consecrated homes of the best English society; and to promote a just appreciation of the strength, scholarship, and dignity of the Methodistic movement.

5.) To promote personal consecration to practical work, carrying the Gospel in personal service to the most needy, and to the most degraded, to the godless poor and to the godless rich, reading to the bedridden and the blind, visiting the sick room, the hospital, and the prison, looking after new families comming into the community, and inviting children and adults to the Sunday-school and the public service, studying the various benevolences of the Church, and thus cultivating intelligent enthusiasm in the entire work of the Church.

6.) To promote intellectual training under the auspices of the Church among those who no longer attend school, and thus to develop a rational and refined Christian social life in which accomplished people may find inspiration, and people of limited opportunities be brought into gentle, ennobling, and sanctifying fellowships.

7.) To further these various ends by publication and circulation of permanent documents devoted to the history, philosophy, doctrines, institutions, and achievements of Methodism.

1. The Oxford League may be adopted by the several branches of Methodism, each Church providing general plans and literature, through its own publishing houses and under its own authority.

2. The Oxford League may be organized in any individual church.

3. The pastor should be, ex officio, president, with an assistant who shall be nominated by the pastor, approved by the League, and called "Leader of the League."

4. There may be three classes of members.

1.) Voluntary Readers, who need not belong to the Church, but who promise to do the required reading of the Initial Grade. These readers may attend the regular meetings of the League, but shall have no voice in its control.

2.) Registered Members, who shall be members or probationers of the Church, and who promise to do the required reading of the Initial Grade, and to attend the four regular meetings of the League each year. These members shall have a vote in the approval of the leader.

3.) Active Members, who, being full members of the Church, pledge themselves to do the required reading of the Initial and Second Grades, and to attend at least four regular and four special meetings of the League each year. All the busines of the Local League shall be in the hands of the active members.

5. Each branch of the great Methodist family, adopting the Oxford League, may appoint such courses of reading as the authorities of such Churches may approve, in Church history, general and denominational; in religious literature, biblical, devotional, and biographical; in benevolent work, missionary, temperance, etc.; in general literature, science, and art; and shall adopt such regulations concerning terms of membership, local control, reports, etc., as they may deem best.

*The conference directed that this word ancient to be changed to Christian. It is historically true, never heless, that the original Oxford Club did study the ancient classics.

About twenty-five years since Mason & Hamlin announced important improvements in reed instruments, then known as melodeons. So considerably were the changes and improvements that they claimed for their new instrument another and better name,—organ or cabinet organ,—by which it has since become universally known, and obtained wonderful usefulness and success; about 80,000 organs being now made in this country yearly, while American organs are largely exported to every civilized country.

The same company now offer to the public an improved Upright Piano, which they have been experimenting upon and testing for a number of years, and confidently claim present improvements of the greatest practical value. A distinguishing characteristic is that they entirely dispense with wood in holding the strings, which are secured by metal fastenings directly to the iron plate, so securing perfect vibration and more pure musical tones, with much greater durability. The changing conditions of wood, so objectionable in such a matter, are entirely avoided. The improvement certainly seems to be one of the greatest importance.—Boston Traveller.

Paquet, the agnostic, is dead. He was paralyzed while denying the doctrine of eternal punishment.

Miss Nellie Kent,

Wellington, Lorain county, O., writes. "Dr. S. B. HARTMAN & Co., Columbus, O.; Gentlemen: I have been a great sufferer from chronic catarrh, bronchitis and neuralgia of the face. I have been taking your PERUNA for one month. The neuralgia and catarrh is almost well, and the cough is much better. I like your PERUNA very much."

C. E. Dupler, aged thirty-four years, of Equality, Illinois, had been affected with a chronic catarrh which he first discovered six years ago. In succession he lost his smell, taste and hearing. The disease was so malignant that it not only attacked the softer parts, but destroyed the bony partition of the nose and seriously affected the external parts. He could only hear a watch ticking by holding it close to his ear. He suffered intense pain in the nose, from which green, dry clots of offensive odor fell. In this condition he presented himself to Dr. Hartman several months ago. He can now hear a watch eight inches from his right and six inches from his left ear. His taste and smell are again returning, and the external part of the nose is quite well. Few more grateful patients ever left a physician's office than Mr. Dupler. He said, "Why in the world was PERUNA not prescribed for me long ago?"

Cramps of the Stomach.

We have the privilege of reporting the following case. Those similarly affected can get the name and address of Dr. Hartman. The lady does not want her name in the papers. For a year, or years, (the writer does not remember the length of time,) this lady had cramps, the most fearful, of the stomach, every day and night, "which would be followed by that terrible weakness, which was something wonderful." The suffering and distress of this lady was indescribable and almost unendurable. After all the physicians and medicines had failed, and all hope had almost fled, Dr. Hartman was consulted, and from the first day of taking his PERUNA, the cramps and all bad feeling left her, and now for over a month has been entirely free from every symptom. A more thankful patient no doctor ever had.

Mr. Beetz, druggist, Charlestown, Kanawha Co., W. Va., writes: "PERUNA sells well here and gives good satisfaction. Customers speak well of it."

Dr. J. Anderson, Coshocton, Ohio, writes: "Your PERUNA sells well and gives good satisfaction. I consider it a splendid medicine."

PHILLIPS & HUNT.

Since our debut as editor it has been our duty to point out mistakes in quite a number of our exchanges We have been careful to look for corrections and have generally failed to find them. The Methodist Advocate, Chatannooga, Christian Recorder and Delaware Conference Standard are noble and notable exceptions to this rule, and the latter is especially commendable and praiseworthy for its prompt unquivocal, and brotherly actions in all things touching the SOUTHWESTERN. Bro. Munro is a jewel, and he would do honor in a much larger sphere than any he has yet occupied.

We regard Bishop Taylor's plans as in no sense chimerical. Whoever undertakes great things in Africa for Africa's sake may expect opposition. That disease has become chronic on two continents, and cannot be cured all at once. We are on the threshhold of great Methodist achievements in Africa. Liberia is to be chained to interior, and Central Africa by denominational bonds, and good results to both it and to our own country are to follow. Bishop Taylor thinks Christianity can go forth into Africa, trusting in Christ alone, and that so it can succeed there. It is well to try this plan. A great deal of money has been spent there and we have very little to show for it. Pray for him.

The New Orleans Times Democrat, of Jan. 22d, undertakes but signally fails in the attempt to answer Mr. George W. Cable's article in the January Century. Mr. Cable discussed the Negroes' case in equity, our confrere, discusses the Negroes' case in sociology, and there is no relevancy between the two cases. One rests upon the law of option or choice, the other upon statutory enactments. Whether purchasing a ticket for $1 should receive as much, use of the same kind from the seller as any purchaser of like amount, that is the case in equity. We now see, feel, and have too much of the sociology already. What does our neighbor say as to a little more of the equity between the blacks and whites of the South and the North?

The Methodist Year Book, edited by W. H. DePuy, D. D., LL.D., Phillips & Hunt, New York; Crauston & Stowe, Cincinnati. Price 25cts. Contains much valuable information, and general statistics of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which will be of interest, not only to Methodists, but to the reading public generally. Dr. DePuy has had the courage to refer to our colored work at page 57, of the Year Book, if he had only cut [illegible] table showing all [illegible] in the [illegible] would have [illegible] number [illegible] a gain of [illegible] the [illegible], [illegible] this Year [illegible] in the [illegible] and the Year [illegible].

Negro Literature.

It is astonishing how rapidly this class of literature is increasing, and what a volume of it has already accumulated in the book market since freedom. Besides what is in type we know that many a pigeon hole is now crammed with manuscripts only awaiting the time when brain and pocket shall be able to back each other. It must be expected that much of what has been written and printed by colored men whose acquaintance with books has been formed chiefly since 1863, will have its greatest merit in the estimate the writers themselves place upon it. We have no doubt that much of it was the fruit of a desire on the part of the writers to see their own names printed on the author's page in a book. All this is perfectly in harmony with the natural process of mental development. It forms one of the most hopeful chapters in the progress of the Negro race to Freemanhood. When any race tends to mental it also tends to moral growth and worth. The surest indication of a downward movement by any people is their devotion to mirth, frivolity, and dissipating pleasure rather than the steady mental effort required in book-making and mind building. One only needs to consider what he will see by looking from Berlin to Paris for a verification of this postulation. France is vivacious, frivolous and airy. Germany is studious, loquacious, voluminous and laborious. The latter naturally conquered the former, if our characterization is correct. France is mighty in society. Germany is mighty in battle. But the last fact is consequent upon the first. We repeat it, therefore, that it is a hopeful outlook for the future of the Negro that he, though deprived of a reasonable opportunity to learn mechanics has turned to literary work for a business. As from the grub-worm comes the gilded butterfly, so from the book-maker ultimately comes forth the warrior, teacher and ruler of men.

As to the Negro's productions, for the present curiosity will make them sell, and by the time this is satisfied the Negro's growth and mastery of the subjects upon which he treats will furnish an ample and a normal stimulant to the sale of his works. This will carry the author up a pace, and if he is not afraid of his black or mingled color, and does not try to blot it out by amalgamation with his whiter brother, and spoil the plans of Almighty God in creating him to be not of the fairer color; he will then take his race up with him when he goes to the higher circles of both physical and spiritual life. The Negro author's patrons, for the present, must not be the curious alone. On the contrary the best of his works must be selected and bought and placed upon the centre table in every Negro's parlor and in the library case of every Negro student. They must be read by Negro men at leisure hours, by Negro ladies at odd and select times, by Negro girls and boys under the direction and inspiration of the older people. Their contents should form the topic of an evening's social and family conversation each week, and pictures of worthy Negroes should decorate our walls. Thus should we fan to a flame the fires of Negro patriotism, and kindle race love once more to a burning heat on the sacred alters of the Negro's heart. Thus inspired he will instinctively rise and look toward Africa, his Fatherland. The white people have, for many centuries, been both looking and going not towards but to Africa. That doesn't matter, they cannot retain their whiteness and prosper there. They always find that Africa is the short route to the grave or to the Negro's complexion. God has reserved Africa mainly for the Negro. There are two things that we would advise Negro housekeepers and young people to begin to do at once. 1st. Fire out the first and last book peddler who comes around. They sometimes have a good book, and they offer them on small payments and long time, but they are dear in the end, and besides, the fellow that sells the book hardly ever collects the money and trouble often ensues. The man that sells pictures is in the same case with the book man. Let them both alone. What then? Consult your pastor or teacher; look into our book department, read our editorial matter, if you find a book write to us about it, if it is not one of the books prescribed for preachers we will tell you all about it; if it is one of these you can be sure it is all right, or it wouldn't be there. If you want a book we will tell you just where to get it and what it will cost you, and we know we can help you greatly by aiding you both to save money and get better books at the same time.

We want now to call your attention to a few publications by Negro authors, which we think every family ought to buy, keep and use. They are:

First; "The History of the Negro Race from 1620 to 1880," two large 8mo. volumes, cloth and gold gilt binding, with a fine steel engraving of the Hon. George W. Williams, the author, as a frontispiece to the first volume. The first volume contains 481 pages, and the second 611, or 1092 pages in the two volumes. The type is clear and bold, old people can read it easily. It is by odds the greatest work ever published in its line by any Negro in this country. The author happened to be a personal friend of ours, and we know him to be not only capable but also an impartial writer, who has written not for a church but a race. Price, $7.50.

Second, "The Undergrounnd Railroad," by William Still, Esq. This is also an 8mo. work in one volume, 780 pages, several styles of binding, the finest in morocco and gold gilt, with stained edges. It is full of pictures beginning with a fine life-like steel engraving of the author. As in the case of Mr. Williams so in the case of Mr. Still, we have the good fortune to know him personally, and to know his motive for writing, and the matter and manner will speak for itself. It is a complete encyclopediæ of the efforts made by Negro men, women and children to gain their freedom, and of the great people, white and black, who aided them. Neither Mr. Still nor Mr. Williams have made it a point to sneer at religion or lecture the colored people for their emotions. They had mighty subjects outside of themselves about which to write; and in performing this they have both tried to glorify God and elevate by honoring their race. Mr. Still's work is sold according to style of finish; and we will furnish any information that is desired as to prices. We are not agents, and speak of these works without personal interest.

The third work is "Plantation Melodies and Revival Songs," by Marshall W. Taylor, 16mo. 242 pages, cloth and gold gilt, with two engravings, one of the author, and sold for 60 cents. Its recommendation is that it has been before the public more than two years and has gone through several editions, still having a good sale. These works are entirely distinct the one from the other; their authors have no business connection, but by a coincidence of the most agreeable kind, each has written up that particular phase of Negro history that was most forcibly borne down upon him, and the result is:

1. A history of the Negro in Africa free, and in America slave and free, by Williams.

2. A history of the Negro in his efforts to obtain freedom, what he did and suffered, and who aided him, by Still.

3. A history of the Negro's sufferings as told by himself in his songs, by Taylor.

When hindered in his worship the Negro used to sing:

"You may hender me here,
But you can't up there;
God sets in heaven
And He answers prayer."

Or sometimes when the white folks pressed them close they would sing:

"Sinner, better mind how you walk on the green,
Your foot might slip and your soul be lost."

Or if a mean overseer or master died:

"Oh didn't old Pharoah get lost, get lost."

Or when troubles overwhelmed them:

"Swing low, sweet chariot, come to carry me home."

These are the songs we have saved. They tell the story of the Negro's wrongs as none but he could tell them. The Negro's ought to have these books. They ought to be in every home. We will send the SOUTHWESTERN and either of the first two for the price of the book, but this offer is strictly cash. These works are not political campaign documents, or tracts from infidel publishing houses to draw away and weaken the Negro's religious faith. They are histories of permanent value, and free from every objectionable feature. They will become more and more valuable as the facts they contain become more and more unattainable and remote. Every library in the country, and especially of every Negro school and college in the land, should have and preserve a copy of these works. We shall call your attention to this class of literature as other works are produced and sent to us. Read our book news closely, especially that which you find in our editorial columns.

For church uses there is the "Stewards Plan and Record Book," by Rev. Isaac H. White, Presiding Elder of the Philadelphia district of the Delaware Conference. For sale at the Methodist Episcopal Publishing House, 1018 Arch street Philadelphia, Pa. Price, cloth, 30c. and morocco finish, 40c. per copy. The mechanical work is superb. The size of the work has been suited to the purpose, so that it can easily be carried in the coat pocket like a pocket or memorandum book. The title page furnishes space for an indorsement by each presiding elder so that it will appear at a glance that the author aims to help them and expects their indorsement. The next feature is a calendar of the year by days, weeks and months, then a preface by the author wherein a brief explanation of his intention is stated. Then comes a double page ruled into nine principal columns, and the last two of the first six of these columns sub-ruled for dollars and cents. The first four columns are headed Date, Sexton, Fuel, Miscellaneous. Under date the day of the week is written, then follows the amount needed for either sexton, fuel or miscellaneous purposes; next, under received, is a place to set down what has been collected for these purposes; after that, under paid, which is the last column of the six on the first half of the double page, he sets down the money as it was paid out. The other half sheet of the double page is widely ruled for recapitulation purposes. By reading across the page you reach the result in detail for any week or day as the case may be, while by reading from the bottom of the page you get the total for a number of weeks or months as may be desired. It will last 60 weeks, so that the author evidently intended that one volume should serve a year. The second division of the work has a plan for subscription and collections, with a credit for all payments. This section is a complete thing, enabling the steward to sum up the financial standing any given member in a month. This section contains room for 189 names of subscribers. The third division contains the form of report to the quarterly conference; there are eight of these forms, so that the steward can make them out in duplicate, giving one to the conference and retaining the other for his own use. There ought to be a few blank leaves in the back part of the book for reference, and it ought to be paged; besides this we can point to no useful improvement on the work. It shows that a very systematic head is on the Philadelphia District of the Delaware Conference. It is encouraging, because it shows that the old church may soon expect her colored children to ask less in the way of nurses and money appropriations, while they shall, at every possible point, increase their efforts for self-help and for the help of others. We rejoice in our connection with a race whose future is so fraught with every pleasing prospect. Because it is a useful book everybody should buy Bro. White's plans. Because he is a member of our Church, our people should buy it. Because he is a Negro every Negro should feel a measure of pride over and above the ordinary in his efforts and rally to his help. Nearly all colored book men get in debt and fail. Let us make this one succeed, not only for his sake, but as an inspiration to others. The Plans is a very useful work.

HOME ORNAMENTS.

J. W. Cromwell & Co., of Washington, D. C., are executing a series of fine steel engravings of colored men. The series will begin with Hon. Frederick Douglass, and if they are sustained by a paying patronage, continue until 15 or 20 fine pictures shall be in the homes of the people. They should be encouraged. We have not enough of the right kind of pictures for our homes, and too many of those which are of a misleading, immoral tendency, or of men who would not think it fit to hang one of a colored man in their home. Send in orders at once. Let us make and keep our homes bright, cheerful and happy, and our lives, hearts and consciences like them.

President Cleveland.

We have no engloy to pronounce upon President Cleveland or vice-President Hendricks; but it is due them both to say that since the election their utterances concerning the colored people have been in excellent taste, and eminently satisfactory to us as far as they go. We believe the active partizans of Mr. Blaine will belittle themselves if they ask anything or show a desire even to have favor at the hands of the incoming administration. But there is a class of clerical employes who should not be removed for political reasons. It was a good move to consult George W. Williams, he knows a great deal about colored politicians. He knows where the breakers are and knows how to steer around them. But a Democratic administration that does not provide for Peter H. Clark and J. Allen Ross is not very politic in its methods. We do not see what honorable claims such politicians as Mr. C. C. Astwood can have upon this incoming administration. He held an office and did his best for Blaine and Kellogg in the Louisiana campaign of 1884, if we are correctly informed, and ought justly to go down with the party wreck.

A Great Day in Denver.

Ten years ago we were invited by the Rev. D. H. Moore, of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Cincinnati, Ohio, to preach for him in his church at 11 o'clock, and after to meet him and his family at their residence for dinner. There has been no time since then that we have been able to discover any change in the deep feeling of interest he manifested toward us, nor any cessation of our love and veneration for him. We have marked the steps of his progress to the recent climax in Denver, where in a single day himself with the aid of ex-Governor John Evans, Bishop and Mrs. Warren, $20,000 was raised for the endowment of Denver University. $50,000 was needed to complete a qualification for a donation of $100,000 from Mrs. Bishop Warren. Such men as Drs. Moore, Crauston, Buckley, Bayliss, and other ministers whose names occur but need not be mentioned now must be brought more fully, and prominently before the Church. Their progressive catholic spirit is the demand of the times.

The Weekly Times-Democrat.

The weekly New Orleans Times-Democrat is hereafter to be published at the low rate of $1.50 per year, or it and the weekly edition of the New York World for $2.20, both and a Waterbury, nickle plated watch for $4.20 per year. This edition of the Democrat will contain condensed news of the week from all parts of the world, and much religious and moral reading matter. It is proposed to make it a clean healthy sheet, suitable for the home, and family. It will also pay especial attention to gathering such secular news as will be of interest to the colored people in the city and country. This is a step toward the right kind of recognition for our people who are here in large numbers, and have many business interests to be considered. Our advice to them is to meet every step toward business recognition by another toward the enterprise from whence it comes, and to begin with this one. The only hope for the colored people is to take hold of every sort of business enterprise, and thus utilize their vast possibilities in this community.

Bishop Merrill.

One of the strongest men in our Church to-day about whom as little is said as of any ordinary member thereof, is Bishop Stephen M. Merrill. Some years ago when we came to be admitted into full membership of the conference, he was presiding and a brother whose calling seemed to be understood to be to give young men as much trouble as he could, if they were trying to do any good, preferred a charge of maladministration against us. Bishop Merrill looked steadily first at the accused and then at the accuser and said: "Well maybe you understand the law one way and Bro. Taylor another. His maladministration is probably not so much against the law as your idea of law." "As many as will admit him raise your hands." We have had an eye on him, that is the Bishop, ever since.

Personal.

—The address of Rev. G. C. Harden, until further notice, will be Nashville, Tenn.

—The address of Rev. J. T. B. W. Summerhill, will be hereafter at Springhill, Henry county, Tenn.

—Bishop Nind being unable, Bishop Walden held for him, the Florida Conference.

—Bishops Walden, Mallalieu, and Foster, are to hold Conferences in the South this month and next.

—The Post-office address of Rev. J. J. Collins, is Cedar Creek, Bastrop county, Texas.

—The Post-office address of Rev. H. W. Wilson, heretofore Beaumont, will hereafter be at Huntsville, Texas.

—Rev. D. D. Whedon, LL. D., the former editor of the Methodist Quarterly Review, is slowly recovering his health.

—Rev. Dr. A. C. George, pastor of Langley Avenue Church, Chicago, is seriously but not dangerously ill with typhoid fever.

—Rev. W. P. Tanlbee, as S. Methodist preacher of fine ability, has been elected to Congress from the tenth Kentucky district.

—There is a rush for pews in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Washington, D. C. President Cleveland will worship there.

—Francis Murphy, has received from Judge Noah Davis, of the New York Supreme Court, an eloquent letter of appreciation of his work for the temparance cause.

—Rev. Dr. Rice, Senior General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, died recently in Toronto. He was born in Maine in 1811.

—The editor of the Delaware Conference Standard, H. A. Munroe, has tendered his resignation, to take effect May 18th, proximo.

—Mrs. Margaret Hampton, of Ascention parish, La., is in the city, a guest of Rev. William Davis, residing at 48 South Roman street.

—Rev. J. P. Brushingham, pastor of the Fulton Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Chicago, came on to see the Exposition and spend a few weeks in the city.

—Rev. S. R. Hason, of Marthaville, La., who has been recently confined to his bed, is now convalescent and it is hoped will soon be able to resume his pastoral [illegible].

—Mr. H. H. Fowler, M. P., the distinguished Wesleyan layman, of Wolverhampton, London, has been appointed to the office of Under Secretary of State for the Home Department.

—Dr. A. D. Mayo, a Unitarian minister, of Boston, and agent of the Peabody Fund, has established the fact that John Wesley, when he resided in Georgia, started the first Sunday-school in America.—Exchange.

—Ross Taylor, for several years book keeper in the First National Bank in this city, San Jose, California, is to leave this morning, with his wife and four children, to engage in missionary work in Central Africa.

—We are pained to learn of the recent death of Mrs. Barbra Bradshaw, a substantial member of Jackson Street Methodist Episcopal Church, in Louisville, Ky., and wife of our beloved brother, Rev. Joel Bradshaw, of the same church.

—Rev. Thomas Newton, of the United Methodist Free Church, died Dec. 12th, in his sixty-sixth year. He was for eight years Book Steward at the Publishing House in London. Mr. Newton, was two years successively Corresponding Secretary, and subsequent President of the Conference.

—Rev. Samuel Morrison, a superannuated minister of the Canada Methodist Episcopal Church, died in Glenwilliams Jan. 5th. He repeatedly held the office of Presiding Elder, was book agent from 1856 to 1859, and editor of the Canada Christian Advocate from 1859 to 1863.

—Rev. J. D. Gillilan, pastor at Tooele, Utah, rejoices in a revival. In December, seven persons joined the church, five of whom were Mormons, and two had taken the horrible oaths of the Endowment House. It is plain that Mormons can be reached by the Gospel.

—The Rev. Dr. Joseph C. Hartzell arrived here Wednesday morning, January 22nd, and will probably remain in the vicinity until after the approaching session of the Louisiana Conference, of which he is a member. He has many warm friends here, and they will be glad to see him. He will speak January 25th, with Drs. Godman, and Fitch, at Baldwin, La.

—Mrs. Jane Campbell Foss, the mother of Bishop Cyrus D. Foss, died recently in New York, at ninety years of age. Her husband, Rev. Cyrus Foss, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, preceded her to the heavenly land many years since. She had three sons, all of whom were ministers in our Church. The Bishop is, we believe, the only survivor of the entire family.

—Bishop Alexander W. Wayman, of the African Methodist Episcopal, and Bishop Lomax, of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, are both in the city. They have been holding the annual session of their respective churches in Louisiana, the former Greensburg and the other at [illegible]. And we learn that their communications were pleasant and agreeable meetings.

—Arrivals from abroad, gleaned from the SOUTHWESTERN Register, 128 Union street: Mr. M. A. Williams, Morrilton, Ark., is in the city, at 331 St. Louis street. A Bourgeois, a prominent planter of St. [illegible] parish, is in the city. Mr. E. A. Langston, whose mother is a [illegible] lady of St. Mary parish, is at 111 Esplanade street. Prof. F. OUR NEGRO SENATORS.

BY J. T. B.

"Father, who was he that spoke
So eloquent to-day,
Who every nerve of genius woke,
And held the crowd at bay?"

"That was our Senator, my boy,
The noblest of our race,
Who struggles hard to give you joy,
And your little sister grace."

"Is he the one so widely known,
And has so much of fame?
Then what distinction does he own,
And what should be his name?"

"Well, yes, my boy, he is the one,
And his'ry soon will tell,
Quite noble all the deeds he's done,
His name's Hiram R. Revel."

"But white folk say that he can't do
As Gen'ral Chalmers can;
How is it then, must this be true,
Is Bruce the nobler man?"

"Color, wealth and power make it so.
'Tis they alone my Boy!
Hence let them be your struggling foe,
But genius your employ."

"How much I get the genius, then,
From tuitorum the schools?
Or sitting 'mongst the wheezy men,
And [illegible]"

"Coeval with your life, my son,
Yourself learn what to do;
And also learn what you may learn,
It all is left with you."

"Well, was it in this that Bruce
That Mr. Bruce did learn?
For Mr. Chalmers, in the fight,
Not near so much did earn."

"Oh, genius never sleeps, my boy.
Yet few have it for war;
'Tis far more noble to destroy
Prejudice at the bar."

"I feel the fancies in my head,
And will they not produce
The genius that my name will spread
As that of Mr. Brube?"

"Oh, yes, my son, first learn to tell
What others can but think,
And dip thy quip in Reason's well,
And from her fountain drink."

"Well, father, how can that be done?
I can't address a crowd;
And this 'tis best to leave alone,
'To try to scale the cloud."

"Far from it, boy, weigh in your mind,
Whatever you would do,
For fame is of full many a kind—
There is other fame for you."

"But, then, I cannot understand
What gives us truly fame,
When every body can command
Some glory to his name."

"Well, labor hard will be the cost,
And it you must embrace;
And put it where it can't be lost,
Then you have won the race."

"Ah, well, I see it can be done,
And why do people say
The colored sire and his son
Can never do as they?"

"Oh, well, my boy, the colored race
Must learn to serve itself;
Our girls must nicely fill their place,
And boys must save their pelf."

"But, pa, the colored people try
To do as others do;
And if they fail, then tell me why
That others should be true?"

"Our race should wipe Sorrow away,
For nations have their own,
And races have their faults and praise,
So we are not alone."

"Then I will grow and take your place,
And sail to distant ports,
And plead the causes of my race
Before the foreign courts."

"Hurrah, my boy, God speed you on,
And always noble prove,
And when these fretful days are gone
The world will give you love."

Domestic Hygiene.

Food and Its Office.

REV. GEO. L. CURTISS.

Food is that material which "goes to support life by being received into the blood, and assimilated by the organism of an animal or plant." Food is an "aliment," and must contain "nutriment" which will nourish the organs of the body. The [illegible] for food is [illegible] become hungry and thirsty. These conditions indicate a [illegible] of the tissues, and consequently of the energies of the physical organism which must be supplied with fresh material. On looking into the body the blood is found to be the supplying material to build up and replenish wasted tissue. But this blood must itself be supplied with proper material. Its energies and vital force decay and need supply. It is supplied by aliment taken into the system and utilized by the process of alimentation to the supply of blood. Food is the direct supply of wasted blood, and the indirect supply of the wasted tissues of the body. Hunger and thirst are conditions showing the necessities of the human [illegible] for food and water with [illegible] to supply them. There is [illegible] for the [illegible] of liquid from the body by sensible and insensible perspiration amounts [illegible] the blood. As the blood circulates through the [illegible] becomes diluted, and flows with less rapidity and elasticity, and its stimulating power is decreased. There is a demand for water. As soon as [illegible] into the stomach the process of absorption commences; and in a few moments the blood is receiving a stream of water. A sense of refreshing passes over the entire system. The drooping body is revived. Hunger is the sense of want in the solid tissues of the body. "If food be not taken in obedience to the demands of the system as expressed by the appetite, the sensation of hunger becomes most distressing. It is then manifested by a peculiar and indescribable sensation in the stomach, which soon becomes developed into actual pain. This is generally accompanied by intense pain in the head, and a feeling of general distress, which soon reaches the satisfaction of this imperative demand on the part of the system, the absorbing idea of existence. Starvation overcomes, in many instances, every moral and intellectual feeling, and gives full play to the purely animal instincts. Furious delirium frequently supervenes after a few days of complete abstinence, and this is generally the immediate precursor of death. It is unnecessary to cite any of the numerous instances in which murders and cannibalism are resorted to when starvation is imminent; suffice it to say, that the extremity of hunger or of thirst, like the sense of impending suffocation, is a demand on the part of the system so imperative that it must be satisfied if within the range of possibility. There have been instances of sublime resignation in the face of this terrible agony, but these are rare in comparison with the examples of frightful expedients to satisfy the demands of nature." The seige of Jerusalem saw examples of this fearful demand for food which led mothers to kill their own children that they might cook and eat their flesh, and prolong life a little longer, hoping for deliverance from some unexpected source.

Foods that are really demanded to supply the waste tissues of the system are divided into three classes. First, the organic nitrogenized principles, as albumen, fibrine, caseine, etc., in the animal kingdom, and gluten, legumen, etc., in the vegetable kingdom. Second, organic non nitrogenized principles, sugar, fat, starch, etc. Third, inorganic principles, as salt, etc. The system demands these food elements. The demand is imperative. Some are demanded in greater quantity than others, but all are demanded in proper quantity. It is not possible to tell in any individual case just how much sugar, fat or starch is demanded, or how much albumen, fibrine or caseine is required in another, but nature tells exactly, and without error, when we eat these foods, taking up just enough and expelling the rest [illegible] we can, to some extent, after careful observation, tell how much is needed. A well instructed man ought to be able to tell how much of each kind of food he ought to eat, so as to meet the demands of his system.

That Settles It Up

We could use all sorts of extravagant words about the effect of Parker's Hair Balsam. But the simple truth is enough. It is the best thing of its kind. Cures falling hair, dandruff, dryness, restores original color, is a delicious dressing and perfectly pure and clean. It will satisfy you. The only standard 50c. dressing.

Pittsburgh Correspondence.

BY CELES.

Pittsburgh has long possessed and deserved the name of the "Birmingham of America," on account of its being a great iron manufacturing city. But Atlanta, Georgia, bids fair soon to enter into the race with such zest as to leave it an open question which one will come out victorious in the end. As against few or no shipments previous to January, 1884, Atlanta has produced since that time some 76,000 tons of pig iron, of which 6,000 tons were sent right here to our city. If that is not "bearding the lion in his den," what would? The struggle for supremacy will likely be a hard fought one, because it means ruin to Pittsburgh to have her iron industries crippled.

The present season is a severe one with us. In Allegheny county there are probably 25,000 men out of work, and with no immediate prospect of bettering their fortunes. Matters cannot go on forever as peaceably as they have done so far. "Hunger knows no law," is the saying, and if this winter should be a very cold and protracted one, there is no way of telling what may be the outcome. However, coal must be largely consumed whether times be good or not, so that the mines are generally better off now than other classes.

One of the most peculiar incidents of our city, as a stranger sees it, is the natural gas. Not content with becoming rich by delving for iron, and coal, our smoky city mill-owners have by simply boring a small hole to some considerable depth in the earth, tapped inexhaustible supplies of gas, thus rendering them independent of expense for fuel, as many of the mills are run altogether by gas.

The sight of a burning well is an impressive one. If it is night, one sees a mass of flame twenty, forty, or even fifty or more feet in height, and from ten to twenty in its greatest diameter, rising from a three inch tube, and burning with a roar like a hurricane. As it tosses and waves and surges, the toy of every passing wind, the scene is a wierd one. The act of tapping the vein, called the "strike" or "tap," is often a dangerous one, for when the gas is given an exit from its long imprisonment in the bowels of the earth, it rushes up through the well carrying the drilling tools and cables with it, and often demolishing the derrick and the men within.

About a mile and a half from your correspondent's home is a large well, the roar of which bothered his sleep for the first night or two, and was about equal to that of the Niagara at the same distance. By the light of this well I have often ascertained the time by referring to my watch during the night. I will finish this subject by saying that according to the estimate there is no well in the country which could not more than supply our two cities of Pittsburgh and Allegheny, with their quarter of a million inhabitants.

The Pittsburgh Conference Historical Society, quite a live organization by the way, has in the keeping of its librarian a very valuable relic, and one which is interesting to all Methodists. It is a cane, straight and somewhat massy, made from a piece of wood which once was a part of Bishop Asbury's carriage. Of no intrinsic value, it could not be purchased for many dollars. The Society has many relics of more or less importance, and although but a few years old, two centuries at the most, is one of most the successful of our conference organizations. Methodism is now old enough to have a history; and rapidly, very rapidly, are the links which bind us to the day of Asbury and Coke being torn away. Therefore, it behooves the present generation of Methodists to collect as much matter and interesting mementoes of the early history of the Church as possible. Having a turn of mind for such matters, the writer could not be better pleased than by learning that from the efforts put forth by some reader of this letter, some conference which patronized the SOUTHWESTERN had organized a historical society.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 14, 1885

Dr. Andrew Hartman, a prominent member of Madison Square Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore, Md., is dead, and the quarterly conference of that charge, has passed some very touching resolutions in memory of him.

Boils and Carbuncles.

These are the volcanoes of the human system. They proceed from impure blood and from a riotous demoralization of the digestive organs. They are annoying, painful, and sometimes dangerous. They can be driven out by toning up the system, and this can best be done by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters. Messrs. Handy & Rollman, druggists, Annapolis, Md., say, "We sell lots of Brown's Iron Bitters. All who use it seem pleased. We hear not one complaint."

Better than Gold.

So easily is a cold taken that not infrequently one is at a loss to tell when or how it has originated, and is prone to expect it will go HEALTH haps it may go easily, if helped a little; but every cold that comes is liable to stay. It may happen just at a IS time when, from other causes, the normal strength of resistance in the system has been lowered. A little inattention or delay may give it a dangerous hold. Let it once become BETTER firmly seated, and the work of dislodgment will be very difficult. The simple Coryza, or cold in the head, may THAN develop into a Catarrh, and is indeed exceedingly likely so to do. That such is the case is evidenced by the fact that seven persons out of every GOLD. nine, in the Atlantic and Middle States, have catarrh in a severe form. Or, if it does not take that turn, the little cough that is at first but an annoyance, is almost certain to become dry, hard, racking and constantly recurrent, worrying in waking hours, banishing sleep, and momentarily weakening the patient. The larynx, vocal cords, and tonsils, become inflamed. The inflammation extends into the bronchial tubes. "Laryn- AYER'S gitis" and "Bronchitis" are the easiest words that the doctor, called in about that time, will use. The trouble goes on working down the CHERRY bronchial tubes to the lungs, ultimately threatening Pulmonary Consumption. Or, perhaps, the malady assumes the quickly PECTORAL fatal phase of Pneumonia. Just about as unwise a thing as an ordinarily sensible person can do, is to neglect a "little" PRESERVES cold or cough and give it a chance to develop in any of these ways. And when it comes to the treatment of children, neglect is criminality. All HEALTH. the dangers to be feared from colds and coughs may be averted, in the very outset, by the administration of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a medicine ineffably beneficent, which allays the coughing, soothes to refreshing rest, and brings back health.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

Is the only medicine that can be relied upon to break up a cold and cure a cough, and is invaluable in the treatment of all affections of the throat and lungs.

The following are samples of what people say who know it:

"Medical science has produced no other anodyne expectorant so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is invaluable for diseases of the throat and lungs."—PROF. F. SWEETZER, (Maine Medical School) Brunswick, Me.

"AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL affords more relief in cases of Whooping Cough than any other medicine."—DR. ARTHUR Y. COX, St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for 20 years. It is a wonderful remedy for Throat and Lung Diseases."—L. GARRETT, Texana, Tex.

"My children have taken AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for Coughs and Croup, and have found it give immediate relief, followed by cure."—MRS. J. GREGG, Lowell, Mass.

"I find nothing else so efficacious as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in the treatment of Colds and Coughs, and have used it in Croup, Asthma, and incipient Consumption, with great success."—DR. J. H. WILSON, Centerville, Iowa.

"My wife, troubled with violent coughing, hard and dry, for 30 years, got so low I thought it would kill her. She took AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and is entirely cured.—G. M. CARR, French Camp, Miss.

"Several members of my family suffered severely with Influenza. All were cured by AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in a few days."—HENRY RUSSELL, Somerset, N. J.

"The best remedy that can be had for Coughs and Colds is AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL."—E. M. SARGENT, Lowell, Mass.

[illegible] and a Rum-Seller [illegible] the Devil.

B[illegible] J. L. P.

Dear Sir: I have opened apartments of luxury for the sale of rum, wine, gin, brandy, beer and all their compounds. Our object, though different, can be best attained by united action; I therefore propose a co-partnership. All I want of men is their money, all the rest shall be yours. You bring me the industrious, the respectable, the sober men and I will return them to you drunkards, paupers and beggars. Bring me the child and I will dash to earth the dearest hopes of the father and mother. Bring me the fathers and the mothers and I will plant discord between them, and make them a curse and a reproach to their children. Bring me the young man and I will ruin his character, destroy his health, shorten his days, and blot out the highest and purest hopes of youth. Bring me the young woman and I will destroy her virtue and return her to you a blasted and withered thing, and an instrument to lead others to destruction. Bring the [illegible] and the laborer, and [illegible] shall be made to [illegible] fruit of toil, shall be made to [illegible] poverty, [illegible] in his once happy home. Bring me the lawyer and the judge and I will prevent justice, break up the integrity of our civil institutions and the name of law shall become a [illegible] and a by-word in the streets. [illegible] followers [illegible] I will blight and wither every [illegible] of his [illegible] and [illegible] earth to plant [illegible] and crime among [illegible]. Bring me the ministers of [illegible] I will [illegible] the purity [illegible] and make the name of religion to stink into the land. Awaiting your reply, I am, yours truly,

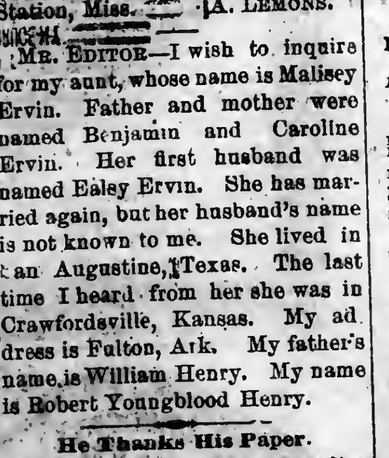
Lost Friends.

We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any cases where friends are brought together by means of letters in the Southwestern.

Mr. Editor—I wish to inquire for my people through your paper, one by the name of Edie Spradlin and one Kittie Spradlin, of Marion county, Alabama; also a brother named Tilivore Spradlin and one Richard Spradlin. I left them in 1843. I was sold to Joe Bazamorab, and my sister named Elizabeth Spradlin was sold to Norphas Samphors. My name was then Norah Spradlin, but it is now Norah Mosely. Write to me, in care of my son, Daniel Mosely, Grand Cane, Louisiana.



Mr. Editor—I wish your aid in finding my brothers, Richard and Samuel Gaadner. My name was Eliza Gardner; we lived in Baltimore, Maryland, and at that time my brother Samuel followed steamboating. There was another brother of us but I cannot remember his name. I was a nurse at a hotel with a Mrs. Davis. I was stolen and sold to Major Gibson, in this country. Any information you can give would reach me at Pickens Station, Miss. A. Lemons.

Mr. Editor—I wish to inquire for my aunt, whose name is Malisey Ervin. Father and mother were named Benjamin and Caroline Ervin. Her first husband was named Ealey Ervin. She has married again, but her husband's name is not known to me. She lived in St. Augustine, Texas. The last time I heard from her she was in Crawfordsville, Kansas. My address is Fulton, Ark. My father's name is William Henry. My name is Robert Youngblood Henry.

He Thanks His Paper.

Mr Editor:—I was induced by reading your good paper to try Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic for debility, liver disorder, and scrofula, and three bottles have cured me. Accept my thanks. Jos. C. Boggs.

THE PILLOW-INHALER!

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION.

The Pillow-Inhaler is one of the most effective inventions of the age. It does what never has been done before, viz.: batters down the stronghold of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption by a continuous application of Medicated and Curative Air to the diseased mucous membranes of the air-passages of the nose, throat and lungs.

A Radical and Permanent Cure.

Most people who have Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption have tried from one to a dozen different remedies without being cured. Why have they not been cured? Simply because what they took were not cures. How is a snuff to be got into all the intricate air-passages and in the blood (for Catarrh is a constitutional disease)? or, how will inhaling medicine for a few minutes a day dislodge the enemy from its stronghold of decaying tissue? Everybody knows that medicine taken in doses has very feeble effect on diseases of a pulmonary character. They have to take such a roundabout way to get into the blood that they miss their power. Yet after all there is an Absolute Cure, and that is the Pillow-Inhaler—a means of all-night or continuous inhalation. The testimony to its results is beyond all question, by the experience of thousands. The cures it has effected seem almost incredible. It is a comfortable pillow of soft hair, with receptacles in which is put the evaporating medicine, the fumes of which the diseased person inhales all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, without being annoyed and without noticing that he is taking medicine. There is no dosing the stomach, no douching or enuffing; but, just as a smoky lamp, during the whole night, will leave a thick deposit on a whitened wall, so the Pillow-Inhaler, for eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. It is a constitutional and local cure at the same time. The medicine is applied directly, like a salve, at the seat of the disease, besides going into the blood during its aeration. It is inexpensive and within the reach of every one. No matter what you have tried or how despairing you are, call and see it, or write for Pamphlet and Testimonials. Address,

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE

TO

Harper's Magazine

AND

Harper's Young People.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.

"THE GIANT OF THE MONTHLIES."

Subscription per Year, $4 00.

The Seventieth Volume will begin with the Number for December, 1884.

The Volume of Harper's New Monthly Magazine begioning in December will conclude its thirty-fifth year. The oldest periodical of its type, it is yet, in each new volume, a new Magazine, not simply because it prescots fresh subjects and new pictures, but also and chiefly because it steadily advances in the method itself of magazine-making.

It is the best Magazine for the home. Touching home taste and culture at every point, and bringing to every hearth-stone argosies of wealth from all lands, and the richest treasures of imagination and art, it never intrudes an element of disturbance or controversy.

The leading writers and artists in America and England contribute to the pages of Harper's Magazine. Its illustrated descriptive articles cover every portion of the world, and every subject of social interest in the departments of industry, science, art, literature, and polity. The illustrations alone in Harper's Magazine during the past year cost over eighty thousand dollars. They are the wonder of our time. Its serial novels are the best published, and its short stories are unsurpassed. While, in many ways, it takes the very color and superficial impress of its time, there is no periodical in which to so great an extent the newer, larger, and deeper currents of the world's life are represented.

In circulation, in America and abroad, it leads all other periodicals of its class.

Entering upon a new year, the publishers of Harper's Magazine repeat the promise they have made at the beginning of every year—a promise which will surely be performed—of continued improvement in the future.

PRESS NOTICES.

A model of what a family periodical should be.—Daily Evening Traveller, Boston.

Of all the magazines, this maintains the highest standard of uniform excellence.—Examiner, N. Y.

As remarkable for its pictorial beauty as for the attractiveness of its literary contents.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Harper's Magazine ranks first in the world in circulation. Its history is a large part of the literary history of the nineteenth century in America.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

Its illustrations are as superb as its articles are varied, racy, and instructive.—Christian at Work, N. Y.

Its typography, its engravings, its reading, its general make-up, leave few things to be desired. The publishers are determined not to permit any to surpass them.—Southern Churchman, Richmond.

Brimful of seasonable and delightful reading.—N. Y. Observer.

Harper's Magazine keeps up its reputation as a periodical fully abreast of the times, not only in the matter of seasonable topics, but in the newest inventions in art letter-press.—Cleveland Leader.

The Volumes of Harper's Magazine, for three years back, in cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage prepaid, on receipt of $3 00 each; or, in half-calf binding, on receipt of $5 25 each.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE.

An Illustrated Weekly for Boys and Girls.

Subscription per Year, $2 00.

The Sixth Volume commenced with the Number issued November 4, 1884.

Harper's Young People is about to be published in London. Its subscribers are found wherever the English language is spoken, and the extraordinary rapidity with which this wide circulation has been gained is due to the obvious fact that its publishers have spared neither pains nor expense to secure for it the very best literary and artistic work.

Its serial and short stories have all the dramatic interest that juvenile fiction can possess, are of superior literary quality, and wholly free from all that is pernicious or vulgarly sensational. Pastors and teachers have united in commending it warmly to parents and guardians, as an invaluable means of informing the minds and elevating the tastes of the young people under their care. The humorous stories, articles, and pictures are full of innocent fun, without a trace of coarseness.

The papers on natural history and other scientific subjects, travel, and the facts of life, are by writers whose names give the best possible assurance of accuracy and value. The historical stories, biographical tales, and anecdotes are most attractively presented.

Papers on athletic sports, games, and pastimes give full instructions with respect to those subjects, and fine pictures, representing the work of the foremost artists and engravers on wood, lavishly illustrate its pages.

In all mechanical respects Harper's Young People is as attractive as fine paper, legible type, and skilful printing can make it. There is nothing cheap about it but its price.

A specimen copy will be sent on receipt of five-cent stamp.

PRESS NOTICES.

In purity of tone, beauty of illustration, and in variety of attractive, entertaining, and instructive contents of the highest literary merit, it is unexcelled, and deserves a place in every home blessed with children, whose lives it will make better and brighter with its weekly visits.—Zion's Herald, Boston.

This charming little paper is a weekly feast of good things to the boys and girls in every family which it visits.—Brooklyn Union.

Harper's Young People is the best weekly for children in America.—South-western Christian Advocate.

One of the most popular children's periodicals in the country.—San Francisco Argonaut.

It overflows with stories, poems, anecdotes, instructive articles, pictures, and everything else in its line that can be thought of to make children happy, merry, and wise; and it will bear reading over again many times without losing its freshness, vivacity, or power to charm.—Providence Journal.

Harper's Young People continues to lead the weekly publications for youth throughout the country, and probably throughout the world.—The Living Church, Chicago.

FIRST QUARTER. STUDIES IN ACTS, A. D. 58. LESSON V. Paul at Jerusalem. February 12; Acts xxi, 15 26. Golden Text, Acts xxi, 20.

HOME READING.

M.—Paul at Jerusalem, Acts 21, 15 26.
Tu.—The Disciples at Jerusalem, Acts 15, 1-12.
W.—The speech of James, Acts 15, 13 29.
Th.—Successful work, Rom. 15, 13 33.
F.—Zeal required, Rom 12, 1-13.
Sat.—Fulfilling the vow, Acts 18, 18 28.
S.—Payment required, Eccl. 5, 1-7.

QUESTIONS FOR HOME STUDY.

1. The end of the journey, v. 15-17.
What is meant by "our carriages"?
Who accompanied Paul on this journey?
With whom was he to stay at Jerusalem?
How was he and his company received?

2. The report to the elders, v. 18-19.
When did they meet the rulers of the church?
Who presided over the council? ver. 18.
What was the salutation?
Of what did Paul make a report?

3. The offering in the temple, v. 20-26.
How was this report received?
Of what was the apostle accused?
What was he advised to do?
What do we know of the Nazarites?
What counsel was given to the Gentile converts? Ver. 25, chap. 15. 28-29.

PRACTICAL TEACHINGS.

How does this lesson show—
1. That salvation is a divine work?
2. That hindrances may come from the brethren?
3. The desire of good men to aid the weak.

Doctrinal suggestions—The law and the Gospel.

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this receipt free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh Cold in twenty-four hours. Address Craddock & Co., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, naming this paper.

Mrs. Dora Grimes, wife of Rev. Wm. H. Brown, died at the family residence in Oberlin, Ohio, January 1, 1885, aged 26 years. She was born June 3, 1858, converted and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church at 15 years of age, of which she has since been an earnest and consistent member. She drank deeply of the itinerant spirit, and was partaker with her husband in all the labors of his pastorate. She had a peaceful passage to the better land, and earnestly charged Bro. Brown to meet her in heaven. She was buried from Rust Methodist Episcopal Church, Jan. 3, 1885.

Dear Brethren—Push things ahead and let us bring up all of our benevolent causes this year. Do all you can, brethren; live among and work with your people, go from house to house, singing and praying with them, and they will pay you if you live right among them and let them feel that you care for them. Brethren, you must live on our works or you can not do the work you have to do. The people want you all the time. Now, dear brethren, do all you can to bring our district up. SPECIAL OFFER FOR 90 DAYS

$1 — GOOD AGENT — $1

A Positive Cure for Rheumatism—Liver, Stomach and Kidney Diseases—Diseases of the Blood—Skin Diseases—Female Complaints—Paralysis—Neuralgia—Catarrh—Lame Back—and Nervous Debility.

Having obtained the sole right to sell the German Electro-Galvanic Belt in America from the inventor, Prof. Conrad Ziegenfust of Berlin, we are determined, whatever may be the cost, to introduce them here at once. The price of the Belt has always been Six Dollars ($6.00) but to induce invalids to give it a trial we will, for the next ninety days, send the German Electro-Galvanic Belt for ONE DOLLAR, provided you will cut out and send us the annexed coupon and give us your written promise to recommend the Belt if you find it as represented. This Belt is without doubt the best, strongest, and most scientifically constructed Electric Appliance ever introduced, being the invention of the great German Electrician, Prof. Ziegenfust, and has met with the most marvelous success in Europe, being recommended and endorsed by the entire Medical Profession of Germany. The inventor has in his possession letters from Prince Bismarck and several members of the Royal Family. A quarter of a million of them were sold in the German Empire last year. These Belts, unlike many so-called electric appliances, are very light and not disagreeable to wear, and generate a current that can be immediately felt. Their action is stimulating and at the same time soothing; causing the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Nervous System to act as nature intended they should; curing thousands of cases that internal medicines failed even to relieve. Under no circumstances can it do any harm and must do good no matter what is the complaint. They are made of cloth, silk lined, and the electric disks are so arranged they retain their strength 20 years.

To step aside is human.
One point must still be greatly dark,
The moving why they do it;
And just as lamely can ye mark,
How far, perhaps they rue it."

—Burns.

Water looks deep when it is only muddy.

It is not learning that keeps a Methodist from knowing what is the Church catechism.

Study the moral law as written by the Lord, never repealed, and now of record in the Ten Commandments.

"And many among them shall stumble, and fall, and be broken, and be buried, and be taken."

Prof. James W. Chapman writes encouraging words from Handley, Texas, concerning the SOUTHWESTERN, and also speaks very favorably of the progress of the school there of which he has charge.

A baby cries for, but a man helps himself without the gratuitous aid of others, except at those points where the very conditions of our existence depend upon the mutual interdependence of one man upon another.

The Manual of the Methodist Episcopal Church for January, is received. It is very full of general information in regard to our Church enterprises, and should be in the hands of all our ministers and official members.

The Louisiana Conference.

The Louisiana Conference is seventeen years old. At the session now sitting there were one hundred members and probationers present. One presiding elder, the secretary, the presiding bishop, and four members, including Thomas Walker and A. F. Hoyt are white. The session seemed to be a quiet and harmonious one, with perhaps a little less of that fervently religious spirit which one sometimes feels at the conferences. There are a number of prominent ladies here and some of the ministers have their wives with them. Dr. Hartzell is here, and has been here from [illegible], has grown up with [illegible], and exerts a wide, [illegible] beneficial influence [illegible] its members. He was ordained an elder in this Conference [illegible] with Rev. W. P. Kenner by his side. The [illegible] with which this conference [illegible] by and supports Dr. [illegible] a decided disproof of [illegible] assertion that the [illegible] ungrateful, or [illegible] of strange friends. Mr. J. [illegible] of New York Methodist Book Concern, gave the Conference a call, en ronte homeward from a trip to Mexico; where he had been with Bishop Harris, visiting our mission and general Church work there. Bro. Phillips delivered an earnest address in behalf of our publishing interest, emphasizing the necessity for prompter compliance with their obligations to the SOUTHWESTERN. He most carefully avoided any word or harsh expressions which he would have avoided had he been in any of the great and wealthy and polished conferences of the East. At 3 p. m., Bro. John Qualls preached a fine sermon upon the occasion of the Missionary Anniversary. He is a man of promise, his delivery and imaginative powers are well developed. Mr. Phillips at night described his trip to Mexico, and the description showed him to be a traveler who keeps his eyes and ears open whether he keeps his month closed or not as he travels. His coming here at this time, his pains-taking and thorough examination into all the business of, and his very friendly attitude toward the SOUTHWESTERN means good, only good, and that continually. We bless God for his visit, which is a benediction to us.

On Friday eve was the Freedman's Aid Anniversary, at which Drs. Hartzell, Taylor and Bishop Mallalieu, participated. Dr. Hartzell made an earnest plea for our educational interests, which had the genuine Methodist ring to it. After him came the Bishop, and we are free to say that he gave us a first class surprise. Bishop Mallalieu grows upon you as you come more and better to know and unstand him. His utterances here were worthy of the heart and head of the man, and of the section which gave him birth, and of the great Church which has elevated him to a place than which none on earth is more honorable, or distinguished. Dr. Taylor offered the following resolutions:

Whereas, Dr. Hartzell and Bishop Mallalieu, have encouraged us by their addresses this evening. Therefore:

Resolved, That we hereby tender Bishop Mallalieu and Dr. Hartzell our sincere thanks for the instructive and encouraging addresses they have been now inspired to deliver to us. And

Resolved, That we will immediately contribute to the Centennial Jubilee, according to our ability, for the purpose of education in the South by our Freedmen's Aid Society.

Then Dr. Hartzell made the call, and the conference quickly pledged $4,000 to the Freedmen's Aid Society for 1885. At this point Prof. A. F. Hoyt and wife, of the New Orleans University, were ushered in and had a most cordial reception by the conference. Dr. Godman the old war horse, who neither surrenders or compromises, is here hard at work, beloved and confided in by all. Elders Cushman, Albert, Duncan, Landry, Williams, Dale and Priestly are all honored brethren, who with a number of others might be called pillars of the Conference. There are promising young men here, not a few such as Geo. W. Wells a man of letters, H. J. Wright, C. D. Shallowhorn, Ernest Lyon and still others are coming in. That accomplished scholar Anathole Pannalle is now at the door. Baton Rouge has a hospitable people and one of the best churches in the Conference; its pastor and elder deserve, and will receive the compliments of the Conference, for their work here.

Daily Proceedings.

FIRST DAY.

Baton Rouge, Thursday, Jan. 29.

The seventeenth session of the Louisiana Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church opened in this place to-day at 9 o'clock a. m.

OPENING EXERCISES.

Bishop Wilbur F. Mallalieu, D. D., the presiding Bishop, conducted the opening exercises. A hymn, read by Stephen Duncan was sung. L. P. Cushman, read a portion of Scripture; E. Williams led in prayer, and Hymn No. 428, announced by A. E. P. Albert, was sung. These services were followed by the administration of the Lord's Supper.

ROLL CALL.

The Secretary of the last session called the roll, and part of the members responded to their names.

Thomas Stalker was received by transfer from the Detroit Conference, and A. F. Hoyt from the Michigan Conference, and their names added to the roll. A. N. Jackson had been transferred to Central Alabama Conference, and J. G. Vaughn to Cincinnati Conference.

SECOND YEAR.

The roll of probationers were called, fifteen responding to their names. First year eight responded to roll call.

ORGANIZATION.

Dr. J. C. Hartzell was elected Secretary, by a unanimous vote, for the eleventh time, which is a fitting testimonial of the high esteem in which he is held by the brethren. A. E. P. Albert was elected Statistical Secretary, and Stephen Priestley was elected Treasurer by a similar vote. The following Assistants were elected: Assistant Secretaries, J. F. Marshall, E. Lyon; Assistant Statistical Secretaries, H. J. Wright, A. J. Ford, J. W. Hudson; Assistant Treasurers, C. Thompson, V. Chapman.

A communication from Phillips & Hunt, giving the action of the General Conference on the manner of making up the statistical tables was read and referred to the Statistical secretaries.

From the Districts.

Salisbury District—Delaware Conference.

REV. J. R. WATERS.

Notwithstanding the dull times which have prevailed since the election the outlook on the Salisbury District is very encouraging. Bro. Coffey, our newly appointed presiding elder, is proving himself a man of ability and a great worker for the cause of God. There have been over 500 conversions on the district since conference. Arrangements are being made to establish a district camp meeting which will superceed all the circuit camps which are so detrimental to the work. We are also arranging to build a District parsonage. The pastors salaries have been raised over $1200 in the agregate on the district. I feel perfectly safe to say that the benevolent collections this year will be far in advance of any year previous in the history of the Delaware conference.

Salisbury, Md.

Hot Springs District, Little Rock Conference.

REV. W. R. R. DUNCAN, SEC'Y.

Conference convened in Haven Chapel, Hot Springs, Ark., Nov. 22, 1884, with Rev. G. B. Donnelly, presiding elder, in the chair. W. R. R. Duncan conducted the opening exercises, reading the 74th psalm, announcing the 504th hymn and led the conference in an earnest and fervent prayer. The presiding elder stated the cause of this early session of the district conference being the request of Rev. Dr. R. S. Rust to call a session of the district conferences to be known as the centennial district conference and among many other encouraging remarks he said to us, "Brethren, let us make this conference a success," which was earnestly listened to. On motion W. R. R. Duncan was elected secretary. The conference was not largely attended by either traveling or local preacher, as this was a special or early call of district conferences. The pastor and presiding elder was empowered to examine and renew licenses, also to examine and recommend to the annual conference such suitable local preachers as they may find for admission into the traveling connection. The preachers present made reports of their charges, which were encouraging, showing a large increase both of conversions and accessions to the Church. Benevolent collections are coming in slowly owing to the hard times, though the outlook for good times is favorable. The secretary and presiding elder was made a committee to prepare essays for the next session of the district conference. A motion was made and adopted asking the pastors of the district to notify their local preachers and exhorters that it depends upon their presence or lawful excuse to have their licenses renewed. This was offered in view of the fact that our young preachers avail themselves of the advantages of the district conference. Dear brethren, if this is not done the time is not distant when district conferences will be of no interest at all. Upon the whole, my brethren, you should see that our district conferences are largely represented. To do this you must come yourself and see that the other members of your charge come. Why ought we to stay behind? To this all human knowledge is insignificance and tongues are unable to give reasons why. Brethren, excuses is not preaching; take the example of the Master: "Go ye, therefore, teach all nations." To do this you must know what to teach. From the fact that the conference was so poorly represented, the conference unanimously voted that each pastor begin at once to stir up the people on the educational matters of the church, and especially that of the Philander Smith College at Little Rock, Ark. To make this centennial year a success each preacher must lay some plan to meet the obligations of Dr. Rust. This thank offering should be labored to with much earnestness, and by giving yourselves and asking others to give. Dear brethren it does not matter about your plans, yon made and adopted your own plans; the idea is to reach the people, have them give at least fifty cents if not more. Why let our district come np behind? There is no reason for such a state of things. Send to Dr. Rust for circulars and boxes and begin at once to collect.

Rev. Albert Haynes and Sye Crawley were licensed local preachers, and Bro. S. B. Witherspoon was accepted from the Congregational Church, being a licentiate. A vote of thanks was voted to the good people of Hot Springs for the kind and hospitable manner in caring for the conference; also to Rev. G. B. Donnelly, presiding elder, for his impartial management of the conference. W. R. R. Duncan was appointed to preach at 3 p. m. Sunday at Haven Chapel, and Rev. W. O. Emory at the Baptist Church at 7 p. m. W. O. Emory and G. B. Connelly had charge of the centennial anniversary of our one hundred years of organized Methodism, which was very instructive, after which a good subscription was obtained. All the business of the district conference was impartially attended to. The seat of the next district conference is Pine Bluff, Ark. Let us have a large attendance. Pray for us on the Hot Springs district.

Centre Point, Ark.

Gulf District—Mississippi Conference.

REV. H. L. KENNEDY, SEC'Y.

The second session of the Gulf District, Mississippi Conference met in Crystal Springs, Miss., Nov. 27, 1884. The conference opened with religious service by Rev. W. McDonald, presiding elder. The presiding elder in the chair. Roll called, all the pastors were present except those of Augusta and Hazlehurst, Miss. H. L. Kennedy was elected secretary and Rev. N. Cannon assistant. The pastor at Hazlehurst was confined to his bed by sickness. The usual committees were elected. A national thanksgiving service was held. The presiding elder represented the district as being in a good condition. The pastors represented their charges, and we learn from their reports that there had been several hundred converted and added to the church. The centennial collections are as follows: Rev. H. May, of New Hope circuit, had raised $40; Rev. N. Cannon, of Bay St. Louis, $10; Rev. J. K. Comfort, of Columbia circuit, $10; H. L. Kennedy, of Summit, $9. A centennial collection was taken by the elder in the conference and the following brethren contributed: Rev. W. McDonald, 25c.; Rev. N. Cannon, 25c.; Rev. J. B. Smith, $1; Rev. W. H. McCarty, 25c.; Rev. H. May, 25c.; Rev. R. Rodges, 25c.; Jas McNeal, 25c.; R. Roberts, 25c.; W. James, 25c.; A. Lowe, 25c.; W McNeal, 25c.; L Wiley, 25c.; J Jones, 25c.; L Flowers, 25c.; Charles Lewis, 25c.; A Ford, 25c.; P May, 25c.; H Roundtree, 25c.; James Ford, 25c.; F Newill, 25c.; R Coleman, 25c., P S Brown, 25c.; J K Comfort, 25c.; J H Cook, 25c.; total $6.75. Two brethren from the Baptist Church had joined the M. E. Church: Rev. E. Harris, of Brookhaven, Miss., and Rev. B. J. Connerly, of Magnolia, Miss. Bro. Harris is an elder, and was recommended to the next annual conference for recognition of orders. Bro. Connerly is a local preacher, and is a fine young man and a former stunent of Alcorn University. He has a store in Magnolia, Miss., and has a nice trade among his brethren and friends. Sunday morning, Nov. 30, we had an old-fashioned love feast, conducted by the writer. At 11 o'clock Rev. N. Cannon preached a sermon that made a lasting impression on all who heard it. At 3 o'clock the Rev. W. McDonald preached another one of the old fashioned sermons, full of doctrine, well seasoned with grace. At night Rev. J. B. Smith preached for us again, and we had a good time. A resolution was offered by Rev. N. Cannon, of Pass Christian, that the Gulf District Conference will not hereafter grant license to any candidate to exhort or to preach who fails to attend the Sunday-school, also of those who fail to take the SOUTHWESTERN. The resolution was adopted. Moss Point is the next seat for the Gulf District Mississippi Conference. The following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, The Bible says "let your light shine before men," not behind them; and as ministers are the leaders of the people they ought to act as they preach; therefore, be it,

Resolved, That every minister of the Gulf District take the SOUTHWESTERN, and pay for it, and then as a leader he can face his congregation with the good old church organ in his hand and ask them to take and pay for the same.

Resolved further, That we extend our thanks to Bro. Marshall Taylor the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN for putting that paper down at $1.50 per year, if paid in three months.

Resolved, That we return our hearty thanks to the presiding elder of the Gulf District, Rev. W. McDonald, for his wise and Christian management over this conference.

Resolved further, That we also extend our thanks to Rev. H. L. Kennedy, Secretary, and Rev. N. Cannon, assistant secretary, for the faithful discharge of their duties as secretaries of this conference.

The conference then adjourned to meet its next session at Moss Point.

Baltimore District Washington Conference.

BY REV. E. W. S. PEEK P. E.

You are doing the Church and our people great and noble service. May your success be increased many thousand fold. I speak for our preachers and myself. Your success is our success. I am pleased to write that our work is in a live and progressive state. It has been my privilege to preside over this District for the four years now closing, a privilege which has been richly enjoyed. In the discharge of duty I have been constantly employed, and as to faithfulness, efficiency and success in in the management of multiplied interests, I leave it to others to say. It is a source of joy to know, that our "labors have not been in vain in the Lord." The results of the year's work is encouraging, when we consider the improvements made upon church property. New churches erected, old indebtedness paid, large collections lifted for various purposes, benevolent collections, pastors support, conversions, and a large increase to our membership. A noble effort has been made to raise $3,000 in the district toward the Centennial Endowment Fund, for our Centenary Biblical Institute. Good collections have been reported, and still the work goes on with promised success.

The Institute is in a good state of prosperity; the number of students is large, while the Institute, with its established reputation, deserves the assistance and patronage claimed for it. A goodly number of the ministers of the Washton Conference and a vast number of young men and women now doing valuable services as teachers in this and other States, were sent forth from its halls of instruction. Dr. W. M. Frysinger, the President, and his noble faculty are ceaseless and untiring in their work of education. Sharp Street Church has enjoyed a precious revival, with many conversions. Generally the charge is doing nobly. Rev. J. W. Dansbury, pastor, has the united support of the people; over $9,000 has been raised for all purposes. Rev. P. G. Walker, has been very successful in his pastorate at Metropolitan Church; over $5,000 has been raised, and a good revival enjoyed. This charge mourns the loss of one of its able and worthy laymen, Bro. James A. Harris; he died in great peace, Dec. 26th; he was a good man, much beloved; he had filled every office to which laymen are eligible in our Church, with marked efficiency and success. Centennial Church, with pastor W. T. Harris, has grandly moved forward also, under Rev. Robert Hawkins; his charge, St. Paul's Church, has kept up in the line of progress, Waugh Chapel has paid her debt, and with the pastor, Rev. P. H. Matthews, to whom is due the credit of freeing this church from debt, she rejoices in increased prosperity. Grandly has the Rev. W. H. Draper, succeeded at Ames Church, paying old debts, fitting and remodeling the church, increasing the number of attendants upon the services, and largely improving the Sunday-school. He was presented a handsome gold watch and his wife a purse of $27, by the grateful people, as an evidence of the efficient services he has given the charge. Rev. W. P. Ryder, is moving the good battle at John Wesley Church; much good is he doing this charge, by the wisdom and skill he applies in behalf of all the interests of his church. Rev. W. O. Cooper, is closing a full term of service at Asbury Church, with every department of the charge in good condition. Eastern Chapel has had her share in the general prosperity attending the city churches. Rev. A. D. Valentine, is doing well in this charge. Special credit is due Revs. T. O. Carroll, J. L. Thomas, W. H. Brooks, and others, for their noble services and good success in the charges where they preside, and in fact I cannot write one word of complaint of any part of the district; all have done well, and are deserving of this mention and more fitting words than I can employ. The preachers are studious. They study to preach so as to properly instruct the people under their charge. The people hear them gladly and praise their industry.

I am happy to see this improved state of intelligence in our pulpits. Nothing else will do, and our brethern are aware of it. Steady yet sure, is the onward march forward of our people in intelligence, morality, religion, and loyalty to the church of their choice. We cannot complain; we are ever on the increase in the accession of new members, and those who stay. These are evidences of the fruitful results of the efficient labors of our ministry. We give all the praise to God "and onward urge our way."

Chattanooga District, East Tennessee Conference.

REV. L. M. MOORES.

MR. EDITOR—Our district conference convened for its first session in the Methodist Episcopal Church in Dayton, Rhea county, Tennessee, November 17th, 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m. Rev. J. S. Henry, of Kingston, preached the thanksgiving sermon. The usual committees were appointed: eight pastors, six Sunday-school superintendents, four local preachers, nine district stewards, five class leaders, three exhorters, made good reports. The elders showed a grand increase. The session was a glorious one. One soul was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. The district Sunday-school Institute was organized for the benefit of our Sunday-schools in this district. The district conference adjourned to meet in Rockwood.

Mr. Editor, this is not half the work that the conference did, but as I have written to you once before of the work, it not appearing, and presiding elder and members of the conference are saying so much that I thought it best to write a short letter in hope that you would publish it. So, if the other was too much, may be this is not enough. May the Lord bless you.

Chattanooga District—East Tennessee Conference.

The Chattanooga District Conference convened for its first session in this conference year on the 27th of November, 1884, in Dayton, Rhea county, Tenn., at 9:30 a. m., in the Methodist Episcopal Church. The religious exercises were conducted by Presiding Elder Provine. The thanksgiving sermon was preached by Bro. J. T. Henry, of Kingston, who mastered his sermon well. He used for his text the 136th Psalm, 25 26 verses. Though our annual conference is just over and the preachers only had time to get to their new fields of labor, at the call of the presiding elder 9 pastors, 4 local preachers, 3 exhorters, 8 district stewards, 5 Sunday-school superintendents and 7 class leaders came together with good reports. The business of the conference was strictly attended to during the day, with a grand sermon each day at 11 o'clock, a. m., and rousing sermons at night for the saving of souls. The fire of God broke out in the midst of the people, from the thanksgiving sermon on Thursday, 27th, and we left it burning among them on Sunday night the 30th; one young man made peace with God and joined the old M. E. Church, and a young lady followed him. Bro. P. P. Brooks and his kind people of Dayton deserve the highest credit for their kindness towards the members of the conference, for on Sunday the people had enough provisions on the ground to feed 400 or 500 people. Our church at this place is about one mile from town, somewhat out of the way, and makes it difficult for the people to get to it. The new pastor, P. P. Brooks, finding this the case, went to work at once and secured a good church site for our church in the edge of the town, from Mr. Wm. Allen, a member of the M. E. Church South, who donated the lot to our people and promised to make a good deed to it, for he believes in helping this race of people, as he thinks that they stand in need of it. I feel like singing praises to God, from whom all blessings flow, for such a noble gift. Will others follow suit? May God help them to, and that at once. The good people of Dayton, Tennessee, made a fine start towards getting the pastor a nice parsonage to live in. An entertaining memorial service was held for Bishop I. W. Wiley. One was licensed to preach. On Sunday the sacrament was administered to 104. Mr. Editor, this brings us to state a miracle that occurred here in this meeting, and that is, all of the people of all the churches taking the sacrament together. The Baptist elder and all the elders of the Baptist Church helped to administer the sacrament to the others. Now, Mr. Editor, what are you going to say about that? Elder Provine is much beloved by all on the district. The people at Dayton feel that the Bishop did a grand thing in sending them Bro. P. P. Brooks, and all love him and think he is the best man that they ever had, and he is in a fair way to make it one of the leading churches on the district. Resolutions were offered on the following: On Missions, Tract, Sunday-schools, the Bible, Freedman Aid, Education, Church Extension, Literature, temperance, and of thanks. A District Sunday-school Institute was organized with the following officers: Presidents, E. Provine and L. M. Moores; Vice-Presidents, S. W. Burnett, J. T. Henry, P. P. Brooks and S. O. Lynch; Ministerial Secretary, A. J. Fletcher; Corresponding Secretaries, B. H. Johnson, Mrs. C. Provine, Mrs. E. C. Moores, Mrs. S. C. Brooks, and Dr. J. P. Andrews; Financial Secretary, Wm. Wilson; Treasurer, Miss Mary Howard; Committee on Arrangements, M. Napper and J. Crawford; Committee on Programme, L. M. Moores, E. Provine, A. Bustal, J. Y. Yellener, J. Baine, R. Masoner.

The apportionments to each charge to be raised this year are as follows:

	Missions	Tract	Sunday School	Education	Freedmen's Aid	Church Extension	Bishop

Mr. Editor, this closes one of the grandest sessions of the conference that was ever held in its history. The elder seems to be in good health and in high hopes of his district, and the men all seem to enjoy great peace over small pay, and have high hope of their work. I think the Institute will wake up our district if we can get the men to stick to it and help to work it up and make it a success.

Cleveland, Tenn.

Rev. C. H. Bullington, presiding elder, Murfreesboro district, writes: "The work on my district is in good condition, I think with some few exceptions brethren, on the district are going a head with their work. Some are doing well and some not so well. All have been kindly received by the people except one.

"My wife has been a severe sufferer with indigestion, and kidney liver troubles. I feared it would terminate in Bright's Disease, as there were the symptoms. She commenced using HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY, and found by the use of only one bottle she had been relieved."—R. S. R. Armstrong, Auburn, N. Y.

Letters from the Pastors.

Rev. A. C. Culbreath, of Huntsville, Walker county, Texas, writes: "We held our first quarterly conference on the 3 4 of January, Presiding Elder Lee was present, and preached an eloquent sermon, also administered the Lord's supper. We took up $5 for the presiding elder, and $4 85 for the preacher."

Rev. P. R. Woodson, pastor of the Liberty charge, writes: "My first quarterly conference was held November 29-30 by the presiding elder, C. H. Bullington. Everything was in order; and reports were in order first from pastor, second, from local preachers and exhorters; third, from stewards committees and trustees. On Sunday 11:20, the elder preached a very interesting and influential sermon and administered the sacrament to about 30 persons; raised for elder $5 and there was something raised on the benevolent causes. We are in very great need of houses to preach in on this circuit. I have four appointments and only one house to preach in, and one of my appointments in a temperance hall. We have bought ground and are now trying to build, the people are ready and willing to do all they can, this you can see. Methodism has not frozen out of us yet. We will soon have our church here at Liberty ceiled, that has been built for about 7 years."

Rev. George A. Payne, St. John Baptist parish, Louisiana, writes: "On the 22d of November a violent storm passed through the parish of St. John the Baptist blowing down six buildings, killed three white persons and wounded several others and some colored members of Rev. Bailey Lee's Baptist Church, also blowing down their church house. This was on the left bank of the river going up; several buildings on the right bank were blown down also. I held an interview with some of the old citizens of that parish; they said that such a storm has not been seen for over 35 years. None of my few members got hurt, yet my neighbors troubles are mine also."

Rev. O. Gamble, Ozan, Arkansas, writes: "We have received our pastor and family, also have had very good times since their arrival. We have made 18 converts since his entrance on the work, also baptized 10 adults and 11 children. He preached on the first Sunday in November and administered the Lord's Supper to about six preachers and exhorters, and 40 members. Five dollars in cash and so much more in subscription was raised. People are well pleased with their pastor and I hope they will continue to like him. There was two additions to the church on the first Sunday in November and I will be glad to see the day when the Methodist Episcopal Church will take this State. If our people would pray more and talk less, we would have heaven here."

Rev. H. Healup, Goodwin, Mississippi, writes: "On the 2d of November, the Rev. C. L. Crump held the fourth quarterly conference of Goodwin district work. The pastors reported the circuit in good condition, and found a large number of the brethren. Every one well satisfied with the proceedings of the conference. Dr. R. B. Rev. ... not present on the occasion, ... after the elder came, and ... not get the brethren together, he appointed Rev. C. L. Crump to preside in his stead. Conversations ... work they gave in round ... Elder's collection, ... Centennial, $12; and I ... more by conference. ... gave us a good ... money to finish our ... day being rain- ... paying was small."

J. A. W. Moore, Friendship, ... writes: "I entered on ... last Sunday in Octo- ... members on ... inside strange- ... to my family. I was ... by Rev. A. Bartlett, the ... Sunday morning I ... met with the Sunday-school and was introduced by J. B. Edwards, superintendent. At 11 o'clock I preached to a crowded house, at 3 o'clock we had a general class meeting. I don't think I ever felt any better in my life. I found the Christian army united at this point. My next point was St Peter's Chapel, here I met a crowded house. My next point was Mayes Chapel, where I found the people ready and willing to assist in the cause of Christ. Hardens Grove is my last point, which is a small army, but true to their church. November 15-16, Elders Price, was with us; the brethren were all out to meet him. Sunday the elder spoke at some length, and all who were present were delighted. At 11 o'clock, Bro. James Fielder, preached an eloquent sermon; at 3 o'clock the elder preached to a crowed house. I thought I had heard the elder preach before, but I never heard him until the 16th. I have heard some of our best scholars, who heard the sermon say the same thing. 180 members partook of the Lord's supper. We paid the elder $13.75; $3 dollars for benevolent purposes."

Rev. A. N. Jackson, pastor Gadsden, Alabama, writes: "At Houma I found a willing people who did the best they could for us, and many there shall ever be precious in our memory. It being a year of politics, and a cutting of wages in that section, the church had a hard time; during my ten months there we raised for all domestic purposes $515.80; of which the pastor was paid $322.60; presiding elder, $31. The parsonage was enlarged and furnished. Though in poor health my labors were as follows: Sermons preached 60; funerals attended, 4; body committed, 7; received in the Church, 11; baptised, 9; Lord's supper given to 517; lectured, 11 times; marriage ceremonies, 3; visits made, 184; dined from home, 40. Bro. C. H. Claiborne, of Dulac, was often with me to aid us, and much of the success which I have had is owing to his earnest help, and influence. May God ever bless him. I am now surrounded with a "push ahead" set of young men as officers of the Church, and everything has a favorable appearance. Bro. Todd, my predecessor left all things well done."

America's Pride.

True American men and women by reason of their strong constitution, beautiful forms, rich complexions and characteristic energy, are envied by all nations. It is the general use of Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, which brings about these results.

Trade is said to be reviving in Tennessee.

Nervousness.

The moment there is danger of impairment of the mind from excessive nervous exhaustion, or there exists forebodings of evil, a desire for solitude, shunning and avoiding company, vertigo and nervous debility, or when insanity has already taken place, PERUNA and MANALIN should be implicitly relied on. But it is never well to wait so long before treatment is commenced. The early symptoms are loss of strength, softness of the muscles, dim or weak sight, pectilar expression of the face and eyes, coated tongue, with impaired digestion; or in others, certain powers only are lost while they are otherwise enjoying comparatively good health. In all these PERUNA and MANALIN should at once be taken.

Mrs. S. Smith, Hilleville, Lawrence County, Pa., writes: "Dr. S. B. HARTMAN & Co., Columbus, O.: I have been a great sufferer for ten years. It seemed as though every organ in my body was diseased at one time or another. I had about given up all hopes, when I commenced taking PERUNA and MANALIN. I immediately began to improve, the soreness and pain disappeared, strength gradually returned, and now I am as well as ever in my life, and I owe it all to your PERUNA and MANALIN. I recommended it to my friends and it gives better satisfaction than any other medicine I ever heard of."

Miss Maria Roderick, Warren, Ohio, writes: "It is with pleasure and many thanks that I write to you to tell you of the great benefit I have derived from the use of the PERUNA. I have used several bottles of your PERUNA, and can safely say it has done me a great deal of good. I have improved ever since I commenced its use."

Mr. T. J. Webber, Plymouth, O., writes: "I am selling your PERUNA, and having a good trade on it. It gives excellent satisfaction."

Mr. Thomas Acton, Brooklyn Village, Cleveland, Ohio, says: "I received a severe wound in my foot, by tramping on a spike. It inflamed and was painful and swollen. I had every reason to fear lock-jaw. Your simple suggestions as to local applications and the taking of your PERUNA and MANALIN were followed to the letter, and to-day my foot is entirely well, and I am happy."

Letters From the Laity.

F. S. Legardy, Shreveport, La., writes: "An enthusiastic meeting was held in the St. Paul Methodist Episcopal Church last Sunday night, December 21st. The morning was spent in the Centennial jubilee, which passed off nicely. 7 p. m. was set apart for a sermon to be preached to the order of U. B. F.; at the time appointed the church was nearly filled. The membership of the U. B. F. in this city consists of 259 male and female; the whole number being in attendance, very soon it became almost impossible to seat the people; and many could scarcely find standing room; many could not get into the church and had to content themselves to remain just outside the door. It was sometime before quietness could be obtained, and as soon as it was, Rev. R. Thompson read from the 4 chapter Book of Daniel. I thought it good to show the signs and wonders which the High God hath wrought toward us. "How great are the signs; and how mighty are his wonders; his kingdom is an ever lasting kingdom, and his admonition is from generation to generation." Hymn 775. We have never heard a more powerful sermon preached, it was impressed with much feeling, and the whole congregation was moved as it were with the Spirit; many amens were heard. It might be asked were any made happy? Yes, for Bro. Thompson, makes it a point to make his hearers happy, for he loves his people, and they love him. He is one of the ablest ministers in the Louisiana Conference, and has been with us three years, pastor of the St. Paul Methodist Episcopal Church, which appointment expires this year; we are sorry to give him up, but glad to say wherever his appointment may be, they will in him find a man of God, a graceful and Christian minister, of which the Church is proud. The churches are doing well in this part of the State, and are winding up work finely, and want able men to the front; please send us one. The United Brothers of Friendship is a good order and if conducted properly, will make our people better, and shape them for the church. There has been much good accomplished in this part of the country by its work. Some of our old ministers and best men and women are members of this Society, and glad to hear that the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN was one of its organizers. Please speak a good word for the U. B. F., and let it be remembered that justice, mercy and truth are what God loves."

Miss Lizzie Wilson, Durant, Mississippi, writes: "My first watch meeting, and now I am going to tell you what a good time we had in Wesley Chapel. It was a wonderful time for all who were present, so open your ears and listen, I'll tell you. They called it watch meeting where they were gathered in the church to give thanks and praise to the great God. But hark! listen to the mid-night cry. It seems like a happy, happy dream, when a voice whispered soft and low, five minutes and the old year is gone; four minutes, three minutes, and again, two minutes, one minute, half minute and it is gone with all its hopes and fears, with all its bright and gladening smiles, and all its mourners' tears. Oh! it is gone. Farewell old year. Good morning New Year! Now mates you would like to know whose voice that was that whispered soft and low. It was our pastor, Rev. J. M. Nevils, who was instrumental in bringing me, and twenty others to Christ last Oct. I think the angels counted the minutes as the year rolled away. I hope the Lord will crown our pastor with a crown that will outshine the meridian sun, for it was he that whispered soft and low. The last five minutes of the old year, and the first five minutes of the New Year we were on our knees, at the end of these rose singing, and gave each other our hand as a token that we would try and live better, and do more for the Lord this year, than we did last year. Then a collection was taken, for widows and children of our deceased ministers. I'll tell you friends it was a time long to be remembered by young and old. Then we sang "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." The benediction was pronounced by our pastor."

Mrs. Julia Turner, Mrs. Jefferson Carr, and others of Jones Chapel, Witchitaville, Louisiana, writes: "We belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church, and are members of Jones Chapel. We wish to know why we were not represented in the annual conference last year. We see, by the minutes that we were not represented at all. We did all we could for our pastor, and presiding elder. We promised him $20 and gave him more, though I do not remember the exact amount. We were made to pay 50cts apiece to have our Church represented at the district conference that was held at Shreveport; and we paid the whole sum, besides giving our pastor $23, to take him to the district conference, besides we gave him support at the last quarterly meeting, a good portion of us paying 50cts apiece, for the Gilbert Haven School fund. We paid as far as we were able for all purposes. Now we ask in the name of the Methodist Episcopal Church, why we were not represented, at conference."

We cannot answer you, perhaps if you were to write to the presiding elder, or the pastor, you could obtain the desired information.

B. M. Hale, Wesley Chapel, New Orleans, writes, "We had a glorious time last night at Wesley Chapel Methodist Episcopal Church at No. 132 S. Liberty St. We had about 75 or 80 of our strange friends from the North with us at the 7 o'clock service and Rev. M. Dale preached from the 6 chapel of the Book of Daniel and the 26th verse: "Daniel gave the interpeter the writing."

A Sad Career.

The divorced wife of a Bonanza millionaire recently came to a mournful death principally from taking chloral, which unsettled her mind and demoralized her whole physical system. She had been weakly and ailing and felt her need of something to drown her sorrows and brace her up. Had she taken Brown's Iron Bitters she would have been invigorated so that she could have fought her sorrows off, and enjoyed healthy life. This valuable medicine cures general debility, tones the nerves, strengthens the muscles and aids digestion.

The Royal Geographical Society, of London, has published a list of 120 stations occupied by Europeans in Central Africa in 1884, with their latitude and longitude.

The tremor of an earthquake was felt in Baltimore lately.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D., Editor.

THURSDAY, FEB. 5, 1885.

Announcement for 1885

Reduction in Price to ONE DOLLAR AND FIFTY CTS. When Paid in Advance, or Within Three Months.

From this time subscription for The Southwestern Christian Advocate will be received for the year 1885 at $1.50 a year, payable in advance or within three months. No other paper published under authority of the General Conference is furnished at this figure. It is the cheapest paper in the whole list.

Let us have 2000 new subscribers within the next sixty days.

PHILLIPS & HUNT.

The Publishing House of Franke & Schneider, Washington, D. C., have issued a "Map of Egypt, the Sinaitic Peninsula, and the Promised Land" together with a "Companion" to the map. Its scientific and technical execution is good, and it is compiled from the latest material and recent surveys. Price on paper 75 cents; on linen, with rollers, $1.25 postpaid, each map accompanied with the "Companion."

St. Nicholas for February, speaking of a certain house, says it has this inscription above its entrance, "This house shall stand as long as God shall be feared in it, and Jesus Christ be served in the person of his poor. Whoever enters here must leave at the door both avarice and pride." How much better it would be if this inscription stood at the entrance of every church in our land, and was carried out in the lives and practices of its members.

Common Street Church was happy last Sabbath. Dr. Simmons was present at the morning service, and at 1 o'clock addressed the Sunday-school in a most happy manner. At the evening service Rev. Allen Allensworth, Sunday-school missionary for Kentucky, preached an excellent sermon on "Covetousness." After the sermon, Rev. Dr. Marshall W. Taylor, of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, was introduced to the congregation, and dismissed them with benediction. The pastor hopes to have more such days; and he is not indolent either. But loves good preaching.—Baptist Advocate.

The ADVOCATE ought to be as happy in its possession of such an editor as is the Common Street Baptist Church happy in the possession of Rev. A. S. Jackson for pastor. He is making a good paper, disseminating denominational information which is valuable, and ought to receive a constantly widening circle of auditors.

The annual report of the Louisiana Educational Society, presented December 3, 1884, comes to hand in neat pamphlet form, full of information and statistics. The annual meeting of the society was held in Tulane Hall on the evening of Dec. 8th, Hon. Louis Bush, President, in the chair. From the President's report we glean the following: "Under the new charter and by-laws the society has vigorously prosecuted the work. The financial exhibit: collected by the secretary, $2,601.51; expended, $1,842.67; balance on hand, $758.84. The work of the society during the year has been greatly helped by the course of popular lectures provided by the lecture committee. Various memorials have been framed and forwarded to Congress, the State Legislature and the city council. About 4,000 circulars and documents have been circulated. A free kindergarten will be established as soon as funds sufficient are raised. It is estimated that 102,892 voters in this State cannot read and write, [illegible] are whites. "It is [illegible] what is most needed for the universal education of our people. In fact and in practice this [illegible]"

Still Better Ahead.

The SOUTHWESTERN was never better prepared to ask its readers to interest themselves in its behalf than at present. We shall, besides our usual variety of matter, always suited to the tastes and wants of our readers, begin at once the publication of a series of articles on "Prohibition."

"Our Brother in Black."
"The Needs of the Negro."
"The Progress of Civilization."
"Wendell Phillips."
"The Future of the South."
"The Outlook for Pure and Negroes of Mixed Blood."

And many others of historic value. Old subscribers should therefore renew, and new ones be sent on at once, so that no numbers be lost. We offer no premiums, but we propose to give our patrons a great deal more than value received for the dollar and a half they send us.

At no time on the first of January was our subscription list as large as now. But our reduction in price has made it needful for us to have a good many more than before. Help us.

Women's National Indian Association.

We have received the fourth annual report of the above association for 1884, from Mrs. A. S. Quinton, 1109 Girard street, Philadelphia, Pa., from which we make the following notes. Among the officers are names that will recommend the work of the association to public patronage and favor, such as Miss Mary L. Bonney, Mrs. J. B. Dickinson, Mrs. J. R. Jones, Mrs. A. S. Quinton, Mrs. H. O. Wilbur, Miss Sarah Newlin, Mrs. Hannah Whitall Smith, all of Pennsylvania except Mrs. Dickinson, of New York State. This association is making its power felt in the nation for the good of the Indian tribes within its borders. Its object has been to procure legal enactments that shall secure to the Indians their God-given rights, and to enforce the laws already passed in their favor, and in every legitimate way to elevate the race, physically, morally and intellectually. In order to accomplish this end they have engaged in the work of petitioning legislative bodies, circulating literature, and by holding public meetings. The parent society acknowledges the efficient aid of various auxilary societies in its noble work. A great deal of prayerful, self sacrificing effort has been bestowed upon the Negro, and he at least begins to show the good effects thereof; but the women of the Negro race have not advanced so rapidly as the men, therefore the former can reasonably be expected to do much in the future toward self-help and elevation of themselves. The women of that race will, however, especially need the Christian counsel, guidance and advice of their white sisters in more rapidly reaching the best conditions of living. With the work for the Negro half done it is a just and timely move that these good ladies have made in behalf of the Indians of our country. Their work for the future, if we were allowed to outline it, would be the redemption of women in the South of all colors, women in Utah, Indian women and the salvation of American homes from the upas of intemperance. We bid them God-speed, and fling wide the columns of the SOUTHWESTERN to their aid.

Mexico.

The visit of Bishop Harris and Mr. Phillips to Mexico has been full of interest. Enclosed in a recent letter are two announcements gotten up in the admirable style usual with the mission press of Mexico. The first is a programme and directory of the first annual conference of the American Methodist Church in Mexico. Sermons in Spanish and English, receptions to fraternal representatives and to the Bishop, discussions, etc., vary the usual order of conference business. The second paper is the "First Annual Statement" of the finances of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Mexico. We congratulate this vigorous little church upon the showing it is able to give. Among the items we notice $46.81 for the missionary collection, and the Sunday-school collections amount to $40. The two visitors are making journeys throughout the bounds of the conference, and report great satisfaction with the state of the work. Mr. Phillips gives the series of services held in one day at Pachuca, in the neat church there: Class-meeting, 8:30; Mexican Sunday-school, 10; Mexican preaching, 11; English Sunday-school, 2; English preaching, 3, sacrament afterwards; quarterly conference at 4:30; Mexican preaching at 7, followed by the sacrament. There is much more of the work in Mexico than the number of members would lead one to suppose. It seems well started and at good points, and there is an air about it in all places that indicate an intention to stay. The Conference met Thursday, the 15th of January.

The Working Women.

The fingers of the working women all over the country made the ladies work which adorn the colored exhibit in the Exposition. And our sentence is emphatically that if there is to be a discrimination in favor of the employment of any class of women for positions in charge of it the working women should be the favored class. The SOUTHWESTERN wishes to form a league offensive and defensive, so to speak, with true, virtuous, industrious women, colored and white, all over the country, for the country's sake. Labor is honorable, no one should be ashamed of it. The laborers of the past are the rulers of the present, and what is has been, and what has been will be again. History repeats itself, and revolutions never retreat. Working women to the front.

The Murder in Mexico.

A warm tribute to the character of the Mexican brother who was killed by highwaymen at the same time the preacher, Bro. Gamboa, was wounded, comes from Rev. D. Kemble. He says: "Bro. Saldana was my janitor, hostler, mail carrier and my companion in all our frequent and perilous trips to Cueramaro and San Pedro. He was about 47 years of age, a soldier by profession, and one of the very best Christian characters on this circuit. It is not usual that a man so useful as he can be found to serve in the capacity that he did here, and in the absence of my family he became quite a friend to me, often going with me to make pastoral calls and manifesting deep earnestness in aiding me whenever we went on our horse-back expeditions. He was married and lived here very happily with his wife, Petronila. The recovery of Bro. Gamboa seems almost assured in spite of his severe wound." Bro. Kemble writes from the sick room, where he is caring for him with the feelings only he could have for one who has suffered in his place. The motive of the attack on these brethren is still unknown. The whole mission is profoundly stirred with sympathy, and are praying that the life of their brother may be spared.

The Unreasonableness of Rationalism.

Rationalism requires a reason as a condition of faith or belief in anything. Yet rationalism can point to thousands of things in nature which it accepts as a fact existent for which it has and can give no reason. Rationalism sees and admits the fact that the same corn makes hair on a cow and a feathers on a duck, but it does not know and cannot give the reason for this phenomenon. Until it can by wisdom solve these earthly problems is it not unreasonable to demand the reason for every heavenly problem revealed to us in the sacred volume?

The Trinity in unity of the God Head, the miraculous conception of Jesus, the regeneration of believers, and the resurrection of the dead are facts in Divinity and Grace unprovable by logical or philosophical process, but they are facts nevertheless which are here authenticated, and rationalism is unreasonable to reject them while it admits other facts no better proved, and equally inexplicable on any known process of reasoning. "We walk by faith and not by sight." "By wisdom the world knows not God." "Without controversy great is the mystery of godliness."

Rev. Thomas Harrison, the boy preacher, has just celebrated his forty-third birthday.—Pacific Methodist.

Then he celebrated it about three years too soon as he is not yet quite forty years old we believe.

Personal.

—Rev. H. H. Chopin, Keckley, Nebraska, is visiting relatives and taking a view of the Exposition meanwhile.

—Rev's. W. R. Davis, of Paris, and R. T. Huffman, of Louisville, Ky., have changed their pastorates, the first going to Terra Haute, Indiana, and the latter succeeds the late lamented Rev. Nelson G. Merry, of Nashville, Tenn.

—Dr. Hartzell, has just received a friendly letter from S. G. Swearingen Esq. of Ills. in which there was also the gift of $500, to be paid in five annual payments for aid of needy students. May the Lord greatly increase this class of philanthropists.

—H. Ritchie, Central Illinois conference supernumerary, now a resident of Kansas, a special agent of the General Land Office, called upon us in our office recently, passing from Mobile to his official duties at Little Rock, Ark.

—The Semi-Monthly Vangaurd says that Rev. W. W. Kelly, chairman in the Indiana and Central Illinois Conference of the Free Methodist Church, has been appointed by their Missionary Board, superintenbent of their mission work in Central Africa.

—The Rev. William W. Heston, pastor of Richards Methodist Episcopal Church, Troy, Ohio, was among the first ministers in that State to send us congratulations; first to send a list of subscribers, and the first to renew his entire list for 1885. He is a man with a hopeful future. We wish him continued prosperity. All hail!

—South India.—Rev. J. S. Stone M. D. with Mrs. Stone, expect to sail from New York, on Jan. 29th, Dr. Stone is well known as an energetic young worker for several years, in Calcutta, where he was associated with Dr. Thoburn in English work. Recently he has been stationed in Bombay, and is now returning to his work there, after a short visit to his home in America.

—Rev. H. Robinson, Spring Hill, Tennessee, renews his entire list of subscribers for 1884, with an additional list for 1885. This is something heroic. The colored ministers mean to prove by the assistance of our gallant sisters, brothers, and children that the General Conference did not overestimate them when it committed this enterprise to their care.

—J. M. Phillips, Esq., arrived in New Orleans Monday night, Jan. 25th. from Mexico, via El Paso, taking in the pleasing and instuctive prospect of this route as he journeyed. He is in good health, and though not a clergyman it was impossible to escape giving a few public talks to the people in the various assemblies he visited. His sojourn in New Orleans was the most inspiring and helpful thing which has yet transpired since our coming hither. Mr. Philips is an earnest, pains-taking capacious business man. The business of our Book Concern has greatly expanded under his joint direction with Dr. Hunt, and this fact is one of the most decisive indices that our business interests should be more and more remitted to the care of laymen, and that will become more and more prosperous by each remittance. Mr. Phillips will visit the the Louisiana, and possibly the Mississippi, Conferences, after which he will return to New York. We should be glad to have his presence often here.

Church Polity.

MR. EDITOR—Please answer the following questions.

1. Has a preacher on trial in the Annual Conference any right to administer the ordinance of baptism, or solemnize the right of matrimony?

2. Is the privilege of a local and a preacher on trial not identical in this respect? A. PASTOR.

Answer.—1. A preacher on trial in the Annual Conference is a local preacher and is amenable to the quarterly conference.

2. An unordained preacher in our church has no right to administer the ordinance of baptism except as any layman or woman has it. The ordination as deacons or elders is essential to a right to administer baptism under our economy.

3. Two things are essential to the legal solemnization of matrimony on the part of the person officiating, if he be a minister of the Gospel. He must have whatever qualification the church of which he is a member requires. He must have whatever qualification the State, county and city or town in which he resides or officiates demands. The State always admits the requirements of the church, so that whatever the church requires as a qualification to solemnize matrimony, the State demands of the ministers of any particular church as evidence of their right to obtain the sanction of the courts for their performance of this duty. The Methodist Episcopal Church requires ordination as a deacon as an essential to the solemnization of marriage. Therefore any minister of this Church in order to solemnize the rite of marriage must first obtain the order of a local or traveling deacon to do so. If any preacher cannot obtain this ministerial order, and rank it proves, not that he must proceed as if he had, but that in the judgment of the church he must not yet proceed in this direction at all. Should any local preacher, either on trial or not, be guilty of this offence he is amenable to the quarterly conference and may be proceeded against as per discipline. In parts of the church where ordained, ministers can be obtained, it is a gross offence against the majesty and good order of the church for the unordained, and hence unauthorized, persons to assume to perform the functions, and fill the offices of ordained clergymen.

Bishop Mallalieu at LaTeche.

REV. L. P. CUSHMAN.

Monday, Jan. 5, in company with Bishop Mallalieu and his son, the writer, via the Morgan Railroad, left New Orleans for Baldwin, La., where both the Gilbert and the Baldwin Seminaries are located. We reached our point of destination a little after noon. Dr. Godman, President of Gilbert Seminary, and Rev. E. Lyon, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, with a large delegation of the church and Sunday-school, met us at the depot, and with songs of welcome gave the Bishop and his companions a most cordial greeting. We were taken to the home of Dr. Godman where every want of the physical man was abundantly supplied. Nature always does things on a grand scale in Louisiana; about 2 o'clock the windows of heaven were opened, and for nearly two hours torrents of rain descended as if the flood of Noah's day was to be repeated. Preparation for the reception to be given to the Bishop in the evening at the church, however, went on. Loving hearts always make willing hands. Long before the Bishop reached the church it was well filled. Bro. Lyon acted as master of ceremonies and after a song of welcome, Rev. A. E. P. Albert, presiding elder of LaTeche district, led in prayer, after which the writer was introduced and spoke about two minutes, and introduced the Bishop, who gave us a clear and full statement as to what he conceived to be the mission of our church in the South. After the Bishop had spoken, Bro. Albert was called upon and made some timely and pleasant remarks, after which we all sat down to a well spread table, where each person clearly showed a wonderful capacity to receive, but who was most loved and best marked we dare not say. The occasion was among the most enjoyable. The singing, under the lead of Sister Lyon, who also presided at the organ, was delightful. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. W. F. Fitch, A. M., President of Baldwin Seminary, when we all left, with doxologies in our hearts. The next morning we visited the school where Bro. and Sister Fitch are doing a good work for the uplifting of the people in that region. The students assembled in the chapel, where the Bishop gave them an address replete with good things. We next visited Gilbert Seminary. The new building was nearly ready for plastering, and will be ready for occupancy in February. It presents a fine external appearance. A second story is being put upon the old building which, when completed, will be used for recitations and chapel services. Dr. Godman is to have charge of this institution, and will do his part to make it a grand success. The dinner hour passed pleasantly around Bro. Fitch's hospitable board. Taking the homeward train we reached New Orleans in time to step into the sociable given at Ames Chapel, and received a cordial greeting from Bro. Stalker, who knows so well how to make people feel they are welcome at his church.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Baton Rouge District, Louisiana Conference.

BY REV PIERRE LANDRY, P. E.

This district is composed of 23 stations, and just that many of as good men and preachers as you will find anywhere. To this number we wish to add the names of these mighty evangelical giants: Rev. W. P. Forrest, J. W. Hudson, John Qualls, T. G. Montgomery, Charles D. Shallowhorne, Charles Monroe, S. S. Wright and others, who under the working of our excellent itinerant plans, have been sent over to help our colleagues out on the other districts. Of the above number, the New Orleans district comes in for the lion's share; we are glad to know that their work is appreciated, and that they feel at home with our venerable colleague of that district, who knows so well how to make use of men and things. Take good care of them brother.

Now that we have laid down the trowel, the broad-ax and carpenters' tools with which we have played such an important part in building up the waste places on this district, attended by the Spirit of Him who has promised to be with us—with discipline—we are are closing the work of this conference year with many evidences of moral improvement, solid spiritual growth and a bright future for the Master's cause.

At this place, the pastor, Rev. F. T. Chinn, his able corpes of officers, faithful members and friends, have contended manfully with the indebtedness of the Church. All things considered, they have done in this direction, they have accomplished wonders. Right here we move the previous question on a vote of thanks to Rev. A. J. Kynett, D. D., corresponding secretary, Board of Church Extension at Philadelphia, and to the Board for their timely action on our appeals for aid in the building of our church here. We wish also to express our gratitude to those of our white friends who have by more ways than one shown their appreciation of our efforts to help beautify the capital city. In our mighty struggle in building our church here, we have never been made to feel our color. At the saw mills, at the store, business houses, editorial sanctum at the courthouse, as at the bank, we were always kindly received and nicly treated. The building committee and trustees are preparing to finish the painting, remove the old benches now in use, and replace them by comfortable pews in time for the Annual Conference on 29th of January, 1885. Here will be a new Bishop and a new church.

The duty of receiving members of the conference, and assigning them to their quarters, has been intrusted to a special committee, who will soon publish their programme. We anticipate success on the 21st of December, at our Centennial Jubilee, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in receiving the offerings of the people for Christian education in Louisiana.

This church will be represented at the World's Exposition, by a beautiful silk and satin quilt, with the ground work and design of the building, the handiwork of a delegation of ladies organized for that purpose. The singing pilgrim, Prof. Phillip Phips, is in our city and exhibited at Pikes' Hall, last night to a fair white audience, who pronounced the exhibition and his singing excellent. He will repeat at our church to-night.

At Rosedale we have had a year of much success. Peace reigned throughout the year. To the Hon. Edward J Gay, congressman elect from the Third district, the thanks of the Church is due for his donation of a beautiful lot in the town of of Rosedale upon which to move our little church from the East to the West side of Bayou GrossTete, where Morganza crevasse water will cease to trouble or make us afraid. Rev. G. W. Wells is there serving his first year in the ministry, and is deservedly popular with all classes of the people and the entire community in which he lives.

He has one of the best day and Sunday schools in this State. The people, white and colored go to hear him preach. Yes he is a Christian, a preacher and a schoolar, as such we commend him to the Church. We cannot close without giving vent to our high appreciation of the editorial talent you have brought to the SOUTHWESTERN. In this field we wish you the most complete success.

St. Michael is a little town right opposite the city of Baton Rouge. Here we have secured two beautiful lots in the most central part of said town, upon which is situated Scott Chapel. The membership here is not very large, but a more whole souled congregation cannot be found. The Rev. Moses Franklin is the popular young pastor. Should it ever be your good fortune, Mr. Editor, to visit our church here think of the names of our warm hearted friends, namely, Frank Delsay, Alex Sears, Edward Farrell, John Hawkins, David Yanpool and Alex. Bland. These are our friends and brethren, made so by a three fold cable, but their noble wives are—except sister Hawkins, who has not joined the disciples—all that a fair example in our church, that there is reality in the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ. At the Plains, Rev. Robert J. Thomas is the right man in the right place. Here also we have got a new church about five miles from the city of Baton Rouge. Rev. E. Harrison, at Stony Point, has fully recovered his health, and is much encouraged. This point is in the parish of Livingston, about 36 miles from the city of Baton Rouge by land. Rev. Sanders Carroll is serving his first year in the traveling connection, and has charge of Myrtle Grove circuit, which covers nearly 90 miles of territory. At Jone's Creek we have got a new church nearly completed, and are preparing to commence work on another at Sherwood, could we have secured a lot at Comite church would have been built at that end of the district.

Rev. C. W. Badshaw accompanied by his dear mother and sister Hawkins, who has just joined the disciples, which is MARRIAGE—AN ALLEGORY.

Love, who is the off-spring of madness,
Coming of age, dispatched a messenger
Called "Sight-of-the Eyes," to seek for him a wife,
Speedily meets Beauty, sporting in the meadows of Fancy,
And wooes her to become the bride of Love.
Beauty, after consulting with her parents, Dignity and Sweetness,
And with her guardian, Discretion, consents,
And Joy departs with the news.
When the marriage day arrives,
Love and Beauty proceed toward the temple of possession.
Beauty is arrayed in the ear-rings of Secrecy,
The neck-ace of Modesty, and the girdle of Agitation;
She is attended by the nymphs
Fair color, Ruby-lips and Soft-heart,
Followed by the genii of Emotion,
Ill-temper and Conceit,
Who bear a cowry of restlessness and sighs
To bestow upon Love, who meets her,
Attended by his followers, Jealousy, Hope, Tenderness and Desire.
Affection, hand in hand with Admiration,
Departs to seek a minister,
Attended also by his wife, whom he calls Heart's-ease, who solemnizes the compact
And concludes by declaring that
The happy couple shall enjoy eternal youth,
That Beauty shall ever be attended
By Love, and Love shall never cease to be Attracted by the incense of shedding trees
That cast their fragrant leaves
At the feet of Beauty.

Quantity of Food for a Healthy Man.

REV. GEO. L. CURTISS, M. D.

The avarage amount of solid or water-free food required by a healthy man of 150 pounds weight is 23 ounces, of which 5½ ounces should be albuminous, 2.5 ounces fatty, 14 ounces carbohydrates, and some salts. While this is called dry food, yet it is a fact that between 50 and 60 per cent. is water. Besides this, from 70 to 90 ounces of water is taken in some liquid form, "making an average of one-half ounce of water for each pound weight of body." Take all the water out of one's body and the solid portion will be comparatively small.

There are several well-known influences which increase or decrease the amount of food consumed by each individual, and these influences are sometimes under our control, and sometimes beyond.

1. The mental condition affects the quantity of food taken and assimilated. Grief, anger, passion lessen the demand. Hope, joy, a state of pleasurable excitement increase the amount of food required. It has often been observed that if one, hungry as need be, just on the point of setting down to a meal, receive bad news, the appetite is entirely removed. The food is touched, and what may be swallowed is not properly digested. Children, under the excitement of going on a journey, cannot eat.

2. The "size, vigor, activity of circulation, and of the eliminating organs" regulate the amount of food in individual cases. It is not probable that two men will desire just the same amount of food. One weighs 120 pounds, the other 220 pounds. The probabilities are that the weighty man will require most food. However, this is not always true, for it sometimes happens that the same man requires the most food. His circulation may be more active, or the power of elimination greater, which makes the physical demand so much greater than in the case of the large, muscular man.

3. The exertion of work or exercise will increase the demand for food. Experiments show that the man at work or soldier on service require from 26 to 31 ounces of water-free food per day, while the same man in quietude requires from 16 to 18 ounces (Parker). During severe physical labor there is great destruction of animal tissue. This is eliminated by perspiration, and the exhalation of the lungs. Unless this water is supplied exhaustion will soon follow. Prof. Dalton says: "From experiments performed while living on an exclusive diet of bread, fresh meat and butter, with coffee and water as drinks, we have found that the entire quantity of food required during twenty-four hours by a man in perfect health and taking free exercise in the open air, is as follows: meat, 16 ounces; bread, 19 ounces; butter or fat, 3.5 ounces; water, 52 fluid ounces."

4. Climate has much to do in making differences in amount of food consumed by different persons. In cold weather and cold climates more solid food is required and taken than in warm weather and a warmer climate. In the cold climates a stick of fat is more highly relished than a stick of candy. The fat supplies a demand of the system in the cold which the candy cannot. "Dr. Hayes, the arctic explorer states, from his personal observation, that the daily ration of the Esquamaux is from 12 to 15 pounds of meat, about one-third of which is fat. On one occasion he saw an Esquimaux consume ten pounds of walrus flesh and blubber at a single meal, which lasted however, several hours. The continued low temperature, he found, had a remarkable effect on the tastes of his own party. With the thermometer ranging from 60° to 70° Fahr. below zero there was a continual craving for a strong animal diet, particularly fatty substances. Some members of the party were in the habit of drinking the contents of the oil-kettles with evident relish." In the warmer climates less meat and more fruit will be found to supply the real demands of the body for food. It is well established that the system demands a mixed diet. This opens the question discussed between the vegetarians and flesh eaters. Into this we do not propose entering at present more than to say that the structure of the human mouth, the alimentary canal, the experience of persons deprived for any considerable time of one kind of food requiring them to be fed upon either vegetable or flesh alone, and the relish of the mixed food are arguments favoring a mixed animal and vegetable diet not as yet overcome. While there may be single instances of successful living on a single class of food, these cannot establish a law; especially in view of the many disastrous attempts at subsistence contrary to the indicated laws of our being. Variety of food is a hygienic necessity. The normal appetite demands variety, why, can not be told. Men who have, on long sea voyages, been deprived of variety of food, but have confined themselves to hard salt meats and sea bread, have been the subjects of diseases which have disappeared on a change of diet and the use of mixed food. Good, wholesome mixed food is not bad to take when one is hungry.

Statistics of the South India Conference, 1884.—Probationers, 617; full members, 1295; local preachers, 57; deaths this year, 33; baptisms of children, 170; of adults, 29.

The South India Conference.—From a number of important changes and subjects under discussion, we gather a few which are of especial interest. It will be seen from the list of appointments that the conference was divided into six districts; that George Bowen is one of the presiding elders; Dr. Thoburn another, and also constituted conference evangelist; Rev. A W Rudisill a third, while well known workers supply the remaining districts; Rev D O Fox is to come home on a furlough; Singapore is occupied; Drs Thoburn is corresponding secretary of the conference. In future all applications for missionaries or money must be approved by a committee of five (this committee including three of the presiding elders), and pass through the hands of the corresponding secretary; a hearty invitation was extended to Dr. Vincent to visit India, in the interest of Sunday-schools. The Central Conference of India, is to be held in Bareilly January 13, immediately following the session of the North India Conference which begins Jan. 7.

General Church News.

A Presbyteran minister, in a letter in the Herald and Presbyterian of Cincinnati, states that in the state of Indiana there are 308 churches and 185 ministers; that of these ministers only 125 are in active service, and live among their people, leaving 184 churches dependent on laymen to conduct their social services.

Progress of the Gospel in Madagascar—At a recent conference on Christian life and work held at Glasgow, the following most interesting statement was made with regard to the work of the London Missionary Society in Madagascar. In the year 1883 there were in the island 1200 churches with about 80,000 communicants. All the churches are self-supporting and in 1882 they gave £4000 for missions. Within the last fourteen years they have built 700 churches which are all clear of debt. In 1882 there were twenty native pastors, there are now 600. There are twenty-nine European missionaries in the island, but they are not engaged as pastors of native congregations. They act as superintendents, each having some forty congregations under him.—United Presbyterian Missionary Record.

American Bible Society.

The stated meeting of the Board of Managers was held at the Bible House, on Thursday, January 1st, 1885, Frederick S. Winston, Esq., Vice-President, in the chair.

Religious services were conducted by Rev. J. DeHart Bruen, of Belvidere, New Jersy.

Among other correspondence of the month, reference was had to a petition from Brazil urging that some measures be taken for the revision of D'Almeida's Portuguese version, and a letter from Dr. Wright, of London, communicating plans of the British and Foreign Bible Society for the revision of Figueredo's version. Letters from Mr. Loomis, of Japan, were accompanied by a copy of the Chino Corean Gospel of Matthew, printed at Yokohama. Rev. Edwin M. Bliss was reported to have reached Constantinople, having gone by the way of Giberaltar, to avoid quarantine.

Letters of thanks were presented from the Valparaiso Bible Society, and from the Methodist Missions in Sweden and India. A letter from Mr. Prince, gave gratifying reports from Siberia.

Grants of books were made to the value of about $4,650 to various societies, churches, and individuals, including $4,000 for colportage.

It was reported that 200 colporteurs are now in the employ of the Society, and the 11,610 volumes had been consigned to colporteurs in nineteen States of the Union during the month of December.

One Bible society was recognized as auxiliary in each of the three States of South Carolinia, Texas, and West Virginia.

The total receipts for December were $41,378 34, and 113,014 volumes were issued from the Bible House during the same period.

From almost every section of the State come reports of a general improvement of the health of our people, due no doubt to the influence of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Duty of Ministers.

REV. A. PHILLIPS.

The minister's duty is to preach the Gospel, and visit the sick and pray with them and for them, and bring as many sinners to Christ as he can. It is his duty to feed and watch over his flock. It is said when the shepherd is smitten the sheep will scatter. What could the temple do without a watchman? Furthermore it is his duty to administer baptism and the sacrament, and solemnize the rites of matrimony, and attend the funerals and burials of the dead when called on among his people. The minister should look after the children of his flock and get them in the Sunday-school. The minister should not sleep on his post, but be watchful. The churches should love their ministers and be ruled by their counsels. The minister's business is of great concern and importance.

Nashville, Tenn.

A SURE THING.

Baldness is only incurable when the hair roots are dead and absorbed, which is a rare condition. In nearly all cases they are simply torpid, and can be stimulated to put forth a new growth of hair by the use of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, the only preparation that cures baldness and restores youthful color to gray hair.

Baldness Cured and Age Rejuvenated.

J. W. HAMMOND, Lake Preston, D. T., when he was but 40 years old found his hair growing gray. At 50, his hair and whiskers were entirely white. So they continued until he reached 60 years of age, when he began using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, three bottles of which sufficed to restore their original rich, dark brown color.

MRS. AUGUST VALENTINE, of Buffalo, N. Y., had become nearly bald, and though she made use of many of the so-called hair restorers, none had any effect. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR did what nothing else could do, and now the lady again has a fine head of hair, thanks entirely to it.

GEO. MAYER, Flatonia, Texas, presented an apparently hopeless case. Baldness was hereditary in his family. By the time he was 23 years old he had scarcely any hair left. One bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR started a soft, downy growth all over his scalp, and in a few months his head was covered with soft, dark and abundant hair.

Medicinal Virtues.

The rare medicinal powers, emollient, stimulative and tonic, possessed by AYER'S HAIR VIGOR enable it to cure speedily Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Tetter-sores, Dandruff, Humors of various kinds, and other diseases of the scalp liable to cause baldness. It is not a dye, contains no coloring matter, and effects its rejuvenation of faded or gray hair simply by bringing back the vigor of youth to the roots and color glands of the hair.

The wife of DR. V. S. LOVELACE, Lovelace, Ky., had very bad Tetter Sores on her head. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR cured them.

The son of JAMES N. CARTER, Occoquan, Va., was cured of Scald-Head by AYER'S HAIR VIGOR.

HERBERT BOYD, Minneapolis, Minn., was cured by AYER'S HAIR VIGOR of intolerable Itching of the Scalp.

MRS. C. DAVENPORT, Williamstown, Vt., became entirely bald at the age of 20 and remained so 38 years, during which time she tried many hair "restorers" without success. Eventually she used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, four bottles of which covered her head with a fine growth of silky brown hair, twelve inches long.

MRS. O. O. PRESCOTT, Charlestown, Mass., had lost two-thirds of her hair, by its falling out, when she applied AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and one bottle of it caused her hair to grow out even more handsome than before it began to fall.

MRS. D. N. PARKS, Clio, Michigan, is 57 years of age, and her hair was quite gray, but one bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR restored the color it bore in youth, and she now has "as fine a head of hair as when she was but 16."

VINCENT JONES, Richmond, Ind., lost all his hair in consequence of a severe attack of brain fever. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR brought out a new growth in a few weeks, and it speedily grew long and thick.

A Toilet Luxury.

Where the hair is brittle, dry, harsh, weak, or thin, the use of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR speedily renders it pliant, soft, glossy, and stimulates it to a rich and luxurious growth. It also keeps the scalp free from dandruff, and affords a perfect assurance against the hair falling out or turning gray. No other dressing is so clean or has such a delicate and delightful perfume. Without it the toilet cannot be complete.

Ladies who have once made trial of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR never after prefer any other hair-dressing, and many of them voluntarily offer such testimonials as the following, from MISS KATE ROSE, Ingersoll, Ont., who writes:

"While keeping my head clear of Dandruff, and preventing Scald Head, it has also caused my hair to grow luxuriantly, resulting in my now possessing hair forty-two inches long, and as thick as any one could wish it."

Temperance in the South.

The National Temperance Society is at present on an active campaign in the South. Rev C. H. Mead, its special missionary among the freedmen, has recently visited a number of colored conferences in Georgia and Alabama, reaching over 1,000 ministers, and supplying them with temperance literature, and will extend his work to other part of the South. Mr. J. N. Stearns, Corresponding Secretary of the Society, is arranging for a series of meetings in New Orleans and in Florida during February and March. He will visit Florida about the middle of February with Mr. Mead, and hold a series of meetings in that State. The 3d and 4th of March have been set apart by the authorities of the new "Florida Chautauqua" at Lake De Funiak for meetings under the auspices of the National Temperance Society. Able addresses are expected from Gen. W. Bain, Gen. O. B. Fisk, Mrs. J. E. Foster, Rev. C. H. Mead, J. N. Stearns, and others. This new "assembly" ground has been secured and comfortably fitted up for a Southern resort, where a month of meetings similar to those at Chautauqua in the North will be held. Rev. A. H. Gillet, of Ohio, is the director of exercises for all the meetings. March 12 and 13 have been set apart by the managers of the Exposition at New Orleans for meetings under the auspices of the National Temperance Society. The meetings will be addressed by Rev. Dr. T. L. Cuyler, Geo. W. Bain, Esq., Mrs. J. E. Foster, Gen. O. B. Fisk, Rev. C. H. Mead, J. N. Stearns, and others. A week of meetings will be held in New Orleans by the Society in February and among the colored people. THE PILLOW-INHALER!

[The above illustration represents a person using the Pillow-Inhaler.]

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION.

THE PILLOW-INHALER is one of the most effective inventions of the age. It does what never has been done before, viz.: carries down the stronghold of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption by a continuous application of Medicated and Curative Air to the diseased and tender membranes of the air-passages of the nose, throat and lungs.

A Radical and Permanent Cure.

Most people who have Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption have tried from one to a dozen different remedies without being cured. Why have they not been cured? Simply because what they took were not strong. How is a snuff to be got into all the intricate air-passages and in the blood (for Catarrh is a constitutional disease)? or, how will a dissolving tablet for a few minutes a day dislodge the enemy from its stronghold of decaying tissue? Everybody knows that medicine taken in dose has very feeble effect on diseases of a pulmonary character. They have to take such a roundabout way to get into the blood that they miss their power. Yet after all there is an Absolute Cure, and that is the PILLOW-INHALER—a means of all-night or continuous inhalation. The testimony to its results is beyond all question, by the experience of thousands. The cures it has affected seem almost incredible. It is a comfortable pillow of soft hair, with receptacles in which is put the evaporating medicine, the fumes of which the diseased person inhales all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, without being annoyed and without nothing that he is taking medicine. There is no dosing the stomach, no douching or snuffing; but, just as a smoky lamp, during the whole night, will leave a thick deposit on a whitened wall, so the PILLOW-INHALER, for eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-passages, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. It is a constitutional and local cure at the same time. The medicine is applied directly, like a salve, at the seat of the disease, besides going into the blood during its aeration. It is inexpensive and within the reach of every one. No matter what you have tried or how despairing you are, call and see it, or write for Pamphlet and Testimonials. Address,

The Inter Ocean.

In 1865, THE INTER-OCEAN dating upon the fourteenth year of its existence. Given an established confidence by the people in its early days it has steadily grown in favor until to-day, when the publishers take pride in the fact that the paper goes into more homes and has a greater number of readers than any publication west of the Alleghanies.

Since the beginning THE INTER OCEAN has stood firmly by the principles of the Republican party, and has, in common with other newspapers, contributed its full share to the success of the Republican party. It is conceded on all sides that the victories of 1880 and 1884 were largely due to the able support given by the Republican press, and that the defeat of 1882 was largely due to the lack of such support. It is unnecessary to say that the INTER OCEAN will be found in the future, as in the past, battling for the principles of the Republican party, and has no apology to offer for its political course. It will be found in the front rank of the battle when the Republican standard is unfurled, and will be found battling for victory when the enemy is in sight. It will be a welcome visitor to the Republican fireside, and will be found a most valuable auxiliary in the campaign of 1884.

The INTER OCEAN will, in the future as in the past, be the champion through which the best Republican thought will be given to the people. It will voice the conviction of advanced Republicanism without being unfair even to Southern Democrats. It will be aggressively Republican without being bitterly partisan, and will give as much attention to the affairs of Cleveland's administration as it would have given to the administration of Mr. Blaine had he been elected. With an Associated Press franchise, with special wires reaching New York and Washington, with special correspondents in all important points of the country, THE INTER OCEAN will use its facilities for collecting news without fear of favor, and so far as governmental affairs or party movements are concerned, will give a fuller record than any other paper.

All of the old departments will be continued. The scope of the WOMAN'S KINGDOM will be widened so as to take in all the industrial and social fields in which women are interested and engaged. OUR CURIOSITY SHOP, now a standard, will be given greater variety and interest. In the FARM AND HOME and other departments the widest possible range of topics will be discussed.

Of original short stories and serials, the very best by American and English authors will be given during the year. Arrangements have been made to publish during the year short stories by ROSELLE HOWELLS, LA THROP, and others, and a new serial by the author of "One summer," and to publish all these in addition to the serial by Miss BRADDON and other English authoress. In every department of news and literature THE INTER OCEAN will make a better record than it has ever done.

4. In whose reign was it pronounced?
5. Of what prophet did the Savior make mention?

Barbora Waters, corresponding secretary of Fairfield Chapel Sunday-school, at New Home, Miss., writes: We had a good Sunday-school here last year, and I rejoice to say we spent the centennial year religiously. We had 75 pupils enrolled, 48 of whom held on until the weather became so bad that we had to close until the winter season is over. Many of the scholars were converted, which added much to our happiness. The Rev. F. Flarney gave us a lecture the first Sunday in each month. The president of the Woman's Home Missionary Society organized our school, and we and the society are doing all we can to make it a success. On the third Sunday Elder S. Duncan preached to us. His text was, "Go forward." Bro. F. Flarney also preached, his text being, "Roll away the storm." This year we intend to take these two texts for our motto, and "Roll away the storm, and go forward."

Master William H. Crawford having completed his task of answering questions in our Sunday-school department has received his reward and writes us as follows: Van Buren, Ark., Jan. 17, 1884: Rev. Marshall W. Taylor—Dear Sir: I received your letter about two weeks ago. I received the medal on Saturday, the 17th of January. I like it very well. It makes a beautiful watch charm. I put it on my watch chain and wore it to school Sunday. Excuse my short letter. No more at present. Excuse my bad writing. Yours truly,

WM. H. CRAWFORD.

J. L. MASSEY, P. C.

"Wash you, make you clean, put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless and plead for the widow." "Come now and let us reason together," saith the Lord, "though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool. If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land; but if ye refuse and rebel ye shall be devoured with the sword, for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

A Thrilling Experience!

Remarkable Statement of Personal Danger and Providential Escape.

The following story—which is attracting wide attention from the press—is so remarkable that we cannot excuse ourselves if we do not lay it before our readers, even though its length would ordinarily preclude its admission to our limited space.

To the Editor Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat.

Sir,—On the first day of June, 1881, I lay at my residence in this city surrounded by my friends and waiting for death. Heaven only knows the agony I then endured. for words can never describe it. And yet, if a few years previous any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have scoffed at the idea. I had always been uncommonly strong and healthy, and weighed over 200 pounds and hardly knew, in my own experience, what pain or sickness were. Very many people who will read this statement realize at times that they are unusually tired and cannot account for it. They feel dull pains in various parts of the body and do not understand it. Or they are exceedingly hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. This was just the way I felt when the relentless malady which had fastened itself upon me first began. Still I thought nothing of it; that probably I had taken a cold which would soon pass away. Shortly after this I noticed a heavy, and at times neuralgic pain in one side of my head, but as it would come one day and be gone the next, I paid little attention to it. Then my stomach would get out of order and my food often failed to digest, causing at times great inconvenience. Yet, even as a physician, I did not think that these things meant anything serious. I fancied that I was suffering from malaria and doctored myself accordingly. But I got no better. I next noticed a peculiar color and odor about the fluids I was passing—also that there were large quantities one day and very little the next, and that a persistent froth and scum appeared upon the surface, and a sediment settled. And yet I did not realize my danger, for, indeed, [illegible] toms continually, I finally became accustomed to them, and my [illegible] was wholly disarmed by the fact that I had no pain in the affected organs or in their vicinity. Why I should have been so blind I cannot understand.

I consulted the best medical skill in the land. I visited all the famed mineral springs in America and traveled from Maine to California. Still I grew worse. No two physicians agreed as to my malady. One said I was troubled with spinal irritation; another, dyspepsia; and another, heart disease; another, general debility; another congestion of the base of the brain; and so on through a long list of common diseases, the symptoms of many of which I really had. In this way several years passed, during which time I was steadily growing worse. My condition had really become public. The slight symptoms I at first experienced were developed into terrible and constant disorders. My weight has been reduced from 207 to 130 pounds. My life was a burden to myself and friends. I could retain no food on my stomach, and lived wholly by injections. I was a living mass of pain. My pulse was uncontrollable. In my agony I frequently fell to the floor and clutched the carpet, and prayed for death. Morphine had little or no effect in deadening the pain. For six days and nights I had the death premonitory hiccoughs constantly. My water was filled with tube-casts and albumen. I was struggling with Bright's Disease of kidneys in its last stages!

While suffering thus I received a call from my pastor, the Rev. Dr. Foote, at that time rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, of this city. I felt that it was our last interview, but in the course of the conversation Dr. Foote detailed to me the many remarkable cures of cases like my own which had come under his observation, by means of a remedy, which he urged me to try. As a practicing physician and a graduate of the school, I derided the idea of any medicine outside the regular channels being in the least beneficial. So solicitous, however, was Dr. Foote, that I finally promised I would waive my prejudice. I began its use on the first day of June, 1881, and took it according to directions. At first it sickened me; but this I thought was a good sign for one in my debilitated condition. I continued to take it; the sickening sensation departed, and I was finally able to retain food upon my stomach. In a few days I noticed a decided change for the better, as also did my wife and friends. My hiccoughs ceased and I experienced less pain than formerly. I was so rejoiced at this improved condition that, upon what I had believed but a few days before was my dying bed, I vowed, in the presence of my whole family and friends, should I recover I would both publicly and privately make known this for the good of humanity, and this letter is in fulfilment of that vow. My improvement was constant from that time, and in less than three months I had gained 26 pounds in flesh, became entirely free from pain and I believe I owe my life and present condition wholly to Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy which I used.

Since my recovery I have thoroughly re-investigated the subject of kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and the truths developed are astounding. I therefore state, deliberately, and as a physican, that I believe more than one-half the deaths which occur in America are caused by Bright's disease of the kidneys This may sound like a rash statement, but I am prepared to fully verify it. Bright's disease has no distinctive symptoms of its own, (indeed, it often develops without any pain whatever in the kidneys or their vicinity), but has the symptoms of nearly every other common complaint. Hundreds of people die daily, whose burials are authorized by a physician's certificate as occurring from "Heart Disease," "Apoplexy," "Paralysis," "Spinal Complaint," "Rheumatism," "Pneumonia," and other common complaints, when in reality it is from Brights disease of the kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people, realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous and insidious nature. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence if at all by the commonest symptoms and fastens itself upon the constitution before the victim is aware of it. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly, from convulsions, apoplexy or heart disease. As one who has suffered, and knows by bitter experience what he says, I implore every one who reads these words not to neglect the slightest symptom of kidney difficulty. Certain, speedy and probable death will be the sure result of such neglect, and no one can afford to hazard such chances.

Be aware that such an unqualified statement as this, coming from me, known as I am throughout the entire land as a practitioner and author, will arouse the surprise and possible animadversion of the medical profession and astonish all with whom I am acquainted, but I make the foregoing statements based upon facts which I am prepared to produce and truths which I can substantiate to the letter. The welfare of those who may possibly be sufferers such as I was, is an ample inducement for me to take the step I have, and if I can successfully warn others from the dangerous path in which I once walked, I am willing to endure all professional and personal consequence.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself hath said,
This is my own, my native land!
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burn'd
As home his footsteps he hath turn'd
From wandering on a foreign strand!
If such there breathe, go, mark him well;
For him no minstrel raptures swell;
High though his titles, proud his name,
Boundless his wealth as wish can claim;
Despite those titles, power, and pelf,
The wretch, concentred all in self,
Living, shall forfeit fair renown,
And, doubly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust, from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

—Canto Sixth, Lay of the Last Minstrel.

The Columbia Christian Tract and Book Society, at the Annual Meeting in December last, reported a circulation of nearly 600,000 religious books and tracts, besides those made and their immediate need in native languages supplied.

We have been assured that the Conference Claimants fund will be able to pay in full the claims of the poor preachers who have given their lives that would have been much cut for its timely comfort. We feel grateful, indeed, for these testimonies, and we hope to deserve them.

THE TRIP.

We rolled out and away from the Illinois Central depot in New Orleans, bound for Aberdeen, the seat of the Mississippi Conference. The trip was rendered exceedingly pleasant by the courtesy of the train employes, the excellence of the road and rolling stock, the agreeable companionship of parties who, like ourself, were en route to the conference seat. This road gives a liberal share of its train work to Negroes, and is, of course, quite a favorite with them. If they ride in the smoker when travelling on this line it must be from preference, as we neither saw or met any force when entering a first-class coach. The landscape view is delightful, and the beauty of the scenery is greatly enhanced by the spring like brightness and grace of the day. Just think of riding all day on the 4th of February without fire because the clear, steady sunshine made it disagreeable to have fire or even sit with closed windows. There are several very pretty towns, villages, and one city, Jackson, the capital of the State, along this road as far as we traveled it. At this place we were joined by the Revs. Simpson Jossel, of the Vicksburg circuit, and Alexander McBeth of Edwards station, at the next Bro. McDuff entered and we were ready for Shakspeare's great tragedy, Hamlet, or at least we had by name the two leading characters. We next came to Canton, where that great and true man, A. K. Davis, recently closed his eyes and fled through the temporary darkness to abiding day. Then we came to Durant, having crossed the Jackson district, of which the Rev. J. M. Shumpert is presiding elder, we have come to the Greenwood district, of which the Hon. Rev. Dr. Hiram R. Revels is presiding elder. Here we joined Rev. Hayward Henley, who waits by the side of a deeply afflicted wife's bedside, unable, therefore, to meet with his brethren of the conference. Through his kindness we were properly cared for, and after a short stay we resumed our journey. The Rev. John Wesley Dunn, who is an important member of the conference, having been three terms presiding elder and a member of the General Conference of 1880, is a man of powerful build, quite black, would be bald but he has found a way to prevent it, and is a neatly dressed, very dignified gentleman of 74 summers, who was a preacher in ye halcyon days before the war, and has been in the conference since its organization. He is at present a superannuate but still preaches when occasion serves. He is a man of fine native talent and worth $3,000 or $4,000. S. H. H. Touls, formerly of Zenia, Ohio, practicing physician, late of Memphis, Tenn., at present at Canton, Miss., where he is serving as supply to the congregation lately under the care of Rev. A. K. Davis, also joined us at Durant. Dr. Toules has been somewhat prominent in the politics of the South, and was shot and severely wounded while upon the stand making a political speech in in LaGrange, Tenn., in 1867, from which he is still a sufferer. He graduated in medicine at Cleveland, Ohio, in 1850. It would be hard to distinguish him from our old friend Dr. Cary, of Cincinnati, and this will give our Queen City readers a fair comprehension of his make up. Rev. Alfred Handy, of Brandon, also joined us there, as well as Rev. Wm. Payne, C. P. Head, John Eans, I. N. Lampkins and others. We had an agreable trip and congratulate ourselves upon so fortunate a traveling companionship as as these beloved brethren supplied. As to the country here it is well adapted to the uses of the Negro; it needs him, he needs it, and we advise him to stay here, make the best of the present, and time will bring an ample reward. What would the white people here do without the Negro, and what would he do without them? The need is mutual, let both recognize and work in peace.

From Durant we moved on at four o'clock in the morning, rushing on through the upland country to Aberdeen, where, in a slight rain, we hastened forward to our very pleasant home, thence to the place where the Conference was already in session.

THE CONFERENCE

Is meeting in the very handsome edifice our brethren have had the commendable enterprise to secure. The acoustic and other arrangements favorable to forensic display are of a high order in excellence, the aisles and platform are neatly carpeted and well furnished with space for the choir in the rear of the pulpit, a rather massive stained wood railing incloses the space, within which is most gracefully seated our resident Primus inter pares.

WILLARD F. MALLALIEU,

looking every inch the dignified and urbane gentleman that he is. Beyond this is a vast audience room, furnished within and without with wood and ceiled with the same. The inside strips are arranged in upright position, and the ceiling following the pitch of the rafters, forms an angle of probably 35 degrees; a proportionate tower completes the structure, creeping up 20 or 30 feet above the apex of the roof. There is a heavy wainscotting in variegated colors, all else is clear white. Bishop Mallalieu looks, presides with ease, accuracy and proceeds in the dispatch of business with such deliberate action as the great interests committed to his care seems to us to require. That well-known minister, Rev. J. M. Shumpert, is Secretary, and is, notwithstanding his assiduous and faithful performance of the duties of his important station, also promptly on hand to aid in the guidance of matters coming before the conference. He has been sent to the General Conference, and enjoys the respect and confidence of his brethren. Dr. Hiram R. Revels, looking as young and clerical as 25 years ago, sits in a place of honor accorded by the unanimous testimonial of his brethren, a man without a stain, highly honored, uniformly confided in and never violating the confidence thus confided in him, whether in spiritual or physical concerns. Hiram R. Revels has proved himself fully entitled to the honor he has so long and continuously received from his brethren and true men of all races. Joseph Campbell was one of the delegates from this to the General Conference in 1884, he is one of the present presiding elders, is a man of first-rate ability, highly respected in all circles of the church, has experience as a teacher, and is a thoroughly conscientious preacher. In physique he is about the stature of the great Napoleon about the time of the seige of Moscow. Firmness and rotundity are not always united in the same person but Bro. Campbell has them both in an almost perfect degree. J. C. Echols, formerly of Iowa, is also one of the presiding elders here; and whatever was true of it in the past, he is at present here by the unanimous desire and to the profit and pleasure of his colored brethren, if an outsider may be permitted to form conclusions from things as they appear upon the surface. He is an earnest, well developed, energetic worker. In personal appearance, except the almost nondescript nose of the latter, he is the exact counterpart in all physical respects of Hon. O. P. Morton, late United States Senator from Indiana. Rev. W. McDonald is on the Gulf district of this Conference, and D. A. Williams of the Okolona district, completes the list of elders, except we must not omit J. M. Shumpert, who has just closed his first year on the Jackson district. Bro. McDonald is a man of commanding personal appearance, and will weigh two hundred pounds or more; the appearance is that these brethren are well cared for. Rev. Moses Adams is here; he is one of the fathers, and he carries his age within perfect control. There are very few gray and no bald heads in sight. This would remind us that the fathers are passing away to their rest.

OPENING.

Aberdeen, Miss., Feb. 5, 1885.—The seventeenth session of the Mississippi Conference, of the Methodist Episcopal Church met in the audience room as above. Bishop W. F. Mallalieu presided and conducted the opening exercises, assisted by Bros. J. M. Shumpert, D. A. Williams, Dr. Hiram R. Revels and Joseph Campbell.

The Bishop and presiding elders administered the communion of the Lord's supper to the presiding of a numerous company of ministers and people.

BISHOP'S ADDRESS.

The Bishop, after this, delivered an address to the conference eliciting the deepest interest, commanding wrapt attention, and imparting valuable information. His reference to Bishop Wiley who presided at the previous session of this conference, was a beautiful and tender tribute to the memory of his colleague now enshrined with the blest.

ORGANIZATION.

Rev. J. M. Shumpert, the Secretary of the last conference, called the roll and 60 members and 24 probationers answered to their names.

On motion of Dr. Revels Rev. J. M. Shumpert was elected Secretary unanimously. Revs. Jos. Campbell and L. F. White were elected assistant secretaries.

Rev. A. D. Payne was elected statistical secretary; A. M. Trotter and J. C. Houston, assistants.

INTRODUCTIONS.

Rev. O. L. Haley, pastor of First Presbyterian Church; Rev. J. D. West, pastor Second Presbyterian Church; Rev. R. P. Mitchell, pastor Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Aberdeen; Rev. T. A. Cotton and O. O. Knight, members of and fraternal delegates from the Central Tennessee Conference; Rev. C. M. White, of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church; Rev. L. W. Washington, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, also of Aberdeen; Marshall W. Taylor of the Lexington Conference, representing the SOUTHWESTERN, all were introduced to the conference.

The transfer of Rev. J. C. Echols from the DesMoines to the Mississippi Conference was announced by the Bishop, and the secretary authorized to place his name on the roll.

Drafts for $30 on the chartered fund, and $120 on the Book Concern dividend were ordered.

Bro. W. McDonald moved, and the Conference resolved, that age and time of licensing all candidates for admission shall be taken and filed with conference documents.

The death of Rev. A. K. Davis, late pastor at Canton, and former Lieutenant Governor of the State, was announced.

The Holly Springs District was called; the presiding elder, J. C. Echol's character passed, and he gave a well prepared report, showing prosperity and a hopeful outlook for the future.

The character of the following effective elders passed and they reported their benevolent money: J. W. Faulkner, H. York, Jas. Ellis, S. A. Cowan, B. L. Crump, M. H. Foster, L. O. Crowder, and W. W. Hooper.

Okolona District, D. A. Williams character passed, and he reported, the report indicating general prosperity.

Reporting their collection, the charboter of the following elders were passed: G. Carr, M. Proctor, L. L. Shumpert, G. Brooks, A. W. Wright, Wm. Gatewood, L. J. Terrill, D. W. Calvert, I. B. Griffin. J. Mosely was reported deceased during the year.

Greenwood district was reported by the elder, and his character, with that of each effective elder on the district, was examined and passed.

Dr. Revels then submitted an able statement of his labors, and that of his brethren; all had done well and were determined to accomplish even more the coming than in the past years.

The character of the following effective elders then passed, J. Clemons, D. D. Goodwin, J. M. Nevils, H. Cawthorn, C. L. Crump, John Everett, John Eanes, A. Lemons, E. Collins, P. Harris.

The Jackson District was called, J. M. Shnmpert, presiding elder, presented an able report, evincing energetic and gratifying success. The character of the following effective elders then passed, they having reported their benevolent collections, viz: A. Handy, J. W. Parks, R. Anderson, E. Graves, C. Stewart and A. Davis.

W. B. Kendrick was referred to a court of inquiry.

Time expired and conference adjourned with the benediction by Rev. C. M. White.

SECOND DAY.

Bishop Mallalieu, presiding; Rev. Nathan Toole conducted the religious exercies, after which the journals of the previous day were read and approved, and further calling of the roll dispensed with. Seven members absent at the opening, were present. The names of the ministers who failed to hand in their report on the first day, were called by the Statistical Secretary.

This is a new feature in Conference proceedings, brought about by recent action of the General Conference. There will doubless be much improvement in the generality with which statistical reports are made. Conferences which are yet to meet, might as well prepare to report on the afternoon of the first day of their session. Dr. Revels offered the following, which the was adopted:

Whereas, The anditing committee of our last Annual Conference by mistake represented in their report, the sum of $128 missionary money unaccounted for, in the hands of Rev. Lewis Bradford, once presiding elder of Holly Springs district, when, long before that time the said Elder Bradford had returned said amount to the Missionary Society, and received the receipt for the same; and,

Whereas, The adoption of committees report with the above mistake upon its face was not observed by the conference; therefore

Resolved, That we regret that so great an injustice was done to the former member of this Conference above named, and trust that the unanimous adoption of this preamble and resolution may fully vindicate him against any wrong that may have been done him in the way above named."

Upon motion of Rev. J. M. Shumpert, in was resolved that minutes printed, and certified by the secretary of conference as a correct copy of the proceedings of the Mississippi Conference, shall be accepted as the official journal of the same.

Consideration of the 20th question was resumed. Rev. Joseph Campbell was called, and his character passed, and after which he reported his district; the report showing prosperity on the Meridian district.

The character of the following elders were passed, and their reports received: P. Blue, M. Adams, W. H. H. Gallion, J. D. Walden, A. R. Sanders and Obadiah Gillespie. Levi Clayton had died during the year.

Warren McDonald, presiding elder of the Gulf District, after the passage of his character reported the district as enjoying a year of great spiritual growth. The following effective elders reported and their character passed namely: Nathan Cannon, J. B. Smith, J. H. Cook, H. Henderson, Robert Roundtree, William Dorsey, Hanny May, P. E. Bardwell, and H. L. Kennedy. The following remained on trial, namely: B. H. S. Ferguson, S. Jossell, S. H. Nevils, J. K. Cumfort, Jesse Burton, and William Campbell, N. H. Williams having failed in his studies was not advanced; N. D. Clifford, was announced as having been transfered to the Texas Conference.

The character of Daniel James, J. W. Dunn, and Thomas Brown were passed and they continued in the superannate relation.

Gilbert Harden, and Jacob Cannon, had passed from this relation to the effective list in the Church of the first born during the year.

Dr. Marshall W. Taylor read a leeter from Mr. J. M. Phillips, of Phillips & Hunt, in which with regrets for his inability to be present with the conference, a careful statement of the present condition of the SOUTHWESTERN was submitted.

Afterward Dr. Taylor addressed the conference, and thereafter Rev. J M Shumpert, and Rev Dr Hiram R Revels, presented, and the conference adopted unanimously by rising vote the following:

"Resolved, That we are pleased to be visited by our brother and friend, Rev Dr Marshall W Taylor, editor of our church organ, the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and we extend to him a cordial greeting.

Resolved, That we thank our last General Conference for placing him in a position in which he can by his ripe scholarship, brilliant talent, and unquestionable ability, hold up, support, and strengthen the cause of education and religion.

Resolved,—That we are pleased with his course as editor of the

Letters from the Pastors.

Rev. E. Coggswell, Alleyton, Texas, writes: "I have entered upon my third year's work with the people of Alleyton with new zeal and energy; and everybody seems to be glad of my reappointment. We are expecting great things this year. When I returned from conference the thought came to me about building a new house of worship; some favored it and some did not; bnt at the quarterly conference, which met Saturday the 10th, at which all the brethren were present, had a splendid time. Everything was conducted in a business like mannet, by our much beloved elder, P. M. Carmichael. One thing worthy of note was the adoption of the disciplinary plan of raising money. I think this plan, though new, will prove successful. On the following night, (Saturday night), we had our quarterly love feast, which was a season of blessing to all present. A great many spoke for the Master. The collection at this service for benevolent purposes was $2.40. On Sunday morning at 9 o'clock, we had Sunday-school, and at 11 the elder preached us a good sermon from the text. 'Which is the great commandment.' 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and and the second is like unto it. 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.' 'On these two hang the laws of the prophets.' At 3 he preached a sermon on the 'Holy Ghost' that will long be remembered. He also administered the Lord's supper to a large number. At night we had a nice time, and took subscriptions for the SOUTHWESTERN, and finished a subscription list of $162.50. We want to have all this and more to be raised by the second quarter on our new church, to we can ask a donation of $150 from the McCabe fund."

Rev. W. S. Lankford, Little Rock, Ark., writes: "Strange to say, at the command of Bishop Bowman, and call of the church, we find ourselves comfortably quartered in Little Rock, and in charge of Wesley Chapel, a new, and well finished chapel, erected after the plan of our Church Extension Society. We find the spiritual and temporal condition of the Society in a healthful state, and the future outlook quite hopeful.

We have the Wesleyan idea, about twelve persons in class, made practical in the arrangement of sixteen classes, all of whom meet on Wednesday evening of each week. Four of the classes are led by Christian women and are among our most flourishing in the Church. The Sunday-school is composed of pupils from Philander Smith College, and the city schools, being presided over by Miss Annie Richmond, a former student in Philander Smith College, and now teacher in one of our city schools. The secretary, Mr. Quillen, is one of the best, and most advanced students in College, and the entire faculty work in school as teachers. I have labored as pastor in the principal cities of the North, East and West, and in my experience of twenty-four years, I am free to confess, that, I have at no time or place, witnessed a more hopeful prospect for the future development and elevation of the race, than is found in the united work of Church and College in this growing city. The faculty of the College is made up of two males, and four females, equally divided between the races, which gives our pupils the advantage of the culture, and ability, as well as experience of both races. The dear SOUTHWESTERN has not the patronage it so richly deserves, yet a visit to our conference, by the editor, at its session at VanBuren, on the 19th of February, 1885, will insure a good subscription in Little Rock Conference. A transfer fund at this time, involving great expenditure, and moving expenses, has burdened the Society to the extent that, we fear, our thank offering, and Centennial Jubilee collection, yet to be held, will not be as successful as we could desire, or otherwise reasonably exyect; the charge having been without a regular pastor the past four months. The people are willing, and if not now, will in the near future, act well their part in this grand work. "Pray for us."

Philander Smith College, Jan. 8, 1885.

Rev. S. G. Turner, Versailles, Ky., writes: "After three months I will report the work to which I am appointed. We have just closed our fourth quarterly meeting, held the 9-11 of Jannary, our presiding elder, H. W. White, was present, and we had a joyful time. The weather was fine and the attendance good. The Master verified his promise to meet with us. Our extremity was his opportunity, and we found his grace sufficient for the emergency. The opening sermon was preached by Bro. White. Bro. E. Wilson, of St. Paul African Methodist Episcopal Church, also preached for us, and Rev. Brannum, of the same Church was with us. Our membership here is 128, and that number partook of the sacrament, which was a precious season. At the close of the evening service, Charles Fountain united with the Church. Dear Bro. Taylor, we are trying to observe the wise instructions you have given us in the past. Our congregations mostly live in the country and in autumn the roads break up which almost breaks up our congregations. Our Sabbath-school is almost a failure in the winter. We have done very well financially during the year. Raised by the stewards for all purpose $589.78; By trustees for all purposes $432; total $1,021.78; which will be added to by the close of the conference year."

Rev. J. L. Mussby, Mason, Tenn., writes: "The second quarterly conference met and the elder was on time and full of his good talk as usual. The elder's eloquent talk on the duty of the members of the Church will not soon be forgotten. We had also the Rev. J. B. Marbury, the former pastor with us, who was gladly met by his friends; he preached for us four times. The stewards at each point showed in their reports that they are doing a good work. We paid elder, $10.65; pastor, $53.75; raised for missions, $1.25; Freedman's Aid, $2.10; for bishops, 50cts; paid for traveling and moving expenses, $27; paid for rent $20. Our school is now in session and now is the time for all to come. Prof. C. E. Alexander is doing a great deal of good in the way of improving the school, and making it better this year, than it ever was before."

N. B.—Mr. Editor there was a mistake in a letter of mine, published the 8th, I did not mean that the preachers were the men in the Methodist Episcopal Church, who encouraged drinking whiskey, but we were the men who were opposing drunkenness.

N. B.—I did not mean we could build a church at this place for $200. I meant that we could build a brick church at Mason for $2,000.

Baltimore Correspondence.

A friend writes us from Baltimore: "You ought to have been here, if possible. The colored brother has had full recognition. Saturday evening, at the reception at the Academy of Music the mayor of the city welcomed the delegates on behalf of the ladies of the Methodist churches of the city, and among the richest, most cultivated most fashionable ladies and gentlemen the colored delegates mingled freely, and as the ladies passed around the refreshments one of the colored brethren remarked, "I used to pass the cake to them;" and another said, "When I was last in Baltimore I was sent to get whiskey at a certain hotel for my master; now I am a guest of that hotel." The Negro is on the upward grade, and the Methodist Episcopal Church should take no action in setting them off in any way that will cause the blush to mantle her cheek.

Gossip About Oakland's Visitor.

BY N. HILL MIDDLETON, B. A., M. D.

Dr. A. F. Boyd, Professor of Physiology in Meharry Medical College, who is at present traveling in the interest of his school, called on us Thursday, 23d ult. During the past four months we received notices from him stating that he would come among us before returning to Nashville, to pnt the work of the college fairly before the people. It bronght fond remembrances of college life to grasp the hand of our friend, and to look into his usual pleasant face. On Friday we passed the day visiting friends and patients. Saturday a "norther" passed over our section which necessitated our remaining at home only to sit around a comfortable fire reading, writing and conversing. On Sunday morning we attended Sunday-school at Oakland Church, and nothing service at Independent, where we listened to an excellent discourse by our pastor, E. S. Cooper. It was announced that Dr. Boyd would lecture in the evening, and we returned at 7 o'clock to find a well-filled church to witness the marriage of Mr. Albert Green to Miss Roxanna Fields, all of Oakland, and to be edified by the Doctor. After the marriage we had the pleasure of introducing our friend to the appreciative and attentive audience. After extending his congratulations to the couple, he took for his snbject, "Race Pride." Would only wish that it were possible to give his lecture in full, but space in your valuable sheet will not allow. That the readers of the SOUTHWESTERN and those interested in the cause may have an idea of the impression he made, I shall give here some remarks made to us. One brother said, "That talk is worth one thousand dollars to the people." Another said, "Doctor, whenever you want Dr. Boyd in this section again send for him and we will bear his expenses." On Monday we, accompanied by Rev. Cooper, visited thats public schools under the principalship of Messrs. J. H. Williams and W. D. Newton, and Miss Delia Stevens, students of Oakland Normal School. At each school Dr. Boyd spoke to our future men and women, trying, at the same time, to stimulate them on to noble things. At 8 o'clock in the evening Oakland Church was crowded to see the Doctor exhibit, hear him sing old melodies, and to listen to his words of counsel. After exhibiting one hour and a half, he spoke at length on the "History and Work of Meharry Medical Department." Addresses were also made by Dr. G. B. Townsend, Pastor Cooper and the writer. Tuesday was passed visiting friends and patients until 7 p. m., when we rode over to Brown's Chapel, there to meet quite a respectable audience awaiting us. After lecturing one hour and a half Dr. Boyd lectured on "The Needs of the Negro in America," not failing at the same time to present the cause of Meharry strongly, and everybody went away delighted and considered themselves benefitted. On Wednesday the Doctor wanted, as he said, "to take a hunt," therefore, at an early hour, with guns and horses, we were found on the banks of the Lavaca indulging in the chase. Being only an adopted son of Texas we feel to be appreciated by the people from the fact that they extended such hospitalities to our friend, and exerted snch efforts to make his stay here pleasant. Before Dr. Boyd's visit we had some six young men about to start on a preparatory course of medicine here with us before going to Nashville; now we have them fairly started, and hope soon to send up a few more aspirants. Dr. Boyd's trip through Texas has been nothing short of success. He has been amicably and fraternally received, and assisted by the profession at all points, not only by "Our Brother in Black" but by black and white. Let Dr. Boyd continue to travel, he can do Meharry invaluable service in this way. We enjoyed his visit here, and from indications he enjoyed the turkeys and other fowl that died on account of his coming. On Thursday, the 30th, we drove our friend to the depot, had him labeled Galveston, in care Rev. I. B. Scott and Dr. J. H. Wilkins, wished all success, and bade him good-bye.

A Little Light.

REV. J. ALLEN ROSS.

It was the good fortune of the writer to accept the hospitalities of Rev. G. A. Sissle, our pastor at Sharpsburg, Ky. There was a three days centennial meeting held. Sermons and addresses were delivered by Revs. S. B. Buckner, Wm. Baltimore, G. A. Sissle and the writer. The occasion was inspiring. At that part of the programme where the children and the writer were to speak, the children prevented the delivery of an address by using the time to recite several thousand verses from the Scriptures, giving chapter and verse as they proceeded. It is a matter of pride to me to be able to give willing testimony to their proficiency, and to commend the faithful and unselfish labors of their superintendent, Bro. George Lewis, and his corps of teachers. Such men always leave an impression for good upon their times. The pastor, Bro. Sissle, is so well known to you, I need not give him an introduction. A son of old Asbury Church at Lexington, Ky., he came to his work in the true Methodist spirit, and has wrought with a master hand with a faith that is snblime; he asks only for a field, and when given one, gathers the people and builds churches. In his work as a minister he goes lovingly yet fearlessly forward, with his life devoted to God and the church of his choice. He never hesitates as to what position he should assume upon all the great questions that affect the well-being of his people. An earnest, faithful man, of pure private life, his influence upon the community for good is admitted by all. In his district he is not alone. Is it any wonder that that godly man, H. W. White, presiding elder, succeeds when he has such men under him as this?

After the centennial came the first colored teachers' institute for the counties of Bath, Montgomery, and Nicholas, which assembled in Bro. Sissle's church, the success of which was largely due to our brother's active interest. It was in session three days. Kentucky begins to understand that it is of supreme importance to her material prosperity that her colored children be educated, her colored teachers be properly trained. In this institute was the best talent of the white educators in the three counties named, to give direction to the exercises, and, be it said to their credit, they gave their ripe culture and practical thought to the work in hand, with enthusiasm. In all this I fancy there is discernible evidences of a change of sentiment in certain quarters.

The wheels of progress must roll, resist them as we may, and the wise Southerner even now perceives in the Negro character elements that are essential to the fullest development of the Southland. Prejndice against the Negro, as snch, does not aid, but rather retards the progress of the country. The energy and thought expended in this direction is a certain waste. There is no reason why the one should make himself a servant in his efforts to prevent the other's being entirely free. The reaction will come, it is not far distant. Let us who love our race, and are not ashamed of our connection with it, labor in faith, wait in hope.

BY A VISITOR.

Being a member of the quarterly conference of Mexia Mission, with Rev. Willis Medlock, pastor, I had occasion to be present at the fourth quarterly conference of this work, held in conjunction with the seventh quarterly conference of Groesbeck Mission, with Rev. J. Buell pastor. The two conferences convened last Saturday, Nov. 1st, at Mt. Zion.

The presiding elder, S. Gates, was present and prsided, while the writer was elected secretary. After opening with appropriate ceremonies the regular transaction of business was taken up, but few changes were made on either work respecting the various officers. The most important of any was the removal of the old trustees of Groesbeck work, who for years have been considered trustees. Upon examining the record it was found that they were actually trustees. Their names were called and a part of them responded. One of the trustees was called upon to explain the duties of a trustee. He said "he didn't know, and furthermore he did not know that he was a trustee," although his name for several years has appeared on the record of trustees. Another one said, he wanted the brethren to lift him from trusteeship, for he knew nothing about the business of that office no way. At this juncture, Bro. A. Lynch arose and said, "I can not understand why men, who are totally ignorant of the duties of an office, were insisted upon to take an office and be retained to perform faithfully the duties belonging thereto. For several years, we have been meeting here and not once have any steps been taken to finish up this building, nor repair any of the old or build a new. Now, we want and must have a change in the business. We want live men, men who understand the duties that will devolve upon them if placed in office, and will do all in their power to perform them."

The elder then gave some ideas on the duties of a trustee, in a few words, both encouraging and appropriate. Other changes were made, but not worthy of note here. The reports made by the local preachers and Sunday-school superintendents showed that they had not been idle, yet there was much room to complain of their failing to do what was in their power to have done.

The stewards made their report showing that through the hardness of the times they had raised what money they could for the pastor and the various benevolent purposes. Yet they are far behind in the make up of the pastors' salaries. Our beloved presiding elder was called upon to settle some questions in dispute concerning "Church Polity." His descisions were well received by all parties, nem con. This being the time in which his labors among us cease, we were called upon to give our shar of money to be raised upon the entire district in the purchase of a fine suit of olothes for the elder. Having commenced the business of conference at a late hour, we were in want of time to go on with the regular rontine of business, and for want of time the brethren failed to offer resolutions of thanks for the labors and in behalf of him who has labored so zealously on this work. But we thank God that Bro. Gates is yet strong and hearty, and as an old veteran or war-horse of West Texas Conference, he is yet good for many battles. He is looking well, and just as agreable as ever or as ever can be. On Sunday he preached at Mt. Zion to quite a number of people. According to reports his sermon came up to the expectation of all hearers.

She desires me also to say that it aids digestion and overcomes exhaustion." Rev. J. W. Phelps, pastor St. Paul's M. E. Church, Chicago.

Letters From the Laity.

Mrs. F. C. Phillips, of Nashville, Tenn., writes: "We have got a live Sunday-school and a good superintendent. Our Christmas tree proved quite a success, and everyone was pleased with the Christmas exercises. There were many nice presents on the tree, and I was agreeably surprised myself to receive a set of silver spoons and a beautiful pitcher. The Rev. I. B. Scott, of the Texas conference, has been with us, and we were glad to have him. A few Sundays ago I was appointed teacher of a Bible class, and like my new field of labor very much. We are having a revival now, and so far four persons have come forward to be prayed for. I wish to call your attention to the confession of one of our preachers in the Sunday School Journal of this month, who says his Sunday-school does not use any Bible. Now, I am in favor of using lesson helps, because they make us search our Bible more than we would otherwise, but I think it is shameful for any Sunday-school not to use the Bible at all, and that the pastor is the one to blame, and not the superintendent. I am glad to say that that pastor is not my husband, as we use the Bible and the catechism, too in our school."

The Outlook For 1885.

Address of Rev. J. D. Blackwell, D.D., at the Centennial: "The number of Sunday-school scholars taught by American Methodism is about 2,000,000. It has church accommodation or sittings for more than 7,000,000, and church property valued at 74,000,000. This organization, both in England and America, has large publishing houses and book rooms amply sufficient to supply the demands of its members and friends with religious literature. The number of publications issued from the British Wesleyan book room during the year 1883 was 1,707,000, and of tracts 6,156,000. In America, too, the various divisions of Methodism have large publishing houses, or suitable arrangements for meeting the demands of their people for reading matter. From the largest of these publishing houses was issued in 1883, 732,000 books, and 5,000,000 tracts, making 385,000,000 of pages. The number of periodicals, dailies, monthlies, quarterlies, published by Methodism is 164, and by American Methodism the number is 146. Of one of the smaller papers for the children, the number issued in 1883 from one publishing house alone, that of New York, is 650,000; of another the number is 218,000, and the total copies of these two issues for the year 2,600,000 and 11,346,000 respectively. The circulation of the central paper of the M. E. church, the Christian Advocate of New York, is 55,600, and the total copies for the year number 2,891,000. Of theological schools, Methodism has 14; of universities and colleges, 69; of classical seminaries, 92; of female colleges, 84. In its mission fields it has 10 theological schools and 23 high schools and colleges making a total of 292 institutio of high grade for theological and literary training. The mission stations of American Methodism number about 120, not including the female missionary work. But at home and in foreign fields a considerable number of Christian women are faithfully laboring for the elevation and Christianizing of their own sex.

London is now one of the quietest cities in the world in consequence of the prevalence of wood or asphalt pavement in all the chief thoroughfares.

THE Upright Piano is rapidly taking the place of the square piano, formerly almost universally used, being a much less cumbersome and more attractive piece of furniture. A very important improvement in the upright, recently effected by the Mason & Hamlin Company, must give the latter still greater prominence as a practical instrument. They have succeeded in dispensing with wood in securing the strings of this instrument to its iron plate, so producing an instrument with purer, more musical tones, and especially of much greater durability. —Boston Traveller.

Publishing Interest of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Delivered as a Centennial Meeting in Ninth Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Covington, Ky.

BY REV. JOSEPH COURTNEY.

Among the many appreciable things that are presented to us of an inspiring and admirable character, there are none of historic interest that more enrich the mind with profitable thoughts, than that of the publishing interest of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Ascending the pre-eminent height of the intelligence of this enlightened century, and duly contemplating the marvelous and glorious achievements of A. the noble Wesley, the Methodist Episcopal Church, the more than three hundred years of its existence, filled with grateful emotions of thankfulness to Almighty God, for its divine origin and its commission to civilize and to Christianize the world for Christ, and as an independent Christian organization, made so in consequence of the existing circumstances one hundred years ago, she is wielding into action and utilizing every honorable agency to that end.

The Church in appreciating its present grand calling has signally characterized in many instances, like unto that of the early Christian reformers, by bearing much violence upon her acceptance. The early Christian reformers seemed that they were determined to establish the true spirit of Christianity, even in defiance of their enemies, who endeavored to suppress their religious sentiments. Their men, apparently in divine communication from God, so much filled their minds definitely, and deposited upon their minds indelibly the great principles of revealed truth. That truth which never recants until it has gained the victory over error, indeed it could not be otherwise. And when their surroundings forbid their speaking personally to as many of their fellow associates as they desired, the pen and printing became more secondary instruments in reaching the multitudes with the word of God, which produced great effect. The great center and circumference of the work of the Christian ministry and Church is the redemption of souls. The conversion of the world is the first and fundamental work of the Church. Education is of vast importance, but indeed it is secondary. The minds of the people both need to be converted, and their souls brought to the enjoyment of Christian religion, before they can be built up in Christ. There should be no subject of more interest to the Church than that of the character of their Church's literature. The highest concern of a church is to know that, what is given out, and by it religiously instructed and influenced, the world should be of the purest type.

The power of printing and development of the resources of nature belongs to man, and is best exhibited when actively engaged in that pursuit. The vastness of nature's mysteries furnishes ample opportunity for man's mental speculation and practical improvement. There are no civilizations that produce the sensible fruitage of man more than those of invention. By the telegraph; the steam cars and steam vessels, the telephone, and the multitudes of all the lightnings through and around the globe, are conveyed to lightning speed. By the invention of the steam printing press and the improved form of type, we are favored daily with the intelligence of the whole civilized world.

In fact each newspaper impression is the world's history for a day. Travel and transportation have been made much quicker and easier by the invention of steam cars and steam vessels, which are moving through all civilized countries, and plowing every navigable stream, with astonishing rapidity, bearing tremendous loads of living freight and useful merchandise. By the invention of the telephone, human voice is controlled so as to be heard in its natural tone for more than one hundred miles. By the invention of the electric system our great cities are illuminated with magnificent lights, above that of the queen of night. The century that we are now celebrating, is crowded with inventions and improvements; but, the Methodist Episcopal Church has kept pace with its literature.

Now let us consider Methodist literature proper. To supply Methodist people with Methodist literature is purely a Wesleyan idea; the means and methods by which this has been accomplished for more than a century, form a very important part of the connectional system of Methodism. During the infancy of the United Societies in Great Britian, Mr. Wesley found it absolutely necessary, and helpful to employ the use of the press in defence of the evangelistic work to which he felt divinely called. Its utility as an agent to assist in extending as well as defending the work at once impressed itself upon his practical mind; he regarded it a special agency, and used it diligently in the production of a literature, the influence of which is now manifested in both the doctrinal unity and connectional economy of the Methodist system. It is now plain to be seen that Mr. Wesley, in spite of all that was thrown in the way by the enemies of the Methodist movement, was ordained to win for the Christian world signal victories, just as soon as he could obtain even partial justice, and liberty to preach the Gospel without disturbance. His "helpers"—the preachers to whose loyal co-operation the success of the great Methodist movement is largely due, heartily joined him in his holy plans for the use of the press, and with energy and a zeal so characteristic of their great ambition for good, they circulated the tracts, pamphlets, books, and religious literature generally; and to supply the people as well as the members with good books, was soon named as one of the specified duties of Methodist preachers.

Now as we have already said, to supply Methodist people with Methodist literature was purely a Wesleyan idea. Because it was Mr. Wesley's own publications that gave birth to our publishing interests. In a few years after the formal organization of the Methodist Church in this country, the conference assumed the control of publishing and circulating Mr. Wesley's books—to this end a book steward was appointed. This was the initial step toward establishing a Book Concern. The action of the Conference in appointing a steward to manage and control the Book Department, has long since proven to all to have been timely and wise. By the General Conference making each traveling preacher an authorized agent to see that each society be duly supplied with books and Methodist literature, a judicious circulation of them, soon become a secondary power in building up the Church, both spiritually and numerically. The Book Concern one century ago was very small, as it was composed virtually of one man's publications, but its capacity to day is a little abreast of any religious publishing institution in this country, if not in the world. Its real estate in lands, buildings, machinery, material etc., is valued at $1,001,002.

The Church having had and now having more than ever before, in her ranks a large corps of talented and scholarly men and women, she has successfully utilized her publishing facilities, and is daily increasing the volumnes of her literature. About fifteen editors chosen by the General Conference, and eight assistant editors are constantly employed furnishing the best and purest literature in circulation, for the Church's mental and moral improvement; and besides there are authors, many in number, preachers, laymen and gifted women, Methodist, who devote time and talent to writing books.

The present catalogue of the Book Concerns gives the names of about three thousand different books; nearly all of these, and many earlier volumes now out of print, are from the pens of Methodist authors. "Our Church is rich in her corps of writers and authors, and strong in possessing the means of publishing the productions of their consecrated talents." The Bible and other books as aids to its study, have been translated into quite a number of dialects, and published by the Methodist press; which has proven to be very helpful in furthering the great work of Christianization among foreign nations.

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

The Sunday-school Literature—The Berean System of Aids to Bible Study, is not equalled by any Protestant denomination in all Christendom. It is plain to be seen, how careful and considerate the Church is in bring up her children under the influence of a literature, that is consecrated to moral and religious character building. In the 22,903 Sunday-schools, the Church claims a nominal membership of officers, teachers and scholars of 1,932,926 souls. Add the membership proper of laymen and ministers to that of the Sunday-schools, which gives the Church an aggregate membership of 3,715,016 souls, who are directly under the influence of the literature of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Nor do I think we span too far, when we infer that nearly one third of the population of the entire country, more or less, are reached and benefited by Methodist publications. The circulation of tracts has been the means of awaking, and bringing thousands to the saving influence of the Gospel of Christ. Some of the early pioneer Methodist fathers of this country were so intensely in earnest, that they distributed them at the communion table.

SLAVERY.

The Methodist Episcopal Church's pulpits and printing presses were not slow in denouncing in the bitterest terms slavery, and the inhuman treatment of slaves by slave holders. In very nearly every General Conference, up to the fourteenth session in 1864, slavery and its destruction was one of the chief topics of discussion. The anti-slavery position of the Church, and its persistent efforts to bring prominently before the North, the unparalelled barbarism that was in the system of human slavery as was practiced in the South, was a mighty incentive in awakening Northern sentiments against it. The invaluable volume of National Sermons, by the lamented Bishop Gilbert Haven, with a black and white man's hands clasped in the back of it, is one of the finest literary productions in opposition to human slavery extant.

LOSSES.

The Book Concern in New York was burned in 1836; the loss by fire in Chicago, in 1871, and the losses on non-paying periodicals and depositories established by General Conference, aggregating about four hundred thousand dollars. Notwithstanding this heavy loss, there has been an increase of $1,136,196.54, in the net capital of the two Book Concerns, and there has been paid out by order of General Conference, during the last forty-five years above fifteen hundred thousand dollars for the benefit of worn out preachers, for the support of bishops, and for other connectional purposes, including $366,909,62 to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, under adjustment of the suit brought in the United States Supreme Court.

CASH CAPITAL.

The amount received from the books actually put into circulation in 1881 was $874,191, and for the periodicals, $484,334; total, $1,368,525. During the past thirty years (since 1851), the sales of books and periodicals by the New York Book Conceren, and its depositories have amounted to $16,997,331.28; of the Western Book Concern and its depositories, $15,194,931.02; total in thirty years, $32,192,462.30. The present net capital of the two Concerns, the Eastern and the Western is, $1,614,826.44.

The Prohibition Movement.

BY REV. J. C. HULL.

If one should undertake to write of drunkenness the story would reach back to the day when Noah planted a vineyard, drank of the wine and was drunk. But the temperance agitation is not so ancient. True, examples of abstinence are to be found through all history. The patriarchs Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were men of temperate habits. Also Sampson and Daniel, as well as many others were men of noble temperance principles. Ancient societies also, embodied the principles of total abstinence; the Nazaites, the Rechabites and the Vestals of Rome. The principles of temperance and prohibition date back to the earliest literature. In the Old Testament the teaching is plain, "Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink; that continue until night, till wine inflame them!" "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging: and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." "Look not upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

The above quotations from Isaiah and Solomon, are examples of prohibitory laws. The Romans, seventeen hundred years ago prohibited women from drinking intoxicants, but, it would seem never discovered that the principle would be good for men as well. Efforts to restrain drunkenness date very far back, but still the curse has grown apace, sweeping away the feeble barriers of restraint, and in this the last quarter of the nineteenth century. It stands deeply rooted both in the Orient and the Occident, and is the mother of the principal part of the crimes in all countries.

This wide spread evil has provoked the resistance of the Christian civilization of this enlightened day, and hence the great conflict termed the prohibition movement. This reform in anything of its present spirit belongs wholly in this century. Seventy-nine years ago the first Temperance Society ever founded in America was organized in Saratoga county, New Jersey. To-day, a hand to hand conflict against rum is commencing in all parts of our broad land. This sweeping tide of reform will not cease until the gigantic curse of the liquor traffic has been swept away; not until Iowa's noble motto shall be the motto of the nation. "A Church and a school house on every hill, and no saloon in the valley!" Several things have been established since the reflector has been turned upon this work.

First, the question arose as to the right to prohibit men from engaging in the liquor business. But now it is generally agreed that man has a right to do as he pleases, provided he pleases to do right. It is not right for a man to engage in a business that brings poverty and death upon his fellow man. Then comes the question, can we afford to be without the liquor traffic? It gives employment to a great body of men, it uses vast quantities of material, enormous sums of money are exchanged in carrying on all this business. And, withall a fine revenue in late years; but money is a good thing to have in the way. And certain eminent men have thought that it might be applied to educational purposes! But ideas definite and true are now forming in the public mind on all these points. It is conceded that liquor is not a necessary element in the economy of life, i. e. it is not food and does not nourish the body. Then if we consume annually forty millions of bushels of grain, worth $25,000,000 in brewing liquors where is the profit? And what of the labor of the employes? Well, the government might find employment for a great body of men with spades along the banks of the Mississippi, shoveling sand into the water and might pay them well for it. But how shall this profit the country? And yet, why not support them in a harmless, though worthless work, rather than to support in cities plying their business of death? But, then, that revenue! We have an annual revenue of eighty-seven millions of dollars from the liquor business. But it costs the country annually nine-hundred millions of dollars; and so we are just out $813,000,000! And who will undertake to compute the indirect cost? Who will count the tears? Who will weigh the heart-aches, who will console the fatherless and the widow? And who will answer to heaven for the innumerable crimes wroght by this "monstrum horrendum, hiding itself under forms of law?"

Again, it was conceded that the traffic is wrong and if that, it should be checked and if possible suppressed. But it was said moral suasion shall be the means. And the saloon-keepers said, persuade us not to do it. Experiment however has proven that while moral suasion is a good thing, and its employment always commendable, yet it is not sufficient for a tiger. We will employ moral suasion whenever it will answer, and when it will not we will try what virtue there is in law. In brief, moral suasion for the drinker, and legal suasion for the seller. This temperance agitation is a righteous movement. We have love for all and malice toward none; but "the saloons must go."

It is the purpose of the writer, in a future communication to show the success and failure of constitutional prohibition in Kansas; and he would be glad to have the benefit of any inquiries that readers of the Southwestern may make.

"We Have Fought a Good Fight."

REV. D. F. WHITE.

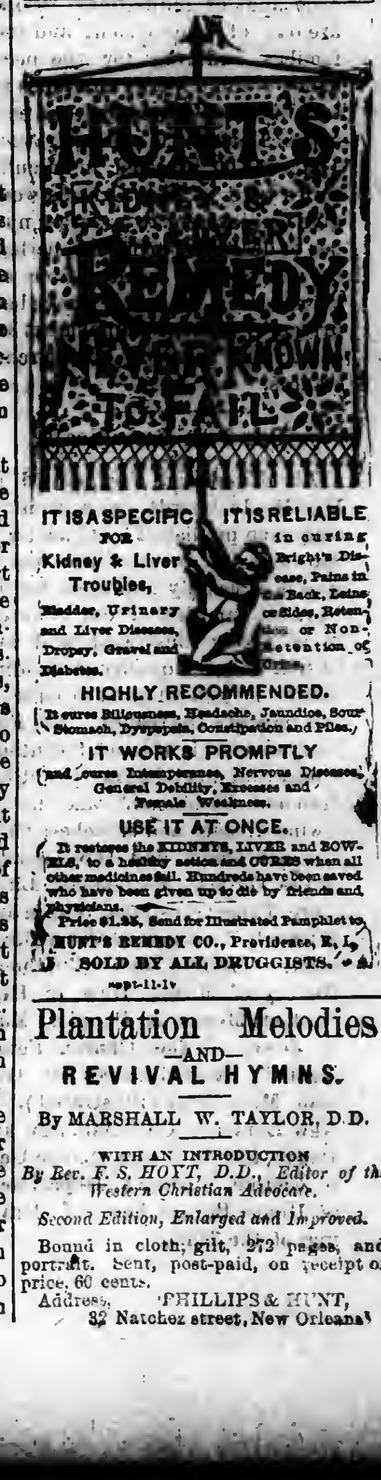
We opened our first battle against Satan's host at a church known as the Sixteenth Section, on the third Sunday in July, and continued here protracting two weeks. Although times looked dark and gloomy, we continued to fight and pray. During the two weeks four souls were converted to Christ, three of whom joined us, and two reclaimers.

From there we moved to the next church, known as Book Hill. We fired on Satan's host there, and made things pretty hot for him for one week. Rev. D. W. Calvert helped us there a few days, at the end of which time we had 20 conversions, all of whom joined us. Leaving everybody in good spirits, and a goodly number of mourners in the woods, we cheerfully went to the next church, known as Belle Church. There we had a pretty hard struggle; our success was but little, yet we continued to fight and pray for eight days, at the end of which time we had two conversions and seventeen joiners. At this time we were nearly worn out, yet we were not through, so we thought best to rest a day or two, and did. We next moved to the church known as Zion, Franklin, a church we captured of the African Methodists. We began there with the best of prospects; we were never more encouraged to fight for the salvation of souls. We fought like brave heroes and heroines, and after fighting against the hosts of Satan for sixteen days the walls of Jericho fell, and a shout went up to heaven which almost rent the earth, of praise and thanksgiving to God for the conversion of 55 souls, the youngest of whom was about 14 and the oldest 55 years of age. The total number of conversons during this quarter were 83, accessions 91. We were often provoked during our meetings at the conduct of some of the lower classes of the Baptists, who followed us like wild foxes, persuading the converts to join them. They often took my converts into their arms while we were asking for joiners. I am now persuaded to say that if it were not for the few Methodist spokes the Baptist have persuaded from us to fill their wheel they would soon break down forever. The devil will follow a Christian to the doors of death and leave him, but this people are worse than the devil; they come into the church, pretend to be shouting, but, like Judas, they throw their arms around the converts necks and whisper "come and join us." They drew three out of the church in this way after they had joined.

America's Pride.

True American men and women by reason of their strong constitution, beautiful forms, rich complexions and characteristic energy, are envied by all nations. It is the general use of Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, which brings about these results.

A woman at Amelia, Vt., eighty-three years of age, has just cut her third set of teeth.



One reason why Hunt's [Kidney and Liver] Remedy is so popular for the cure of diseases of the kidneys, liver and bladder, is that it shows immediate improvement in the condition of the patient and recovery is steady and certain. Its cures have been so wonderful that physicians of all schools prescribe it in their practice.

It is estimated that there has been an increase of nearly $1,000,000 in the public debt during the month of December.

He Thanks His Paper.

Mr Editor:—I was induced by reading your good paper to try Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic for debility, liver disorder, and scrofula, and three bottles have cured me. Accept my thanks. Jos. C. Boggs.—Ex.

Dr. C. H. Payne writes, from President's office, Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, "I am glad to learn that you are getting on so well with the Southwestern. You may send me a copy this year. I have not been taking it, but would like to keep my eye on your Southern work. You have my best wishes for your success."

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D., Editor.

THURSDAY, FEB. 12, 1885.

"Take counsel, execute judgment, make thy shadow as the night in the midst of the noon-day; hide the outcasts; betray not him that wandereth."

Isa. vii, 2, reads as follows: "And it was told the King of Israel and his household saying, 'and his heart, with that of his people, was moved as the trees of the woods are moved by the wind."

Rev. Sam. Jones, a Methodist evangelist, will assist Dr. Talmage in revival services in Brooklyn.—Christian Standard.

We learn later that a good work of grace has been going on in Dr. Talmage's church and the Doctor himself has been forward for prayer.

"I must go and baptize that child before it dies," so said a Methodist minister in Tennessee recently. Why this, unless the true inwardness of the infant rite is cropping out?—Baptist Advocate.

"You are just the party we have been looking for all these years. Now come, neighbors, do, do tell us, what is the true inwardness of infant baptism?

"You forgot Jackson's day." No we didn't. It's past, he died some time ago. When he lived he gave a certain English Lord a good bit of trouble at Chalmette, near New Orleans, by whipping the troops after the war between England and the United States was over. He also gave the financiers and nullifiers some trouble in his times. It is said that in a back county of Kentucky they are still voting for him.

The atoms of a stone are held together by the attraction of cohesion, and the stone itself is held to the earth by the attraction of gravitation. But what is this attraction of cohesion and gravitation? It will be full time for men who worship only reason as a God to demand of us an explanation of the deep things of our God when they have given us a reason for the unreasonable common places around them.

"The inauguration ball on the occasion of Mr. Cleveland's entrance to the White House will cost about $50,000."

This is a shame, if true, while thousands of industrious laborers are out of employment and their families suffering for the necessaries of life. Forty-nine hundred dollars would not [illegible] poor unfortunates. [illegible] manufactories of New Orleans would [illegible] perhaps [illegible] been [illegible] and [illegible] from [illegible].

The Home and Herd, edited by Dr. H. Liebhardt, is a monthly magazine published by Cranston & Stowe at Cincinnati. This magazine is especially published for the German families of our Church. It is nicely illustrated and well edited, and the quality of reading matter is well adapted to educate and improve the reader. The February number is at hand, it contains a beautiful steel engraving, "Children and Childhood" and the following articles and sketches: "The Commencement and Development of the German Methodistic Literature, Three Questions, Within and Without, My Experience for a Bible-work, Children and Childhood, History of Music, How to Help Without Means, A Popular Man, A Jewel of the Church Found Again," Reminiscences of German Methodism (illustrated). A New Evidence, Christian, Jew and Pagan, Trip to Africa, Opdem Uetli bi Daniel, Woman's Department at Home, Sereen Lessons, Drawings of the Time.

Does the End Sanctify the Means?

The Savannah Echo, one of the best Negro secular weekly newspapers in the country, is soon to have a new Potter power press worth $1,500 in its office. We rejoice in this prosperity, but we regret that it can be needful for the "leading colored newspaper in the South," as the Echo claims to be, to take any extraordinary steps to raise the required funds to run its business. Especially do we regret that a paper making such a claim should be put to the necessity of aiding its business by means of a lottery or, as they pronounce it, "The Echo Great Gift Reception Entertainment." If this is the leading paper it is saying very little for the colored people of the South that it must resort to such an expedient to carry on its business.

Our Resident Bishop.

Bishop Mallalieu's visit and work in the South must prove valuable in the end. If he did not outline a definite course of action and write flaming letters to herald it over the land when he first entered this region, and before he had any practical knowledge of its wants or experience with our concerns, that must be set down to the praise of his good sense and sound judgment. As to his line of action we understood that from the first by reading the Discipline. He is gaining the character of a man who moves cautiously, slowly and surely up to the execution of right and well formed purposes. As he has been studying the work and condition of things here we have been studying him. The more we learn of the lesson the more we are convinced that God is guiding him right.

A New Departure.

We are pleased to notice a new and useful improvement in the manner of preparing manuscript for the press, in our mission rooms. It is called the "Cycle Style," and is remarkable for its clearness and legibility, which is always appreciated by editors, publishers and compositors. It is much superior to the former style in use in the Mission Rooms. Dr. Reid seems to be indefatigable in his efforts to diffuse missionary information in the most direct and satisfactory way, and to infuse missionary life in the home church as a means of sustaining life in the foreign work of the Church.

Bishop C. H. Fowler.

Bishop Fowler, having found a little time from active work in holding conferences, will, for a season, limit his labors to San Francisco and the surrounding country. As for rest, he need not hope for that. There will be demands, none the less severe because less far apart in distance from each other. His sojourn on the "Golden Shore," has been, we learn, the cause, under God, of great prosperity to our Church in that region. His tireless energy and burning eloquence have all been devoted to building up the waste places of our Zion there. May the Lord greatly bless him and increase all his good gifts for him a thousand fold. His address will be for a time, Occidental Hotel, San Francisco, California.

Bishop Wiley Calmly Viewing the End.

Rev. J. H. Pyke, Peking, China, October 10, writes to the Western: "We were greatly delighted to have Bishop Wiley with us again. He came in great feebleness of body and in much physical suffering, but in the fullness of the Gospel in the spirit. All the way from Japan to Peking he was quite sick, and able to take but little nourishment—that little in liquid form—and often his stomach rejected that, consequently he was much prostrated. He was not able to preside over regular sessions of the meeting, but saw the missionaries each afternoon in his room. Once with characteristic will-power he left his room and came into the church where the meeting was assembled.

No one who was present that morning will ever forget the impressions of that hour as the Bishop walked up the aisle slowly, and with difficulty. The business was suspended, and the assembly rose and remained standing until he was seated on the platform. One member suggested that we ought to sing the long-meter doxology that we were permitted to see our dear Bishop with us once more. He replied, "No, brethren; go on with your work; we will sing the doxology on the other side." After resting a short time the Bishop rose and addressed the Conference.

He spoke of his life interest in this work, and his labor and love for it; of his great desire to see his brethren in China once more before he went home to heaven. He dwelt for a moment on the vastness of the country, the magnitude and difficulties of the work, and the certainty of final triumph. Speaking of his own life, he said:

"Now, brethren, my little part in this work is about done. My life has been an arduous one; not much pleasure, not much joy, but a great deal of work and much peace. The end is now at hand; but it is no matter, I am ready. If I can get down to Central China and arrange matters there, and then reach Foochow and hold the Conference, if it is God's will, I can lay down my life and sleep quietly where I began this work thirty-four years ago."

While the Bishop was speaking there was not a dry eye in the house, and every heart was deeply moved, "sorrowing most of all for words that he spake that we should see his face no more." He has been a father to us all, both personally and in our work. This mission work has had a warm place in his heart. Who understood it so well, its difficulties and trials! Who so wise in counsel, so ready to sympathize and help in every advance movement, or so patient and hopeful under discouragements.

The Bishop was himself a physician, and knew his condition better than his medical advisers; and most heroically and manfully did he approach his death.

"There has been already so many favorable and imposing congratulations conferred upon the present editor of the SOUTHWESTERN until I know of no other way of expressing mine, saving that Sister Mattie Harris, embraced me, Dec. 20, 1884, with a fine boy, our only one, and in honor of the editor we have named it Marshall Alexander Harris. I have not settled my account with the SOUTHWESTERN, but will do so at the conference, as it is so near at hand. Would have sent it before now but am just getting out of a severe spell of malarial fever.

J. J. HARRIS.

Received with thanks and cordial well wishes for the little SOUTHWESTERNER.

Harper's Young People begins its career in England under the most promising auspices. The prompt demand for the paper in response to the announcement of the English edition compelled Messrs. Low & Co. to print 50,000 copies of the initial number.

Personal.

—Rev. J. K. Miller, a superannuated preacher of the Pittsburg Conference, eighty-nine years old, was married, a short time since.

—Rev. C. H. Sinex, D. D., member of the Book Committee, on his way to its meeting in New York Feb. 11, called upon the SOUTHWESTERN and gave us words of cheer.

—Rev. Harvey Webb, presiding elder of the Marshall District, Texas Conference, has been spending the last few days in the city, visiting the Exposition, where he will remain a few days.

—Rev. M. H. Sweeten, evangelist, would like to correspond with persons of any denomination who are interested in the work of holiness in New Orleans or vicinity. Address him at 32 Natchez street, New Orleans, La.

—Bishop T. H. Lomax, of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, favored the SOUTHWESTERN with a call on January 27th, as he passed through the city en to Texas. He will be in New Orleans about the 8th inst., en route to Lake De Funiak, where he proposes to purchase lots for the use of himself and family in order to gain the benefit of the great Sunday school interests now crystallizing there.

Schools and Colleges.

To Whom It May Concern.

We, the undesigned, Teachers in Eastman College, who have for many years been identified with its success, feel it necessary to affirm certain facts for the information of our friends.

The marriage of Mrs. Eastman made reorganization necessary, and this resulted in a new President and Secretary.

Our Corps of Teachers is the same as for many years, and the strength of the Institution unimpaired.

The patrons of Eastman College need not fear that the high standard of work done, or the thorough and systematic drill in the best business methods, (so long the aim of the College), will now change or fail. Our organization and curriculum were never more complete, and never have better results been shown.

Rev. Dr. Martin Ruter, President of Allegheny College, who was sent by our church to Texas in 1837, soon after his arrival founded Rutersville College, on a fine land endowment, which grew as a center of moral, intellectual and religious influence for twenty years, though its honored founder died one year after it was opened. Recent word reports, that this property, for some years in a decayed condition, was sold recently and purchased by our Southern German Conference, and a fine school is in operation in the old building for the training of German youths.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

FIRST QUARTER. STUDIES IN ACTS, A. D. 58, LESSON VII. Paul's defense February 15; Acts xxii, 1-21. Golden Text, Acts xxii, 10.

HOME READING.

M.—Paul's defense, Acts 22, 1-21.
Tu.—Paul's narrow escape, Acts 22, 22-30.
W.—The Hebrew Apostle, Phil. 3, 1-14.
Th.—Saul's religious zeal, Acts 7, 54-60; 8, 1-4.
F.—Saul's conviction, Acts 9, 1-9.
Sat.—Saul's conversion, Acts 9, 10-22.
Sun.—The Gentiles included, Acts 13, 44-52.

QUESTIONS FOR HOME STUDY.

1. The Persecutor, v. 1-5.
What was Paul's object in addressing the crowd?
In what language did he speak? Why?
What did Paul state concerning his birth and education?
What had been his attitude toward Christianity?
Under whose authority had he acted?
2. The Penitent, v. 6-16.
Of what did Paul give an account?
Locate Damascus and Paul's probable route to and from Jerusalem?
What was the light Paul saw?
Whither was he directed to go?
What was done for Paul at Damascus?
3. The Preacher, v. 17-21.
To what incident did Paul then allude?
What direction was given him in the vision?
Why was he told to leave Jerusalem?
How did Paul reply?
To whom did the Lord say Paul must go?

How does this lesson show—
1. The tendency of sinners to persecute?
2. The radical change wrought in conversion?
3. The unexpected duty, ver. 21.

Doctrinal suggestions—The ascended Savior.

The Oxford League.

The Oxford League aims, primarily, to instruct the youth of Methodism in the early history of their Church, and in its relations to the apostolic Church. In doing this worthy work it will require the reading and study of denominational literature, and the discussion in lectures, conversations, and whenever practicable, in class recitations and reviews, of denominational topics, embracing questions of origin, doctrine, and usage.

The introduction of the Oxford League into a particular Church will not require much time, nor subject its members to much expense. The holding of four meeting a year, and the reading of a few strictly denominational tracts, will meet the first and essential demands of the movement.

The wider and more comprehensive aims of the League, in substantial imitation of the original Oxford Club, will require more time, a more detailed organization, and the adjustment of relations between the League and the "Associations," "Unions," etc., already existing in the local Church. There need be no interference with the work of such societies by the League. Its work as already attempted by them, may be duly recognized. Their organization and plans may be incorporated in the League, and their officers accepted as officers of the League. Where incorporation is deemed undesirable, plans of complete co-operation may be adopted. The assignment of special lines of service to societies already established will render the duties of the League simple and practicable.

The fourfold objects of the Club at Oxford may be compassed through the League and co-ordinate institutions:

1. The more devout study of the Holy Scriptures may be promoted through the Assembly, the Sunday-school, the Bible class, and special Scripture reading classes conducted under the auspices of the League.

2. The promotion of personal piety may be secured through the Church prayer meeting, the class-meeting, and through committees and conferences of the League designed to increase personal interest and faith in a more intelligently earnest religious life, and in the institutions of the Church designed to advance it.

3. The awakening and direction of the intellectual and literary activities of the Church, as a means of neutralizing temptation to indolence and frivolity, of increasing personal power for good, and of creating a true social ideal, and a useful social life, may be advanced by the League through the Quarterly Conference Committee on education, through the Church Lyceum, through "Chautauqua Literary and Scientific" local circles, through the "Spare-Minute" classes, and in whatsoever other way the officers of the League may deem wise and practical.

4. The development of practical benevolence, and of a true social life, may be furthered by the League through the appointed committees of the Quartely Conference, through social and other unions already established, and though committees on visitation, on social entertainment, on evangelistic service, etc.

The following suggestions may aid pastors and others in making an experiment in the Methodist Episcopal Church with this scheme, so heartily recommended by the Centennial Conference in Baltimore, in December, 1884:

1. The Oxford League may be organized in any individnal Church.

2. The pastor should be ex officio president, with an assistant who shall be nominated by the pastor, approved by the League, and called "Leader of the League."

3. There shall be three classes of members: Active Members, Registered Members, and Voluntary Readers:

1.) Active Members are those who, being full members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, pledge themselves to do the required reading of the Initial and second Grades and to attend at least four regular and four special meetings of the League each year.

2.) Registered Members are those who, being full members or probationers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, pledge themselves to do the required reading of the Initial Grade and to attend the four regular meetings of the League each year.

3.) Voluntary Readers are those who, even though neither members nor probationers of the Church, promise to do the required reading of the Initial Grade. These readers may attend the four regular meetings of the League each year, but shall have no voice in its control.

4. There shall be held each year four Regular and four Special Meetings, with such Additional Meetings as may be agreed upon by the Active Members. a). A Regular Meeting shall be held each quarter before, and, where practicable, within eight days of, the public administration of the Lord's Supper in the Church with which the League is connected, and a service preparatory to the Communion shall be held, designed to place greater emphasis upon this divine Sacrament, to exalt the doctrines which it represents, and to increase the reverence, devotion, spiritual strength and comfort of youthful believers. b). A Special Meeting shall be held each quarter, designed to increase the efficiency of the Church Committees, Associations, Unions, Societies, or other organizations of the League, or co-operating with it; to review the required readings; to promote by lectures, essays, or discussions a better knowledge and higher appreciation of some phase of Church history, doctrines, usage, or activity, and to emphasize and illustrate the necessity of personal, prayerful Scripture reading and study in order to intelligent, fervent, effective religious character and influence. c). Additional Meetings may be held by appointment of the League to advance the various objects—spiritual, ecclesiastical, social, and literary—for the furtherance of which the League was organized. d). There may be held in the local Church, for the promotion of the various ends contemplated by the League, a meeting, which may be known as "The Visitation," at which, by sermons, lectures, services of sacred song, conferences, Bible studies, etc., conducted by experienced instructors from at home and abroad, the young people especially may be trained in religious experience and inspired to Church activity in various lines of Christian service.

5. The Initial Grade of Reading shall embrace:

1.) The following chapters from the Gospel according to Matthew: ii, iii, iv, v, vi, vii, xxv, xxvi, xxvii, xxviii; and from the Book of the Acts of the Apostles: i, ii, iii, iv, v, vi, vii, viii, ix.

2.) "Our Own Church" Series, Nos. 1-ix.

3.) "Outlines of Methodism," By James M'Gee.

4.) The "Oxford League Series," Nos. 1-vii.

6. The Second Grade of Reading shall embrace:

1.) The following chapters from the New Testament: John i, xiv, xv, xvi, xxi; Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians.

2.) "Heroic Methodists." By Dr. Daniel Wise.

3.) "Pioneer of American Methodism." By Dr. C. J. Little.

4.) The following tracts:

Prominent Doctrines and Peculiar Usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Dr. Hawley. Revised Series, No. 82. 44 pages.

7. Additional grades and courses of reading may be recognized and [illegible] in Church History, general and denominational; Religious Literature, biblical, geographical, and devotional; Benevolent Work, and in General Literature, Science, and Art. These recognized courses may be such as those of "The Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle," "The Spare Minute Home College," "The Lyceum," "The Young Christians' List," "Readings for Pastors' Wives," and such additional courses as the specific objects of the Oxford League may in the future require.

8. All else necessary to the management of the local League may be agreed upon at any regular meeting.

9. A "Board of Control," consisting of five members, may be annually appointed by the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

10. Five or more active members of any local Oxford League, who have completed the required readings of the Initial and Second Grades, and who have received, from the pastor and leader of the League, a certificate to that effect, may on application, indorsed by the pastor, to the "Central Board of Control," receive a charter for a "Chapter of the Oxford League," under which charter, [illegible] may be effected, and the ends of the League [illegible] more successfully carried out.

Sermon Sketches.

Theme—Essentials of Christian Experience.

REV. W. D. GODNAN, D. D.

Text—Rom. 14-17: "For the Kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost."

Introduction—The phrase "Kingdom of God," used by our Lord, and after him by the Apostles to denote God's personal, spiritual indwelling in man, Matt. 6:33; Ma. 1, 14, Luke 18, 16-17; John 3, 3. The text,

I. The essence of this kingdom that it is not outward, but inward; not in form and observance, but in spirit; Luke 17, 20 21.

a). It is not in any man exclusively or pre-eminently.

b). Not in one particular church.

c). Not in one particular ordinance.

d). Not in one particular creed.

All these are subject to "Lo, here" and "Lo, there" [illegible] to Christ.

II. The first essential experience —"righteousness."

1. This is not justification, but follows it. The forgiven man "is created in righteousness and true holiness," Eph. 4, 24. Justification is inconceivable without righteousness following, and righteousness in us is inconceivable without justification preceding.

2. Righteousness is everywhere the opposite of sin. John 16, 8. Has always had the same meaning in the Old Testament and the New, namely, the keeping of God's law or commandments. In the New Testament the way of attaining it is a matter of new revelation, and here it is called "the righteousness of God," (Rom. 3, 5) in contradistinction from a r. which a man thinks to acquire by his own external doings, and the "r. of faith," (Rom. 4, 13) as finding its inspiring and indwelling principles in the trust of the heart. Jesus did not abrogate the moral law, but confirmed and fulfilled it. Matt. 5, 17. The r. of David and that of St. Paul are exactly the same, only the latter knows more clearly the connection of his r. with Christ personally.

3. This r. is mentioned first as being fundamental. The other traits would be naught without it. It is the one thing without which is no membership in the kingdom, either now or hereafter.

4. It keeps the whole law, not preferring one commandment to another. James 2, 10-11.

III—Peace—

a). With God. Rom. 5, 1.

b). With ourselves. Jno. 14, 27.

c). With men. Mark 9, 50.

This is the effect of righteousness. Ps. 85, 10, 119, 165; Rom. 2, 10.

IV—Joy in the Holy Ghost.

Love is gladdening.

Peace is gladdening.

The summit of gladness comes when the love and the peace are inspired by the Spirit of the eternal God. This is the strongest and the deepest of all love; the widest and sweetest of all peace. The Spirit swells it into "joy," 1 Peter 1, 8; Acts 13, 52; 1 Thess. 1, 6.

A visitor to the New Orleans Exposition is at once attracted by the Prang & Co.'s artistic exhibit. Mr. Gangengigl's design in their Prize Exhibition is remarkable for the purity of its tones and the exquisite nicety of finish, reminding of Meissonier's best efforts in this direction; but it has met with little appreciation by the critics as to its fitness as a Christmas Gift Card. In New York, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans their collection when placed on exhibition has always secured the attention and friendly comment of art fanciers.

To Those Wanting Homes.

A friend writes from Pearl River P. O. of an opportunity to secure homes in that place in a community of colored people, with Methodist Episcopal Church near by. A small farm could be procured for $150, suitable for garden, orange orchard, etc. Pearl River is eight miles from Slidell Station, on the N. O. & N. E. R. R., our nearest station. This is a healthy locality; good water may be had in wells or cisterns. For further particulars address Mrs. T. W. Sadler, Pearl River P. O., La.

SOUTHWESTERN, and that we will hold up his hands, encourage his heart, by taking the paper, inducing our members and people to do the same."

Able speeches were made by Bros. Shumpert and Dr. Revels and there could be no doubt of the sincerity and purpose of these words and actions.

Upon the motion of the Rev. D. A. Williams Sister Corina Thomas a lady who is supposed to be working in behalf of the Womans' Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was heard.

Her speech discounting a little blur of excitement occasioned by the novelty of her position at the time, must be set down as an able effort and proves her to be a lady of power to do good public service.

Several ministers spoke favorably of her work among the churches, but the whole thing needs to be brought under the letter of the law of the Home Missionary Society in every particular.

President Thayer of Clark University was introduced and pronounced benediction. Adjourned.

NOTES.

D. A. Williams is a stantor, he talks out from the shoulder and can be heard anywhere in the vicinity of the building. Joseph Campbell is a deliberate, rather careful and exact speaker, using no tricks of rhetoric but presses right into the conviction of his audience by the force of his decisive logic.

There is a number of superior men in this conference. Of course Dr. Revels is the leader here as he would be in any other group of a hundred men in the United States, or perhaps out of the states as well.

Rev. C. U. White, formerly of the Lexington Conference, then of African, then of the Zion Church, was admitted to the membership of the conference. It can be truly said of him that he is a good preacher and loves the Methodist Episcopal Church. Time will develop any other claims or disclaims he may have for an eldership in this conference.

The evenings in this Conference are not consumed by formal anniversaries, but the brethren insist upon preaching each evening. So far we had Rev H. W. Cawthorn Thursday evening, and he made a failure because he undertook too much. It is always too much when we undetake to do the work of another in his way because it destroys our own individualism. Friday evening Rev. O. O. Knight gave us a sermon, strong, convincing, and edifying. There is a good programme for Sabbath, Bishop Mallalieu will preach at the Conference seat in the morning and at the Methodist Episcopal Church in the evening. The feeling is cordial toward our church here. The whites are civil and polite. We have the postmasters and bankers all over this country, clever, and accommodating. The hospitality of the people is overflowing, every one is well cared for and there is room and food for more. S. Blevins & Sons, are colored cabinet makers and undertakers, doing $2,500 worth of business per year. We are privileged to have our home here as with the graceful Landry at Baton Rouge. We find that the South has its home excellences among the colored people in every place and they are increasing.

Synopsis of a Reply to Col. R. G. Ingersoll, by Rev. J. J. W. Bowman, D. D.

MRS. GRACIE LEWIS.

Col. R. G. Ingersoll, the great modern infidel, cannot altogether deny the existence of a first cause; he recognizes this as a mere abstraction without life or personality. That he may not see what he most dreads, and that is God; death and hell, he likes to hide himself from God, and, therefore, when he cannot utterly exclude him as the author of creation, he tries to deprive him of the attribute that makes him an object of terrors. The author of creation, he wishes us to believe, is a kind of a random abstract principle that exists without consciousness and bears no character; then he calls it nature, and can look at it without fear; as long as it has not life, nor intelligence nor personality it can not do him injury. That God has life is as obvious as that there is life in man, and that he is the author of all life. He could not give life if he did not himself possess it. That God is the living God is as clear as that he exists as the author of creation. Many who acknowledge God as a first cause appear to be real atheists, such as Col. Ingersoll, and when he speaks of causes without reference to personality and life and design, he imposes on the world and is truly an infidel, and that of the lowest order. Col. R. G. Ingersoll, the infidel of the modern world, admits a first cause in order to avoid giving offense or to impose their crude system on the credulity of men. I will say to Mr. Ingersoll that the first cause must be God, that is, I mean, the living God, else there could be no cause at all. To be the cause of all things and ages, to be without life and personality is an absurdity that no one but Mr. Ingersoll could or would receive. We cannot conceive agency without life somewhere; and what we cannot conceive, though it may be true on sufficient testimony, ought not to be received without the testimony of him who has a right to demand an assent to his assertion, however, far it may be above our comprehension. And with reference to the mistakes that the infidel charges Moses with, he says that Moses must have understood by firmament something solid, though every one who has studied the subject knows, and the fact has been published again and again that the Hebrew means something exceedingly attenuated, being the very best word in the language to designate the atmosphere, while the mistakes found in the English word firmamentare due to the science of Alexandria, where in the third century before Christ, the expanse or Moses was translated, steveoma (firmament) to suit the advanced astronomy of the time. One hardly knows how to characterize the infamy of such a mistake of the infidel as that about the bird eating the priests during the time of rapid increase, in view of the fact that there were no priests at all, and no such rule as he refers to during the entire 430 years. The consecration of Aaron, the first priest, did not take place till after the law was given at Sinai, and the ordinance relating to the offering of the pigeons was still later. So I charge our modern infidel, Col. R. G. Ingersoll, with telling what is untrue; therefore we will not give up our Bible, our religion and our God as long as there is a piece of Plymouth Rock big enough to make a gun flint of.

Books and Current Literature.

The Children of the Bible. By Fanny L. Armstrong. With an Introduction by Frances E. Willard, Pres. N. W. T. U. 18mo. pp. 275. Extra Cloth. Price $1. New York. Fowler & Wells Co., Publishers, 753 Broadway.

Miss Armstrong has drawn on that richest of moral sources, the Bible, for her topics, and with rare tact prepared this volume of stories for children. She knows the kind of setting that is needed to make each beautiful incident attractive to young minds, and she finds something of peculiar interest in every Bible child's life from Ishmael to Timothy. Miss Willard's testimony is very valuable to the writer, and to the publishers perhaps, but we think that they who open the book and read two pages of the story of Ishmael will not be content until they have finished with Timothy and the convenient little Glossary of names at the end. It is just the kind of book for the home table and Sunday-school library, and should be in the hands of all Sunday-school teachers.

Little Arthur's History of France, from the earliest times to the fall of the Second Empire; on the plan of Little Arthur's England, with map, and illustrations. New York: Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., publishers, No 13, Astor Place.

Little Arthur's France is a very convenient work to have. It is a neat 16mo., bright scarlet colored cloth and gold gilt binding. It contains 50 chapters, beginning with the aboriginal, and Gaulish inhabitants of that country, their manners, religious, customs, and how they were conquered by the Romans, and ends with the conclusion of the Franco-Prussian war. It has 13 illustrations, the first of which is Napoleon at Waterloo and the last Mons. Leon Gambetta about to escape in a balloon. To the entire work, there are 295 pages. It ought to interest children in the study of history, and pave the way for the introduction of more comprehensive works, and this we apprehend was the purpose of the the writer. Price not given.

The Dorcas Magazine, a periodical devoted to the interests of Women and the Home, has completed its first year's work. Its pages are filled with plain directions for making an infinite variety of useful and decorative articles, and its aim is evidently not only to help women to employ their time in a useful and pleasing manner, also to be of service to those whom necessity compels to labor. There are thousands of women throughout the land supporting themselves by the aid of the crochet-hook and knitting-needle, to whom the Dorcas is invaluable. The patterns given are selected with care and taste, and the working directions, which, by the way, are printed without abbreviation, are tested by an expert, to prevent mistakes. Knitting, netting, crochet-work, all kinds of embroidery, and artistic needle-work are treated in its columns. Innumerable hints and suggestions, with regard to personal and home decoration are given, which may be enlarged indefinitely. The Dorcas has found an unoccupied field and is filling it in so satisfactory a manner, that it is fast becoming a recognized authority on all matters pertaining to Womanly Handicraft. During its first year it gave double the value promised. Each number contains more technical matter than can be purchased separately for ten times its cost to subscribers. $1 a yeart. Sample copies sent to any one in the United States or Canada, on receipt of 10 cents. Address Dorcas, 872 Broadway, New York City.

The January Century will have in its War Series papers by Captain Eads and Rear Admiral Walke, on the Mississippi gun-boat service, describing the naval engagements at Belmont, Fort Henry, Fort Donelson, Memphis, and Island No. 10. The next paper in the series, after General Grant's "Shiloh" in the February number, will be an account, in the March Century, of the battle between the "Monitor" and the "Merrimac," told by Colonel John Taylor Wood, third officer of the "Merrimac," and now the senior surviving officer. Colonel Wood was afterwards commander of the privateer "Tallahassee," and at the close of the war went to Nova Scotia, where he still resides. General R. E. Colston, commander of the Confederate forces opposite Newport News, will contribute to the same number an eye-witness's account of the famous battle, describing the spectacle of the destruction of the Federal fleet before the arrival of the "Merrimac."

The Triple E. By Mrs. S. R. Graham Clark. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co. Price, $1.50. Mrs. Clark is known as the author of Jessie Walton, one of the most popular Sunday-school books which has been published for many seasons, and the qualities which attracted attention in that work predominate strongly in this. The "Triple E" is the name playfully given by her friends to a girl of eighteen, whose three names begun with that letter, and who is left with a younger sister to make her way in the world after the death of her parents. She has promised her mother on her deathbed to not only care for her sister, but also for an insane uncle, and a little girl waif who came into their family in the most mysterious manner.

MISSIONS.

"Brothers beloved, go on! your path is clear,
Truth shows your duty, Providence your sphere;
The world, the moral world, your succor needs;
Now Carib Isles, Ceylon, or Indian pleads:
"Come to our help," each stormy ocean cross,
In regions desolate, exalt the cross;
Here take possession, here the standard lift,
The lamb's by purchase and the saint's by gift.
"Come to our help," immense Canadian aries,
O'er these green wilds "the day star" shall arise;
These woods so lofty, these vast lakes implore,
Proclaim the cross along Ontario's shore,
Throughout th' untravelled regions of the West,
Be every tribe with light and precept blest;
Where down his steeps Niagara is hurled,
Or vast Superior spreads a fluid world:
Along Missouri's stream, or where the woods
Are intersected by the line of floods;
In silent solitude's primeval shades,
Where but the cow-bell's tinkling sound pervades,
Let hymns of praise the listening woods resume,
And the sweet Gospel echo through the trees.

Malaria as an Invisible Poison.

H. M. SIMPKINS.

Need I say in this short treatise that there are so many erroneous ideas advanced by quacks, and unprofessional persons, that it is quite necessary to dwell in the most frank manner upon the importance and magnitude of this trouble. This has been a question of no small moment among the learned, both physicians and citizens, of city and country—hence it behooves us to become familiar with the immediate cause or causes of this monster, who in the moments of quietude of our slumbers finds itself in our systems, and strikes in due time a life-long disease. To say who are the responsible parties for its epidemic like spread would but excite indignation and unnecessary discussion.

Malaria, which means simply bad air, is the common name of a class of disease, which arise from spores of decaying vegetable matter, thrown off from stagnant pools or piles of vegetation undergoing decomposition. These spores when inhaled with the breath or taken into the system with the water, soon enter the blood and germinating there find a foothold, whereby the whole system is poisoned, and the various functions disordered. When the germ theory of disease was first advanced it was supposed that these spores were of animal nature and like the bacteria the diphtheria, were propagated in the blood, but they are now considered to be of vegetable origin, like the fungi formed on decaying wood or the mallard. The odors of the stagnant pools, which partially filled by the hot sun send forth poisons loaded with this malarial poison.

These vapors descend to the earth in the night, cooled by the the loss of temperature, and breathed by sleepers are readily inhaled. Hence persons living near stagnant pools or marshes are liable to chills and fever. Such localities are never healthy, though they are more so when the streams flowing into them are pure, and also when the water is high. Again the drainage of houses, slaughter houses, barns, etc., are a fertile source of malaria. We will often notice in coming into the neighborhood of one of these sluggish streams that pass through almost every village a most villainous smell, caused by the offensive refuse which communicates its bad odor to the atmosphere, especially in hot days. This absorbed into the [illegible] by the lungs or taken in [illegible] water, which also absorbs [illegible] the air, poisons the blood [illegible] changes the whole system. [illegible] power is also developed in [illegible] wells and springs, when they become low, and the result of drinking these is the same as [illegible] the poisonous air. In a [illegible] of drouth the great quantity of vegetation that dries up in the meadows, stubble fields and pastures, the corn fields and forest [illegible] produces the same effluvia; [illegible] the prairies, when large tracts of prairie ground are turned over the decaying vegetation, is a wide spread cause of malaria. The evil which follows malarial poisoning, an almost infinite disease of a malignant and dangerous nature, accompanied by symptoms the most distressing, are certain to manifest themselves, and life is a burden so long as this poison remains in the system.

The indications of malarial poisoning are the loss of appetite, shortness of breath, pains about the heart, wasting of strength and flesh, despondency, nervousness, chilly sensation, unaccountable lassitude, dull pain in various parts of the body, headache, dizziness, a coated tongue and dry mouth, night sweats, a muscular debility, puffing under eyes, an unusual color, odor or sediment about fluids passed from the system. Any one of these symptoms may be an indication of malarial poison, in the body, which necessitates immediate and careful attention.

But if malarial poison could not find a lodgment in the human body it would be just as harmless as the oxygen of the air. The great difficulty is that after being absorbed into the system, it produces obstruction in the stomach and lungs, clogs the circulation of the blood, affects the kidneys, liver, and other organs and brings on disease of a most dangerous character. There are many simple remedies if kept in mind, would save thousands of men, children and women. But as it would be out of place in this special treatise, to bring before you scientific treatment, rather than a few simple non-complex rules by which the most ignorant can guard off the disease known as malaria, I imagine would be rightfully conceded.

In noticing the time of day the heat is most strong, and avoiding it as well as dampness, inhalation and absorption of poisonous gases when the air is impregnated with this poisonous malarial. This is generally conceded to be after nightfall. We should not forget that cleanliness is the most important feature or remedy in this disease and at all times resort to it as a specific. To the inhabitants of malarial districts these precautions should be of great value, remembering that medicines are agencies by which we try to effect a cure, but precaution is the safeguard against disease.

Revenue receipts for the first five months of the fiscal year are $47,322,190, a decrease of $3,395,736 compared with the previous fiscal year. Receipts for November fell off $1,371,342 as compared with the same month in 1883.

Mrs. C. C. Phillips, Lock Box 1, Chillicothe, Ohio, writes to Dr. S. B. Hartman & Co., Columbus, Ohio: [illegible] just as soon think of doing without my meals as without my Medicine. I [illegible] four years and kept getting worse till the [illegible] when I got some of your books. The ills of Life [illegible] read it and as the [illegible] read your book and felt [illegible] made up my mind to die. I said then PERUNA was the medicine I needed, and I intended to try a bottle. It proved a success in breaking the chills, and if it had not done one [illegible] more, I would have been satisfied. But it has done more, and I feel like another person. Everybody that sees me is surprised to see me looking so well, as they all thought I was dying with consumption and some my own folks have as much to say for the PERUNA as I. I recommend it to everybody I see. There were two of our neighbors in yesterday inquiring about the PERUNA. I gave the one my book to read, told her to bring it back, as I prized it very highly. The other got the name of the PERUNA to send to his son in Chicago. He is a telegraph operator. My disease is something similar to Mrs. Milo Ingram's, though nothing compared to being so bad. There was a lump raised on my collar bone, and it was a long time before it looked like opening. The doctor said he would have to lance it in a few days, but I thought I would attend to that myself, so I put a little fly blister on it and it opened then I put a poultice on and then salve, and kept the salve on all the time. It got so bad and spread upon my left shoulder, and one place under my left [illegible] There were two places on my head, one near the temple and one back of my ear that was just dreadful. No tongue can tell what I suffered. My head felt so strange sometimes, I thought I was going crazy. Since I have used the PERUNA (I don't use the salve any more) my sores healed up right away. And oh, what a relief it is to get around without shaking and having to suffer with my sores. I feel like letting everybody know all about it."

John Ferguson, Gallitzin, Pa., writes: "Your PERUNA is a good medicine, and we sell lots of it. Will you please send us some more 'Ills of Life,' with a few German."

Practical Education for Girls.

BY MRS. E. S. BUST.

It has been said, "the hand that rocks the cradle moves the world." It is during the years of early childhood that the impressions are made that give bent to the future individual. The moral and spiritual atmosphere of the material order of the home in which their first years are spent will have a more important influence upon the character than any after schooling. The present generation was moulded by its mothers, and the next generation will take rank in the scale of civilization from the hands of the women who are to succeed them.

How important, then, that the education of these be so directed as to at least prepar them for the high and holy commission which has been given to woman, the first training of immortal souls. With this object the Woman's Home Missionary Society has undertaken to establish industrial schools for girls, as a special department of work. Other denominations as well as our own have industrial schools for boys, imparting to them a knowledge of business, agriculture and the trades, and it is just as important that girls should be trained in the womanly arts of housekeeping and the employments that women can appropriately enter upon in the sphere of life to which they may consecrate their energies.

The departmnet has secured for the society the highest commendation of General Eaton, Commissioner of Education, who says, "Any system of education which leaves out of consideration the home will be a failure," and of Rev. Dr. Haygood, agent of the Slater Fund, who writes, "Your society has solved the problem, what to do for the girls." Others well qualified to judge of the needs of the people, and of its adaptiveness to meet them, join in commeddation of our domestic training schools for girls. But this industrial training ought not to need argument for its support, when the most intelligent educators of the country are discussing the propriety of introducing elementary training for the practical industries into all our public schools.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society proposes to establish industrial schools for girls as rapidly as possible in connection with the schools of the church and in other localities, and it will endeavor to adapt its methods of training to the needs of the locality. It will furnish appliances for kindergarten and kitchen garden training for children, cooking, plain sewing, dress-making and systems of cutting and preparing clothing of all kinds for those more advanced. Also specific instruction in the laws of health and the care of the sick, nursing, etc., will be provided.

The society expects to inaugurate an enterprise of this kind as soon as necessary means can be secured at New Orleans. We trust that we will have the co-operation of all those philanthropically interested in the judicious education of youth, in this movement. The theory and plan of which is to take hold of child life before the school period, save it, start it aright, and then carry it on into the household duties for girls.

The fact given by Gen. Eaton that nearly half of our population die in infancy is, we think, sufficient reason for the purposes of the Woman's Home Missionary Society to do what it can to raise up a generation of women to be intelligent, wise and good mothers and housekeepers.

Young Lady at Boarding School.

At some French boarding schools in Paris, the girls are fed on weak soup, two or three degrees stronger than water; meat, from which nearly all the nourishment is extracted by boiling; coarse veal, watery carrots and gray, sour bread. The young lady who comes home after a few terms of this sort of diet may be very learned, but is pale and poor-looking, lacking vigor and health. Give her Brown's Iron Bitters—the best tonic in the world for young ladies with impoverished blood—and bring the roses into her cheeks.

Facts and Reasons.

Effects Produced by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA and by Nothing Else so Perfectly.

It strengthens and invigorates sufferers from enervation, languor, weakness, and mental depression.

It has an almost magical effect in curing eruptive and cutaneous disorders.

It eradicates from the blood the taint of that terribly destructive disease, Hereditary Scrofula.

It expels from the system the baneful poison of Mercury, which is as serious as that of Scrofula.

It purifies and regenerates the life current polluted by the corruption of contagious disease.

It stimulates the secretory organs, effects the removal of all impurities from the blood and makes it new, rich, and pure.

It restores health to sufferers from thin blood and impaired vitality.

It saves, by its thorough purification of the blood, from Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and Tubercular Consumption.

It cures Scrofulous affections of the Liver and Kidneys, and their symptoms, Jaundice and Dropsy.

It cures Scrofulous Catarrh, Itching Humors, and the purulent Sores caused by Scrofula.

It clears and improves the complexion.

It neutralizes the poisons left in the system by Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever, and restores the debilitated patient to perfect health and vigor.

It is, in short, an unfailing remedy for all disorders arising from impurity of the blood, where such disorders have not become so deeply seated as to be beyond all human aid.

Advantages that AYER'S SARSAPARILLA Possesses over all Others.

It is composed of the most efficacious alterative, diuretic, and tonic drugs known in pharmacy, among which are the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, Yellow Dock, Stillingia, and the Iodides of Potassium and Iron.

It is a highly concentrated medicine, scientifically and honestly compounded so as to secure to it the highest degree of activity and perfect uniformity.

It has received the hearty endorsement of the leading men in the medical profession, who recognize it as a standard pharmaceutical preparation, and prescribe it in their practice.

It contains no poisonous minerals or other dangerous drugs, the use of which for temporary effect in the many crude and cheap mixtures sold as alteratives, produces effects on the system often worse than the diseases they are offered to cure.

It costs no more than any other, but would still be the cheapest blood-purifying medicine in the world, even were its price three times greater, since it is the only one that does "real, lasting good."

It has been before the public for nearly forty years, and has constantly grown in popular favor, both at home and abroad, until there is hardly a place in the civilized world where it has not a host of friends, made so by its marvellous cures.

It has been used in, and approved by, at least 4,000,000 families in the United States, and 7,000,000 throughout the world. Women have especial reasons for commending it.

It has proven its potency in curing obstinate, deeply-seated, and long-standing diseases caused by vitiation of the blood. It must not, however, be expected and is not claimed that a single bottle will cure such cases; but patients should persevere in the use of this remedy until a radical cure is effected.

It is the only blood-purifier that has won and retained the confidence of the people of all tropical countries, where such medicines are much required.

It is the only medicine of its class that sailors, as a rule, have any faith in—and they are right.

Some vital questions were discussed at the late session of the Rohilkhund District Conference. Progress and advancement had marked the work of the year closed. The conference faithfully put the new question to the local preachers: "Will you wholly abstain from the use of tobacco?" Many men were licensed to preach, and at least one was who decidedly answered in the negative. It was considered important enough to the minority to insist on calling for the yeas and nays, which they did, and some twenty-four recorded their names against the man who refused to abstain from the use of tobacco. He is not on the regular work, but is a teacher for the W. F. M. S. The ladies, in their separate meeting, however, passed a vote to employ no women who used tobacco in any shape. The conference, after discussion, wisely resolved to strike at the root of the matter, and voted that hereafter a mission scholarship be given to no pupil in the schools who used tobacco in any shape. Accordingly, when the year's candidates for admission to the Barrily Theological Seminary came up, every one promised to abstain from the use of tobacco. The Rev. E. W. Parker conveyed to the conference the warm greetings of the missionaries and friends in America. The Rev. S. S. Johnson made a soul stirring address on the duties, privileges and responsibilities of the native ministry.

Madrid, January 9th.—The official returns state that, up to the 8th inst., in the provinces of Grenada and Malaga, 1,400 persons were killed by earthquakes, 900 were wounded, and 13,000 rendered homeless. Alhama will be rebuilt a mile from the present site.

As a raindrop foretells a storm, so does a pimple upon the human body indicate health-destroying virus in the blood, which can be neutralized and expelled only by Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic.

Mr. C. T. Cade has donated to the Methodist Episcopal Church of New Iberia, La., one acre of land as a site for a church. The name of the church will be Cade's Chapel. The colored people are very grateful to him for his gift, and pray for God's blessing to attend him.

Church Polity.

MR. EDITOR—In Discipline, 1884, in business of the fourth quarterly conference, the first question is "who are approved as trustees?" The fifteenth is "who are the trustees of the church and parsonage property?" What is the difference in the answers given to those two questions. Would, or does the answer to one answer the other?

Ans.—1. Question one is asked in those churches where the law of the State requires some specific mode of election for trustees, and which is, therefore, subject to quarterly conference approval or disapproval only.

2. Question fifteen may be asked and question one omitted in all those quarterly conferences where the trustees are elected by the conference, and vice versa.

In Alabama where you reside the number of trustees but not the manner of their election is regulated by law, therefore the fifteenth and not the first is the question which should be asked in your State and conferences within it.

He adds that he will read a translation of the address of the General Missionary committee to his congregation. He reports an diminution in collections and interest up to the present time.

Obituary.

It pains me to record the death of Sister Harriet Jones, [illegible] in the Lord Jesus. Sister Jones was a faithful member of our church, and was always ready to take part in anything that was to aid the upbuilding of our Redeemer's kingdom. It was seldom that she was absent from the bedside of the invalid. She leaves a husband and four or five little children to mourn her loss.

Exposition Notes.

In the exhibit of the Society of the American Taxidermists from Washington, D. C., are two pieces of work of especial merit, "Coming to the Point," and "The Wounded Heron." The former by W. T. Hornaday, of Washington, is a beautiful white and red pointer dog just [illegible] a covey of quail. The position of the dog, the unsuspecting quail, the birds, everything about the piece is of the finest order. The second, by T. E. Webster, of Washington, represents a white heron just struck by an arrow. With one foot he grasps the fatal missile as though to draw it out, while with open beak the bird manifests all the symptoms of mortal agony. Both pieces exhibit is fine indeed.

Miss Burke reported, January [illegible] the management was three hundred and nineteen thousand dollars in debt. The exhibitors have memorialized Congress for an additional appropriation. The Times-Democrat states that there are six thousand exhibitors. The fact is there are not quite two thousand.

The general exhibit is daily improving in interest. One great lack is the absence of a band save on special occasions. G. P. S.

Wesley and F. P. Loney. On motion Elder A. James was elected chairman, and Elder F. P. Loney secretary. The meeting was opened with singing and prayer by Rev. Wm. Freeman. The chair then stated that the object of the meeting was to take under consideration the case of Elder I. Nicholas in disobeying the appointments of the annual conference, and rejecting Elder J. P. Wesley, the appointee, from taking charge of Mt. Zion No. 2 unless he (Wesley) paid fifteen dollars per month, and according to resolutions adopted at the annual session of the Louisiana Annual Conference A. M. E. Zion Church, in default of a rejection, that the church so said should be stricken from the roll of the A. M. E. Zion's connectional [illegible] and to be published in the Times-Democrat as church [illegible] property; and the so-called church has been proved not to be anything else but personal property, which is open to fogery against the State in usurping the said property. Excitement in Rochester.

Widespread Commotion Caused by that Remarkable Statement of a Physician.

The story published in these columns recently, from the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat, created a deal of comment here as it has elsewhere. Apparently it caused even more commotion in Rochester, as the following from the same paper shows:

Dr. J. B. Henion, who is well-known not only in Rochester but in nearly every part of America, sent an extended article to this paper, a few days ago which was only published, detailing his remarkable experience and rescue from what seemed to be certain death. It would be impossible to enumerate the personal enquiries which have been made at our office as to the validity of the article, but they have been so numerous that further investigation or the subject was deemed an editorial necessity.

With this end in view a representative of this paper called on Dr. Henion at his residence on Andrews street, when the following interview occurred: "That article of yours, Doctor, has created quite a whirlwind. Are the statements about the terrible condition you were in, and the way you were rescued such as you can sustain?"

"Every one of them and many additional ones. I was brought so low by neglecting the first and most simple symptoms. I did not think I was sick. It is true I had frequent headaches; felt tired most of the time; could eat nothing one day and was ravenous the next; felt dull pains and my stomach was out of order, but I did not think it meant anything serious. The medical profession have been treating symptoms instead of diseases for years, and, it is high time it ceased. The symptoms I have just mentioned or any unusual action or irritation of the water channels indicate the approach of kidney disease more than a cough announces the coming of consumption. We do not treat the cough, but try to help the lungs. We should not waste our time trying to relieve the headache, pains about the body or other symptoms, but go directly to the kidneys, the source of most of these ailments.

"This, then, is what you meant when you said that more than one-half the deaths which occur arise from Bright's disease, Doctor?"

"Precisely. Thousands of cases are torturing people to-day, which in reality are Bright's disease in some of its many forms. It is a hydra-headed monster, and the slightest symptoms should strike terror to every one who has them. I can look back and recall hundreds of deaths which physicians declared at the time were caused by paralysis, apoplexy, heart disease, pneumonia, malarial fever and other common complaints which I see now were caused by Bright's disease."

"And did all these cases have simple symptoms at first?"

"Every one of them, and might have been cured as I was by the timely use of the same remedy. I am getting my eyes thoroughly opened in this matter and think I am helping others to see the facts and their possible danger, also."

Mr. Warner was visited at his establishment on North St. Paul street. At first he was inclined to be reticent, but learning that the information desired was about Bright's disease, his manner changed instantly and he spoke very earnestly:

"It is true that Bright's disease has increased wonderfully, and we find, by reliable statistics, that from '70 to '80, its growth was over 250 per cent. Look at the prominent men it has carried off: Everett, Sumner, Chase, Wilson, Carpenter, Bishop Haven, Folger, Colfax and others. Nearly every week the papers record the death of some prominent man from this scourge. Recently, however, the increase has been checked and I attribute this to the general use of my remedy."

"Do you think many people are afflicted with it to day who do not realize it, Mr. Warner?"

"A prominent professor in a New Orleans medical college was lecturing before his class on the subject of Bright's disease. He had various fluids under microscopic analysis and was showing the students what the indications of this terrible malady were. 'And now, gentlemen,' he said, 'as we have seen the unhealthy indications I will show you how it appears in a state of perfect health,' and he submitted his own fluid to the usual test. As he watched the results his countenance suddenly changed—his color and command both left him and in a trembling voice he said: Gentlemen, I have made a painful discovery; I have Bright's disease of the kidneys.' And in less than a year he was dead. The slightest indications of any kidney difficulty should be enough to strike terror to any one."

"You know of Dr. Henion's case?"

"Yes, I have both read and heard of it."

"It is very wonderful, is it not?"

"No more so than a great many others that have come to my notice as having been cured by the same means."

"You believe then that Bright's disease can be cured."

"I know it can. I know it from my own and the experience of thousands of prominent persons who were given up to die by both their physicians and friends."

"You speak of your own experience, what was it?"

"A fearful one. I had felt languid and unfitted for business for years. But I did not know what ailed me. When, however, I found it was kidney difficulty I thought there was little hope and so did the doctors. I have since learned that one of the physicians of this city pointed me out to a gentleman on the street one day, saying; 'There goes a man who will be dead within a year.' I believe his words would have proved true if I had not providentially used the remedy now known as Warner's Safe Cure."

Dr. S. A. Lattimore, although busily engaged upon some matters connected with the State Board of Health, of which he is one of the analysts, courteously answered the questions that were propounded him:

"Did you make a chemical analysis of the case of Mr. H. H. Warner some three years ago, Doctor?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did this analysis show you?"

"The presence of albumen and tube casts in great abundance."

"And what did the symptoms indicate?"

"A serious disease of the kidneys."

"Did you think Mr. Warner could recover?"

"No, sir. I did not think it possible."

"Do you know anything about the remedy which cured him?"

"Yes, I have chemically analyzed it and find it pure and harmless."

We publish the foregoing statements in view of the commotion which the publicity of Dr. Henion's article has caused and to meet the protestations which have been made. The doctor was cured four years ago and is well and attending to his professional duties to-day. The standing of Dr. Henion, Mr. Warner and Dr. Lattimore in the community is beyond question and the statements they make, cannot for a moment be doubted. Dr. Henion's experience shows that Bright's disease of the kidneys is one of the most deceptive and dangerous of all diseases, that it is exceedingly common, and that it can be cured.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Editorial Notes.

What wild infatuation in your breast
Thus prompts you, oh, ye flocks of Israel
To rush together, crest to crest,
And madly strived each others rank to fell?
Why thus incensed against each other swell,
As if by fury moved and jealousy.
Why break upon each others folds pell-mell,
And rashly trample down and rend and slay?
Alas, that sheep should seem so much like beasts of prey.

Dear. Bro. Phillip Cobb, a local preacher at Cobb's Switch, Miss., likes the SOUTHWESTERN and also our "Plantation Melodies."

We are in receipt of the Catalogue of Zion Wesley Institute, of Salisburg, N. C., for 1883-4. It records 151 students and a faculty of eleven.

The Young Men's Christian Association of this city held their anniversary and elected officers on Feb. 3rd. They had a fine programme of exercises.

The annal Catalogue of the University of Rochester, N. Y., is before us. It gives the number of teachers as twelve and the number of students 153.

The best thing we have seen in the line of valentines is from Prang & Co., who have displayed good taste and rare mechanical skill in preparing these beautiful mementoes. We are under obligations for samples sent us.

Another effort was made to divide the Florida into white and colored conferences, but it failed, the colored and two white members voting solidly against it. So the Negroes prove that they have no wish to abandon their white brethren either South or North.

Bishop to Bro. in Mississippi conference:

Bishop—"What is your first name?"

Bro. in Miss. Conf.—They call me A. R. for short, but my name is Columbus Arsenious Ogenious Jordan."

Rev. J. A. Fremont, of Bastrop, La., writes that he is very much pleased with the SOUTHWESTERN. He is, we learn, soon to enter Philander Smith Institute at Little Rock, for a course of English and theological training.

At Alamo, Tenn., since the year 1885 set in, Bro. Moses Crawford of the C. M. E. Church, has had much sickness in his family, five of children have died, and two remain very sick. Bro. Crawford is a good citizen and deserves the sympathy of all Christians.—Jno. W. Hall.

Mississippi Conference.

THIRD DAY.

The Conference resnmed its work at 9 a. m., Friday, Feb. 9; Bishop Mallalieu in the chair.

Rev. J. C. Eckles condncted the religious services, after which the journal was read and approved. The conference ordered each minister to pay $1.25 for the printed minutes, and the secretary to send them direct to the pastor hereafter instead of to the presiding elder as heretofore.

The third qnestion was resnmed, and Bros. H. W. Wallace and Jas. Jordan were advanced, with the understanding that they bring np the studies of the previous year.

J. C. Head and Charles Frierson were readmitted, and the following npon their credentials from the churches named: Rev. J. C. W. Pair, elder, from the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America; Rev. L. W. Washington, an elder in the African Methodist Episcopal Church; Rev. C. M. White, an elder from the African Methodist Episcopal Church. Rev. Elijah Harris, an elder from the Baptist Church; were recognized in their orders, and the first three admitted to full connection, and the latter on trial after agreeing to our doctrines and form of discipline. The following were admitted into full connection: Wm. Parks, J. W. Davis, T. W. Davis, P. R. Crump, L. F. White, A. S. Williams, R. H. Patton, G. W. Smith, I. M. Lampkins, B. L. Nevils, Nelson Toole and B. J. Griffin, being carefully addressed by the Bishop as follows: viz:

"The occasion is one of special solemnity and franght with peculiar interest, even more so than any of the previous steps in entering the ministerial life. You yonng men stand here before the world, giving up all, to be embassadors of Christ."

(Then followed the asking of the questions.)

"Methodism does not teach that perfection implies infallibility in jndgment or life, but love of God with all the heart. We ought to seek this experience with desperate earnestness, and realize John's prophesy, 'He shall baptize yon with the Holy Ghost and with fire.' Don't worry about the disputed terms, sanctification, holiness, etc., but get the experience. Without this no man can be a true Methodist preacher. These doctrines of consciousness of pardon, of witness of the Spirit, and of perfect love are what give reason for existence of the Methodist Church. A Methodist preacher must have little time for politics or secret societies. The Church will give yon all the work you ought to do. Work is honorable. If Adam and Eve had taken better care of the garden they might have been kept from sin. No sacrifice or devotion is too great to make for the Lord. Men don't die of hard work in the ministry. Methodism has no doctrine of limited salvation. Don't make long visits to gossip, bnt seeking the salvation of men. Abstinence in eating on Sunday will tend to health and usefulness." The Bishop urged the old men to "give up the use of tobacco for the sake of example. Wm. Taylor has gone to Afrita to plant the seed of the Gospel that shall grow even if the laborers die. Let the colored yonng men rise to this work." He hoped to take a railroad train at Algiers, across the Sahara to Timbnctoo, and find some of these young men there as missionaries.

J. L. Wilson, S. D. Hudson, Thos. L. Ingram, W. S. Gillespie, James Blewitt, Alexander McBeth, J. W. Davis, C. H. Brown, W. H. McCarty, Wm. Mimms, D. C. Bragg, Columbus Jordan and Jackson Little.

The conference will get through by 12 m. Monday. There is general satisfaction with the presidency of Bishop Mallalieu. He is dignified and polished in his manner. He is brotherly and cordial in his intercourse. Every one has a kind word to speak of him, and himself has a word of kindness for every one he meets. One afternoon session was reqnired, Friday, only.

Afternoon Session.—Rev. John Eanes was granted a snperannnate relation.

Letters from the Pastors.

Rev. G. C. Harden, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., writes: "The proceedings of our Centennial Jubilee meeting were carried ont according to programme. The first address was by the writer, on the "Progress of Methodism in America, and the ground and pillars of Methodism, and the wonderful spread of the seed and growth of the same." The occasion drew out a large crowd of people, many of whom were white who seemed to take an interest in the services. Next Rev. H. C. Welch, the snperintendent, gave a strong talk; then was snng "Come Brother Sailor, and Don't Fall asleep," after which the committees present came forward and opened their boxes, which gave us $4.10, then the congregation was asked to give something, collection 95c., total $5.05."

Rev. C. D. C. Bryan, Mandeville, La., writes: "We have closed our protracted meeting for a while; we have 1 convert, received two backsliders for this little town. I have also another litte work 10½ miles from this town called Bayon La Combe. I started on this work without having a member. I preached several times to sinners, and they responded to my call. I have three or four members now, and have received one convert for this work, which is considered almost a miracle. There has not been a convert in Bayon Lacombe since the war. The people are anxions to have a church there. With Church Extension aid we can build a church and have a strong fort in Bayon Lacombe. The people are anxions to have ns sing and preach to them. This little town is beantifully sitnated on a bayon of the same name, and has a large popnlation. I have reason to believe that if a church is built in Bayon Lacombe this will be the strongest work over the lake. I was called to this work by 2 persons, Hardie Palmer and Mrs. Christina Meyers, who now are members of that little work. We have one acre of land donated to ns by Mr. Joseph Baddon, a well wisher of the religions cause of Christ. Pray that the Lord will bless him and his family and make this a Christian stronghold."

Rev. C. D. C. Bryan, Springfield, La., writes: "I am glad to give the statement of my work on this circnit. We had a good time at Springfield. The Presiding Elder, L. P. Cushman, was with ns, administered the sacrament, and preached two sermons which took effect. At night the white gentlemen and ladies turned ont to hear him, and we had a good time, for the Spirit of God was burning npon the hearts of many. We only regret one thing, and that is that we cannot have our presiding elder with us oftener. Springfield church is growing. Pray that the Lord may bless Springfield and her loving congregation."

Rev. A. Conerly, of Franklinton, Washington parish, La., writes: "I wish to annonnce throngh your paper that I have had some success here with my mission. We have 12 members of the church and about 50 Sunday-school scholars; bnt I am sorry to say that owing to my wife having a case in court I will be compelled to attend; and as the conrt term begins on the 26th of January, and the annnal conference on the 29th, it is impossible for me to attend conference; therefore I beg that the conference will accept my excuse and pardon my absence."

Rev. H. W. Simmons, Murfreesboro, Tenn., writes: "When I last wrote to the SOUTHWESTERN I was on the Gallatin circnit; now I am on the Murfreesboro circuit. After receiving my appointment at our last annual conference, which convened at Memphis, I made appearance on my work as soon as possible. I am glad to say that I found this work in good condition. There has been active service by both pastor and people. I lose no time in conversing with grumblers and fault-finders. I have visited extensively among my members. They are worthy of being called working people for the Church of Christ. They received me gladly, and never since I came here have I preached to a small congregation. I have a large nnmber of leading brethren, the most of whom are men that try to prove themselves worthy of their calling. I have taken to myself a better half, and am now comfortably situated. We hope to have a grand time in repairing onr church and calling sinners to Christ. During the winter we hope to keep onrselves comfortably situated and in the spring want to enlarge our church. We have not had our presiding elder with ns yet, but are preparing to receive him. We would be very glad to have him with ns. Received since conference $16.40; received by letter, one; from probation, one. We are going to rally for the benevolent causes of the church."

Rev. D. Collier, of Waynesboro, Tenn., writes: "Elder Jesse P. Price was with us and held my first quarterly conference for me. My report was not as good as last year, some of my people being nnable to help ns since the election, bnt our work bids fair for the future. Several of the members were present with written reports, which show that the work is progressing nicely. We hope to have better times in futnre. I sent my committee out with contribution boxes for the Freedmen's Aid Society and have written for more."

Rev. A. McDade, Covington, Ky., writes: "Our third quarterly conference is over, being held Nov. 22-23. Rev. Jos. H. Courtney, the presiding elder, preached at 11 o'clock with great power; his argument was clear and convincing, and all who heard him gave signs of appreciation. In the afternoon our exercises were condncted in honor of Methodist centennialism, at which time the presiding elder read a very interesting, strong and instructive essay npon the publishing interests of the church. At 7:30 p. m. the elder delivered the sacramental disconrse, which strengthened the Christian faith in the cross of Christ as the power of God unto salvation, and after having consecrated the elements he administered the Lord's Snpper to qnite a number of communicants. The church is moving along very nicely. Our receipts for the day was $43."

Rev. J. R. Waters, P. C. Salisbury Station, Md., writes: "I am happy to say that the work, both spiritually and financially, is in good condition. We are preparing for the centennial celebration, which will be observed on Christmas day. I am doing all I can for the SOUTHWESTERN; enclosed please find $3 50. Please send the paper to Miss Maria E. Davis, whose P. O. address is Salisbnry, Md.; one of the remaining $2 is for Rev. Wm. H. Johnson's and the other for myself. I hope to be able to send you more soon. Wishing you much success."

Rev. J. C. Christophere, Jericho, Ky. writes: "We held our fourth qnarterly conference on the 10 11 of Jannary. The presiding elder, Rev. W. W. Locke, presided, and with his Christian dignity, and bnsiness like bearing, made qnite an impression on the people. After the business of the conference was attended to, the meeting was adjourned. On Sunday at 11 a. m., Bro. Locke and his assistant, Rev. P. Fisher preached, and every one was well pleased. Our church work was not so good last year, bnt we hope to make rapid advancement in future. The death of Bishop Wiley seemed to throw a pall over every one here; bnt like Abraham, they said, "The Lord will provide." Every one is looking forward to the Annual Assembly that will have its seat in Springfield, Ohio. The watchword of our lives is "may the Lord attend that meeting." We are doing all we can for the SOUTHWESTERN, and hope to do better than heretofore."

Rev. Wm. Smith, Donaldsonville, writes: "Please find space to pnblish the following in your paper: One of the visitors in my church, having a bad taste in her mouth fonnd, npon examination, that a chintz had crawled into her hollow tooth. She says she can't see how he got there unless he crawled in while she slept at night. Please notify all the ladies to be careful at night to shnt their month for fear the chintzes will give them a call. Their oder is bad enough without chewing them.

"We had onr fonrth quarterly. One of my local preachers sent word by another local preacher to pass him through the conference for to join the itinerant connection. I think all such men as those onght to go to school and study awhile before they are made local preachers."

[The writer of the above letter asked ns to publish it and we have done so, and now we warn him to keep out of the reach of the ladies hereafter or he might find out that the average woman has more than a chintz in her mouth.—ED.]

Editorial Notes.

What wild infatuation in your breast
Thus prompts you, oh, ye flocks of Israe l
To rush together, crest to crest,
And madly strived each others rank to fell?
Why thus incensed against each other swell,
As if by fury moved and jealousy.
Why break upon each others folds pell mell,
And rashly trample down and rend and slay?
Alas, that sheep should seem so much like beasts of prey.

Dear. Bro. Phillip Cobb, a local preacher at Cobb's Switch, Miss., likes the SOUTHWESTERN and also our "Plantation Melodies."

We are in receipt of the Catalogue of Zion Wesley Institute, of Salisbury, N. C., for 1883-4. It records 151 students and a faculty of eleven.

The Young Men's Christian Association of this city held their anniversary and elected officers on Feb. 3rd. They had a fine programme of exercises.

The annual Catalogue of the University of Rochester, N. Y., is before us. It gives the number of teachers as twelve and the number of students 153.

The best thing we have seen in the line of valentines is from Prang & Co., who have displayed good taste and rare mechanical skill in preparing these beautiful mementoes. We are under obligations for samples sent us.

Another effort was made to divide the Florida into white and colored conferences, but it failed, the colored and two white members voting solidly against it. So the Negroes prove that they have no wish to abandon their white brethren either South or North.

Bishop to Bro. in Mississippi conference:

Bishop—"What is your first name?"

Bro. in Miss. Conf.—They call me A. R. for short, but my name is Columbus Arcenious Ogenious Jordan."

Rev. J. A. Fremont, of Bastrop, La., writes that he is very much pleased with the SOUTHWESTERN. He is, we learn, soon to enter Philander Smith Institute at Little Rock, for a course of English and theological training.

At Alamo, Tenn., since the year 1885 set in, Bro. Moses Crawford of the C. M. E. Church, has had much sickness in his family, five of children have died, and two remain very sick. Bro. Crawford is a good citizen and deserves the sympathy of all Christians.—Jno. W. Hall.

Mississippi Conference.

THIRD DAY.

The Conference resnmed its work at 9 a. m., Friday, Feb. 9; Bishop Mallalieu in the chair.

Rev. J. C. Eckles condncted the religious services, after which the journal was read and approved. The conference ordered each minister to pay $1.25 for the printed minntes, and the secretary to send them direct to the pastor hereafter instead of to the presiding elder as heretofore.

The third qnestion was resumed, and Bros. H. W. Wallace and Jas. Jordan were advanced, with the understanding that they bring np the studies of the previons year.

J. C. Head and Charles Frierson were readmitted, and the following upon their credentials from the churches named: Rev. J. C. W. Cushman, was with ns, administered the sacrament, and preached two sermons which took effect. At night the white gentlemen and ladies turned ont to hear him, and we had a good time, for the Spirit of God was bnrning npon the hearts of many. We only regret one thing, and that is that we cannot have our presiding elder with ns oftener. Springfield chnrch is growing. Pray that the Lord may bless Springfield and her loving congregation."

Rev. A. Conerly, of Franklinton, Washington parish, La., writes: "I wish to announce throngh your paper that I have had some snccess here with my mission. We have 12 members of the church and abont 50 Sunday-school scholars; bnt I am sorry to say that owing to my wife having a case in conrt I will be compelled to attend; and as the conrt term begins on the 26th of Jannary, and the annnal conference on the 29th, it is impossible for me to attend conference; therefore I beg that the conference will accept my excuse and pardon my absence."

Rev. H. W. Simmons, Murfreesboro, Tenn., writes: "When I last wrote to the SOUTHWESTERN I was on the Gallatin circuit; now I am on the Murfreesboro circnit. After receiving my appointment at our last annnal conference, which convened at Memphis, I made appearance on my work as soon as possible. I am glad to say that I fonnd this work in good condition. There has been active service by both pastor and people. I lose no time in conversing with grumblers and fault-finders. I have visited extensively among my members. They are worthy of being called working people for the Chnrch of Christ. They received me gladly, and never since I came here have I preached to a small congregation. I have a large nnmber of leading brethren, the most of whom are men that try to prove themselves worthy of their calling. I have taken to myself a better half, and am now comfortably sitnated. We hope to have a grand time in repairing our chnrch and calling sinners to Christ. During the winter we hope to keep onrselves comfortably sitnated and in the spring want to enlarge onr chnrch. We have not had our presiding elder with ns yet, but are preparing to receive him. We wonld be very glad to have him with ns. Received since conference $16.40; received by letter, one; from probation, one. We are going to rally for the benevolent causes of the church."

Rev. D. Collier, of Waynesboro, Tenn., writes: "Elder Jesse P. Price was with us and held my first qnarterly conference for me. My report was not as good as last year, some of my people being nnable to help ns since the election, bnt our work bids fair for the fnture. Several of the members were present with written reports, which show that the work is progressing nicely. We hope to have better times in futnre. I sent my committee out with contribntion boxes for the Freedmen's Aid Society and have written for more."

Rev. A. McDade, Covington, Ky., writes: "Our third qnarterly conference is over, being held Nov. 22-23. Rev. Jos. H. Courtney, the presiding elder, preached at 11 o'clock with great power; his argument was clear and convincing, and all who heard him gave signs of appreciation. In the afternoon our exercises were condncted in honor of Methodist centennialism, at which time the presiding elder read a very interesting, strong and instrnctive essay npon the pnblishing interests of the chnrch. At 7:30 p. m. the elder delivered the sacramental discourse, which strengthened the Christian faith in the cross of Christ as the power of God unto salvation, and after having consecrated the elements he administered the Lord's Supper to qnite a number of commnnicants. The chnrch is moving along very nicely. Onr receipts for the day was $43."

Rev. J. R. Waters, P. C. Salisbury Station, Md., writes: "I am happy to say that the work, both spiritnally and financially, is in good condition. We are preparing for the centennial celebration, which will be observed on Christmas day. I am doing all I can for the SOUTHWESTERN; enclosed please find $3 50. Please send the paper to Miss Maria E. Davis, whose P. O. address is Salisbnry, Md.; one of the remaining $2 is for Rev. Wm. H. Johnson's and the other for myself. I hope to be able to send you more soon. Wishing you much sncess."

Rev. J. C. Christophere, Jericho, Ky. writes: "We held our fourth qnarterly conference on the 10 11 of Jannary. The presiding elder, Rev. W. W. Locke, presided, and with his Christian dignity, and bnsiness like bearing, made quite an impression on the people. After the business of the conference was attended to, the meeting was adjourned. On Sunday at 11 a. m., Bro. Locke and his assistant, Rev. P. Fisher preached, and every one was well pleased. Onr church work was not so good last year, bnt we hope to make rapid advancement in fnture. The death of Bishop Wiley seemed to throw a pall over every one here; bnt like Abraham, they said, "The Lord will provide." Every one is looking forward to the Annual Assembly that will have its seat in Springfield, Ohio. The watchword of our lives is "may the Lord attend that meeting." We are doing all we can for the SOUTHWESTERN, and hope to do better than heretofore."

Rev. Wm. Smith, Donaldsonville, writes: "Please find space to pnblish the following in yonr paper: One of the visitors in my chnrch, having a bad taste in her month fonnd, npon examination, that a chintz had crawled into her hollow tooth. She says she can't see how he got there unless he crawled in while she slept at night. Please notify all the ladies to be careful at night to shnt their mouth for fear the chintzes will give them a call. Their oder is bad enongh without chewing them.

"We had onr fourth quarterly. One of my local preachers sent word by another local preacher to pass him throngh the conference for to join the itinerant connection. I think all snch men as those onght to go to school and stndy awhile before they are made local preachers."

[The writer of the above letter asked ns to pnblish it and we have done so, and now we warn him to keep out of the reach of the ladies hereafter or he might find out that the average woman has more than a chintz in her mouth.—ED.]

Letters from the Pastors.

Rev. G. Brooks, Corinth, Miss., writes: "On entering this work on the first of Febrnary, we found a little church of generons, warm hearted people, who had the form of godliness, desiring the power thereof. We accepted the situation with courage and confidence, hoping under God's guidance to snccead. The little nnmber, when called together told the pastor that their strength was abont 275, and would not exceed 300, experience proved their statement to be correct; 43 have been added to the number and 327 are all that we oan boast of, and part of them keep running abont so that it is diffionlt to connt them. Albeit among the number mentioned, there are some heroic and determined spirits, loyal to the church, zealons of good works before God, maintaining firm and nnflinching in their integrity to God, and to their prinoiples of the Methodist Episcopal Church; they are loyal to the government in which they live, and when they can't prove it by their actions, they prove it by an act. In March 89 the presiding elder visited this point for the first time, disoharged his duties according to the principles laid down in the Discipline, and while there were a few who perhaps would differ from his ruling, it was their misfortune, and not their fault, words without being explained "are bnt tiukling symbols;" this we found to be the case in several instances relating to "Church Polity." By the second quarter, being convinced of the righteousness of the course of the elder, matters were greatly harmonized, and perfect agreement between the Church, pastor and presiding elder did exist, until the former pastor W. H. H. Gallion, returned in April scattered firebrands which burned both sides, and created general disturbance, retarded the progress of the work, and gave great tronble to all the officers of the Church, from the executive down; our financial report, by this act is greatly diminished, yet thank the Lord, by perseverance the former troubles have proved themselves false, fanatical, and mischievous tendencies, and thought to have been premeditated, with this conclusion the Church returned to her allegiance, and from June up to the present, she has been trying to redeem what she had lost, she is now united, working for the Master. Our beloved presiding elder has paid her four visits; this last quarter was held November 25, and with acceptability he served his people preaching day and night, administered the sacrament to quite a number, and the manifestation of the Spirit was satisfactory to all. The district conference will present more fully the condition of the Church at this place.

Our Sabbath school has doubled its enrollment, and is organized according to the form laid down in the Discipline, under the missionary rule. Its management and control are committed to a yonng man of promise, who is snperintendent, an adopted son of Dr. Revels, reared, raised and educated after the perfect manner of that time honored veteran, and who has certainly drank in the spirit of the father, whom we love to honor as chief in our ranks. Under the leadership of this said young man, the progress of our Sunday-school is beyond description, and to understand it, one would have to begin, and continue with it as we have done; and after witnessing its moral, religious, intellectual and financial improvement, they would then say, "who would have thought it," and if asked to explain themselves, they would only say "excelsior," and yet it is not to be wondered at. Our superintendent is principal of the public school at this place, and the satisfaction which he has given to all, both pupils and parents, has so fully demonstrated his ability to act in the sphere in which he is placed, that some foreign students on their way in search of Holly Springs, Tougaloo, Nashville or somewhere for the purpose of advancing in their studies, they being advanced scholars, spent a few days here in looking and listening for themselves, then said they had found what they were hunting for and gave themselves over to L. F. G. Murray, and now after receiving his instruction for a little less than two months in a little independent school, not exceeding sixty, they determined to risk themselves with our teacher, where'er he may be. All of the young need him.

Your humble servant, being compelled to visit the white element, snch as superintendent of the pnblic works, mayor and alderman, school board of directors, has had had a fair chance to find the estimate and esteem in which they place and hold our teacher. They declare that in point of qualification every way, and in all ways, and all certainly means the whole, according to grammar, they say in so many words: "Parson Brooks, in our jndgment yon have the best material in the person of young Murray, that has been before us for employment;" they say further "Parson, you should call a school convention and try to make yonrs a graded school, your teacher, being competent for its management, you can make it a snccess; and any assistance that we can give you in that direction is at your service, at your demand." The mayor, three doctors, with others have urged me so to do. I have promised to encourage the same as far as duty requires it, and will not conflict with Rvst University, it being entitled to my first obligations."

Rev. S. R. Hason, Allen, La., writes: "Onr Centennial meeting convened October 26th, 1884; subjects of the day was: first, "Organization of Methodism" which was thoronghly, and openly explained satisfactorily to eaoh and every one, by P. C. Colton, who spoke readily and emphatically. Second, "Temperance" whioh was unanimonsly setled in the minds of all of the whiskey suckers, tobacco worms and snuff doodles. He made them all ashamed and they said they must quit the habit, and take it up no more; older people said they must try and lay down their dark habits. He told how they had robbed their children, hung their sons and spoiled their daughters; how they had made them homeless, fatherless and motherless; took figures and showed mathematically how much they use by buying 5 cents worth a day and how much they drank up a week, etc. He spoke eloqnently, with life and action. He was followed by D. J. Price, a local preacher. Then Wm. Emmette, who spoke on time fast and qnick. Then I gave wandering sketches. Eddie Carr was elected as Centennial treasurer of this place. A collection was taken np whioh realized $2, it being bad weather. The following names paid one dollar each P. E., S. Duncan, S. R. Hason, D. J. Price, total, with collection $5."

Rev. F. Walker, Mansfield, La., writes: "The condition of the Church at Mansfield is very bad, owing to the hard times here; crops have failed very much throughout this country; and a great many of my people have no meat, they are in debt to merchants, and taking it all in, times look very dark. We had an excellent Jubilee sermon, by Rev. T. J. Johnson, on the 4th Snnday in Nov., and he did a great deal of good. We gave the whole day to the mission cause, the collection was $3; we are still strnggling to make up our benevolent money, and the people say they will do all they can. We had a good time on the fourth qnarter, all were sorry to see Elder Duncan leave us, we pray that the Lord will bless him and family."

Rev. P. B. McDonald, Bastrop, La., writes: "We are moving along. I have three appointments, one in town, and two in the country. Our Church in town had no bell to call her people; we now have a bell which cost us $25, and is paid for all bnt $2.15. At Bichelle one of our country appointments, six years ago lumber was put upon the ground to build, but by some misfortune the church was not built. So a good deal of the lumber spoiled. I am glad to say we have at Bichelle a splendid frame church built, which cost $116.82; $73.45 paid, and we owe $43 37. Our next appointment is Washington's Chapel; we have a splendid church, and people at Washington Church; a good many have been converted to God this year. We are trying to have all of our benevolent collections."

Rev. Sampson Gates, Culpepper, Virginia, writes: "Dear Sir—I have found my mother and brother whom I have not seen for 22 years, and there was joy you may know. All were well and I am having a nice time here; bnt one thing I am sorry that there is no Methodist church here of color, but some of white. Some of the people say that they have not heard a Methodist preacher for 25 years, so I am in a Baptist world and want you all to pray for me that I may sing and pray the best, and turn this part of the world to Methodists. They all want to hear me preach, and by the help of God I am going to commence my work here in this place, and I need the prayers of my brethren to help me. I found my brother in good circumstances, house and farm, cows and hogs, and everything plentiful; but he is a Baptist, member of the church, and I am a Methodist. Pray God for me that I may preach the Word of God to the people here, and that my labors may be blessed. May the Lord bless my Church and people. All pray for me."

Rev. W. H. Logan, pastor at Houston, Texas, writes: "Mr. Editor—Since we have been in the Bayou City our contributions to the SOUTHWESTERN have been limited but our love for her has been none the less restricted. Our love has increased since you were elected its present editor. We must turn our attention to the subject of which we started to write. Our church house is one that has no superior in the conference, this we can gladly say without exaggeration. The corner-stone was laid and some work done in 1879 during the pastorate of Rev. J. K. Loggins. In 1880-81, during the pastorate of Rev. P. Douglass, all the external work was completed; in 1882 the interior part was beautifully completed, during the pastorate of Rev. I. B. Scott. He was returned in 1883, at the commencement of which conference year the church was dedicated by Bishop Bowman. The writer was assigned here by Bishop Andrews, conference year of 1884. We were received heartily by the people. Our predecessor was present when we arrived and carried us aronnd and introdnced us to several families. We at once set about our work as pastor preaching, visiting from house to house, and we can truthfully say that up to date everything has been as pleasant as could be desired. In April we opened war on Satan's camp in which 34 precious souls were converted and 60 additions to the church. While every department has moved on grandly and apparently pleasant with us, yet we would not dare say that we have pleased every one since we have been here; and yet too much can not be said of members as to the principles of good Methodists. They believe in paying their pastor every dollar they promised him. There has been raised from all sources this year something over $2,000. We have one of the best Sunday-schools in the State. This school, visitors tell me, has no parallel in the Texas or West Texas conferences. We have a total membership, reported at the annual conference recently held at Navasota, of 341. Your visit to our city, Mr. Editor, will live long in the memory of the people, and the able sermon you preached for us on Thanksgiving Day will not soon be forgotten. We are doing all we can for the SOUTHWESTERN."

Rev. G. C. Harden, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., writes: "Our first qnarterly conference was held by elder J. P. Price, our beloved elder; his presence lifted up our drooping heads and gave strength and courage to the heroes of the cross of Christ. For they thonght of being enslaved again by the election of Gov. Cleveland for our next President—the white people had talked a great deal of slavery—and they thought his election would make them slaves again, but the elder gave them fresh courage. A great many of the brethren were present with written reports, which shows a steady increase, and that they had been doing something for the Master. The elder's sermon aroused the minds of the Christians and awakened sinners to their need of a Savior, and a great many came forward to be prayed for. Administered the sacrament to 28 lovers of Christ. His text was the 28th chapter of Jer. 16th verse: "This year shalt thou die, because thou hast taught rebellion against the Lord." The assessments of the circuit are as follows: For the pastor $210, for the elder $30, for episcopal funds, $3; missions, $15; Freedmen's Aid, $8; Church Extension, $5; Sunday-school Union, $2; Education, $1; Tract, 5c., and church aid, $20; total, $269.50. paid the pastor $13.45. The elder gave a neat talk on the benefit of education, and showed the number of illiterate people in Tennessee of colored and white people, and our great need of education, and a vast number of them was not able to write their own name, If this letter is too long throw it into your waste basked. Excuse my long letter."

Rev. H. W. Wilson, Huntsville, Texas, writes: "Shortly after the annual conference, I came to my work. The people received me kindly and have done well by me thus far. I found the church in as good a condition as could be expected. Centennial day was observed and was an interesting occasion. We collected $5.10, for the cause of education. On January 3-4, E. Lee, P. E. was with us, and held our first quarter. All the members of the conference were present, with good results, which shows the Church to be in a good condition. The presiding elder preached two good sermons, which were well received by all who heard him. He always brings "good news" with him, and we are always glad to have him with us. So we are moving on nicely. Our people are poor and times are hard with them, but they are willing workers for the Lord, therefore we expect to make this charge second to none in every respect. Have just sent a list of subscribers and will send more as soon as possible."

The Preacher as a Man.

FIRST PAPER*

REV. S. OLIN GARRISON.

God locks his great truths in bone and brawn and brain, and sets them afoot in the world. The Gospel may be the most beautiful truth ever given to the race, the preacher an enoyclopediæ, his oratory Demosthenic, his rhetoric chaste and vivid, his logic keen and conclusive, but if he fails in himself to incarnate the truth of the Gospel, fails to be a man among men, the edge of his work in the church will be dulled, yea he hinders more than he helps. To be a man among men is to represent in our intercourse with them those virtues which are always at premium with thoughtful, moral people. The rugged, moral virtues, in distinction from refined spiritual qualities, are all this paper is designed to cover.

TRUTHFULNESS.

The word of the preacher should be as good as his bond, his bond as good as gold. To secure such an enviable reputation great care should be taken in giving one's word or bond. Some who never meant to cheat or lie have been hasty in making promises, and have not forseen their inability to keep their word, but the consequences were nevertheless the same. If a community, or individuals in a community, come to know that our word cannot be relied upon, with them our influence is gone forever. our talents may hold their attention and even interest them, but we will not win them to Christ. Paul taught the Corinthians they were to renounce "the hidden things of dishonesty, not walking in craftiness, nor handling the word of God deceitfully; but by manifestation of the truth commending themselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God." Flattery is lying, hence Paul says, "neither at any time used we flattering words;" "our exhortation was not of deceit, nor in guile." It is painfully sad to meet ministers, yea, I sorrow to write, of many years standing, who have formed a habit of dissimulation. Instances are on record where ministers have so repeatedly practiced deception they seem to have come to regard it as a virtue, or else are repeatedly unconscious of a failure to tell the exact truth. This fact of dissembling too often appears in the pulpit under cover of making a strong point, or painting a more graphic picture, or telling a more thrilling incident. The public mind is quick to detect exaggeration. Let the pulpit speak the truth and nothing but the truth. The Gospel itself is graphic enough, especially when clothed with Bible incident and epigram. Let our love for men reveal itself "without dissimulation." In private and in public Solomon teaches, "The lip of truth shall be established forever, but a lying tongue is but for a moment." Guard against a lust for exaggeration and flattery. A love for truth and a scrupulous conscience commend the Gospel. Give them body and legs.

HONESTY.

"Better is a little with righteousness than great revenues without right," Prov. 16, 8. While the writer believes his own loved denomination and its ministry are singularly free from dishonest practices, nevertheless it is a humiliating confession that perhaps not a conference in Methodism today is free from the reproach. Certainly there is not one which has escaped repeated disturbances by it. Not often have men been tried and found guilty, but unpaid bills have again and again been left behind them as a fearful incubus upon the Gospel of God. There are sometimes palliating reasons but very rarely excuses. The love of ease, ambition to appear as well as others, a false conception of what is due the preacher, a recklessness in assuming debts, a lack of economy and system, a large family, the parsimony of the laymen, the illiberal estimates of the quarterly conference, and many other reasons might be given, but none of these will excuse the preacher at the bar of God for assuming debts he has no reasonable hope of paying. Better live on a dry crust, and wear patched clothes than stain the Christian character by dishonest practices. The accounts of our Book Concern are a revelation along this line. Unpaid grocery and clothing bills, and in one case at least an over-drawn bank account have seriously hurt the Gospel in scores of cities and villages. The modern ministry should emulate the example of Thomas Taylor, one of Wesley's itinerants, who "had famine within doors and plenty of reproach without;" who "sold his horse to pay for his lodging, and then shared the balance with a poor brother preacher in want." He then "walked to his appointments and kept many fast days." "Feeling the necessity to keep up his credit, he frequently requested his landlady not to prepare his humble dinner, and would walk out until after the dinner hour, and then return to his hungry room with a hungry stomach." After a time the people "learned he had no estate or source of supplies," and ever after bountifully provided for his needs. If men are not conscientiously honest, and that too in the very least things, they lack the basis of character on which to successfully preach the Gospel of the New Testament. Men not strictly honest are certainly not regenerated. If they have been "born again" it is a very sickly sort of a birth, and such off-spring will surely die. Such births are a spiritual miscarriage. They are a "savour of death unto death." Better die lean and hungry ten years sooner than to live fat and gonty to air a little rhetoric and display a little oratory without the confidence of our fellow-men. Let "no man go beyond and defraud his brethren in any matter, because that the Lord is the avenger of all such, as we also have forewarned you and testified." 1 Thes. 4: 6.

SELF-RESPECT.

No minister will be successful unless he command the respect of others, and he cannot compel the respect of others unless he have the moral qualities which compel self-respect. These qualities are sincerity, uprightness, strict integrity and truthfulness. There are other qualities which are scarcely moral and yet have a moral issue, such as cleanliness, tidiness, gentleness and firmness. Wesley always attached the highest importance to "respectability." He insisted his preachers should have good manners and an appropriate dress. While he deprecated all fawning and foppishness, he taught deference to the aged and to superiors, urged neatness and cleanliness of attire. He would undoubtedly rebuke the style of slovenly neck-wear, the dirty boots, the unclean nails, the offensive breath, or teeth, or body, the unbrushed clothes and uncombed hair, which in these days sometimes parade themselves in the pulpit and in the parlor. In his "Address to the Clergy" Wesley pronounces Paul the "model gentleman." He directs his preacher at Edinburg to "come down, with his family, out of the upper stories of an obscure and dirty quarter of the city to a residence more suitable to the dignity of his office and more favorable to his influence among the people." He commended the "cultivated manners, the good mien and good features" of certain pious and educated Morovian missionaries about to depart for their fields of labor. All this can be consistent with economy, humility and self-denial. Poverty need not be filthy rags. A clean hut in the country is better than a dirty palace in a dirty city. Plain, clean garments, robing a soul rich in humility, probity, gentleness, kindness, sincerity, zeal and devotion are the best recommendation for that ministry which "should "give no offense in anything that it be not blemed." Firmness, mixed with great love and discretion, displayed in the family, in the training of children, in official meetings, in pastoral labor, in preaching the Word, will go a long ways toward winning that esteem which the preacher needs in order to do the best work for God. Never overbearing, unrighteous, petulant, resentful, arbitrary, but that "all things may be done decently and in order," being himself a pattern of that self-control essential to the administration of all good government. The preacher is not to think more highly of himself than he ought to think, but to think soberly and justly. A right estimate of ourselves and of our place in the world will go far toward enlarging our sphere and making us more useful. Clearness of thought, economy of time, a spirit free from trifling, a well stored mind, all tend to foster respect for ourselves and win esteem from others. May the Lord help all his ministers to be patterns of Godliness, workmen who need not be ashamed, manly among men.

Pastoral Visiting.

BY REV. W. H. NELSON.

Since the early days of the organization of Methodism, pastoral visiting has been kept up in the Methodist ministry, either more or less successfully. It was early made a pastoral duty by the Discipline and has remained as a bounden duty ever since. No pastor now in the ranks of Methodism, is excused from making pastoral visitations, and if any refuses peremptorily or through negligence, he is complained of and required by his quarterly conference, or should be required to amend this one broken gate in life. Indeed this part of the work is understood when a man takes before the conference his ordination vows to give all his time to the work. And where pastors spend their time in making crops, acting as book agents, running all through the country teaching schools, or doing anything which comes into conflict with their time, and take it from the people, whom they are sent to serve, they are guilty of breach of law, and do not do their whole duty as pastors. I know that there are many things which come up, and are claimed by some pastors as compelling them to resort to other means than their people for support. But never can or will the people be trained to pay in to the support of their ministers by such steps as the above mentioned; nor can they be expected to support any pastor, so that he may give all his time to the work, so long as they know he is not dependent entirely on them. Brethren, we ought to have it distinctly understood, yet, in much love and positiveness, when we go to a place, that we are come to serve the people and give our whole time to them as obedient servants, hence expect by all means a reasonable if not comfortable support from them. But when we consider that there is some aid coming annually to our poorer charges out of the general mission fund, it does seem a more plausible posibility for every Methodist Episcopal pastor to give himself wholly as is enjoined. No minister can make full success in his pastorate who devotes a part of his time to something outside, and his energies to secular matters. But the most essential way of accomplishing all there is in one's pastorate to be done, the most plausible and adaptable method, is that of pastoral visiting. That is, after meeting the societies, the prayer and class meetings, besides, attending the Sabbath-school and preaching twice each Sabbath in the year at home, then go around in his pastorate from house to house excepting none, and see the members personally; see them! yes, but some thing more besides. This residue I would notice in three ways. With reference to pastoral visiting:

First, its theory and practice; second, its work or duty; third, its results. Now as to the first, we have already noted that it is part of a pastor's ministry to visit; that it is not optional with him whether or not he gets out among his people as a pastor. It is not optional whether he goes only when sent for or is asked as a mere visitor. It is made a constitution in every man's work who enters the Methodist ministry. Pastoral visiting is one of the Wesleyan eclectic secrets which has given success to Methodism in all lands. It is the best ministerial guide; his best method of admission into all the manners, cares, sympathies, and secret wrongs in his field.

Though more attention has been given to pastoral visiting since the Wesleyan Reformation than before for ages, nevertheless, pastoral visiting is an inherited principle, coming down the ages from Jesus and his Apostles. Whoever read of Christ when he was not associated with the people, first in the synagogue, then on the mountain, and in the private homes, in the homes at Capernaum healing the sick, and sitting at the table eating with them; in the homes of Bethany and Cana. That the Aposples did as much preaceing in the private homes as anywhere else, there is scarcely room for doubts. The first great and effectual door was opened for the reception of the Gentiles, in the private house of Cornelius. Where do we hear of Paul, more than in private places preaching Christ, and persuading men to embrace him? That going from house to house is the most effectual way to be master of pulpit themes on Sunday, there is no question, I think, for any practical mind.

At the home, the Discipline tells us to guard against those things that are so common to professors of religion. At the home, it says make the Methodist better than other people. At the home, it says help them to have personal godliness. At the home, it says help them to overcome all worldly ambitions, gossipings, and evil speakings. There is every reason for teaching at home, since it is unbecoming any pastor to personate from the pulpit and yet, since the many sins must be corrected. But a minister's own success is revived and strengthened by visiting; his people naturally take more interest in his temporal welfare; they naturally love him better than when he is indiferent about associations. But this is anticipating a little. With reference to the time to be spent, the Discipline has wisely spoken, but the number of visits court us here. They are to be arranged as to best suit one's convenience, but should not be as angels visits "few and far between."

Second, Its work or duty. Perhaps we have indirectly mentioned some of these, but to be more specific, let us add: the work is not only to make the visits, see the inmates, and pass off a social few minutes; but to carry with him or call for a Bible, and after reading the Scripture lesson, engage with them in prayer. This of course is generally known, but "Blessed are ye if you do them." This part of the exercises should be the last thing he should do. We do not think it is expedient for any minister to pass off any length of time after this. Some ask the question to themselves, shall I pray at every visit? We don't think that any minister finds it convenient nor practicable to do so on every occasion, but by no means should he let many pass and where expedient, let none pass. One prayer in the home does more good for each individual home, than ten at church. Another bounden duty is to catechise the children; this each minister ought to do there, but of course, in a way most convenient. There the youth can be reached more fully and so trained in points of our Methodistic theology, that they may in all after life do to depend on morally, and religiously. Too much attention cannot be given the children. He is to teach the old, but this kind of teaching cometh of observation, and has for its basis ministerial inquiry, which draws out the troubles and hindrances within. He teaches practical and experimental godliness. A life of usefullness and sobriety. The most certain way to flee the wrath to come, is taught to the ungodly.

Third, Its results. None of the ministerial duties are of minor importance; but grave, binding, and godly; this may be seen, not only in them but in the general lives and conduct of the people. Pastoral visiting is a full influence to to the minister. It is an unction of the profound blessings of the Holy Ghost. These results are seen in the number of visitors at church on the Sabbath, and in their willingness to take up the cross of Christ daily. In the interest they take in their church relations and duties. Very often we hear of certain ministerial failings, and the people are indisposed to the church and its work; everything seems to be on a drag when often more times than not, it is the result of ministerial slackness in pastoral visits. No one cares for him and he seems to them to care for no one. Few ministers fail of success, who daily visit the people. Often a minister is not a choice man in the pulpit, yet, getting the hearts of his people in their homes, he carries them as by storm. Summing up, there is more knowledge of the people in the pulpit. There is kept more unity and peace in the church; there is more of revival spirit existing; there is more personal godliness and real Christian experience. There is better Church work done. More to spend and be spent. There are more in class, more in prayer, and love-feast meetings; there are more to die and go to heaven.

Books and Current Literature.

The February issue of The Chautauquan will contain a valuable paper on National Aid to Education, from the pen of General John A. Logan. In well contrived argument and with the aid of valuable figures General Logan compares the educational needs and resources of the various states. In a second paper, to appear in The Chautauquan for March, he will further discuss this subject.

With winter still triumphant, there is a certain mockery in the sudden appearance of one and another seed catalogue. "Vick's Floral Guide" leads the van, and as usual, needs no commendation, its solid merit having long ago given it a firm place in popular affection. The number contains the usual lists of new seedlings in both vegetables and flowers, and with its bright flower frontispiece, is quite worthy a prominent place on the sitting-room table, while the illustrated Magazine has long been a faithful guide in all matters relating to the garden. James Vick, Rochester, N. Y., will send the Floral Guide to any address for 10 cents, which, if seeds are afterwards purchased, may be deducted from the order.

The Distribution of Animals and Plants." By A. Russel Wallace and W. J. Thiselton Dyer. Price fifteen cents. J. Fitzgerald, Publisher, 20 Lafayette Place, New York. This work forms No. 64 of the "Library of Science," a serial publication in which are reproduced, at a minimum price, the best popular scientific works of the day, by such authors as Darwin, Tyndall, Huxley, Spencer, Proctor, etc. The authors of the present work treat of the Geographical distribution of Living Organisms; the Geographical Distribution of distinct Organisms, and the Geological Succession of the chief forms of life. Christ in the Gospels; or a Life of our Lord, composed of every statement of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John, in exactly the words of the American Revision of 1881, and so arranged as to indicate clearly from which evangelist each expression is taken. With self-interpreting Scripture, and Maps showing Christ's journeys. By Jas. P. Cadman, A. M. With an introduction by P. S. Henson, D. D. Chicago: Cadman Publishing Company. Price, $1.50.

With the year 1685 two important serials will be commenced in Harper's Magazine, one of them by Constance Fenimore Woolson, whose "Anne" and "For the Major" placed her in the front rank of American novelists. Her new novel will be called "East Angels," and it promises to be as strong a story as "Anne," while superior to it in artistic treatment. The other —"At the Red Glove"—is a bright, humorous novel located in Berne, Switzerland, by a writer as to whose identity the public is permitted to guess. It is to be fully illustrated by Mr. C. S. Reinhart, from sketches made amid the scenes of the novel.

The holiday Outing is ready to greet the new year with a feast of jollity and good-cheer. The contributions are exceptionably well prepared. The "Amenities" department is bright and witty; the Letter-File contains contributions on varion topices of interest to Outing people; the Records are well kept up, and the Editor's "Open Window," though closed against the winter wind, is open to the sunshine that fills all departments of this indispensable and charming magazine. The Wheelman Co., Publishers, Boston, Mass.

Henry N. Copp, the Land and Pension Attorney of Washington, D.F., sends the "U. S. Salary List and Civil Service Law," price 50 cents. All Government salaries above $500 are given, including the Executive Departments, Army and Navy, Internal Revenue, Custom Houses, Indian Agencies, Diplomatic and Consular Service, Post Offices, &c. There are fully 110,000 Federal offices for President Cleveland to fill. Twenty pages of specimen examination questions are given, with the Civil Service Law and regulations. This is probably the cheapest form in which this much-desired information has been published.

The library of Mr. David Creamer, which has been on sale at the rooms of Taylor & Creamer during the past week, has been removed to the residence of the owner, East Monument street, where the books may be purchased at the catalogue prices. Orders from a distance will be promptly answered. A few catalogues have been reserved for the use of Librarians. Address David Creamer, N. W. Cor. E. Monument and Ensor Street, Baltimore, Md.

The January number of the North American Review is an excellent one. It presents no very famous names among its contributors, but it offers a wide variety of unusually readable articles. We are now so safely over the crisis of the presidential election that men of all parties can consider calmly Bishop Huntington's essay on "Vituperation in Politics," and it is to be hoped that what they learn from it will not be forgotten four years hence. Under the title, "The Reunited South," Henry Watterson presents with great clearness the Southern and Democratic view of the political situation as it now stands. This also is extremely interesting to every citizen, whether he agrees with Mr. Watterson or not. Another question of universal concern, which some think will soon make itself a national issue, is that of labor and its compensation; and Col. Hinton, in "American Labor Organizations," shows with what equipment it will take the field. But the article that the literary reader will first turn to is Frederic Harrison's brilliant and incisive discussion of "Froude's Life of Carlyle," while the religious or philosophical reader will find in Courtney's "Socrates, Buddha, and Christ," specific statement and quotations of those parallel doctrines that are so often vaguely alluded to. For the scientific reader, Mr. Proctor discusses learnedly "Herschell's Star Surveys" and Prof. Le Conte presents and explains some curious facts in relation to "The Evidence of the Senses." Mr. Mulhall's paper on "The Increase of Wealth" is a successful endeavor to render large masses of figures popularly intelligible.

The Pulpit Treasury commences the year with a feast in all departments of unsurpassed excellence. There is a portrait of Dr. Palmer, of New Orleans, a view of his Church and a sermon, with an excellent sketch of his life. Dr. T. T. Eaton, of Louisville, furnishes a full sermon on The Faithful Three Hundred; Dr. M. H. Hoge, of Richmond, a Dedication Sermon on Christ's Kingdom; Dr. Dana, of St. Paul, a Sermon to Children, on The Lad and the Hungry Multitude; Dr. C. H. Parkhurst, of New York, a Sermon on Young Manhood, its Perils and its Rescue. Leading Thoughts of Sermons are by Pres. A. Hovey, Dr. Phillips Brooks, Prof. F. L. Patton, D. D., Dr. Wm. M. Taylor, Dr. J. L. Withrow, Canon Liddon, Bishop J. Jackson and Dr. T. DeW. Talmage. A Wycliffe Manuscript, is treated by O. A. Bierstadt, Esq., of the Astor Library; Hindrances to Pulpit Teachings, by Austin Abbott, Esq., of the New York Bar; A Mistaken Bible of Three Words, by Pres. W. W. Patton, D. E.; Answering to Roll-call, by Dr. T. L Cuyler; Observing of the Sabbath and Vital Religion, by Bishop J. C. Ryle; Light on International Lessons, by Rev. Alfred M. Moment; Preparation for the Prayer Meeting, by Rev. Smith Baker, and A Closet Meditation on the Sabbath, Dr. C. F. Deems. All departments are full. Yearly, $2.50; to Clergymen, $2 00. Single copy, 25 cents. E. B. Treat, Publisher, 757 Broadway, New York.

Another of the interesting papers on the curiosities of natural history, so brilliantly illustrated by J. C. Beard, will appear in the February Harper's, describing "Guardian Birds" who care for other animals.

This week will witness the gathering of a notable meeting in Pittsburg, Pa. The Chautauqua Assembly board of managers.

America's Pride.

True American men and women by reason of their strong constitution, beautiful forms, rich complexions and characteristic energy, are envied by all nations. It is the general use of Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, which brings about these results.

The Mormon Church newspaper organ of Salt Lake has had articles recently urging the assassination of United States marshals who attempt to serve warrants on polygamists by entering their houses, or to serve subpœnas for witnesses.

PHILLIPS & HUNT.

The National Industrial Educational Conference.

Pursuant to a call issned by a number of colored gentlemen of more or less prominence in several States and territories, a preliminary meeting was held in the lecture room of the Central Congregational Church, corner of Gasqnet and Liberty streets, New Orleans, Lonisiana, Wednesday, February 11, at 7 o'clock p. m., and after the arrangement of snch necessary details as would prepare the way for the main conferences, later the body adjourned.

The meeting was pnrely informal, and nothing beyond what we have indicated was attended to.

Thursday evening at 7:30 the conference reassembled in Central Church for organization. There was probably seventy, certainly not a hnndred delegates present. The records of the secretary showed that 48 had been enrolled upon their credentials. The distinguishing feature of the assemblage was the conspicuous absence of well known and representative Negroes of the solid class. The political element was well represented and in the persons of Hon. P. B. S. Pinchback, Judge Mifflin W. Gibbs, L. A. Martinet, Esq., Senator Henry Demas, Rev. H. B. Parks, J. C. Napier, Esq., Rev. William J. Simmons, D. D., and others of less note. Among those engaged in educational work we noticed President E. O. Thayer, of Clark University, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. President H. R. Traver, of Leland University, New Orleans, and President William J. Simmons, of the Kentucky Institute, of the Baptist Church. President L. M. Brawley, of Selma University, Selma, Alabama, and Mr. Henry E. Brown, of Oberlin, Ohio, the latter may be set down as the prime mover in the measures which have culminated thus far in the getting together of this conference, although they are not wanting, who perversely say that it is the ontgrowth of astute bnsiness enterprise to swell the nnmber of witnesses to our stupendons Mardi Gras carnival, gorgeous pageant, and world's fair. Still others there be, who denominate it an able effort of our young man of color, who inclineth to political aspirations, to exhibit his readiness in manipnlating conventions, and the measure of his influence in handling men for political effect. And others differing from all these are prone to surmise that it may possibly be that Mr. Brown himself has some sort of a guess that personal benefit may in some way lie hidden in the successful handling of this "meal sack."

Which or whether any of these speculations have any essence of reality for their formation it is not for this deponent to affirm, bnt we can venture the speculative remark, that it was at least a little incongrnous to select a prominent politician for the permanent chairmanship of a convention which was supposed to have not a single grain of political purpose in it.

But so it happened, and so it was that such a gentleman was selected in the person of Judge M. W. Gibbs, of Little Rock, Arkansas, for permanent chairman. We have no objection to this gentleman, he is a skillful parliamentarian, who acquitted himself with ability, ease, grace, dignity, impartiality, and to the satisfaction of the conference.

Either of the college presidents who were not also political leaders wonld have nnder the circnmstances been more fittingly selected; or if a politician mnst be chairman it would seem to ns that the better thing wonld have been to select either Col. Pinchback, who has a national repntation, and is a man with many excellent parts; or Senator Demas, who represents large capital, the result of his own industry, and whose check wonld probably go at sight for $50,000 on any bank in New Orleans, or L. A. Martinet, Esq. Either of these gentlemen would have given at least a broader character to the organization. Somebody may observe that we might have done good by making these sngestions to the convention.

Well that sounds plausible bnt the trnth is we donot know how we came to be a delegate, we had credentials and accepted, bnt the tronble with us was, we had no constituency. We did not know who sent ns, and as a representative of the press we nnderstood our right to be that of a reporter, and a critic, and this dnty we are trying herein to perform. We have had place of residence in four States, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, and Louisiana, within the last two years, such is the effect of the itinerancy npon ns, and therefore we have no State citizenship in the United States, and if no citizenship, then no way to be elected to any convention save as a representative of the United States, and snch an election we did not receive.

Qnite a long list of vice-presidents and the election of Prof. Traver, as secretary completed the organization except the appointment of required committees.

The duty of prayer was one of the items of business, which President Summons said must not be overlooked, and he therefore requested Prof. Traver to pray, the conference devontly standing, while the gentleman did so in the most befitting manner. While the committee on permanent organization was deliberating, the conference requested Messrs. Brown, Gibbs, Thayer, and Brawley to occupy the the time in impromptu addresses. Which request the gentlemen complied with in the order named except President Brawley, who being fatigued with continnous traveling asked to be excused. Mr. Brown outlined the pnrposes for which the conference was assembled and in doing so said: "That diversity of occnpation was essential to the best development and the best civilization as well as the financial interest of the conntry, and of all sections thereof." The object of this meeting was therefore to consider the feasibility, necessity and plan of establishing one or more schools of an industrial character, accessible to colored yonths wherein they might be fitted to fill as well as to create places of nseful and profitable employment. We have not given his exact words, but we think we have fairly given the snbstance of them. Judge Gibbs followed in a short speach on the same line as Mr. Brown, only the Judge managed to poke a little fun or sarcasm or something less diginfied than either of these at the ministers before he conclnded, short as his speech was. This probably gave him prominence as he was soon thereafter elected permanent president.

At this juncture Col. Pinchback announced that a social party at his home previously arranged for the entertainment of distinguished guests would possibly prevent, his and several others attendance at the next session. President Thayer being called then stepped forward and quickly informed the conference that a man of more than ordinary practicability, purpose, and culture was before it. Slender to fragility, pale to lividness, with a slight tremulousness in his voice, and a smart nervous movement in the right knee and foot, the noble young philanthropist stood for a moment, measured his audience over and over, and then said: Mr. President and gentlemen I am full of interrogation points. I am not in harmony with the thonght as expressed by Mr. Brown. He then referred to the several polytechnic schools of the country, one of which he knew admitted students without regard to color. Then he told of the industrial work being done in Clark University, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in Atlanta, Georgia, of which he is president. Indeed he grew in power and stength of argument every moment, nntil he carried an audience which was a little time before quite opposite in views to his own, and he left the floor amid a ronnd of hearty applanse.

He impressed the conference in such a way that quite a number of gentlemen told ns he had hit the nail on the head. The Methodist Episcopal Church, the faculty and pnpils of Clark University may rest content that in President Thayer's hands their interests are safe. In him they each have a representative of whom there is no cause to be ashamed.

Prof. A. M. Green, served as temporary secretary, and we are under obligations to him for favors extended. Two ladies graced the chamber with their comely presence, and if they are samples of our fairer population, we are ready to vote for a much larger nnmber, and to provide for their presence in our fnture conferences.

Upon the whole we do not see that anything tangible or very useful is likely to result from this convention; neither do we see that it did any partionlar harm.

It was some expense, bnt we believe most of the delegates paid their own expenses, and also by public collection paid for the place of meeting, that is at the Central Church. They afterwards met in the Southern University, and we understand that it was free of all cost, as it should have been. Most of those in attendance, from other places wanted to come to the Exposition any way and hence will not feel oppressed at the expense, and will probably received benefit from their visit.

We conolnde that the best hope of the colored people for great educational instructions industrials or otherwise, is really to support the efforts of the Methodist Episcopal, and other churches, already at work thereat to bnild on the foundation they have already laid with this end in view. We are now doing grand industrial work at Central Tennessee College, Atlanta, Little Rock for girls, Holly Springs, Mississippi, and steps are being taken for broader working in New Orleans University.

So wishing the convention great success, the thing for our preachers and people to do is to go on with the collection for our Centennial year, Educational Jnbilee fnnd. What is wanted will hasten in the ratio, that we proceed as we have proceeded heretofore toward it.

The following are delegates who have passed in their credentials, the same being passed upon, admitted and filed: Rev A S Jachson, pastor of Common street, Baptist Church, New Orleans; Rev J D Haznes, representating Union Bethel, African Episcopal Church. New Orleans; Mr Henry Adams, representing the African Trade Society; Rev Dr Marshall W Taylor, the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE; Mr T J Edwards, the New Orleans Cotten Yardmen's and Benevolent Society; Rev R T Hurly, St James African Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans; Rev Marcus Dale, Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans; Rev Johdson Reed, St James, African Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans; Rev L S Slaughter, Thibadeux, Louisiana, representing his church; Mr Geo D Geddes, Cotton Yard and Benevolent Association; Rev George W Walker, Austerlizto street Baptist Church New Orleans; Mr J B Gaudet, African Trade Society, New Orleans; James T Newman, M D, Cotton Yardmen and Benevolent Association; Rev H B Parks, Bethel African Methodist Episcopal, Plaqnimine, Louisiana; M E Brown, Cotton Yardmen's Beveno lent Assooiation; Rev M E Brown, Cotton Yardmen's Benevolent Association; Rev Robort Smith, St Phillips Protestant Episcopal Church, New Orleans; Mr Edward Thompson, St James African Methodist Episcopal Church; Rev Franklin James, St Peters African Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans; Rev John Marks, Sixth street Baptist Church, New Orleans; Rev Stephen Dnncan, Union Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans; J C Napier, Tennessee; S R and R M Lowery, Alabama; Phillip Joseph, Alabama; Jndge M W Gibbs, Arkansas; J H Smith, Arkansas; W J Simmons, D D, Kenincky; Hon Henry Demas, La; P B B Pinchback, La; James D Kennedy, La; Pres't H R Traver, La; Rev A M Green, R C Smith, La; Col James Lewis, La; E A Randolph, Va; R H Herbert, N. J.; F G Barbadoes, Mass.; T J Martin, Mich.; JJ Spellman, Miss.; Thomas Detter, Nev.; Edmond Brooks, Ohio; Noah Morgan, N. Mex.; Chas E Brachett, St John, N. B.; Chas. Thompson, La.

The convention resnmed its session Friday evening at Southern University, Rev. W. J. Simmons, of Lonisville, Ky., in the chair.

Divine blessing was innoked by Prof. J. H. Harrison.

The names of the following additional delegates were enrolled: Wm. M. Burwell, J. H. Tape, C. W. Dolce, A. Clark, A. T. Diggs, Jos. A. Craig, Louisiana; and W. C. Wilkenson, Washington, D. C.

The signers of the call for the convention were, on motion of Rev A M Green, declared members of same.

The permanent officers, M W Gibbs, of Arkansas, president, and Prof. H R Traver, of Louisiana, secretary, were installed.

President Gibbs in appropriate terms thanked the convention for the honor conferred npon him.

Jonas Henderson was elected an additional assistant secretary; L A Martinet, Esq., as reporter for the city press.

S R Lowery, of Alabama, on invitation, ably addressed the convention on the silk industry, in which he is engaged in his State.

A communication from Revs C S Smith, C C Petty, D W Hays, and others of the Ministers' Union, of Knoxville, Tenn., expressing sympathy with the movement and extending wishes for its success, was received. Also telegrams from Bishop H M Turner, of Atlanta, and W D Johnson, Athens, Ga.

On motion of Rev W J Simmons, the president appointed the following committees:

On Resolntions and Address—W J Simmons, chairman: M W Gibbs (ex officio). J H Smith, P V Gibbs, H M Turner, W H Russell, P B S Pinchback, F G Barbadoes, T J Martin, B K Brnce, Thomas Detter, R H Herbert, Edward Brooks J C Napier, E A Randolph. Noah Morgan.

Plan of Ooganization—H E Brown, William J Simmons, H M Turner, G H Thompson, M E Brower, A M Green, Henry Demas, Dr. Marshall W Taylor, Rev E M Brawley.

On Printing—J T Newman, M D H R Traver, Jonas Henderson.

The following committee on arrangements for the meeting of Monday next was appointed: A M Green, Marshall W Taylor, L A Martinet, J D Haynes, T K Edwards.

After transacting some further business the convention adjourned to meet Saturday evening at 7 o'clock at Southern University.

The committee on plan and organization will meet Saturday at 3 p. m. at the same place.

The Convention resumed its session Saturday evening at 7:30 with President Gibbs in the chair. Col. Robert Harlan of Cincinnati, was enrolled as a delegate from Ohio.

After the transaction of some incidental business, the Committee on Plan of Organization reported progress which elicited considerable discussion. There is the usual disposition to debate matters great and small that distinguishes colored conventions.

President Simmons read an able paper on Industrial Education, and received a vote of thanks from the convention for it, with a request to read again at some future time

Prof. W. S. Scarborough of Wilberforce University sent a letter of regret at his inability to attend.

A discussion then followed npon the topic. The cause and cure of the poor homes of the colored people.

This was well considered and ably discussed. The conference will meet again on Monday evening in the Southern University, at 7:30.

There will be a general mass meeting on Wednesday evening the 18th, to which the citizens and visitors and public of New Orleans are invited.

There is a painful scarcity of the well known educators of the country at this convention, bnt this is probably occasioned by their knowledge of the fact that they will received honored acknowledgement by appointment as well as if they were actually present.

Two Bishops, Campbell and Turner, of the African, bnt not one of the other Methodist Churches has been thus far accorded any recognition by the convention.

The cause of indnstrial education must progress in the South, bnt this convention will probably do little more than give occasion for a metting of the real educators and philanthropists of the country concerned in this matter later. Meantime the Methodist Episcopal Church is going forward with its industrial schools at Atlanta, Nashville, Little Rock and Holly Springs.

Equal Accommodations for an Equal Price.

Jndge Morris, of the U. S. District Court, in Baltimore, on Feb. 3d, delivered an opinion on the rights of colored people on passenger steamers. Last August a party of colored people bought first class tickets on the steamer Sue, from Baltimore to Kinsdale, on the Potomac river. On going aboard they were refused admission to the after cabin, and were offered the forward cabin. As it was dirty they refused to use it, and sat np all night. They brought suit against the steamer, and Jndge Morris decided in their favor, allowing them damages of $100 each. The Jndge held that a first-class ticket called for first-class privileges; the right of a steamboat owner to separate the races depends upon his ability to furnish equal accommodations; otherwise the separation can not lawfully be made. If separation is made it mnst be without discrimination as to comfort, convenience or safety.

This is what the colored people claim and are entitled in law to demand. It is incomprehensible to them why a claim so absolntely jnst should meet with opposition in any qnarter, except it be as an expression of lingering race hatreds which are nnworthy of perpetuation, and not creditable to those who are swayed by them.

The Faithful Negro Juror.

A more deliberate and atrocious crime than that of the murder of Andrew H. Murphy in this city has never been recorded in its annals. The evidence brought out on the trial by the prosecution so completely broke down the defense that one of the accused confessed that he shot Murphy, though qualifying the confession with a lame plea of self-defense. He sought to clear his brother, also one of the accused parties, bnt the evidence of a colored woman, an eye witness, to that brother's participation in the crime could not be shaken. The community had feared that undne influences would be exercised, and their fears were well founded. There was a mistrial, and the grand jury is investigating improprieties connected with the jury's disagreement.

It should be noted, however, by those who so often indulge in slighting remarks about the discharge of citizen duties that the Negro juror, John Webster Edwards, performed his dnty in a manner so admirable as to compel the Times-Democrat to say:

"The Negro Edwards was the only one who stood out from the very beginning for a conviction, whereas most of the white jurors either wanted some compromise or were for absolnte acqnittal. Edwards, intelligence and fortitude is in singular contrast with the contemptible weakness of the white members."

But we do not favor class distinctions. We merely note that among twelve men the Negro was not a stumbling block, either by weakness or other defect, to the administration of the law.

Action of the Louisiana Conference Touching the Southwestern.

Whereas, we have heard with much pleasure and interest, the address of Dr. Marshall W. Taylor, editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, as to its work, aims, and purposes, therefore be it

Resolved, That we hail with much joy the presence of Dr. Taylor among us, heartily approve of his election by the last General Conference, and fnther,

Resolved, That we rejoice in the increased prosperity, and nsefulness of the SOUTHWESTERN under the editorial management of Dr. Taylor, and pledge ourselves to do all we can to increase the circulation of the paper among our people.

Personal.

—The address of Rev. C. D. Shallowthorn is Shreveport, La.

—The postoffice address of Rev. S. Duncan will be Union Chapel, New Orleans, hereafter.

—The address of Stephen Priestley is 67 Burdett street, 7th district, New Orleans, La.

—In a letter of February, 20, we have the painful intelligence from Nashville that Rev. S. P. Bell, of that city, one of the secretaries of the Tennessee Conference, died the night before.

A Tribute to Major Martin R. Delaney, M.D., F. R. S.

JAMES T. NEWMAN, M. D.

When a great man dies the State loses an ornament and the people a benefactor. They mourn his death by heartfelt enlogies, and commemorate his virtues in monumental marble. Martin R. Delaney has passed away from the scenes of earth, no costly mausoleum rears its head over his remains, bnt eight million American Negroes will pronounce his eulogy. He has built his own monnment and that monument is composed of thousands of men, women and children, that his indomitable conrage and fertile genius has rescned from the prison-house of American slavery.

Born in Virginia, May 6th, 1812, he died at his home in Xenia, Ohio, Jannary 15, 1885. He passed through the furnace of caste prejudice, pecnliar to the American States. To his noble life was pressed the hysop of scorn, and like the grand old Simon of Cyrene he bore the cross of his color, with pride and dignity.

He gloried in his ancestry, and not without cause; he descended from an illustrious line of kings from both his parents, bnt his nobility does not alone consist in birth, he was great, superlatively great, by natural inheritance and instincts. He stands alone without a peer, as the truest representative the American Negro can boast of; not one drop of Saxon blood coursed his veins. The most precious jewels he possessed, were his color and honor; he would not have exchanged them for the throne of the autocrat of all the Russias.

In person Martin Delaney was of manly form, of medium stature, with a countenance, bold and striking; yet, full of the most prepossessing suavity—terrible to an enemy, but pleasing and inviting to the object of his friendship. His manners and deportment were courtly and elegant, when occasion required, but easy, gentle and affectionate in domestic privacy; and in contradistinction to many great men he reserved the wealth of his love and almost unparalelled tenderness for the closet of his wife and children. Thus richly endowed by nature, it is no wonder that this fair, consummate flower of Negro civilization made his name illustrous in three continents. In his youth the temple of knowledge was surrounded by a Chinese wall as it were, and guarded by the Ceberns or three headed dog of American invention, and inquisitorial ingennity, the slave whip, the thumb screw and whipping post, yet, in spite of these gigantic impediments, he scaled the walls and forced the doors of Harvard open, greedily devoured the black letter epiderms and foreign nomemclature of medical science. Nor did he stop here. He revelled in the tongue in which the Illiad and Odyssey sung of the heroes and gods of Greece. In after years he made himself master of the Sanscrat, Arabic and many African dialects. The latter was the vernacular of his father and mother, which he said was elastic, strong and a bounded with themost gorgeous imagery.

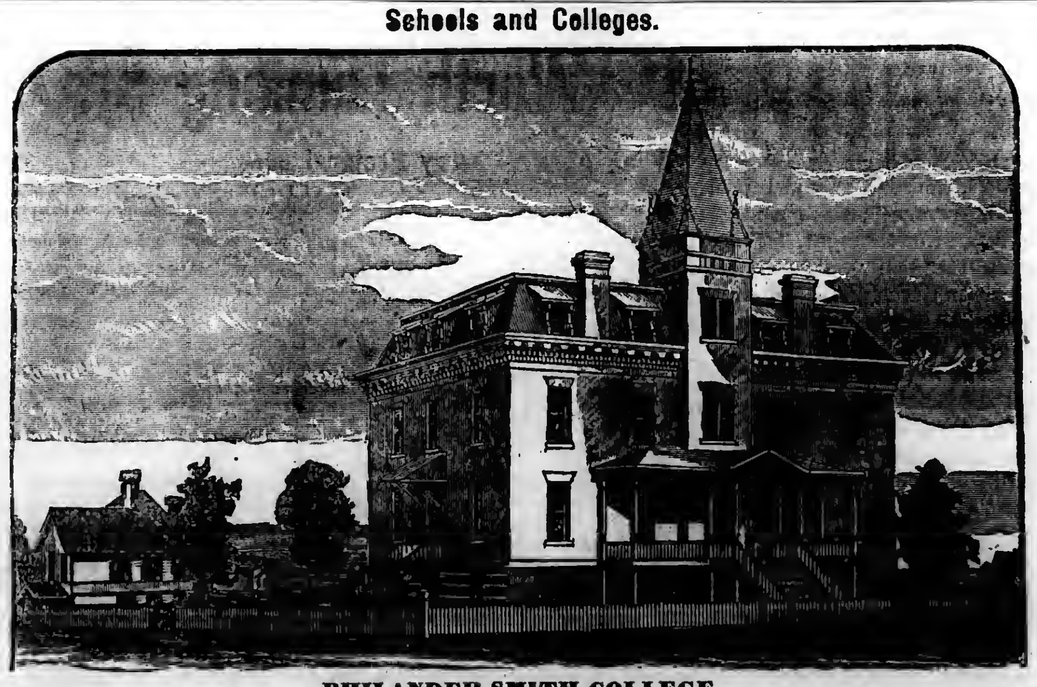
His pen, when wielded in defense of his race, was as keen as the scimeter of Saladdin, and as ponderons as the sword of Richard the Lion-hearted crusader. In the rostrnm his fancy flowed like an impetnous stream, leaping from some awful height full, strong and irresistible. He was a perfect master of oratory, and wrought his snbject so per. spicnously and logically into a profusion of harmonious combinations that he drove other speakers that preceded or followed him to the verge of despair. He was an indefatigable traveler, and the only American Negro who has attempted to explore the dark continent, The Royal Geographical Society of England honored him with membership, and has more than once testified their high appreciation of the vast obligation they owe to Martin R. Delaney. As an African explorer he comes after Mungo Park and the great Dr. Livingstone, and precedes Barth and Stanley.

Scarcely had he turned his back upon the old world, when destiny had prepared momenteus things for his hands to perform in the new. In the fall of 1859 he received a visit from that illustrious Christian martyr and apostle of liberty, John Brown, at his home in Chatham, Canada. Such was the confidence that John Brown placed in the judgment of Martin R. Delaney that he devoted three whole weeks seeking an interview. They met and the conference was held—no historian has as yet recorded the proceedings. But in this council the genesis of the germ of emancipation of the American Negro took shape, and at that time little did Delaney know the high destiny which awaited him. The red hand of war soon commenced to lay in waste fertile fields and flourishing cities, rivulets, sstreams, navigable rivers, and even the great ocean felt the sanguinary conflict. The time did come when the Union turned to her black sons for succor, and the great spirit of Delaney was there, and he counseled help. He threw himself into the work with all his soul, because he saw freedom ahead. I claim for him without fear of contradiction that he was ever present at the conception, the travail and the birth of Negro emancipation in this country. He was created a major of infantry by the United States Government, and had the war not terminated happily so soon he would have attained higher rank.



The best of his mind was soaring and lofty. I can hear him say:

"No glory transpasts the martial scene,
The field of combat is the sphere of slaves
who would be freemen;
Where heroes war the foremost place I claim,
The first in danger and the first in fame."

He Thanks His Paper.

Schools and Colleges.

PHILANDER SMITH COLLEGE.

Rust University.

In spite of the political situation and the shortness of the crops, the enrollment in Rust University has been fully as large this year as last and the average attendance has been higher. We might, perhaps, say that "this has been the most prosperonse year in the history of the University," bnt that is too new, the public mind wonld discredit snch a statement, coming from any bnt an examinating committee; I will say simply that the school is growing, growing in numbers, growing in nsefulness, growing in popnlarity. Although there are not so many stndents as there should be and certainly not so many as there wonld be, if the people fully appreciated their opportunities; yet, there is a steady increase from year to year, and the grade of scholarship is gradually rising. A few years ago the University conld furnish not more than twenty or twenty-five teachers for the needy public schools of the State, now there are out teaching in the schools of this and the adjoining States about one hundred students who were here in school last term, besides more than a hundred others who have received instruction here within the last few years. The following letter, from one of the snperintendents of education, in the State, to the President of Rust University will give some idea of the character and success of these stndents as teachers.

Dear Sir—The young men I received from yonr school last year, for gentlemanly deportment and devotion to their work and satisfactory preparation for the same, gave me better results for the year in the edncation of the colored people than any other year of my experience. I would be glad to have fifteen more for the coming year.

Very respectfully."

The wages in these schools range from $15 to $40 per month, which is more than young men and women can make in almost any other employment, while at the same time the position affords them an opportunity for self improvement, as well as vast influence to their people. There is an increased demand for teachers for the public schools. President Hooper has more calls, many more, than he can supply. There are hnndreds of yonng men and women in this State to day wasting the precious years of yonth in ignorance and idleness, who ought to be here in school hard at work fitting themselves to take charge of these schools. Whether this results from a lack of energy to make the proper effort, or from a want of information in regard to the University, I am not prepared to say.

Here are good buildings, with excellent teachers, who exert upon their pupils an influence for morality and good behavior that they carry with them wherever they go. The location is not only beautiful, and pleasant, but is remarkably healthful, there being few sick students during the entire year. There is room here for six hundred students, none need feel afraid of being turned away for lack of room, no one is ever turned away from this school on that acconnt. When the present bnildings become insufficient, the teachers will do as they did in the crowded days before Rust Hall was bnilt, take some of the classes ont under the stately oaks on the College campus, and give them as sonnd instruction as they could get at any place in the land.

Why should any be ignorant, idle and vicions, and then scold because they are not considered the eqnals of usefnl, intelligent Christian men and women. Mrs. Willing visited the school recently to arrange a course of instrnction for the Girl's Indnstrial Department. This bnilding, a neat frame edifice containing ten good sized rooms, with pantries and closets, is just being frnished and will be dedicated in a short time Here yonng women will receive training in everything that pertains to perfect housekeeping and home-making, as well as in all the arts of social etiqnette and refinement. Mrs. Willing is a noble woman and she represents a band of noble women, who are working earnestly for the elevation and refinement of our homes.

Col. Lnther Caldwell, of Elmira, New York, has just been here looking after the interests of the young men with a view to establishing an Indnstral Department for boys, and it is hoped that land will soon be purchased, and the necessary arrangements for giving instrnctions in the various departments of manual labor as well as giving the boys an opportunity to partly pay their way through school. Here the hand as well as the head will be trained, and the young man who finds that he was not designed by nature to become a teacher or a preacher or a lawyer, will have the opportnnity to make a good mechanic or farmer of himself.

The old saying was never trner than it is to-day, that, "He who spends his yonth in idleness and ignorance will spend his old age in poverty and wretchedness."

MART.

Philander Smith College.

Of this college Bishop Wiley, and Dr. Rust after their tour of inspection in 1882 made the following report: "On Wednesday, January 31, we reached Little Rock, Arkansas, and spent two days there. Here we fonnd two institutions. The college is for colored stndents, and at present is held in the audience-room of the church. Abont ninety stndents are on the roll, and of this number about seventy are in attendance. The place for holding the school was very inconvenient, and yet we found good work in instruction by two instructors. The branches taught were those of a good English education. We so far felt the necessity for better accommodations for this school that we were on the verge of ordering the Adams Brothers to go on at once with both buildings. Just then we saw a providential opening in the donation made by the heirs of Philander Smith, of ten thousand dollars for the erection of a building, and we immediatdly ordered the contractors to go forward with the new edifice. This lifts us over a delicate and serious embarrassment. For the future purposes of the school we have a tract in the city, embracing half a sqnare, and in a most desirable situation, on elevated ground, in the midst of the popnlation whom we wish to reach, and near to the new church which they are abont completing. A bnilding very neat and very excellently designed, to cost ten thonsand five hundred dollars, is to be at once erected, and will be ready for occnpancy at the opening of the next school year. Our people are thoronghly satisfied with this arrangement, and are delighted with their prospects for the future. All parties are now working in harmony."

The Woman's College.

The whole commnnity is feeling the impulse of the recent large gifts to this projected institution. As the goal comes in view efforts are redoubled and we trust a great many subscriptions will be made. This week we are able to report a further advance of $5,000, mainly in small subscriptions, making the total subscriptions now on record $140,000. There is yet needed the further sum of $60,000. Five weeks remain before conference. Many of the small subscriptions received dnring the past week were from women of limited means whose interest is engaged in this great enterprise and who look to its completion as a means of affording to the coming generations of women facilities for edncation for which they themselves have hungered. We need now quite a number of $1,000 snbscriptions. Who will forward them? One thonsand dollars in five years is bnt two hnndred dollars a year. The meeting of the Women's Educational Association on Thursday of last week was largely attended. Several of the city pastors were present. Great earnestness was manifested in the debates and an evident and intense purpose to work energetically.—Baltimore Methodist.

Left-handed penmanship is now taught in a nnmber of American schools.

Dr. Morgan Callaway resumes the Chair of English Language and Literature at Emory College.

Fifteen hnndred school teachers of the Northwestern States took advantage of the Christmas holidays to attend the New Orleans Exhibition.

For school purposes in the Southern States there is being spent twice as much as there was five years ago, it is estimated, and four times as mnch as fifteen years ago.

The annual election of officers of the Yale Alnmni Association took place at the University Clnb. Chauncey Depew was elected president.

Sermon Sketches.

BY DR. W. D. GODMAN.

Theme—Repentance.

Mark i, 15: "Repent ye"

Introductory—This the substance of onr Lord's first preaching. The example followed by the Apostles. Acts 2, 38; 3, 19.

Repentance, in the Gospel, inclndes two main parts:

I—CONTRITION.

1. This is sorrow for sin; not for (a) loss, (b) disadvantage, (c) fear of pnnishment, bnt for sin as such. Matt. 3, 2 6; Acts 8, 22.

2. This is consequent upon conviction of sin, mnst follow, cannot precede it. The preacher, therefore, mnst aim to prodnce conviction of the truth, with assurance that contrition will follow. The penitent, i. e. the seeker, must examine the truth, seeking conviction, himself also assnred that contrition, which is trne penitence, will snrely follow.

II—REFORM.

This is: 1. Abandonment of sinful practices—of all, whether (a) in work or (b) in deed. Matt. 3, 8-10; 2 Cor. 7, 11.

2. Restitntion to the injured man. Matt. 5, 23-24; Luke 19, 8.

III—FAITH IN GOD.

In His (a) commandments that He will vindicate them; (b) promises that He will fulfill them. This faith is of the Old Testament, and may be antecedent to any knowledge of the Gospel. This is implied in the context. This faith is the preparation for Gospel or evangelical faith'

Application—The command to repent is now.

What it Does.

Almost every lady habitually uses some kind of hair dressing. It is a toilet necessity. Park's Hair Balsam is the best, because: it gives gloss and softness; arrests falling out does not soil the most delicate fabric; is deliciously perfumed; cools the head; eradicates dandruff, and promotes a luxuriant growth.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth: It relieves the little sufferer at once; It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

WHY BABY WAS NAMED 'CHRIS.'

MRS N. T. MOSSELL.

I told mamma I was tired of drums,
Tired of marbles and tops that hum,
I had nobody to play with me,
So I didn't enjoy myself you see.

I told her I guessed that I would pray
To dear 'Old Chris" that very day,
And tell him then, somehow or other,
I wanted him to send me a baby brother.

I knelt right down by my little chair
As quick as I could, and said my prayer;
I went to bed right soon that night,
And jumped up quick with the Christmas light.

In my little bare feet I softly crept
Down to the room where mamma slept,
Lay a dear little rosebud in ma's bed
With as pretty a little mouth as ever was fed;
He had a little round face and a very short nose,
And ten little fingers, and ten little toes,
Two black eyes, and a dimpled chin,
That's where the angels had kissed him.

So we named him 'Chris," only that,
And he grew so big, and rosy and fat;
He rolls and tumbles about when we play,
But never gets hurt, through the live long day,
For I am ever by to guard him well,
As "Chris," if he comes, can surely tell.

The Relation of Sanitation to Christianity.

GEO. L. CURTISS, M. D.

There is a relation of importance existing between sanitary laws carefully observed and real efficient Christianity. The more highly Christianity is developed the more complete is the observance of sanitary laws, and the more carefully and scrupulously sanitary laws are observed the higher will be the type of Christionity.

Health is a "state in which all the functions are exercised with regularity and harmony;" that is, all the functions of body, mind and soul are acting regularly, harmoniously and to accomplish their desired ends. Whatever conduces to a state of health must be aiding the human being to come into a perfect state of Christianity. Habits of sobriety, and freedom from vice, vicious associations and pernicious influences tend to make moral members of society. A sound mind in a sound body is more favorable to Christian life than a good mind in an unsound body. Good food, water, clothing and air, other things being equal, are especial aids to a pure life. Bad food, bad water, bad air detract from spiritual exercises. The surroundings of a person has much to do with deciding his character. The reason why this or that man is good as compared with others who are bad is not so often the result of better native tendencies or less vicious impulses, as that the surroundings are better and the influences more healthful. Put a boy to live, work and get his education in a crowded tenement house five stories high, with a court-yard not over 30x50 feet, with one or two saloons in the basement, with foul air, noxious gas, reeking filth and low and obscene language constantly heard, and the chances are all against his ever learning of Christ and Christianity only as a something so far removed from him as to be an impossibility to attain. A tidy house, things cleaned up and set in order on Saturday night, a good hearty washing, a clean shirt, polished boots and a generally slicked up person on Sunday do really make a man or woman feel a greater respect for themselves and the day, for culture, morals, home and society than it is possible to feel in dirt, filth and general unfitness. Want of the observance of the laws of sanitation breed dust and filth, fungi and animalculi; dust, filth, fungi and animalculi breed disease, squalor, misery and wickedness. These are direct foes to a high state of Christian life. The highest examples of Christian growth and a life of purity are not found in bad air, clouds of dust, piles of filth and attacks of disease, but are found where cleanliness, physical purity and freedom from contamination dwell. The moral tendencies of good air, wholesome food and pleasant surroundings are possible to be tabulated. The influence of these upon longevity may be determined with astonishing exactness. Into this tabulation may be introduced the habits of people, good and vicious, and the results will be intensified. The average life of the baker, bartender tippler, merchant, clergyman, thief, moralist, and indeed of every occupation, calling and condition of life may be determined. From these results lessons of greatest value may be derived. Not occupation in itself can work all these changes and produce these startling results, but surroundings, attention to or disregard of sanitation and Christianity tell the tale of woe. Sanitation and Christianity, in their relations, are seen to an extent startling when we consider the facts of life when there is an absence of either or both. Taking the carefully prepared facts of Mr. Neisen's reports as a basis, and we find that laboring men, out door workers, who belong to some friendly society, have promises of eight years longer life than men who are bakers, and sixteen years longer than clerks, and thirty-two and one-half years more than the intemperate. Tarrying long at the wine kills early. Regularity in daily toil, connection with some friendly association (such as the church and benevolent societies) capable of aiding him in sickness, and caring for his family in case of his death, and the sobriety implied in such membership, are to the out-door laborers a sure promise of husbanding resources, saving vital force and living to good old age; but the baker, confined for hours in close, hot rooms, breathing an atmosphere laden with great fungi and unwholesome perfume, and never surrounded with any of the improvements in sanitation, may expect to fall below the laborer eight years. Clerks of all classes of business may expect to fall below the laborer sixteen years. These facts show how close confinement, oftimes in close, dark, gas-lighted rooms, with bad air, little exercise, in the presence of galling care, sickness and anxiety, tend to shorten days and hurry out of life.

The man of intemperate habits, spending much time in tippling rooms, inhaling air heavily laden with corrupting air-motes arising from the drying up of slops of liquors, and the disgusting expecta of half drunken men, eating and drinking at irregular hours, and being in association with all manner of filth, may not wonder that he dies thirty two years sooner than his neighbor, the out-door laborer a member of some society or church. Want of both sanitation and Christianity kill early. Civilization, supplemented by religion and strict uprightness and purity of conduct will increase longevity by several years.

No Wonder.

A MAN WHO SUFFERED MENTAL AND PHYSICAL AGONY EIGHT YEARS PROCLAIMS HIS HAPPINESS.

Mental agony is dreadful, but when that and physical ailment combine, it is simply terrible. Such was the condition of Geo. W. Frampton, of Huntingdon, W. Va., for eight years. He was a sufferer of necroses—that is, the leg bone at the ankle was inflamed and mortified, which caused running sores. He says: "Pieces of bone the size of a silver three cent piece came out of the sores on my leg. The discharge from the sores was almost continual, and I was unable to walk. For eight years I have been doctoring. I had been under the treatment of a physician at Newport, Ky., for a year; another at Burlington, O., attended me for three years, and a doctor here at Huntingdon worked with me for a long time. None of them did me any good, and they all finally said my case was hopeless. A few months ago I commenced trying PERUNA, and now I am well. I can walk as good as anybody, and have perfect use of my limbs."

Mr. Alf. Lusk, Wooster, Ohio, writes: "DR. HARTMAN, Columbus, O. I have been a great sufferer from that dreaded disease, chronic catarrh of the stomach. I have thoroughly tried your MANALIN, and it has done me more good ten-fold than all the doctors' prescriptions, and I have used legions of them.

Mr. Edgar Harte, Smeltzer P. O., Elk county, Pa., writes: "I have bought several bottles of your PERUNA, and find it to be of great benefit. I also gave it to some of my friends; they experienced the same result."

Mr. L. R. Wollen, 45 and 47 Ross street, Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "I am taking PERUNA with good results, and can highly recommend it to all. I have applied at the different drug stores for one of your books. They claim they have none on hand at present. Please do me the favor to send me one."

W. W. Russell, druggist, Canonsburg, Pa., writes: I handle your medicine, PERUNA. I have sold immense quantities of it, and consider it a staple article. I have a great many customers who think there is no medicine like it for a tonic or for building up the system. I recommend it as a safe and reliable remedy."

Calista Fishel, Malvern, Ohio, writes: "I take pleasure in recommending the use of PERUNA and MANALIN to any one afflicted with any form of lung or bronchial trouble. I have been for some time afflicted with a very troublesome cough, but a few bottles of PERUNA entirely cured me."

A Sermon

Preached in St. James Chapel, LaGrange Texas, on Watch Night, Dec. 31, 1884.

BY REV. E. HENDERSON.

Acts 28, 15: "He thanked God and took courage." My friends, I stand before you to-night, looking back on the year that is almost gone by, and have been thinking what text to bring before you at this time. What can be more reasonable than to thank God when we review the past. Many who started out in the year with us had to stop before getting half way, being arrested by the angel of death holding out his black flag, saying "stop, your time is up, you have seen your last Christmas." The clock of time strikes high 12. While their feet is nearing the cold river of death I hear them saying, just before crossing, "Will you meet me beyond the river?" By the goodness of God you have lived to see one more Christmas, while many have been cut off, and not a few in their sins. We have been carried through another year in safety, we have had trials this year but they have been few compared with our comforts, they have been slight compared with the sufferings of others. I stand here before you to night between two eternities; I do not wish to sour your present mercies by telling you that this may be your last watch night you will enjoy until you go hence. After looking back over 12 months, 52 weeks, 365 days, and seeing how vile I have been, and how good the Lord has been to me, I can only say I have a right to thank God and take courage. For the year in which we are about to enter let me say just here, do not worry, oh Christian, if you have to do more than your share of the work; you had better thank God that he has called you to be one of the picked men, rather than to belong to the host of stragglers. You can not do too much for God; and what can be more reasonable than to take courage when we look for ward. We enter indeed on the year commencing not knowing what a day may bring forth. I take courage from his providence; I am not in a fartherless world; nothing is left to chance; my ways are continually before him, and the very hairs of my head are all numbered. I take courage from his power to save; nothing is too hard for him. We are also standing in the first century of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States of America, and in a few hours it will be gone. It is the first we have ever seen, and it will be our last. The old bell at Baltimore will soon, yes is now in the very act of ringing out the first century and ringing in the second. Its glad chimes will be heard this side the Atlantic, and it seems to say 100 years of noble work has been done for God and humanity. So, my friends, let us thank God and take courage. Let us go from this church to-night with courage to do more for the Master than we have ever done in all the days of our lives. "Thank God and take courage" every one of us. Amen.

"Oh! Cast that Shadow from thy Brow."

You can't do it if you have liver complaint or dyspepsia. The darkened countenance tells the story of inward commotion and woe. Clear your stomach, strengthen your digestion, regulate your liver, tone your nerves, and then away goes the shadow from your brow, and you are happy because you are well. Mrs. M. J. Alston, of Littleton, N. C., says, "I recommend Brown's Iron Bitters to the nervous and debilitated. It greatly benefited me."

Rev. Thomas Ward, Spring Hill, Tennessee, writes: "DEAR EDITOR—Bro. Dic Chatman, a member and preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Spring Hill, but having his home of late in Nashville, Tenn., had some trouble with his wife. Tuesday night, Jan. 6th he was shot by his brother-in-law and died in a short time. His body was brought to Spring Hill, Thusday, where the funeral was held, and the burial took place. Revs. H. Robinson and Thomas Ward officiating. He leaves a wife and one child."

Worth Thinking Of.

What Ayer's Cherry Pectoral does:—

It prevents the growth, to serious illness, of a dangerous class of diseases that begin as mere trivial ailments, and are too apt to be neglected as such.
It alleviates even the most desperate cases of pulmonary diseases, and affords to the patient a last and the only chance for restoration to health.
It breaks up a cold, and stops a cough more speedily, certainly, and thoroughly than any other medicine.
It spares mothers much painful anxiety about their children, and saves the little ones' lives.
It cures all lung and throat diseases that can be reached by human aid.

How Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Does Such Good.

It expels the mucus from the throat and the air passages of the head, and cleanses the mucous membrane.
It allays inflammation, puts a stop to tickling in the throat and coughing, and enables the patient to rest.
It heals sore throat, reduces the swollen tonsils, and restores natural tone to the affected vocal cords.
It soothes to natural and refreshing slumber, during which Nature regains strength to combat disease.
It clears out and heals diseased air cells in the lungs, and helps Nature to repair the waste made by the corrosion of pulmonary disease.
It puts a stop to the cankerous decay of Catarrh.

Why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is so Perfect a Medicine.

Because it is a scientifically ordered compound, of great potency, the product of years of study, observation, and experience in the treatment of throat and lung diseases.
Because it is prepared from the purest forms of the drugs employed in it, chemically combined by a process of such perfection and accuracy as would be unattainable, even by the most skillful pharmacist, dealing with small quantities.
Because it is not only the most effective medicine for the uses to which it is designed, but, owing to the enormous quantities in which it is made, is sold at so low a price that it is placed within the reach of every household.
Because it is an active curative agent, that must be taken by drops, as prescribed in the directions accompanying each bottle, and not a mere palliative syrup that may be swallowed by mouthfuls.

Where Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Stands Before the World.

It is popularly known to be a medicine that has cured laryngeal, bronchial, and pulmonary affections where all others had failed.
It is a favorite household remedy to-day with people whose lives were saved by it, when they were young, a generation ago.
It has held the first-place in popular estimation for nearly half a century in this country, and is more and more highly appreciated, year after year, both at home and abroad.
It evokes daily, from all over the world, expressions of gratitude for lives saved by its use.
It is everywhere recommended by reputable druggists, who know, from conversations with their patrons, and from their own experience, how almost magical are its effects for good.
It is regularly prescribed by many physicians of the best standing, and is recommended by Professors of Medical Colleges, to their students, as invaluable for all diseases of the throat and lungs.

The march of Stewart's column from Howieyat to Gakdul was a terrible ordeal for the men and camels. Thirty camels died. Many of the water skins leaked, and most of the water was lost. Provisions ran short because of lack of animals to transport them. The soldiers suffered principally from thirst. In hundreds of cases the men's tongues were so swollen that they could eat no solid food, and it was impossible to make soup for lack of water.

THE PILLOW-INHALER!

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION.

THE PILLOW-INHALER is one of the most effective inventions of the age. It does what never has been done before, viz.: batters down the stronghold of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption by a continuous application of Medicated and Curative Air to the diseased mucous membranes of the air-passages of the nose, throat and lungs.

A Radical and Permanent Cure.

Most people who have Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption have tried from one to a dozen different remedies without being cured. Why have they not been cured? Simply because what they took were not cures. How is a snuff to be got into all the intricate air-passages and in the blood (for Catarrh is a constitutional disease)? or, how will inhaling medicine for a few minutes a day dislodge the enemy from its stronghold of decaying tissue? Everybody knows that medicine taken in doses has very feeble effect on diseases of a pulmonary character. They have to take such a roundabout way to get into the blood that they miss their power. Yet after all there is an Absolute Cure, and that is the PILLOW-INHALER—a means of all-night or continuous inhalation. The testimony to its results is beyond all question, by the experience of thousands. The cures it has effected seem almost incredible. It is a comfortable pillow of soft hair, with receptacles in which is put the evaporating medicine, the fumes of which the diseased person inhales all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, without being annoyed and without noticing that he is taking medicine. There is no dosing the stomach, no douching or snuffing; but, just as a smoky lamp, during the whole night, will leave a thick deposit on a whitened wall, so the PILLOW-INHALER, for eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. It is a constitutional and local cure at the same time. The medicine is applied directly, like a salve, at the seat of the disease, besides going into the blood during its session. It is inexpensive and within the reach of every one. No matter what you have tried or how despairing you are, call and see it, or write for Pamphlet and Testimonials. Address,

The Inter Ocean.

In 1885 THE INTER OCEAN enters upon the fourteenth year of its existance. Given unusual confidence by the people in its early days it has steadily grown in favor until this day, when the publishers take pride in the fact that the paper goes into more homes and has a greater number of readers than any publication west of the Alleghenies.

From the beginning THE INTER OCEAN has stood firmly by the principles of the Republican party, and has in season and out of season, contended for "protection to American industry." It does not agree with the idea that the mission of the Republican party is finished; on the contrary it believes that, purified by adversity, it will in the near future again rise to the higher planes of thought and action and be completely restored to the confidence of the American people. The most important agencies in accomplishing this result will be Republican journals. If a reliable, staunch Republican newspaper was important when the Republican party was in power, it is doubly so now that the Democracy control the National Government.

THE INTER OCEAN will in the future as in the past be the medium through which the best Republican thought will be given to the people. It will voice the convictions of advanced Republicans without being unfair even to fearless Democrats. It will be aggressively Republican without being bitterly partisan, and will give as much attention to the affairs of Cleveland's administration as it would have given to the administration of Mr. Blaine had he been elected. With an Associated Press franchise, with special wires reaching New York and Washington, with special correspondents in all important points of the country, THE INTER OCEAN will use its facilities for collecting news without fear or favor, and so far as governmental affairs or party movements are concerned will give a fuller record than any other paper.

All of the old departments will be continued. The scope of the WOMAN'S KINGDOM will be widened so as to take in all the industrial and reform movements in which women are interested and engaged. OUR CURIOSITY SHOP, now a standard, will be given greater variety and interest. In the FARM AND HOME and other departments the widest possible range of topics will be discussed.

Of original short stories and serials, the very best by American and English authors will be given during the year. Arrangements have been made to publish during the year short stories by BOYESEN, HOWELLS, LATHROP, and others, and a new serial by the author of "One Summer," and to publish all these in addition to the serial by MISS BRADDON, and other English authoress.

In every department of news and literature THE INTER OCEAN will make a better record than it has ever done.

SEED Warranted to Grow, or order refilled gratis. I have sold vegetable and flower seed to over a million farmers and gardeners in the United States, perhaps some are your neighbors. If so ask them whether they are reliable. Mr. Thomas Henshall of Troy, Kansas, writes me: "For 26 years I have dealt with you. I have lived in Iowa, Missouri, Colorado, and Kansas, and no matter what the soil or climate, the result was always the same, to wit:—religiously honest and good." This is the kind of seed I raise and sell. The Hubbard and Marblehead Squash, Marblehead Corn, Marblehead Cabbages, Ohio Potato, Eclipse Beet, are some of the vegetables of which I was the original introducer. A Fair with $500 in premiums. See my catalogue, free to all.

"Deeper than e'er plummet sounded" some people's coughs seem to come from, yet a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will cure them. It goes away down to the bottom of matters and works wonders. Pleasant to take and good for coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, etc.

Obituary.

Mrs. Catharine B., wife of Rev. David Sherman, D. D., died suddenly at Holliston this morning, at the age of 73 years, 7 months and 15 days, after an illness of about two weeks. She was the daughter of Chester and Nancy B. Moody, and was born at Hinsdale, Mass., May 15, 1811. The early death of her father occasioned the removal of the family to Wilbraham, where her early life was passed, and where she enjoyed excellent facilities for her education at Wesleyan Academy. On the 4th of June, 1843, she was united in marriage to Dr. Sherman of the New England Conference of the M. E. Church. For many years she had been an invalid from a severe rheumatic affection which resulted from exposure by moving into a house newly completed. Her sufferings were long continued and most painful, but in the midst of all of them, even after she had lost the use of her limbs entirely, her mind remained firm and clear, and she was cheerful, hopeful and courageous to the last. Her interest in current events, and in the affairs of her household, over which she had always consented to exercise a personal supervision, was apparent to the end. Her illness extended back over a period of forty years, and for the greater part of that time she was confined to the house, and to her chair, but in spite of her feeble health, and the inroads of disease, with a courage and Christian fortitude such as is rarely witnessed, she accompanied her husband in his many changes as an itinerant preacher, and was his constant supporter and adviser. Up to two weeks ago she was in her usual health, but from that time she began to fail, until 1 a. m. to-day, when her long period of suffering was brought to a close, and she dropped away as peacefully as though falling asleep. The funeral services will occur at the M. E. parsonage at Holliston on Sunday, and the remains be taken to Wilbraham for interment. Mrs. Sherman leaves two sons."

Church Polity.

DEAR SIR—Please inform me which are the colored conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church? —Snbscriber.

Answer. The following conferences have all colored members:

Washington, Delaware, Lexington, and Liberia.

The following are for the most part colored; having from one to eight white ministers, principally teachers or presiding elders, and a few pastors:

West Texas, Texas, Louisiana, North Carolina, Mississippi, Central Alabama, Savannah, South Carolina, Florida, Little Rock, Tennessee.

The following are for the most part white, having from one to forty colored ministers, pastors and presiding elders:

The New Arkansas, New York East, New England, St. Louis, Missouri, Kansas, and South Kansas.

The conferences in Japan, China and India are also mostly colored.

Rev. Stephen P. Bell.

BY J. BRADEN, D. D.

Rev. S. P. Bell was born in St. Mary's parish, Louisiana, about 1851, and died in Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 1st, 1885. From what the writer has learned of his history, he was early the subject of religious impresions. It was among his earliest impressions was that he was called to preach. Hence it is not strange that soon after his union with the church, he gave such evidence of usefulness that he was licensed to preach. In 1879 he was admitted as a student in the Central Tennessee College. He also became a member of the Tennessee Conference, and pursued his studies in College, and at the same time having the pastoral oversight of some appointment. His last charges were McMinnville and Brentwood, the latter including the College. During his illness he expressed his confidence in the grace of the Lord Jesus, and its power to save. He was a man of good attainments; had nearly completed the course in theology in the college. He had a pleasing manner and won the esteem and affection of all who knew him. He was a good preacher, deliberate in his beginnings, but when he was roused, he spoke with animation and very effectively. He was an excellent pastor, and endeared himself to the people he served by his personal interest in their affairs as far as his relation to them justified it. As a student he was diligent in his work, and gave evidence of a clear comprehension of the topics pursued. He expected to complete the theological course in the college in May, and enter fully on the work of his life. In this our expectations are thwarted, death has taken from the conference, one of its first and most useful ministers; from the pastorate, one whom the people always learned to love; from the school a promising, faithful student; and from the Church, one who seemed to bid fair to be one of the shining lights, whose rays should be seen from afar, and lead many out of darkness into light. He has been called from labor to rest, apparently at the beginning of his work. He will be missed in our conference, and from his pastoral charge, from his class in college, from among the Christian workers. He recently spoke of a deepening of the work of grace in his heart, and God seems to have been fitting him for his change from labor to reward.

Excitement Unabated.

The Remarkable Experience of a Rochester Physician Fully Authenticated.

Cleveland O. Herald.

Yesterday and the day before we copied into our colnmus from the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle, a remarkable statement, made by J. B. Henion, M. D., a gentleman who is well known in this city. In that article Dr. Henion reconuted a wonderful experience which befell him, and the next day we pnblished from the same paper a second article, giving an account of the "Excitement in Rochester," cansed by Dr. Henion's statement. It is donbtful if any two articles were ever published which caused greater commotion both amoug professional people and laymen.

Since the pnblication of these two articles, having been besieged with letters of inquiry, we sent a commnnication to Dr. Heniou and also one to H. H. Warner & Co., asking if any additional proof conld be given to us as to the validity of the statements pnblished. In answer thereto we have received the following letters, which add interest to the entire subject and verify every statement hitherto made:

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: Your favor is received. The published statement over my signatnre, to which you refer is trne in every respect, and I owe my life and present health wholly to the power of Warner's Safe Cure, which snatched me from the very brink of the grave. It is not surprising that people should question the statement I made, for my recovery was as great a marvel to myself, as to my physicians, and friends. * * *

J. B. HENION, M. D.

ROCHESTNE, N. Y., Jan. 21.

SIRS: Acknowledging your favor duly received, we would say: The best proof we can give you that the statements made by Dr. Henion are entirely trne, and would not have been published unless strictly so, is the following testimonial from the best citizens of Rochester, and a card pnblished by Rev. Dr. Foote, which you are at liberty to use if you wise. H. H. WARNER & Co.

To whom it may concern:

In the Rochester. Democrat and Chronicle of December 31, there appeared a statement in the form of a card from Dr. J. B. Henion, of this city, recounting his remarkable recovery from Bright's disease of the kidneys, after several doctors of prominence had given him up, by the nse of Warner's Safe Cure. We are personally or by reputation acquainted with Dr. Henion, and we believe he would publish no statement not literally true. We are persoually or by repntation well acquainted with H. H. Warner & Co., proprietors of that remedy, whose commercial and personal standing in this commnnity are of the highest order, and we believe that they would not publish any statements which were not literally true in every particular.

JOHN VAN VOORHIS, (ex-Member of Congress.)

To the Editor of the Living Church, Chicago, Ill.:

There was published in the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle of the 31st of December, a statement made by J. B. Henion, M. D., narrating how he had been cnred of Bright's disease of the kidneys, almost in its last stages, by the use of Warner's Safe Cure. I was referred to in that statement, as having recommended and urged Dr. Heuion to try the remedy, which he did, and was cured. The statement of Dr. Henion is trne, so far as it concerns myself, and I believe it to be true in all other respects. He was a parishioner of mine, and I visited him in his sickness. I urged him to take the medicine and wonld do the same again to any one who was tronbled with a disease of the kidneys and liver.

A $25 Lantern FOR $12.

PATENTED Perfection at the LOWEST PRICE

A rare chance to engage in a profitable business.

THE WORLD ELECTRO RADIANT

MAGIC LANTERN.

The body of the Electro Radiant is a cone-shaped reflector which gathers each divergent ray of light and concentrates them all on the main reflector whence the whole mass of brilliancy ILLUMINATES AND PROJECTS THE PICTURE WITH STARTLING CLEARNESS. No combination of lenses, however ingenious, has ever been known to produce equal effects with the light used. The cost of an outfit to enable is small compared with the amount of money it takes to do any other business. Any one of ordinary intelligence can operate it, and

A Profitable Business

$25 TO $100 PER NIGHT MAY BE EARNED by giving Parlor, Sunday School, Academy or Public Entertainments. For Public Entertainments the possessor of an Electro Radiant has something that will "draw" with the combined power of the Theatre, the Circus, Prestidigitateur, the Country Fair, the Temperance Crusade, and the Camp meeting. A room that will hold 100 persons may be filled nightly and a good profit be cleared. You have only to tack the sheet to the wall, darken the room, place Lantern on stand, light lamp, and you are ready to begin the exhibition. The Electro Radiant projects on the screen a PICTURE 8 Feet in Diameter.

$10,000 were paid for the use of our patent by Railroad Companies for Locomotive Headlights, it being considered the most wonderful light ever produced for the purpose. We have retained the exclusive right to make Magic Lanterns on the same principle, and the Electro Radiant is the result.

The adjustment of Reflector, Lenses, Tubes, Slide-rest and Cone, are made with mathematical nicety. Optical laws governing such adjustments have been accurately calculated, so that you have in our Lantern far more than appears, and we are placing within the reach of all, unsurpassed advantages for Learning, Amusement and Profit.

The Transparent Slides for these Lanterns embrace views on wonderful natural scenes from different parts of the world. The Scripture subjects from both the Old and New Testament. Temperance—Showing the folly and misery of the Drunkard. Art—Copies of famous Statues, Bas-reliefs, and Engravings. Miscellaneous—Such as ships at Sea in a Storm, Steamboat Race, Fort Sumpter, Daylight Scene, Moonlight, etc. History—Landing of Columbus, Declaration of Independence, Yankee Doodle, etc. Comic—Slide Splitters without numbers. You can add to your assortment at any time. Lantern with slides complete, packed in neat box, may be easily carried in the hand—(shown in cut) with 12 slides and fittings complete, will be sent by express on receipt of $12.00 or C. O. D. if $3.00 is sent with order, purchaser paying the balance $9.00 at express office. Full instructions and list of other views sent with each Lantern. Send money Order or Registered Letter. Send all orders to

The Electro Radiant No. 2

World M'f'g Co. 122 Nassau Street, New York.

This Lantern can be made very profitable at Church Fairs and Sunday School Entertainments, and a large amount of cash realized at a very small outlay. As an Educator, the ELECTRO RADIANT surpasses almost every other apparatus used in a school. The attention of the scholar is concentrated on just the ONE illustration before him, and the mind of the student is forcibly impressed. There is a fascination about illustrations by means of the Lantern which dispels any lack of interest in the subject in hand, which might otherwise be dry and hard to attract the student's attention toward. The value of the Magic Lantern for educational purposes is acknowledged by many teachers who have tried it, and no College, Lecture Room, School or Parlor should be without one.

As a means of impressing the minds of the young, it stands unexcelled. We particularly recommend this Lantern to all societies who have occasion to raise money for charitable and other purposes.

Woe to the guilty of the sin of schism!
Even for thy seamless coat they cast the lot;
The church's outward dress, its organism,
May not be parted for a thing of naught;
Never should the vesture, suiting, finely wrought;
Obey the fashion's changeful whims and pride;
Such wilful changes are with danger fraught;
But waxing old and tending to divide,
It may be then reformed, or haply laid aside.

"Give us a club at every post-office."—Golden Censor.

What are you so angry with postmasters? There will soon be new ones.

We are under obligations to Dr. D. I. Kimball, of the Times Democrat, for invitations to the Battle of Belle at the Exposition. It is a great affair, and the visitor to the Exposition will be well repaid if he will take the trouble to see it.

Another stone at the ordination of deacons took John N. Stewart, a white man in the state of Alabama, to receive the order and office of a deacon in the Methodist Episcopal church. Of the deacons ordained, one was white, two yellow, and twenty-two blacks.

"And when they shall say unto you, seek ye unto them that have familiar spirits, and unto wizards that peep, and that mutter: reply should not a people seek unto their God? If it is a dead God then the people should seek for themselves who live to their gods who are dead." Such is the sarcastic reference of the great Isaiah, to professional and practical idolatry, fortune telling and like wickedness. Mediums peep and mutter while looking to the dead for the living, but spiritualism is a fraud if it speak not according to the law of God and the testimony of saints.

The American Bible Society has secured the privilege of placing the Scriptures in various languages on sale and for gratuitous distribution in the main building of the Cotton Centennial Exposition at New Orleans. It has been thought very desirable to reach not only the English-speaking population, but especially those who read the Spanish, Portuguese, German, and French languages. It is believed that many persons from Mexico, Central America, and South America may thus be supplied with the Word of life who could not easily be reached at any other time or place. This work will call for very considerable extra expense, which it is believed many will be willing to aid the Society in meeting, by special and prompt contributions to its treasury. Such contributions are earnestly solicited.

For the SOUTHWESTERN

Other Words About the Pastor and His Sunday-School.

BY A. H. GILLET.

There are several good reasons why the pastor should take a lively interest in the work of the church school.

1. It will do him good. There is a strength in the faith of childhood from which, now as in the time of the Master, much can be learned. The pastor meeting as he must the cold indifference of one class, the defiant skepticism of another and the faithlessness of a third, and at the same time combatting the tendenties to unbelief within him, needs constant contact with the simple, but powerful faith of the childhood of his church. He can meet them singly and in little groups, in the homes of his church. He meets them altogether and takes in the helpfulness of their combined faith in the school-room. The vitality, freshness and purity of young life is before him. Sin, folly, shame have made no marks on their faces. Life here is at its best, and symbolizes the glory and beauty of the life to come. There is a subtle, yet generous contagion of helpful influences coming out from these young hearts, and lives to the pastors. A contagion which is of priceless value, and wanting which, both pastor and his work will suffer. There is inspiration here; these young minds may be molded, not always easily or readily, but it may be done, these memories will now take inspirations, and hold them. It may be difficult to make the impression. They are restless, eager of excitement, sometimes wilful and stubborn, but the impression once made endures, lives to restrain, to comfort, to lift up a life which otherwise might be without restraint, comfortless, and utterly abandoned.

Change the current of one life at its fount, and deserts may be reclaimed. All dependent on it, or associated with it will be turned as it is turned. What possibilities are here, possibilities as touching the future of the church, of the home, of society, dull indeed must be the mind and sluggish the heart of any minister of the Lord Jesus Christ, who does not feel his purpose of faithful, unremitting devotion strengthened, whose zeal is not quickened, who does not find it easier to forget himself in his work because of the vision he has seen in his church school.

There is discipline here; the material before him, the ideal he seeks to realize in the material, in mind, but how to do the thing he seeks. Many a man can see the angel in the marble block, only the artist with carefully trained eye and hand can bring it out; prayer, study, effort, effort, study, prayer, so he grows. If he will not be discouraged every awkward approach, every humilitating failure will serve to aid him in securing that control over his resources and skill in the use of his powers that he must have before success comes. If the pastor feels himself at a disadvantage with children; if he be conscious of weakness in trying to reach and teach them, then let him be the more presistent in his efforts; if faithful, prayerful and patient he will at last succeed and be grateful for the ministry of Discipline which has come to him through his contact with the childhood of his church school.

There are sermonic helps here. Better than books often is a careful study of child life in its face, language and experiences. Adults learn to disgnise their thonghts and feelings, children give their confidence freely, and often a word from the lips of a child may shed new light on the deep things of God's word, and Christian experience; a whole sermon ontline of the most practical and helpful kind may unfold to the preacher during a five minute; conversation with a child. Incidents valuable for illustration, and snggestive of special thought, mines to be worked come to one in snch contacts. In all these ways and as many more the childhood of his congregation may be helpfnl to the Christian pastor. Special lines and ways of working may be sngsested in words that are to follow.

The Future of the South.

JAMES T. NEWMAN, M. D., NEW ORLEANS.

First Paper.

Much has been said and written of the "fnture of the Sonth." We propose now to examine this question critically, and ask a candid hearing. We shall confine our investigation to the industrial aspect of the subject. It is now conceded as a fact whatever the cause may have been, that heretofore the South failed to reap annually her due measure of the general progress and prosperity of the country; and it has become a matter of deep interest, therefore, to inquire whether under the present condition of things, that is equal and exact justice to all men and a generous compensation for labor are not more favorable to her material development than as was formerly illy paid labor and unrequited toil. We believe that the Sonth is now in a position to command her full share of progress and prosperity; and we believe that the industrial prospect is brighter to day than ever before in her history. We expect to demonstrate the soundness of these hopeful views on the following grounds, because hereafter, in addition to other advances: first, her interests will become more diversified; second, her people will become more industrious; and, third, her wealth will become more generally diffused. We will now consider these reasons seriatim.

First, Diversified Indnstries—No argument is needed to show that the prosperity of a large section of country cannot be as great under a system of industry as under one embracing also other occupations. But some reflection is needed to realize fully that a diversified industry is a pre-requisite to the normal development of a country's capacities and resources, being as essential to success in the struggle for political power as a race is for material progress. While the principle of the division of labor always operates to advantage, as between individuals in the same community, and in some respects as between communities in the same country. Yet, as regards the great department of industry, it cannot be applied between different countries, or even between different sections of the same country. Also theoretically the law applies as fully in the one case as in the other; yet, practically, in the relations between nations and sections counteracting influences and conditions interpose, and supercede, and neutralize its actions. While no nation could prudently rely upon other countries to supply those staple products and materials which are essential to its existence and defense, so also no section of country, under existing conditions of society, can depend exclusively on any single industry to attain its full productive capacity. Lands of greater or less value represent capital which must not be left unremunerative; and a similar remark applies in some respects to national facilities for commerce and manufactures. By growing the products, by manufacturing those articles, and by trading in those commodities for which it has respectively the greatest facilities, each community utilizes all its resources and opportunities, while at the same time all of its labor may thus be made available by giving occupation in one branch of industry to many who from age, sex or natural incapacity might be unfitted for employment in another. As far as the home consumption can be supplied by home production, so far is the community a gainer, other things being equal, to the extent at least of the cost of transportation, and the additional mercantile profit; and this margin always exists, unless it is overbalanced by reduced cost of production in the competing community. Until, therefore, further advances are made toward annihilating space as regards both time and cost of transportation, the great law of division of labor cannot be fully applied as between nations, states, or large sections of country. But each must have, as far as practicable, diversified industries. It has been most unfortunate for the material welfare of the South, that she has been almost exclusively an agricultural country. Indeed, even in agriculture, by the adoption of a policy fatally wrong in practice, for the reasons we have suggested, although strictly correct in theory, her people followed Adam Smith's law to its logical extreme. They cultivated only those staple crops for which the soil was best adapted, and, with the proceeds of their sales, purchased from Western farmers bread and meat for Southern laborers. Her development in consequence was dwarfed and one-sided, and hence her small annual increase in wealth and population as compared with the North.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Notes From Nashville.

REV. JOHN BRADEN, D. D.

The Central Tennessee College has never been so crowded as this year. Every room has been occupied and every seat in the dining room filled. Many have been turned away because no more could be admitted to the boarding department. It would seem that more room might be supplied: with a Church that has nearly two millions of members and immense wealth. God has been pleased to visit the college with revival influence, and a dozen students have found peace in believing. Meetings are in progress in several of the churches of the city and numbers have been saved. The brethren at Gallatin are getting ready to push the new church enterprise with earnestness so as to have a new church in which to hold conference next autumn. This building promises to be creditable to the society at Gallatin and to the conference. A new church is badly needed there.

The New Orleans Exposition is attracting some attention in this city. The Legislature has just passed a bill appropriating ten thousand dollars towards defraying expenses of the State at the Exhibition. The Cumberland Presbyterian paper is paying special attention to the Exposition as a Sabbath desecrating institution. The short notices it gives of the way the people dishonor God's day in the Exposition, by making it a high carnival of pleasure, is not calculated to enlist the Christian public earnestly in its support. The management of the National Exposition at Philadelphia respected the voice of the Christian sentiment of the country by closing its doors on the Sabbath day. The management of the New Orleans Exposition bids this Christian sentiment defiance by opening the doors and giving occasion for what may be said to be a national desecration of our Christian Sabbath. The respectful requests of representative Christian bodies have been presented to the managers, asking them to keep the Exposition closed on Sunday. For some reason these requests have been refused, and the work of diminishing respect for this holy day is going on, by what is known as a national exposition. It may be too late to protest successfully with any hope of a change in the management, but Christians who revere God's commands can stay away, rather than by visiting the Exposition seem to sanction this great iniquity. At a time when crime is holding high carnival, when communists and dynamiters are threatening the peace and security of the whole social fabric of our land, anything that weakens the moral restraint that is thrown around the people by Christian institutions, is no small evil. If the New Orleans Exposition may exhibit to the world the resources of our nation, if it promote the manufacturing interests of the South, if it further the knowledge of our mineral resources, if it shall cause millions to be invested in the development of new industries, and yet its influence shall be to bring the Lord's day into greater contempt, the good done will be no compensation for its evil influence. The free institutions of America are being severely tried. Intelligence and morality are our only safety. To weaken any of our safeguards is a national calamity.

Historical Notes of St. Paul M. E. Church, San Antonio, Texas.—No. 2.

BY M. HENSON.

At the Spring term of the District Court, 1873, our church edifice was given over to the African Methodist Episcopal Church. Previous to this some of our members had left us and joined Elder Richard Haywood, a presiding elder of the African Church, and they sued for the church property. Among the most influential to withdraw was Revs. Frank Green, Jacob Paterson, A. W. Jones and many others with their families. These persons had sued for the property twice during the pastorate of Rev. L. Carper and failed; this was while the State and city was under military authority, once before Gen. Mason, and again before Gen. Reynolds. The edifice was a plain California box building, 20x40, the cost of which we have no accurate account, but unceiled and roughly seated as it was, the cost could not have been less than $700 or $800, as lumber had to be brought from the coast by ox wagons, etc. The house was erected upon a lot belonging to Mr. Richard Brooks, whose wife, Mrs. Catharine Brooks, remained loyal to the Methodist Episcopal Church. They had not, at the time of the separation, and never did, give a deed to the lot. Therefore only the house and the Sunday-school melodeon worth $75, library and books, mostly donated, worth $50, a pulpit bible presented to the church by Gen. James A. Ekin, U. S. A., Deputy Quartermaster General. This Bible was fine, gilt-edged, leather-bound, and cost not less than $12. The house and the above named articles, and many books belonging to private individuals, left in the library for safe keeping, were taken by the A. M. E. Church; the Rev. W. R. Carson was pastor of said church at the time. Not being able to get the church key, a squad of furious men and women, mostly officers of Elder W. R. Carson's church, were led by him, much after the mob fashion, rushed against the door, broke it open, knocked down the pulpit, tore open the library and rifled it of its contents in a summary manner. The excitement ran high, many threats were made, and a few stones cast by women and a few boys; however the building was soon knocked to pieces with sledge-hammers, axes and crow-bars, and hauled away on drays and wagons, with little, if any, blood being shed. This was quite a sad stroke to our small band of persecuted members; and the loss of our property, the siege of rank persecution, confused and drove away many of our members and friends, Sunday-school work and we were without a place to meet. Our pastor, W. W. Brown, assisted by Revs. G. W. Smith and Samuel Gibbs, local pastors, advised to hold prayer meetings at private houses until they could do better.

Missions.

Mexico.—It may be that in this mission, so near that "foreign" seems almost a misnomer, our representatives feel more of the effects of persecutions, such as were formerly connected in our minds with missions, than are experienced in any other of our mission fields. In the midst of excitement, sometimes political, sometimes religious, the workers go steadily on; and the harvest is surely appearing. If there is no riot concerning the State there is sure to be one about religion. Only a few weeks ago a native minister was murdered but a short distance from Mexico City, where he was attempting to have a religious service. Mr. Butler's native workers are constantly telling him of the persecutions they have to endure, sometimes risking their lives for the faith. But still the work goes on, new churches are being opened all along the line. One is to be dedicated during the visit of Bishop Harris. Mr. Drees hopes soon to open work on the Puebla District where the prospects are very encouraging: One of the pupils of the girls' school in Mexico City was recently married and enters, with her husband, the work of the Southern Methodist Church. Another, spoken of as "our best girl in every respect," is the first to become assistant teacher and missionary, and is engaged, with Mr. and Mrs. Craver, in Queretaro. The health of the missionaries is generally good, and they all continue full of hope.

The cotton yield will be about 5,180,000 bales.

Letters from the Pastors.

Rev. Wm. Brooks, of Shodin, writes: "When I came to this place there was not a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church here; now, within eight months, I have got 21."

Rev. A. S. Adair, of Livingston, Texas, writes: "I arrived here on the 6th of December. By the help of some of my good brothers at Montgomery I was enabled to get here for one third of the regular fare, which would have been $25. I was told that I would find a good parsonage here, but I found that it was in such poor condition that it would not protect us from the rain in wet weather. I do not blame the presiding elder for saying that we need more money. During the first week I was here we had but one loaf of bread and some boiled collards. I worked and prayed with the people, but they said they had no bread to give us. The only work I could get was at the saw-mill, which is no place for a minister. I wrote to Presiding Elder Lee for help, but he said Bro. Johnson had just got a living here, and he was sorry I could not do the same. He promised me help but has never sent me a cent. I thought it was the duty of the presiding elder to help preachers in distress. Unless I receive help from some place I will be compelled to leave here in order to keep myself and family from starving."

Rev. A. D. Payne, of Abbeville, Miss., writes: "I have been in the ministry six years and have spent half of that time here. My stay here has been very pleasant, and I have had about 75 converts, all of whom joined our church, and seem to be earnest Christians. In one or two instances we had churches built on land without deeds, but succeeded in overcoming these difficulties, and now we have deeds for all. Since I have been here our collections have increased from $7 a year to $30, and although when I first came here we could not raise more than $5 a month we now raise as high as $15 a month. There is a work and by Providence, the headquarters of the circuit, where, were it would be a blessing to all the churches to have such a man as he. In conclusion I will say that a few days ago my people very agreeably surprised me by presenting me with a good suit of clothes, which was very gratefully received."

Rev. H. W. Simmons, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., write. "Our first quarterly was held Jan. 10 11. Our presiding elder was with us and preached an excellent sermon, but there were not many present on account of the unpleasant weather. The pastor received $15.35; the presiding elder $5. The work is in a good condition here. Our Sunday-school has not yet gone into winter quarters. We have a good superintendent, and he expects to make our school second to none in the district."

E. Jefferson writes: "Please publish the Sunday-school convention for the Navasota District, Texas Conference, to be held in July next. The convention is for the purpose of impressing upon each pastor and superintendent the necessity of looking up the waste territory within the bounds of their charges and seeing that schools are organized wherever practicable. If this was done as the Discilpine directs it would bring hundreds into our schools from ten to fifteen years of age who are now breaking the Sabbath and without religious instruction. God says in his Word, "Thou shalt not steal," and if we or our children use the Sabbath for any other purpose than what he directs we are stealing God's time."

Rev. C. C. Bryan, of Springfield, Livingston parish, writes to us of an incident which fully illustrates the mercy of God: "A man by the name of Wesley Steward, while in a dice room at this place, became involved in a difficulty with another man whose name was Douglass. A fight ensued, in which Steward was shot twice and mortally wounded, from the effects of which wounds he died in 36 hours. During the short time that he lived after being wounded he never ceased to pray, and a little before he died he said that God had spoken peace to his soul. Now, if he had begun to serve God in his childhood, and sown the seed of wisdom in his heart that it might grow up as he grew, perhaps he would be living now. He died in the prime of life, being but 35 years of age. He left a wife and four children. It seems wonderful to me that God, in his divine mercy, will pardon the sins of a man when he comes to die who has spent all of his life sinning against him."

Rev. Erza D. Miller, presiding elder, Leitchfield, Ky., writes: "Our fourth quarterly meeting was held, the 6 7 inst. Our presiding elder, Rev. Abraham Booker was with us, and preached on Sabbath morning a sermon, which was of special interest to the Church, and was listened to with marked attention. His text was from Zechariah, 4 chapter, and 10 verse. He spoke particularly, of the beginning of the church here, and its organization under the Rev. M. W. Taylor, D. D., the first pastor of this charge. It seemed that God's spirit was signally poured out on the church. Our church is spiritually, and financially alive. Owing to the fast growth of our congregation here, we are compelled to enlarge the church, before the district conference, which meets here March 27th, 1885. The presiding elder, before leaving us assisted in securing the amount needed for the work. 24 conversions, 25 accessions this year; we have raised $23, so far in our benevolent collections. Now a word about our presiding elder. He was licensed to preach in Wesley Chapel, in 1872, by Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., and as a presiding elder he is a man of great zeal, a good worker, and not at all tacit, in regard to the doctrines of our Church. I was delighted to hear him say on the 7th inst., that he had been two years on that district, and had not yet had an unpleasant word, with preacher, officers, or members, since he had been a presiding elder. This I think is a clear feature of his success as a presiding elder. He is much beloved by both ministers and members.

Rev. Felix Ross, pastor at North Middletown, Kentucyk., writes: "I wish to inform you of the condition of my charge, I have had good times. At the Greenrick appointment in November we hed a glorious revival at that point, in which 38 persons were converted. When I got a chance we closed at Greenrick and now we are in the midst of a great battle at North Middletown, with 30 mourners at the bench; we are having a heavenly time." That is the sort of a battle to be in, and if his Satanic majesty is anywhere in Bro. Ross's parish, we serve this notice upon him gratuitously that he might as well pack up and prepare to vacate, for Father Ross fights Satan, only Satan, and him under the black flag, neither giving or asking quarters. —[Ed.

Rev. S. A. Cowan, Holly Springs Miss., writes: "The Centennial service held in this charge, Dec., 19th, 1884, is a day long to be remembered by the members and friends of Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church. The programme arranged by Dr. Hartzell for our Southern Conferences was carried out in full, together with declamations and recitations by members of the Sabbath-school. Prof. R.R. Green delivered a pointed and timely address at the conclusion of the service, and a collection of $180, was brought in, which showed that skillful management had been in operation. The following ladies appointed by the pastor to solicit aid, reported as follows: Gray Johnson, $18.45; Luda Johnson, $3.10; Alice Burton, $3.25; Frenchie Burton, $2.40; Virginia Shelby, $11; Georgia Hill, $6.30; Lulie House, $5, and the pastor, $33.90. The Sabbath-school teachers from their respective classes: class taught by Rev. S. A. Cowan, $11.25; Prof. R. R. Green, $11.40, Miss N. H. Hill $9.90; Miss Theda A. Parker $9.90; Miss Sarah Morton, $3.95; Miss Florence Burton, $4.05; Prof. J. T. Hartfield, $11.10; A. M. Crayton, $2.65; Miss A. L. Tolbert $15.10; Miss Sophia Johnson $4.45; G. W. Jones, $1.45. Prof. W. W. Hooper, president of Rust University, worked faithfully to make the thanksgiving offering a success, and like all his efforts for the Master it was a grand success."

Jan. 7, 1885.

Rev. Alex Posey, Cokes Chapel, Louisville, Ky., writes: "I want you to see whether you made a mistake in your choice of a pastor for Cokes Chapel. Our year's work up to the present, will tell for itself. Notwithstanding, I have met with the strongest kind of opposition, but by the help of the Lord, we have been moving on to victory. There never was a time in the history of Cokes Chapel when the good women were more interested in the affairs of the Church, and have worked more faithfully than they have done this year. The stewards of the church have done well. The Sabbath-school has increased from twenty up to fifty, and is in a good condition. The church is spiriturlly alive, and gradually increasing; financially we are doing as well as can be expected, under the present existing circumstances. Our first work in the church to raise money was to form what is known as the Mother Hubbard Club which gave a grand entertainment, led by Mrs. Georgie Phillips and Mrs. Mary Brown. The proceeds from that entertainment was $42.35. The next was a club known as the Golden Circle, led by Mrs. Blake, and Walter Minor; the proceeds from that was $22.50. The next was a concert by Mrs. Emma Alexander, proceeds $10. After which we held a basket meeting at Vienna park, in which Dr. Tayler had the pleasure of preaching to us a Centennial sermon, which will not soon be forgotten, the proceeds from that meeting was $55.40. Our next means for raising money for the church, was the envelope process, proceeds from that was $30.05. Our next meeting was an open air meeting, at the Inwood park; we gained by that meeting, $73.40.

The Lord has blessed us in all of our undertakings. After this we began to wonder what more could be done to raise money. We went to work and organized 6 clubs: No. 1. Mrs. Mary M. Brown president, the proceeds was $7.50; No. 2. Mrs. Georgie Phillips president, proceeds, $22; No. 3. Mrs. Emma Alexrnder president, proceeds, $22; No. 4. William Bennett president, proceeds $24.50; No. 5. withdrew; No. 6. Rev. A. Posey president, proceeds, $12 50. We give these few lines to show what we have raised outside of our church collections. We have also built a good parsonage, fronting on Breckenridge st., and it is a very respectable house; composed of four rooms, two down stairs and two up stairs, and is entirely out of debt. If it had not been for building the parsonage, the church debt would have been nearly paid. If the church can do as well another year as we have this, the debt on the church ground will be paid. We have also paid $100 on the old debt. We must also say something about our good women: Mrs. Georgie Phillips, Mrs. Emma Alexander, Mrs. Mary Brown, and their lady friends have all done good work this year. Mrs. Emma Alexander is quite a historian, also an energetic Sunday-school worker; Mrs. Mary Brown, is a great planner for the church as well as a worker; Mrs. Georgie Phillips brings up the rear by her earnest and hard work; although Bro. Bennett excelled them in the prizes. Miss Nellie Cross is a scribe and a good Sunday-school teacher. Shortly after I moved into the parsonage, I was surprised by a large number of church members and friends, led by Mrs. Caroline Moore, and Mrs. Mary Sandusky, who left with us many good things. Shortly after this, Mrs. Posey was surprised by a number of young ladies, and gentlemen, led by Miss Nellie Cross. On the 26th of Dec., we were surprise by a large gathering, led by Mrs. Georgie Phillips, from which we obtained many good things.

Our fourth quarterly conference was a time of great refreshing. Elder Coke was with us, and preached with great zeal and power. Owing to the bad weather our congregation was not very large; 52 persons communed. In the midst of our prosperous work we have had sadness in our family; our children were sick with the measles, and just as they were getting over it our little boy took the croup and in spite of all the physician's skill, he could not be saved. He died December 27th, 1884. It was a sad time with us. His name was Chaplain McCabe Posey, he was a very bright and intelligent child, and a pet with all who knew him. He called himself Chaplain Posey, the preacher's man."

Rev. H. T. Rich, Pocomoke City, Md., writes: "But very little has been heard from me since I have been here. Now I wish to say something of my protracted effort. I have nearly closed my protracted meeting and 41 embraced religion. My circuit is in a flourishing condition. Twenty of the Sunday-school scholars have joined the church. My Sunday-school is very good. I am working on my benevolent money and doing all I can toward it."

Rev. D. A. Ridcont, pastor Smyrna, Del., writes: "We desire to say that our work here is holding its own, in spite of existing adversities we yet live, move and have our being. We were assigned to this charge two years ago (nearly) and we have not had cause to regret it. Our charge is small, people poor but liberal and we wonder often that we get along as well as we do. From only about 50 contributing members we managed to raise something over $300 last conference year, including pastor's salary, almost a miracle, taking everything in consideration. Our Church is only 3 years old in the town of Smyrna. It had its origin in an old brick dwelling that stands on the outskirts of the town, hard by an old Methodist graveyard. It was began by Bro. Chas. C. Potts, a local preacher, who still lives, and testifies to the fact that God is good. The brethren who have labored here as pastors are Rev. Dr. W. H. Coffey, an excellent Christian gentleman, a fine scholar, and now presiding elder of Salisbury District, Delaware Annual Conference; Rev. J. H. Waters, deceased, a promising young man and for years secretary of the Delaware Annual Conference; Rev. Charles Wing, an old veteran who located at the last session of our conference, and decidedly as good a preacher as we have ever listened to. And the writer of this article falls in line as pastor of Smyrna Station. Good work was done by each of our predecessors. It has been our prayer that we may do as well as they did spiritually and financially. Althongh we are young, in fact considered to be the youngest member of the Delaware Conference in years, but how old we are we shall not say, but we are still in our twenties. Smyrna is quite a lively little city, two colored churches, Methodist Episcopal and African Methodist Episcopal; the latter of course the stronger, and the sh——. We have just closed a revival, not a very successful one so far as the conversion of sinners was concerned. Notwithstanding we are moving on; will yon not bid us God speed? We are pleased to say that the Methodist Episcopal Church is second to none in the State of Delaware. Smysna and Seaford are the only two towns, to our knowledge, where another denomination excels us. Delaware, called the "diamond" State, and we believe it has another appellation by which it is sometimes known, State of "Blue Hen's Chickens," is a small State, and in many instances a mean one; mean, yes so far a State laws are concerned and school facilities for colored children go. However, it is getting better and your correspondent may live to see it, in every respect, equal to Massachusetts. Delaware in 1880 had a colored population of 26,456, many of whom are well to do farmers. We predict a bright future for the colored people of the State of Delaware if they will only help each other. We are interested in them, certainly. Although we are not a Delawarean by birth we are laboring among them, and it is our duty, by the help of God, to raise them, if possible, to higher, truer, and better lives. Therefore, God in his wise providence saw fit to call us to the ministry, a holy vocation. We have made up our mind to this effect, and come rough or smooth, hard or easy, we expect to die in the field and with our face to the foe. We are in the Methodist Episcopal Church verily from choice; in it we expect to stay, from it we expect to be buried. Its laws and doctrines harmonize with our views, hence we love it. We love the Southwestern, and wish it could come semi-weekly. With us it is like our own little Conference Standard; it brings peace and joy with every issue. A little lady whom we love dearly always scolds whenever we get the Southwestern and don't allow her to have the first look at it; however, as it is a good-natured scold, and of course being guilty, we manage to make ourselves comfortable. But as we must meet the trustees we close, with the promise to get as many subscribers as possible for the Southwestern."

Letters From the Laity.

H. O. Williams, of Camp Parapet, writes: "Please allow me to speak about our work at Camp Parapet M. E. Church for the last quarter for the year 1884. Steward's reports Paid to the pastor this quarter, $83.15; classes as follows: No. 1, $8.40; No. 2, $7.55; No. 3, $11.65; No. 4, $3.95; No. 5, $8.35; No. 6 $6.50; total class collections $11.35; public collection, $51.65; benevolent collection, $1.20; paid to sexton, $2.50. We are burning through the gates Camp at Parapet. We are gathering the entire country for the Lord. Our pastor is a loving one, he loves his sheep and we love him. Pray for our success."

N. R. Bradford, Esq., Wiley Chapel, Springfield, Ohio, writes: "I send you the programme of our Christmas concert which was pronounced, by all who attended, a grand success. It was only given for the amusement of the children, and its object fully accomplished. The two Christmas trees were well filled and every member of the school received a present. We had a good audience, and covered all expenses by the door receipts. The earth was covered by one foot of snow, but the night was clear and cold; the sleigh-bells jingled and merry smiles of the passers-by indicated that many hearts anticipated a pleasant time during the holidays and at some pleasant entertainment.

The following is the programme of Wiley Chapel Sunday-school concert:

From the Districts.

Morristown District—East Tennessee Conference.

REV. S. J. HARRIS, P. E.

I have closed up the first round on this district for the conference year, and am pleased to say that the pastors were all well received in their new fields of labor, and they entered upon their work with great zeal and hope for a successful year's work. They are succeding well spiritually, as the Lord has blessed us with some revival interest on most of the charges with good results. The churches have been greatly edified, and many have been converted and added to the the church. In this respect matters are quite encouraging, but financially they are not so prosperous. Our collections are generally small, and the estimates made for ministerial support are also very small, ranging from $50 to $300, but the pastors seem to take their hardships quite cheerfully and are going right forward in the line of duty. We all feel well assured, that if we are faithful to the things committed to our trust, that the God of our fathers will provide for us in some way at least the common necessities of life. Through the kind solicitation of Bishop Warren the most of our preachers have received valuable presents from friends in Philadelphia, Pa., for which we are very grateful. Also, through the kindness of the president and faculty of the Morristown Seminary, many of our preachers and people received valuable gifts as Christmas presents, for which they have our inexpressible thanks. This school is having a very successful year so far. Mrs. A. H. Stern has been quite sick but is better now and we hope that she will soon be at her post again. We all congratulate the new editor of the Southwestern. We appreciate the reduction in the price, are are trying to put it in every family. Our people are willing, but money is scarce.

The Boston Street Railway Presidents are unanimous in their disapproval of any project for the heating of street cars, which they denounce as calculated to spread diseases.

The new Upright Pianos of Mason & Hamlin are highly praised by good judges. They possess a refinement of musical tone which charms the connoisseur and all who hear it. This is owing largely to the new system of their construction. The great experience of Mason & Hamlin in their original business, with the aid of their large corps of superior musical and mechanical experts, has enabled them, after several years of expensive experiments, to produce a piano which bids fair to do more for their reputation than even their famous organs have accomplished. Their chief improvement consists in securing the strings by metallic fastenings, instead of pins held by friction, which renders it easy to put the three strings of each one exactly in unison, and thereby produce tones of wonderful sweetness and purity. Messrs. Mason & Hamlin have made 150,000 cabinet organs. They can hardly hope to reach this number of pianos, but we doubt not their new "Uprights" will command a very large sale.—Boston Traveller.

Meeting of the Book Committee.

The Book Committee of 1884-88 convened, according to the reqiirements of the Discipline, Feb. 11, 1885, at the Mission Rooms, No. 805 Broadway, New York.

At 10 o'clock a. m. the chairman, Amos Shinkle, called the committee to order, and invited Dr. W. H. Olin, to conduct the opening devotional exercises.

All the members of the committee, both local and general, were present.

Standing committees were appointed as follows:

1. On Report of Eastern Agents.
2. On Report of Western Agents.
3. Salaries.
4. On Depositories.
5. On Periodicals.
6. On Estimates for Support of Bishops.
7. On Report to Annual Conferences.
8. On Credits.
9. On Real Estate.

The Book Agents, Editors, and the Bishops now present in New York city were invited to meet with the committee, and bring before it such matters as they deemed proper.

The reports of the Agents, East and West, were presented and referred to the appropriate committees.

The report of the Treasurer of the Episcopal Fund was referred to the Committee on Salaries.

A communication from Bishop Wm. Taylor was received in reference to his salary and referred to a special committee of five.

The various periodicals of the Church were represented by their respective editors.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON SESSION.

The committee met at 3 o'clock, and the Rev. J. G. Thompson offered fervent prayer.

By vote, the Agents, with the consent of the local committees, were authorized to distribute among the various institutions of the Church such historic documents as may be in their possession.

The Committee on the Communication of Bishop Taylor reported as follows, and the report was adopted.

After a full consideration of the case, the following resolution was offered by the Secretary:

Resolved, That, in view of the precedents in the cases of Bishops Burns and Roberts, and of the relation of a Missionary Bishop to the missionary work of the Church, we declare that the support of Bishop Taylor should be drawn from the treasury of the Missionary Society.

The committee were unanimously of the opinion that the other matters contained in the papers of Bishop Taylor did not come within their jurisdiction.

THURSDAY MORNING SESSION.

The morning religious exercises were conducted by the Rev. Thomas B. Bowie, D. D.

The following, offered by J. C. W. Coxe, was adopted:

Resolved, That a copy of the communication to the Book Committee from Bishop William Taylor in regard to his support, with the action of this committee on the subject, be referred to the Board of Managers of the Missionary Society; with the recommendation that the Missionary Society make an appropriation for Bishop Taylor's support as a Missionary Bishop.

W. H. Olin offered the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That it is the understanding of this committee that the General Book Editors be held responsible for proper editorial supervision of the books published by the Book Concern, Dr. Curry to supervise the publications of the Eastern and Dr. Buckley those of the Western house.

Dr. Boyle, of the Committee on Claims for the Support of Bishops, presented the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the treasurer be instructed to make the apportionments to the Annual Conferences on the basis of one and four-tenths per cent. on the amounts estimated for episcopal support.

The Committee on Eastern and Western Agents and the Committee on Real Estate presented reports, in which the conduct of the business and the careful attention bestowed by the Agents and local committees to all the details of the same, were heartily commended.

A resolution was adopted recommending the Book Agents to distribute $18,000 the coming year to the Annual Conferences for the support of superannuated preachers and the widows and orphans of preachers.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON SESSION.

The committee met at the usual hour, and the Rev. T. H. Sinex, D. D., led the devotions.

The Committee on Periodicals presented a report embodying the following:

We have examined the reports of the Agents, East and West, and have heard the representations made by the several editors, and are of the opinion that that the papers and periodicals of the Church are well manned, and are doing a beneficent work for the Church.

Further, we recommend to the several conferences a faithful adherence to paragraph 351 of the Discipline, relating to Church periodicals.

The report was adopted.

A special committee of five was appointed to consider the action of the General Conference recommending the publication of a first-class Sunday-school weekly paper.

FRIDAY MORNING SESSION.

The devotional exercises were conducted by the Rev. D. F. Barnes.

J. C. W. Coxe presented the following report of the Committee on Sunday-school paper.

Your committee, appointed to confer with the Book Agents and the editor of Sunday-school publications in regard to a new weekly Sunday-school paper, respectfully report that they have performed the duties referred to them, and recommend the following, namely:

1. That the Agents at New York, in connection with the Editor of Sunday-school publications, be instructed to publish a weekly Sunday-school paper, as good as can be afforded on an assumed circulation of 25,000 copies—the first issue to appear not later than Oct. 1, 1885, at a club price, net, not exceeding $1 per annum.

2. That an appropriation of $300 per month be made for correspondence for the proposed paper.

J. C. W. COXE, Sec'y

After a full discussion the report was adopted.

A resolution was adopted urging upon those who have in hand the preparation and publication of a hymnal for Sunday-schools and social services, to bring out the book, if possible, in the early spring.

The following, presented by Gen. C. B. Fisk, was adopted,

Whereas, Our system of periodicals has evidently been providentially developed to meet the wants of our people; and,

Whereas, These periodicals, now well established, are so distributed over the country as to be able, with general support, to render efficient service in behalf of both local and general Church interests; and

Whereas, The united support of the several groups of so-called "patronizing Conferences" is necessary to sustain these papers at their present price, and at a grade of merit commensurate with the needs of the Church; therefore,

Resolved, That we urge the several Annual Conferences, and all our preachers and people everywhere, to support our Church periodicals, and to use their earnest and united endeavors to increase their circulation; and we further respectfully urge them to discourage the establishment of local and independent Methodist papers, or papers especially soliciting the patronage of Methodist people, except in what may be regarded as missionary territory, or where present and prospective needs of fields far removed from our present publishing centers may require.

CLINTON B. FISK.
W. H. OLIN,
J. B. CORNELL

A communication referring to Swedish publications, and all matters pertaining thereto, except the election of an editor, were referred to the Western Agents and Local Committee with power.

Cincinnati was fixed upon as the place of the next annual meeting of the Committee.

To the Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church:

Dear Brethren—I wish respectfully to call your thoughtful attention to the status, relationship, and rights of our missionary episcopacy. The points of difference between a Missionary Bishop and any one of our regular Board of Bishops pertain not to the status and functions of the episcopal office, but simply to minor conditions pertaining to their respective fields of episcopal jurisdiction. By the action of the Board of Bishops, under the Discipline, the field of each Bishop for one year is defined and limited, and officially announced in the Plan of Episcopal Visitation. By the action of the General Conference, a foreign continent is assigned to their Missionary Bishop, without time limitations or any authoritative interference whatever, during good behavior, except that of subsequent action by a General Conference. Their Missionary Bishop is invested with the same Episcopal functions in Africa as those of the regular College of Bishops in their fields of episcopal jurisdiction; and as none of them have the right to go into the field of another to exercise episcopal functions without the consent of the incumbent, so no one of them has a right to exercise episcopal functions in Africa without the consent of its Bishop. As we have two methods financially of founding churches in America—first, the primary self-supporting method as exemplified in about nine-tenths of our home churches and the churches of the South India Conferences, and second, the more modern method of founding churches by the appointment of men and the appropriation of money for their support, under the auspices of our Missionary Society—so under the late amendments of the Discipline the first as well as the second of these methods has become legitimate in foreign countries under the law of the Church.

As the Episcopal supervision of our regular Board of Bishops applies alike to both these methods, and to the Church founded under them, so the Episcopal supervision of the Missionary Bishop applies in Africa alike to both these methods, and to the churches founded under them. As the home Bishops are not the employes of the Missionary Society, nor hence dependent on said Society for their support, so the Missionary Bishop in not an employe of the Missionary Society, nor hence dependent on that society for his support. The regular Bishops and the Missionary Bishop are alike the Episcopal servants of the Church, under the authority of the General Conference; hence both are alike entitled to a support directly from the Church through "the Episcopal Fund." "The laborer is worthy of his hire," to be paid by the party employing him. When the Missionary Society employs a missionary they pay him "his hire." When a self-supporting church, at home or abroad, accepts the appointment of a minister, they there by assume the responsibility of his support.

But when a Missionary Bishop, or founder of churches in foreign countries, goes forth on his own account, he must make tents, or otherwise provide for his own support; or, if sent forth under competent authority, should be supported by the body under whose authority he is sent. These facts are so simple and self evident as not to require argument to support them.

Now, my dear brethren, I write thus, not so much for my own sake as for the sake of the office of a missionary episcopacy. God is leading our Church in this direction to increase her efficiency for conquering the continents of heathenism in foreign lands; hence the propriety of introducing this subject now. "The Missionary Committee," at its recent session, tacidly conceded the facts I have stated, hence did not, by appropriations nor otherwise, establish a claim to jurisdiction over me, nor over any portion of Africa beyond, nor over the self-supporting churches God may enable me to establish in Africa. They made simply their usual appropriations to Liberia, yet have, of course, the undisputed right to found in Africa, by their own favorite method, as many missions as they may elect to found, and to exercise jurisdiction over all such, but not over any self supporting churches. My term of official service for the Church may date from the day of my departure for Africa—December 3d inst. The amount of compensation I leave to your own godly judgment of the sacrifice and service to be rendered.

The traveling expenses of our Bishops in foreign countries are paid from the missionary treasury. As in the past, so in the future, the Lord willing, I will pay my own traveling expenses in all my foreign work, and draw nothing from the missionary treasury, yet attend to their branch of my work with no less fidelity on that account.

Please give me an official report of your decision, and inform me when, and on whom, and for what what amount I may draw.

Address me by mail at St. Paul de Loanda, West Coast of Africa. I remain, dear brothers,

Your humble servant,
(Signed), WM. TAYLOR.

A Deceived Woman.

Is the lady who uses cosmetics, face lotions, white lead, bismuth, powders, arsenic, etc., in the belief of enriching and beautifying the complexion. It is but temporary and ultimately destroys the skin beyond the power of nature to restore. Stop it! Stop it now and use only Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, which imparts the vigor and loveliness of youth.

Lost Friends.

We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any cases where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

MR. EDITOR—Please inquire for my son. His name is Thomas Roberts. We used to belong to Mr. Jeremiah Johnson, who lived five miles from Selma, Ala. I have been away from there 13 years. It is about that long, and it was at that place I last saw my son. If any one knows where he is they will favor a mother by writing to me at Vicksburg, Miss.

CELIA JOHNSON.

Jane Blanford, of Brazoria Co., Texas, who wishes to find her mother, writes the following inquiry: I left my mother, father, two sisters and a brother in Galveston, Texas. My father, whose name was Baraber Smith, died about three years after I left. After this my mother and the other children were taken to New Orleans and sold by Edward Settle. Their names were as follows: Fanny and Milly Settle, and brother Baraber Smith. My name was Jane Settle.

I wish to inquire for my people who lived east of Vicksburg, Miss., about the second or third year of the war. I was then six or seven years of age, and was taken from home by some Southern soldiers who brought me to Texas, and I was sold three times. When I was taken the soldier drew a gun on my step-father and made him put me up on a horse behind one of them. The last I saw of mother she was standing on the gallery crying. It is now about 22 years since I saw any of my people. My step-father's name was Benton Holmes, my mother's name Lettie Holmes, and my brother's name Dick Holmes. My name was then Truman Holmes, but is now John Holmes. We all belonged to a man called Captain Holmes. If any of my relatives or any one who knows them read this notice I would like them to write me where they are, and whether living or dead. Will the preachers please read this to their congregations and assist me in the matter? My address is John Holmes, Jefferson, Texas, care of J. P. Smith.

PHILLIPS & HUNT.

Through the kindness of Rev. Allen Allensworth, we have before us the minutes of the 15th and 16th annual sessions of the General Association of Colored Baptists of Kentucky, which met respectively at Maysville, Ky., August 15 to 19, 1883, and at Franklin, Ky., August 15 to 17, 1884. They report a total membership of 45,698, total gain of 1,927.

Marion, Alabama, February 2, 1885. Dear Dr. Taylor—"I have been slow in sending you my hearty congratulations on your being elected by the late Methodist Episcopal General Conference, to the honorable and responsible editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN; but, by no means because I have been slow, have I lacked the deepest interest in your success; rather I have prayed for your success, and you are doing grandly; you are reflecting great honor on us. God bless you. Yours in faith. W. H. Nelson."

Marshall, Texas, January 27, 1885. "We are always glad to get your valuable paper, but last week we were especially delighted and surprised to see our place of business 'set up.' It was thoughtful of you to do so and it will be helpful to us. Accept our thanks.—N. D. Clifford."

This comes from President Clifford, so far apparently the only one of our college factotums who has been able to read our paper, for if read, they would doubtless see and appreciate the efforts we are making to give them such publicity among the Negroes as they can in no otherwise receive.

Temperance Days at the Exposition.

March 12 and 13 have been set apart by the managers of the Exposition for temperance meetings in Music Hall, under the auspices of the National Temperance Society, whose headquarters are 58 Reed street, New York. The meeting will be addressed by Dr. T. L. Cuyler, Geo. W. Bain, Mrs. J. E. [illegible], Rev. C. H. Mead, J. N. Stearns, Secretary of the Society and others. Meetings will also be held at night in the churches in the city (white and colored) for a week or ten days, beginning on the 11th.

A Glance at Messrs. Phillips & Hunt's Desk in our Office.

Hon. B. F. Williams, colored, member of the 19th Texas Legislature: "I still want the SOUTHWESTERN. Please find enclosed pay for 1885."

Rev. F. Walker, La.: "I will do all I can for the SOUTHWESTERN; I always have and always will, but you ought to publish my letters."

We will; God bless you, brother.

Mrs. John L. Whetstone, Mt. Auburn, Cincinnati, O.: "The paper will be a welcome visitor in our home. Enclosed please find $1 50." We know this is an act of disinterested kindness, but it is not the first one sent for this lady.

Rev. L. Y. Cox, Eastern District Delaware Conference: "Gents—I wish to renew my subscription for the SOUTHWESTERN for 1885. I am delighted with it. It is the best paper for us. The whole Delaware Conference should do all in their power to support Dr. Marshall W. Taylor." Amen.

The Soudan.

A crisis has been reached in the Soudan. A succession of battles has been fought, and lost by the English, with here and there a dash of victory to relieve the discomfiture of their defeat. Above all the death or capture of Gen. Gordon, with many heroic soldiers, will chafe the pride of Great Britain. We cannot see it in the light which the American press in general seems to consider the present aspect of the English invasion of another peoples' country. All was staked upon the fortunes of war, it is true, with the hope and boast that England's war-like record, superior arms, military culture and conrage would render serious resistance impossible, and greatly tend to prevent the effusion of British blood; but the seqnel shows that this calculation was erroneous. The Sudanese, led by as determined a leader as ever espoused the Crescent or followed the fortunes of the Pretender Mahomed, and by a fanaticism which amounts to desperation, have followed with a blind infatuation wherever the Madhi has led, and that leading has been thus far to victory for the false prophet, and to ignominous defeat for the English army. It cannot be claimed the English invasion of the Soudan under General Gordon meant the abolition of the slave trade so largely carried on by the Madhi and by Osman Digna, his chief lieutenant, since it was explicitly proclaimed early after Gen. Gordon's arrival in the vicinity of Khartum that the slave trade would not be abolished as an immediate result of his success in that country. If this meant less than it said and was only used as a means to victory it was unworthy of a Christian nation to use such strategy to conqner a country; and if it meant what it said then the canse of freedom loses nothing by the defeat of Gen. Gordon's army. It the effervescence of sympathy so freely flowing for English reverses in her war upon Soudan it should not be overlooked that this defeat took place in the God given country of the victors, that they were not invaders of English soil; they were fighting, not for conqnest, bnt their homes and their native land, and this is what gave them the courage that is invincible.

We hear of a campaign to avenge the death of Gen. Gordon. Was Gen. Gordon a peaceable citizen assassinated while travelling on an errand of peace and good will through the conntry of a neighboring power? or was he a bold warrior who staked his life npon a chance to win renown by conquering a country? If the latter and not the former is true, then what revenge must England have for that? The arbitration of the sword, to which without reason she has appealed, has been against her in the loss of an army and a heroic commander. The Sondanese should be accorded belligerent rights to which their warlike powers, and dogged endnrance in a contest against fearful odds entitle them. Such a course will stop the more than useless waste of blood, and cause the thunder of fire-arms to give place to the more humane arts of diplomacy.

The blood of Napoleon, who decoyed Philip Breda by a rnse to a lingering and miserable death amid the Rocks of Sonthern France, was paid back in the death of the young Prince Boneparte, who fell in Znluland, and now Arabi Pasha sees one element of the cause for which he languishes in exile trinmphant. Such is the fate of war. Meantime the period approaches when princes shall come out of Egypt, and Ethiopia shall stretchont her hand to God.

Personal.

—Charles R. Jones, Esq., a member of our church in Dallas, Texas, was in the city last week visiting the Exposition, and gave us a call.

—Rev. H. Webb, presiding elder, Texas Conference, returned home last week after seeing the Exposition and places of interest here. He will remove from Marshall to Denton shortly.

—We have received a pleasant letter from Rev. Tolbert Smith, an honored local preacher, and beloved brother in the West Texas Conference.

—While on his way home in Bnrtuson county, Texas, from Caldwell Dec. 25, Mr. Harry Ray was frozen to death. His family were members of our church.

—Rev. J. O. Hazelton and wife, of South West, Kansas, spent about ten days in the city viewing the Exposition and the city, and found also a moment to give the SOUTHWESTERN a call.

—A note from D. C. Monroe, dated London, Jan. 22, announces his safe arri val in that city, on his way to India. He expected to sail by the Hal Line from Liverpool, on the 24th. He has already made the discovery that, for him, at least sea sickniss is not "a mental hallucination."

—DEPARTURE OF MISSIONARIES.—D. C. Monroe, of Cazenovia, N. Y., sailed from New York, Jan. 10, for India. He goes ont to assist M. T. W. Foote, who has charge of the Memorial School for boys in Cawpore. No work in our mission requires more patient, careful attention than that of training Eurasian boys and girls, and we wish for both these young men the highest success. On Jan. 20 a party left New York for San Francisco, intending to sail from that port Feb. 3, en ronte for Korea. This company is made up of Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Scranton, Rev. and Mrs. H. G. Appenzeller and Mrs. Mary F. Scranton, the latter being sent by the W. F. M. S. They will stop in Japan until the way seems clear to go on to Korea. In a recent letter Dr. Maclay writes: "A short time since I received a letter from the Korean Minister for Foreign Affairs in which he repeated the assnrance given me at the time of my visit, to the effect that the government favored our proposal to open a school and hospital work in Saonl, and urged me to lose no time in commencing operations. Since writing that letter there has been serions tronble in Saonl, and it is feared that the minister has been assassinated. The recent riots commenced Dec. 4. U. S. Minister Foote, writing from Saonl, says: "If in coming here yon carry ont your intention, as expressed to me, of making haste slowly, I feel that the door will not be closed."

—That was a fine group for a painter sitting on the broad platform of Union Chapel, in a rather short sociable, Bishop Mallalieu, white, Rev. D. R. Williams, pastor Aberdeen charge, African Methodist Episcopal Church, and Rev. J. C. Eckles, presiding elder, of Holly Springs district Methodist Episcopal Church, white. The extremes were white and centre colored. Perfect freedom because perfect equality existed; indeed the questions of a social nature are all settled so far as legislation can settle them, and the people of their own motive are reducing the theories to actual practice. The fntnre danger is that the identity of the Negro will be destroyed in this blending with a circumstantially snperior people without circumstantial preparation for it.

—Whereas, The Rev. E. W. S. Peck, Presiding Elder of the Baltimore District of the Washington Conference of the M. E. Church, is shortly to change his present official relation to ns to enter npon some useful work that the Church shall see fit to call him to; therefore, be it Resolved, by this, the fourth quarterly conference of Middletown circuit, held in Jefferson M. E. Church, constitnting a part of the Baltimore District, that while the earnest and enduring spirit which which has always characterized him in our intimacy, especially in his ministerial life, is thus emphatically proven, yet it is a matter of sincere regret to us who have been blessed with his ministry that the limitation of time reqnires him to leave our midst and enter upon some other work. Our official and personal relations with him have been of the most pleasant character. In the wise and energetic administration of the duties of his office he has greatly advanced the interests of the churches on this circuit. Our sympathies and prayers will follow him wherever he goes, and we earnestly hope and confidently believe his labors in the vineyard of the Lord will be crowned with abundant and glorious results.

God speed Bro. Peck on; while we shall sever onr official relation we will not sever in sympathy, love and respect. We give him np in the hands of an all-wise God.

JAMES F. SAMONS, Sec.

—The following resolutions by Stephen Brazilia and nineteen others of Baton Rouge, February 5, 1885, are sent to us for publication from Wesley Chapel:

Whereas, Our pastor, Rev. Fletcher T. Chinn, has received a new appointment and for the purpose of accepting the same, he is compelled to leave ns.

Whereas, We all realize that none but a selfish interest can prompt us to retain him, when a broader field and nobler opportunities are open to him. Therefore be it

Resolved, That we accept in good faith the actions of the Louisiana Annual Conference in the removal of the said Chinn, from the ties which severs our relations as pastor and people with feelings of heartfelt sadness.

Resolved, That one year of faithful services rendered by him to our church here has been greatly blessed in up-building our church, increasing its membership and creating feelings of Christian fellowship and good will among other denominations.

Resolved, That for his ministering to the temporial wants of the poor and the spiritual needs of all, for the tender solicitude and earnest sympathy, which have always brought him to the bedside of the sick and dying; for his efforts in behalf of the education of the masses, and for his exertion to ameliorate the conditions of suffering humanity at all times, and under all circumstances, the members of his parish and the people of this city owe him a debt of gratitude which they can never repay.

Resolved, That in parting our kindest wishes will ever attend him and his dear family, and that we recommened him to the church which he is to minister as one worthy their full confidence and highest esteem.

Resolved, That copies of these resolntions, be warded to Rev. F. T. Chinn, and to the SOUTHWESTERN for publication. We sign on behalf of the officiary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at Baton Rouge, La.

WILLIAM DUPLESSIS, Sec'y.

Sights and Insights at New Orleans.

JAS. T. NEWMAN, M. D.

First Paper.

To those who intend favoring New Orleans with a visit to the great International and Cotton Centennial Exposition, it may be of interest to such to also spend a few hours among the land-marks and places of note in the weird wonderons Crescent City.

OUR STREETS.

As all cities have their beautiful streets so has New Orleans. Her Canal street, running from the river to Bayou St. John, a distance of quite three miles. This is one of the largest boulevards in the world, being several hundred feet wide with neutral ground all covered with a net-work of steam and horse car railroads, from which radiates lines to all points in the city, in fact it may with truth be said that New Orleans is grid-ironed with railroads.

THE CLAY MONUMENT.

At the intersection of Canlal with St. Charles streets the visitor will observe the colossal statue of the great Whig orator of Kentucky, Henry Clay. If the visitor will approach the side of the statue fronting the river he will be repaid by reading a selection from the grandest oration ever delivered by the great commoner. It was placed there by Gen. Bntler in 1863, but some iconoclast has almost obliterated the words that show how intensely anti-slavery Clay was: "If I could be instrumental in wiping this deep stain of slavery off the fair fame of our commou conntry I would not relinquish the prond satisfaction for the brightest coronet ever worn by the most snccessful conqneror."

LEE'S MONUMENT.

We will now take the St. Charles street car and ride np to Trivoli Circle. Here we will see a beantiful artificial mound, circular at its base and terminating in a cone, in the centre of which rises a magnificent marble shaft one hundred feet in height. Upon this colnmn is placed a colossal statue of Gen. R. E. Lee, the hero of the Southern Confederacy. This master-piece of art and monument of a people's high appreciation of the man, was unveiled Feb. 22, 1884, and the hour was 2 o'clock. The morning sun arose and bathed the city in its golden beams and had passed its zenith, when snddenly great, ominous black clouds covered the sky, and at the appointed honr there were thonsands of citizens on the spot, when suddenly the great sluice gates of the clouds poured blinding sheets of water on men, women and children. The fulminating batteries of the elements were unusnally disturbed, and the zig zag lightning left many marks of its displeasure. The ceremonies were cnt off, the speeches were never delivered, bnt they appeared in the papers the next day all the same.

THE STATUE OF MARGARET.

We will now proceed up St. Charles street to the corner of Calliope, walk down Calliope to Prytania. Here Camp and Prytania form an acnte angle, in the centre of which we perceive the statue of Margaret, holding in her arms an orphan and giving it a loaf of bread. Her heart was ever filled with love and charity. The Lord had given her a fortune to spend for him, and she performed the labor grandly, nobly, as becomes the Christian. She knew no race, no color no religious creed. It was enough for her to know that a human being was suffering. As that poor, helpless orphan places the loaf to its lips she looks on with joy as the voice of angels sing within the ripples of its laughter. It was her noble self-sacrifice which makes the child and loaf of bread a part of herself, each belonging to the other, and both are beautifully symbolized in the marble of the artist.

Needs of the Negro.

R. F. BOYD, NASHVILLE.

First Paper.

This question has been agitating the public mind since Abraham Lincoln issued that memorable proclamation of emancipation which cut the shackles from the wrists and ankles of four millions of slaves. In the discussion of this subject I am not so presumptuous as to believe, or to try to impress yon with the belief that I am better informed as to the needs of the race than others who are striving to lift our people out of the horrible pits of ignorance, shame and superstition in which slavery has left us; bnt my experience as a teacher, as a physician, as a close observer of passing events, and with an acqnaintance of the race's trials, strnggles and achievements, has been of great benefit to me in studying the needs of my people. When the Negro was first liberated many thonght that freedom from his tyrannical master, freedom from the dread of the nightly patrolers, and freedom from being hunted by the blood-thirsty Negro hounds would be all that the race needed. Some thought that he should be lifted to citizenship, given the ballot, and that laws should be passed to protect him in these rights. Those who thought on this line were active in having the constitution amended so as to confer npon the race the elective franchise, and to guarantee to us the protection of the general government; and when our friends were convinced that the constitutional amendments were not strong enough to secure us all the rights of American citizens, a special bill, known as the "Civil Rights Bill," was enacted. This bill, as you all know, was carried before the Snpreme Court, the highest tribunal in the nation, and there, because the judges construed it to be class legislation, it was declared unconstitutional.

The Progress of Civilization.

Delivered Before the Cotton Yard Men's Association, No. 2, New Orleans, La.,

BY JAMES T. NEWMAN, M. D., NEW ORLEANS.

First Paper.

The snbject of my address this evening will be the Progress of Civilization. Very few persons realize the many privileges of the age we live in, and of which our ancestors could anticipate but little. Without the steamboat, the locomotive, and telegraph, their food was limited, almost exclusively, to the prodncts indigenons to their own narrow localities, and their boasted luxuries were obtained from their own flocks and herds, gathered from their own gardens, fields, and vineyards, or netted in their own waters. In the early days of some now here, we made all our journeys on horseback, in wagons or dearborns, or in canal, flat, keel, or sailboats.

Many of the residences of the poor or middle class of people of this city, in every element of comfort, far surpasses the abodes of royalty of only two conturies ago. The Romanoff House, as an illustration, in the "Kitai Gorod," in Moscow, in Russia, was the birthplace of Michael, the first sovereign of the present reigning dynasty of Russia, whose father was the Boyar Theodore, patriarch of Moscow. This building stands on the slope of a small eminence, with one story on the street in front and four stories on the declivity of a paved court in the rear, and in it, anciently "grandeur found a magnificent abode." All the rooms of the Romanoff House are small and very low, and the walks are tapestried. There are reception rooms, dining and bed rooms, and a nursery room on the second, third and fourth stories; a hall, store rooms for the family provisions and kitchen on the first floor, and a wine cellar below.

In the upper rooms are yet carefully preseved the medieval family furniture, some of the under garments of the ancient Czarina, and the cradle, toys, picture books, and the shoes of the royal children, worn before the year 1613, all now in very good condition. The clumsiness of all these toys and articles, the coarseness of the materials, and the inconvenience of the cramped apartments, well illustrate the fact that a thriving mechanic in our day may live far more comfortably than did, or could, the most potent rulers two centuries ago, and that the children of a workman may now enjoy comforts and opportunities, the resources, ingenuity, and culture of the world could not furnish the offspring of royalty a few ages before.

The elder Pliny records the fact that Roman travelers in his time had first reported a cane that grew very abundantly in the Orient, from which the inhabitants extracted a bonntiful supply of saccharum, or sngar. Think of the fact that, until long after the days of Pliny, the whole civilized and Christian world could only be sweetened with honey!

Possessing facilities of intercommunication with the uttermost parts of the earth, we now enjoy advantages at home far beyond any other people. Our territory extends through twenty four degrees of latitude, even excluding Alaska, and fifty-eight degrees of longitude, in the northern temperate zone, and yields abundantly nearly every animal, vegetable, fruit, and mineral required by man, to alleviate his wants, minister to his comfort, or to contribnte to the necessities, pleasures, or luxuries of life. The people of all other climes are realizing the superior advantages of our geographical position and God is rapidly sifting the States and kingdoms of the Old World, to find seed fit to plant the New. Bringing together many of the best and ablest members of every other land, the United States gather for the whole world the noblest science, morality, and art of all the world, and will mould, and prune, and cultivate all towards perfection, for the universal advancement of civilization.

We have bound the Orient to the Occident, and made the Orient of the Old World the Occident of the New, and we are revolutionizing the commerce of the whole world by the construction of Atlantic and Pacific railroads through the great heart of our country, and thus offering highways in the northern temperate zone to all the nations of the earth, causing all other people and powers to bow before the majesty of our national and geographical positon, and to be forced, by their necessities, to offer tribute at our doors.

In our zone, man is so constituted as to demand, for the gratification of his taste and appetite, and the relief of his necessities, meats, fruits, farinaceous grains, and the various esculent vegetables, and he here delights in the abundant variety indigenous to his own latitude, and hungers and thirsts for the exotic luxuries of all other climes. Nor do we crave the bounties of all other regions in vain; but we send forth the chained lightning to make our wants known, and we harness the iron horse and the steam neptune, to supply our table with luxuries from distant regions of earth, the isles of the sea, and the caverns of the deep. With one hand on the Orient, we call for teas, and silks, and aromatics; with the other on the Occident, we demand gold and silver and precious stones. The equatorial regions supply us with tropical fruits, [illegible] and rare dyes, and the polar latitudes clothe us in soft downs and warm furs.

The physical agents most powerfully influencing the human race are climate, soil, food, and what Buckle declares to be the General Agents of Nature, and which he defines to be the combination of those physical agencies that "produces its principal results by exciting the imagination, and suggesting those innumerable superstitions that are the greatest obstacles to advancing knowledge." Climate, soil, and food are nearly dependent on each other, for there is a close connection between the climate of a country and food ordinarily produced there, and the character of the food of a country is always influenced by its soil, the altitude, and the condition of the atmosphere, and by the physical geography.

The most important result effected by climate, soil, and food is the accumulation of wealth, and this, to some extent, has ever been necessary consequence. In the earlier ages, however, this increase was limited to the few in each community while the vast multitudes of China, India, Egypt, and Tropical America remained wretchedly poor and abject. Wealth, and the power it has ever secured in hot countries, being in the hands of a few, the masses could be forced to build such useless works as the pyramids and sphinxes.

The progress of knowledge accelerates the increase of wealth, yet, in the primitive formation of society, wealth must accumulate before there can be any true increase of knowledge. While men are constantly engaged in collecting the mere necessaries of life for their own subsistence, there can be neither leisure nor desire for knowledge. Then science cannot be created, and only an effort can be made to economize labor by the continuance of such rude implements as the most barbarous tribes invent. In such a state of society, the accumulation of wealth is first the necessary step, for without wealth there is no leisure, and without this there can be no knowledge. There must be a surplus from labor, that capital may be accumulated, and the unemployed maintained. If the production exceed the consumption of a community, the excess may increase itself and become a fund, or capital, from which those may be supported who do not create the wealth upon which they live. At this period, the existence of an intellectual class may begin; because individuals can use, or have used for them, what they have not produced, and thus devote themselves to the study of subjects, for the cultivation of which they previously had enjoyed neither time nor money.

But let us here ask, What is wealth?

Our Brother in Black

J. C. W. COXE, D. D., BROOKLYN, IOWA.

First Paper.

My theme recognizes two great facts of profound meaning: 1. The unity of the human race; 2. The diversity of the race. The latter is obvious and universally recognized; the former is usually ignored or denied. Yet both are among God's arguments and neither indifference nor denial can invalidate a fact. That "God has made of one blood all nations of men to dwell on all the face of the earth," is not merely an affirmation of scripture; the record is confirmed by all lines of human research. The testimony of language goes to confirm the Biblical account. The science of comparative religion bears similar testimony. All really weighty evidence supports the earliest witness, and traces the genealogy of all nations to one source; they are all the sons of "Adam, who was the son of God," "Am I my brother's keeper?" Certainly; if for no other and higher reason—for self-protection. "No man liveth unto himself." A community of interest binds the race as closely as a community of blood. My brother's poverty burdens my wealth; his ignorance threatens my intelligence; his limitations bar my advance toward my highest good. I serve myself when I serve another. No life is self-centered; each one best and only truly serves when, centered on God as a Father, the radius sweeps the circle of human brotherhood, with all of its possibilities and needs.

What of our brother in black? Much every way of interest to us.

1. He is an American. He is ——"native here

And to the manner born."

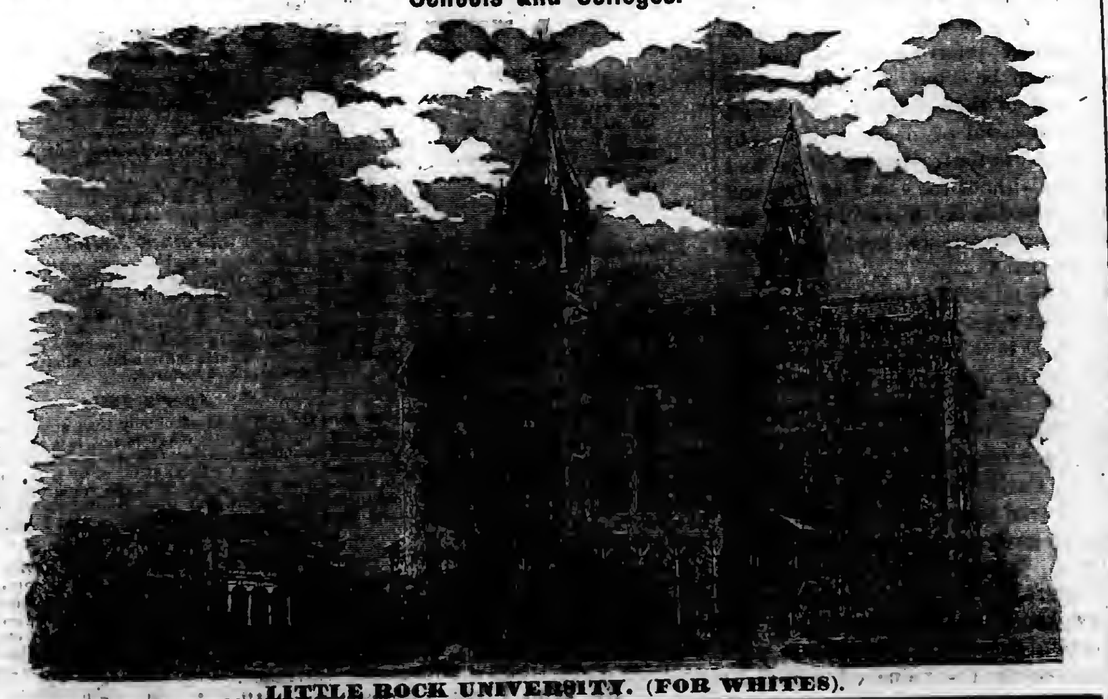
To call him an African is to use a misnomer. Not one in a thousand of these children of the sun ever saw the "dark continent." They were cradled in America; they were rocked by Columbia. And more; not one-half of them are of unmixed African blood. The shading runs from "softest salmon to blackest black," but the preponderance is above the line of mid-color. Miscegenation may be political heresy, but it is physiological fact.

2. He is a citizen. He has the right to vote. He has the right to pay taxes. He has the right to bear arms. He has the right to hold office. His name is recorded by the census taker. His ballot is counted in nearly every State in the Union.

General Church News.

Christmas Day in India.

On Christmas day, Mr. Parker was in Bijnour, with Bro. Hiram Cutting, and preached to a packed house of 500 people; all listened very attentively while he talked of the pre-eminence of Christ in all things. The influence of Bro. Cutting was shown by the full house. Twenty-five years ago on Christmas day, Mr. Parker preached his first little Hindustani sermon, to a few trembling people in the bazar of Bijnour. Now the place is held by a capable native pastor, one of the fruits of the twenty-five years of labor.



A proposal has been made in one of the London papers to convene an "International Conference" of thirty-five Christians and thirty-five Jews, selected from the ablest scholars of various countries, for the purpose of submitting the Messianic claims of Christ to an impartial and thorough investigation.

Missions among the eabmen, in Copenhagen are being held.

There are tokens that times of refreshing from the Lord for Sicily are near at hand.

A young Japanese Christian, imprisoned at Tokio for too free expression of his liberal sentiments, labored successfully for the conversion of a fellow prisoner.

Schools and Colleges.

LITTLE ROCK UNIVERSITY. (FOR WHITES).

University of Little Rock, Arkansas.

This institution was founded in 1882. It is located on a splendid site in the city of Little Rock, the capital of the State of Arkansas. Rev. E. L. Lewis, A. M., is president, the value of the buildings and grounds are set down at $20,000, but this is a very moderate estimate as the grounds alone ought to be nearly worth that sum, and the buildings as much more. There is neither an endowment or debt to help or hinder it. Nine teachers are employed, all white for the proper reason that their pupils are so. They had is 1882-3, 114 pupils, and the prospect is hopeful for the upbuilding of a school which shall be useful in gathering and helping a class of our people who are very needy, and whose needs demand consideration at the hands of both the Church, State, and nation.

Colored pupils do not and should not attend this school or any other of like character in the South, though they might be permitted to do so, until white children begin to attend those schools which are principally attended by colored pupils. We must not want so much as to seek any association which does not want so much as to seek us. We can be more helpful by influence than by this kind of contact in this region for the present. It is better for both races that the education and culture of their children be committed to such teachers as are in every way devoted to the best general growth of that race. This can be, and the teaching of Methodism can proceed with equal success by this, as by any method different from it.

India Bareilly Theology School

In a recent letter to Dr. Reid, Rev. E. W. Parker, writes from Bareilly: "You will very readily recall the day you spent in the theological school at the closing of the year, listening to the exercises of the graduating class, singing their best music, etc. Well, to-day we are here again and the graduating class of 1884 are holding forth eloquently. Remington Hall is full; many of the native gentlemen of the city are present, Hindus and Mohamedans, and a large number of Europeans friends. The class this year numbers twelve young men. Of these, six have a good English and vernacular education, having read the English vernacular business course of Government schools, in English schools: four men have read the business course in the Hindustani language and know less English; the other two have a fair secular education for this country, and were teachers before they came to this school. All the twelve read and write the Hindustani in the Roman characters; all read and write the Hindu; and all but one know the Veda. From this it will be seen that the present class at least had some training before they came to this school. If what Bose says be true that 'There has been a noticable increase in the talent and ability of pupils that each of these important institutions has enrolled and sent out;' then we must have commenced very well; and if 'This school is a favored haunt of intellectual dullness,' then those left out must be very remarkable specimens for a heathen community. We however think that we never graduated a better class than this, and these young men always stood well. As a rule we get the best of the Christian boys that we educate, for this school. These are exceptions of course and we are glad there are.

We want bright men in Government offices, in educational institutes and in business. We would gladly raise the standard of the entrance examination of our theological school, but the standard of education around us prevents it. Dr. Warren, in Boston, has tried for nearly twenty years to reach a proper standard, and has not yet accomplished his design by a great deal. Is it strange that we can not do just what we would here in India? God is however, wonderfully blessing this school in its results."

The University of Heidelberg declines a gift of twenty-five thousand dollars offered by an unknown benefactor on condition that women be allowed to enter the classes.

In the public schools of Sweden four hours a week are devoted to instruction in the mechanical arts.

The free schools of Texas are a credit to that growing Commonwealth.

The young women carry off nearly all the first honors in this year's art examinations at McGill University in Montreal.

The Garrett Biblical Institute proposes to erect a new chapel and library in memeory of the centenary year.

Penny dinners have proved so popular among the children of the London poor that a movement is now on foot to provide penny breakfasts. In some schools seventy per cent. of the children are unable to procure breakfasts.

Church Polity.

MR. EDITOR—Please answer through the columns of your paper the following questions:

1. Can the trustees of a Methodist Episcopal Church dispose of or sell its property, or any part of it, for instance, a piece of land on which to build a hall, the same being purchased by a society of Odd Fellows, members of the same church? 2. If so, through what process? And if they (the trustees) consent for or against, as the case might be, it also being contrary to the will of the people for whom they hold the property? 3. Can there be any further action taken satisfactorily?

Answer—1-2. The trustees of a Methodist Episcopal Church can sell property when necessary for the payment of church debts legally incurred, or for the purpose of securing other property according to the Discipline of 1884, page 207 par. 396, also par. 339 and 204, 393-5. 3. In the particular transaction referred to a statement of the case should be made to the quarterly or annual conference, or to both for full satisfaction.

The Pioneer, is the name of a monthly eight page quarto paper in the interests of the homes of America, published by John Dougall & Co. New York, 25cts a year.

Sermon Sketches.

REV. W. D. GODMAN.

Fasting—Lent.

Text—Matt. 9, 15: "But the days will come when the bridegroom shall be taken from them, and then shall they fast."

I. Did Christ authorize fasting?

1. We have from our Lord no express command to fast.

2. It is implied in self-denying and crose-bearing which are so constantly enjoined.

3. It is recognized as a duty under some circumstances by our Lord's words in Matt. 16-18, and in the text.

4. Our Lord himself fasted forty days. Matt. 4.

5. The Apostles and the Christian churches in time of the Apostles practiced fasting. Acts 13, 2-3; Acts 14, 23.

II—To what occasions is fasting proper?

1. To occasions of grief and affliction. 2 Sam. 12, 15; 2 Chron. 20, 3.

2. To times of humiliation on account of sin, and hours of discipline for the fight of faith. Luke 2, 37; Acts 10, 30; 2 Cor. 6, 5.

3. To occasions of great responsibility and moments of decision. Dan. 9, 3; Matt. 4, 1-11; Matt. 17, 21.

III—The Lenten Fast combines these reasons with others that are special: It was instituted to commemorate the absence of Christ from the circle of his Disciples during the time between his death and his resurrection. It was at first a fast of forty hours. It was afterward so extended as to comprise 40 days. It sets forth significantly (a) the sympathy of the church with our Lord in his sufferings; (b) the Christian's humiliation for the sins that caused those sufferings; (c) preparing for a right observation of the holy services of passion week; (d) penitential preparation for a renewed Christian life.

Books and Current Literature.

The numbers of The Living Age for the weeks ending 31 Jan. and 7 Feb. contain The Centenary of the Times, and The Savage, Nineteenth Century; From Siberia to Switzerland, the Story af an Escape, and the Colouial Movement in Germany, Contemporary; The Revolution of 1884, Fortnightly; Malta and its Knights and Outlying Professions, Blackwood; Charles Dickens at Home, Cornhill; Coca and Cocaine, Lancet; The Jews in Central Asia, Sunday at Home; with instalments of "A Home Divided Against Itself," "The Portrait, a Story of the Seen and the Unseen," and "A Millionaires' Cousin," and poetry. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

When a new drama has proved successful, it is customary for the audience to call the author before the curtain. They have a curiosity to see what sort of a man it is that created the play that has amused and instructed them. There is something very much like this in regard to our great newspapers; their editorial utterances are all anonymous, but there is generally a tradition of some half shadowy personage who has established the journal, given it its character, and constantly directs it; and the public like to have him come before the curtain now and then, to address them in his own person. This Murat Halstead, of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, has done in the March number of the North American Review, to which he contributes an article on "The Revival of Sectionalism." In the same number, Archdeacon Farrar presents his views on "Future Retribution," and Prof. N. K. Davis discusses "The Moral Aspects of Vivisection" in a way that brings together briefly nearly everything that any person of note has said on the subject. Max Muller describes the astonishing ideas of the Buddhists on the subject of Charity, and George John Romanes opens up a great subject with an article on "Mind in Men and Animals." The other articles are one by President Gilman on Titles (chiefly scholastic), one by Judge John W. Jameson on "Speculation in Politics," and one by John W. Johnson on "Railway Land-grants."

The February Wide Awake may be considered a special Valentine sent out to Childhood everywhere, so gay and sweet is it with dainty verse and delightful picture and fascincinating story. The Serial Stories are a strong element of interest. There are many illustrated poems, among them "The Danish Emigrants," a true incident delightfully told by Clara Doty Bates, and as delightfully illustrated by E. H. Garrett. Wide Awake is $3.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston, Mass.

The "Seed Annual," of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Michigan, comes to hand in very neat shape.

"Our Handy Lists for Shrewed Advertisers."

A very valuable annual hand-book and repository of all matters pertaining to newspaper advertising, has just been issued by Messrs. Lord & Thomas, the well known advertising agents of this city. The catalogue consists of 264 pages, and contains besides, a number of pages of thought and experience absolutely necessary for successful advertising, lists of all newspapers, English and Foreign published in the United States and Canada, arranged in convenient forms. It will be sent postpaid to any advertiser.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

It costs from $200,000 to $300,000 to mend a break in an ocean cable.

The only olive grove in the United States whose fruit is used for the manufacture of oil is at Cannon Point, Ga. It contains 160 bearing trees, which were planted over 100 years ago. The grove yielded 200 gallons of oil this year.

From the Bloody Ground.

TOLLESBORO, KY.

DR. S. B. HARTMAN & CO., Columbus, Ohio.—I keep the largest stock of medicines of any store in Lewis county, with the exception of a drug store at Vanceburg, our county seat, and am selling a great deal of your PERUNA and MANALIN. It is giving the best satisfaction of any medicine that I ever handled. In one case the constable for the precinct, has been very sick and low spirited for a long time. For several years he has tried all the doctors here, and we have some good ones, and they did him no good. After much persuasion I sold him two bottles of PERUNA and MANALIN. He took half of the medicine. I could see a great change in him, and now he is as sound a man apparently as there is in this vicinity, and he says he is entirely well. He is a number one man and is highly respected. He is satisfied that your medicine saved his life, after all the doctors and all medicines had failed. Being unacquainted with you, I refer you to John Shillito & Co., Aitor, Pinckard & Co., and other business houses of Cincinnati.

R. L. GILLESPIE, P. M.

Messrs. Adamson & Shipley, of Waynesburg, Pa., write: "Please send us some "Ills of Life" immediately. We are having a big run on your medicine, PERUNA. Instead of dying out, like most medicines, in course of time, it seems to be growing in favor. We sell lots of it. Please send the books soon."

Messrs. Wirthorn & Urban, of Allegheny City, Pa., write: "Having a large sale for your PERUNA and MANALIN, we have also many calls for your book, "Ills of Life." Please send us a supply of them, German and English, and oblige."

S. Wolf & Son, Wilmot, O., write: "Gentlemen: We handle your goods, and they give good satisfaction."

A. G. Sellards, Greenup, Ky., says: "Gentlemen: I am handling your medicines, and having a good trade on them."

J. C. Saunders, Martinsburg, W. Va., writes: "Gentlemen: Your PERUNA sells fast and gives good satisfaction here. We sell more PERUNA than any other preparation we handle."

W. Bauer, St. Mary's, Pa., writes: "My son is still improving in health. Your PERUNA is just the thing for him."

H. L. Day & Co., New Vienna, Ohio, write: "S. B. HARTMAN & Co., Columbus, Ohio.—Gentlemen: Your PERUNA sells as well as any medicine with us. Quite a number have told us that PERUNA is the best thing they ever used."

Domestic Hygiene.

Sanitation and Christianity.

BY GEORGE L. CURTIS, M. D.

The prolongation of effective working power and years, "in the light of political economy, as a matter of advantage to the body politic or a profit to the commonwealth, considering the cost of producing an effective population, and its worth when produced," is of the utmost importance. A nation's wealth does not consist to any considerable extent in her broad acres or mines of gold and silver, but in her people; in the number of her healthy, vigorous population, and the effective force they represent. The brain, bone and muscle, the health, vigor and force, the morals, purity and religion a nation can show is her real and durable wealth. A nation of many dollars and vast domain, and few men to protect them is weak. A nation of men and women, happy, healthy and true, though possessed of few dollars, is strong. If by means of sanitation and Christianity the effective force of a people can be prolonged, the State gathers more from the last half of such an effective life than from the first. An artisan who at twenty years has a trade well learned enters upon an active producing life with the prospect of toiling profitably twenty-three years. During this time he is paying back to the commonwealth what has been expended to bring him to a producing period. When he has satisfied the State for the expenditure on his formative state he is in a condition to produce something to add to the great capital or stock of the nation. Should he die before that period, he dies in debt to the nation. Should he die just when he has paid for his bringing up, the world, financially, is neither better nor worse for his having lived; but if the man can have another seventeen years of active life, which will bring him sixty years, his skill, judgment and physical powers will produce as much, oftimes double, what he produced in the twenty years of producing life. In that event the nation is far richer when he dies than it could have been had he died at an earlier period. A careful study of the old Jewish people while directed by their external moral life, as well as in their moral life, by one who never errs, will reveal the life of a people under wise laws of sanitation. In a large measure these successful laws had direct reference to sanitation. When sanitary laws were strictly enforced that chosen people were a healthy people. Fire and water were recognized as the great elements of purification, and burial as a method for removing some elements of filth. All refuse and dead matter was to be destroyed without the camp. It must not be burned within the city, by the flame of anything polluted might be consumed and thus the spreading currents of air would take up evil matter and distribute it so as to contaminate and vitiate the atmosphere. By taking refuse out of the camp and burning it, much that would have been poisonous was removed.

The frequent ablutions of the body, washings of clothing and household utensils, the profuse washings of everything whereon blood had intentionally or accidentally fallen, or any dead carcass had touched, was one of God's constant reminders of his determination that everything should be pure and clean. This cleanliness was essential to good health, and when the people were the cleanest they most strictly observed the commands of God. When the dead body was buried in the earth it was not only removed out of sight, but it was put where its noxious gases would be readily absorbed and prevented from rendering the air unwholesome. The Jewish law requiring the isolation of cases of leprosy and all infectious diseases, was a wise provision which in after years fell into disuse among civilized people, to be revived in these later years by those who have given most attention to hygiene. The sanitary laws of God's ancient people, as promulgated by himself for their observance, will bear careful and even critical study. All of them, whether referring to the kind of food to be eaten, the manner and times of their frequent washings, the removal of dead carcasses by burial, or destroying all refuse and filth without the camp by fire, will be found in the direct line of the most complete and perfect laws of sanitation.

The following conclusions are believed to be unvarying principles:

1. It is the duty of all citizens to carefully observe all true sanitary laws, because of their obligations to themselves, their families, country and religion.

2. Careful observation of sanitation is of the utmost importance to good government, prosperous business, happy homes and mental culture. The world has not yet awakened to the importance of careful sanitation, nor does it yet appreciate the value of personal cleanliness to a republican government; nor does it see, as it will, that filth and mental culture are incompatible.

3. Sanitary laws clearly understood and well observed, tend directly to the advancement of a pure moral and spiritual life. The planting of a rose, the potting of a geranium, the sweeping of the room, the washing of a window, the cleaning of the yard, and the burning of refuse, tend to the cultivation of one's better nature and lifting up of the soul to the aspirations for something better and purer in this life, and an earnest inquiry for something better hereafter.

4. The neglect of sanitation tends to vice, impurity, poverty, disease, heathenism and cruelty.

5. A high type of Christianity and sanitation are so intimately connected and associated that the loss of either is the demoralization of the other, and the removal or violation of both is the destruction of society.

Prohibition in Iowa.

BY W. C. MARTIN.

Having been a resident of Iowa nearly all the time for the last thirty-four years, I know something of the efforts made by temperance people to secure prohibition. A more persevering and faithful class of reformers can not be found on this continent, than the temperance people of Iowa; yet they have found in the opposition a determination backed by a free use of money, worthy of a better cause. In 1855 the legislature passed a prohibitory law with suitable penalties and submitted the same to the people for their ratification at the polls. The temperance people went into this cause in the true spirit of reform and came out with a handsome majority. The law came into effect and fully met the expectations of its most sanguine supporters. For a while all went well, but 1857 the legislature, by some combinations pandered to the German element in the State, and inserted in the prohibitory chapter, what was known as the "Wine and Beer Clause." This opened the floodgate and gave the demon free play. By this time the anti slavery agitation eclipsed everything else. Then followed the war, and then the reconstruction of the Southern States; so that it was not until about 1870 that the people were in a condition to give any special attention to prohibition. The temperance people made several attemps to get the "Wine and Beer Clause" repealed, but were thwarted by the politicians and political tricksters. In 1880 the legislature formulated a prohibitory amendment to the constitution, which by the legislature of 1883 was submitted to the people.

Again the earnest temperance workers entered into the canvas and every neighborhood was aroused. The opposition were awake and made a strong effort to defeat the measure by threats, pleas, ridicule and a most liberal use of money, yet on the 27th day of June, 1882, the amendment carried by nearly thirty thousand majority. The temperance people were hopeful, even jubilant. The opposition were bitter and determined and soon trumped up a case to try the constitutionality of the adoption of the amendment, and lo! the courts swayed by the saloon power set aside the temperance work of all these years. In this contest it became apparent that the saloon interests had the sympathy of many of the wealthiest and influential citizens in the State. Humiliated and chagrined, but not disheartened, the noble band of temperance workers again rallied. This time they went into the Republican convention, and succeeded in getting a prohibitory plank in the platform, which resulted in the legislature of 1884 enacting a prohibitory law similar in many respects to that of 1855. The law came into effect on the fourth day of July last. At first it seemed to be of marvelous potency. Thousands of saloons were closed. In nearly all the rural districts, and in some of the larger cities, great respect was paid to it. None but those who were on the ground can realize the magic change. Peace and sobriety reigned where riot and drunkenness had abounded. The presidential campaign came on and the whole State was stirred with political excitement. It soon became evident that somebody was engaged in the illegal traffic. In some places efforts have been made to ferret out the offenders, but in a large majority of cases they have failed. Since the election, the law has become powerless in most places. The town council in this place, (Atlantic), has licensed ten saloons to sell pop; each paying forty dollars per month. This statement suggests that "There is something rotten in Denmark." It is currently reported on the streets that there is a tacit understanding between the saloon keepers, and the town council, that the saloonists are to sell anything they choose. Many other towns are doing the same, and doubtless still more will follow. At the next session of the legislatnre strong and persistent efforts will be made to repeal the law. Many are making the result of the late election, a pretext for withdrawing their moral support from the law. Every true temperance man, who is a prohibitionist from principle, who has a conscience in the work, will stand in his place and be ready to answer at roll call. Having been in this conflict through the space of a generation, I have learned that the enemy is wily, wicked and wise, brave and in the use of money liberal; that his forces are not wholly made up of the slums of society, but many well informed, well to do people are in full sympathy with him; that he must be met in the open field before the people, in the halls of legislation, in the courts and last, but not least, in society. Nowhere does this giant of rum power appear more confidently than in the circles of gay and fashionable society, ever ready to scoff at temperance work and stigmatize the self-sacrifice of good people as fanatical and narrow.

Thousands are led to believe that it is a test of manhood to walk amid temptation unhurt, that they may "touch, taste and even handle the unclean thing;" and then show their wonderful willpower by walking away unsullied by the contact. Again: I have learned that political parties cannot be depended upon to inaugurate and carry forward reforms, when opposed by great moneyed corporations. Politicians are all wags willing to cater to even the very worst elements of society, when by so doing party strength may be augmented. Again: I have learned that defeat in a righteous cause is better than victory on the side of wrong. I am more than ever settled in the conviction, that prohibition is right and practicable that it is not a vain speculation or the wild frenzy of fanaticism. It is the only true solution of the great problem of drunkenness. Teaching and preaching are all right and proper and must not be omitted, but legal prohibition is the only sure means of subjugating the demon drink. That temperance people have made mistakes, and in some instances, weakened their cause we frankly admit, but the principle of prohibition remains the same. Our mistake in Iowa has been in suffering the politicians to lead us away into less important fields of thought and work. With the start we now have bold, solid, united effort will ensure success, but a little wavering along the line, a little inactivity, just at this time will set us back a generation or more in this noble cause.

Health Wealth and Happiness.

Are more intimately connected with a sound stomach and good condition of the blood than most people suppose. Thin blood means weakness, languor and misery. A dyspeptic stomach means all the horrors you can think of. Brown's Iron Bitters means enriched blood, good digestion, healthy appetite, sweet sleep and vigorous strength. Mrs. Henry Hallam, South 17th street, St. Louis, says, "Brown's Iron Bitters relieved me of dyspepsia, purified my blood, and gave me an appetite." Thousands of others testify in the same way.

INDIGESTION AND CONSTIPATION

ARE CURED BY

AYER'S PILLS.

Dyspepsia

Is one of the most dangerous of the diseases caused by these complaints. Affecting as it does the centre of life—the stomach—it quickly deranges and imperils the whole system, physical and mental. Its symptoms are manifold, and many of them so serious that they are generally regarded and treated as special maladies.

The Only Cure

For the various forms of dyspeptic diseases, is in a medicine that will remove its primary cause, by restoring the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels to a healthful condition. Any other treatment is useless as an effort would be to make a watch keep time by simply gilding its case, when it had a broken main-spring.

Ayer's Pills

Are the best medicine to accomplish the necessary work of cleansing, stimulating and restoring. They are more thorough in their purgative effect than any others, yet are not violent in their action, exercise a powerful influence for good upon the other vital organs as well as the bowels, and effectually

Banish Disease.

For Biliousness, Jaundice, and other evil consequences of hepatic disorders, there is no remedy so prompt and thorough as AYER'S PILLS. They are also, by their efficacy in regulating the digestive functions, of the greatest value to women in the most critical stages of existence.

Kidney Diseases

Also spring from disorders of the digestive functions, and are not only exceedingly painful in themselves, but have symptoms, such as Dropsy and Rheumatism, which are of the gravest character. The work of the kidneys is the purifying of the blood. When, through disease, they cease to do this,

Prompt Relief

Must be accorded to avert most serious consequences. Medicines that lull their pain by dulling their sensibility, or that stimulate them to unnatural activity, do infinitely more harm than good. To restore them to health, the kidneys must be cleansed, their inflammation allayed, and their strength restored.

Ayer's Pills

Do this more effectually than any other. Their diuretic effect is not less marked and beneficial than their purgative power. Not only do they, at once, by a moving dose, free the clogged, and rouse the torpid organs, but their continuous effect, when taken in small doses, is to regulate the machinery of life, and Restore Health and Vigor.

For all the several varieties of Piles, and for the many Cutaneous Disorders produced by Blood Impurities thrown into the circulation during attacks of constipation, no cure is so quick and easy as AYER'S PILLS, which free the bowels and aid nature.

MOTHER'S WORK.

PROF. M. C. CONWAY.

Mother I hear you pray at night,
O Lord, Thy will be done.
To guide your children in the right,
And to His glory come.

Mother teach me the name of Him
And show me the path you mean,
To let my heart in love to grow
That I no faults would screen.

I know He is good, and kind and true,
I know His love is great,
I know His blood flowed free for man
To be His heavenly mate.

So teach my heart in life to live
That when this time is o'er,
And when this mortal frame is still
I'll sorrow then no more.

He says His yoke is easy [illegible]
Experience has taught me so,
I'm often called a simpleton
But I never weary grow.

Satan's darts fly thick and fast,
God's shield is round me placed,

His banner I'll not disgrace.

This fact is very often observed
By Satan's army [illegible]
By faith I [illegible]
And will forever [illegible]

[illegible] will shout and sing,
And on to glory run.

THE PILLOW-INHALER!

TRADE MARK.
[The above Picture shows a person using the Pillow-Inhaler.]

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION.

THE PILLOW-INHALER is one of the most effective inventions of the age. It does what never has been done before, viz.: batters down the stronghold of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption by a continuous application of Medicated and Curative Air to the diseased mucous membranes of the air-passages of the nose, throat and lungs.

A Radical and Permanent Cure.

Most people who have Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption have tried from one to a dozen different remedies without being cured. Why have they not been cured? Simply because what they took were not cures. How is a snuff to be got into all the intricate air-passages and in the blood (for Catarrh is a constitutional disease)? or, how will inhaling medicine for a few minutes a day dislodge the enemy from its stronghold of decaying tissue? Everybody knows that medicine taken in doses has very feeble effect on diseases of a pulmonary character. They have to take such a roundabout way to get into the blood that they miss their power. Let after all there is an Absolute Cure, and that is the PILLOW-INHALER—a means of all-night or continuous inhalation. The testimony to its results is beyond all question, by the experience of thousands. The cures it has effected seem almost incredible. It is a comfortable pillow of soft hair, with receptacles in which is put the evaporating medicine, the fumes of which the diseased person inhales all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, without being annoyed and without noticing that he is taking medicine. There is no dosing the stomach, no douching or snuffing; but, just as a smoky lamp, during the whole night, will leave a thick deposit on a whitened wall, so the PILLOW-INHALER, for eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed mucous coating of the diseased air-cells from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and, hence into the blood. It is a constitutional and local cure at the same time. The medicine is applied directly, like a salve, at the seat of the disease, besides going into the blood during its aeration. It is inexpensive and within the reach of every one. No matter what you have tried or how despairing you are, call and see it, or write for Pamphlet and Testimonials. Address,

What it Does.

Almost every lady habitually uses some kind of hair dressing. It is a toilet necessity. Park's Hair Balsam is the best, because: it gives gloss and softness; arrests falling out does not soil the most delicate fabric; is deliciously perfumed; cools the head; eradicates dandruff, and promotes a luxuriant growth.

The above apportionments are made in accordance with the instructions of the Louisiana Conference at its recent session. Brethren will please collect the amounts set opposite their appointments and be prepared to pay the same over at quarterly meeting, so as to enable us to forward the same to the treasurer of the Episcopal Fund at New York. Now is the time to secure subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN, and to push forward every interest of the Church. Let every one start out for a revival in every charge. Plan and put in operation valiant efforts for our Centennial Jubilee fund for the Gilbert Haven School of Theology, and for all the the local and connectional benevolent enterprises of the Church, and let no one wait till the end of the year to be again hindered by rainy season or other unavoidable hindrance. Let us put forth our best efforts to accomplish more this year on the LaTeche District, in adding converts, in building churches and parsonages, in paying debts on the same, in collecting for our benevolencies, and in sending subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN than in any previous year.

Yours fraternally,

A. P. ALBERT, P. E.

Church Extension—Texas Conference.

To the Preachers and Presiding Elders of the Texas Annual Conference.—The Conference Board of Church Extension for the Texas Conference passed the following resolutions at their last meeting, and directed the secretary to forward a copy to Rev. A. J. Kynett, D. D., the Secretary, at Philadelphia, requesting him to return a statement of our standing that we might see how much we have to recommend for us this year. We have determined to abide by the resolution and if the pastors will not raise their assessments we will not recommend aid:

Whereas, The Conference collections fall far short of the small amount asked of this conference, we confess, with shame, our failure, and feel a deep sense of humility; therefore,

Resolved, That we will not recommend aid to these points that fail to collect their full assessment, and we will do all in our power to bring this work up to a good standard.

Resolved, That we ask no favors of the present Board beyond our rightful dues under the law of the Society, until we have fully met our obligations, and we ask the Secretary to furnish us a statement of our account so we may know just how to act; promising hereafter to keep our own accounts.

According to the direction of this Board I have acted, and received a statement from the Corresponding Secretary of our standing to date, showing applications already recommended from this Board since conference, and probably a short while before, when complied with, will overdraw the amount authorized by the General Committee by $301.53. The collections of 1884 have not yet come to his office, nor does he know where they are. So, brethren, from facts and figures we have before us, we cannot recommend much more this year unless we do it under the head of special cases.

New Orleans District.

Apportionments for the Episcopal Fund.

At the last session of the Louisiana Annual Conference it was voted the apportionments to this conference for the support of the Bishops be apportioned by the presiding elders to the several districts, and by each presiding elder to the several charges of the district. The following are the apportionments for each charge of the New Orleans District:

Wesley Chapel	6 00
Union Chapel	6 00
First Street	6 00
Simpson Chapel	5 00
Ames Chapel	5 00
Mt. Zion	4 00
Clinton Street	4 00
Haven's Chapel	4 00
Camp Parapet	4 00
LaHarpe	3 00
Algiers	3 00
Thomson's Chapel	2 00
Pleasant Plains	2 00
Pearl River	2 00
Baldwin Mission	2 00
Shady Grove	1 00
Springfield cironit	1 00
Mandeville	1 00
Gretna	50
Whites Church	50
Franklinton cironit	50

In view of the deficiency in raising our apportionments last year for the support of the Bishops, it is requested that each pastor have the apportionment for charge collected at the first quarterly conference of this year, so that the amount for the district can be forwarded without delay to New York.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Editorial Notes.

What dread remorse the wretched soul must know,
Who, fastened to the wood thy quivering flesh;
But heavier still must be the culprit's woe,
Who doth, with scorpion-whip of satire lash,
And Crucify the Son of God afresh.
With pointed pen of steel and adder tongue
Inflicting on thy bosom gash on gash;
Better a millstone round his neck were hung,
And he, from lowering cliff, were into ocean flung.

We acknowledge the receipt of a fine package of garden seeds from Jasper Vick, Rochester N. Y. We expect to test their quality; when they have grown to vegetables, will be able to report further.

The March Century will contain an article on the Soudan, written by Gen. R. E. Colston, formerly of the Confederate army, and later on the general staff of the Egyptian army. In the latter service he commanded two expeditions of explorations in the Soudan, traveling on all the principal caravan routes, and spending two years in the towns and among the tribes which are frequently mentioned in connection with El Mahdi's rebellion. The article will be illustrated with more than twenty pictures.

A well written letter, which we should be glad to print only it has no name signed to it, has reached us. It is a mild reply to the letter of Rev. Dorsey in the New York Witness, entitled "A Sad State ment by a Colored Preacher." We were almost ready to break our rule against printing anonymous letters, and insert this one, but on second thought we have resolved not to do it. When will brethren learn to be manly and speak their sentiments with respectful boldness.

The new Industrial Home at Holly Springs, Miss., will be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies, March 19th. This is an enterprise of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, and the object is to co-operate with the university for the higher education of girls, to fit them for the important duties of life, to furnish to girls a christian home, while they are securing an education, and at the same time will offer them opportunities to learn the accomplishments that go to make up the education of the true lady in her proper sphere of life—the home—also the industries that enable the girls to become self-supporting, will be taught in this home. Rev. Dr. [illegible], Bishop Mallalieu, Bishop [illegible], Dr. Rust and others will make addresses on the occasion.

The Little Rock Conference.

The seventh session of the Little Rock Methodist Episcopal Conference convened in Mt. Olive Chapel, Van Buren, Arkansas, February 19, 1885, Bishop Willard F. Mallalieu, D. D., presiding. Devotional exercises, consisting of the Lord's supper, reading the Scriptures and prayer were conducted by the Bishop and presiding elders. The roll was called by W. O. Emory, secretary of the last session, and it was found that 17 members and 4 probationers were present.

Thomas Mason was chosen secretary; W. O. Emory and Green N. Johnson assistants. A. J. Phillips was elected statistical secretary, with W. H. Morris assistant. The usual committees to consider connectional interests were appointed. The transfers of L. W. Elkins from this to the Central Illinois, and of W. S. Lankford from the Lexington to this conference were announced.

Rev. W. S. Lankford and the editor of the SOUTHWESTERN were introduced. Communications from various sources were received and referred to appropriate committees. A dividend of $38 of the proceeds of the Book Concern, and $30 on the chartered fund was ordered.

The committee on public worship devoted each afternoon from 4 o'clock to preaching and the evening to the anniversary services.

Rev. O. H. Smith, presiding elder of the Little Rock District, represented his district, and his own and the character of each effective elder thereon being passed.

After announcement the conference adjourned, with the doxology and benediction by Dr. Taylor.

SECOND DAY.

The Conference got together at the appointed hour for religious service, and the Bishop took his seat a half an hour later as per order to devote the first thirty minutes to such exercises. Minutes of preceding session were read and approved. The roll was called and four of the absentees yesterday were reported present. The examination of effective elders was resumed, and the name of G. W. Sams being called he reported the Argenta district of which he is the presiding elder. His character, with the other elders on the district, passed. The report of Bro. Sams showed that there was a good prospect for the extension of our church in that territory, and the elder had been hindered to some extent by failing health and absence attending the last General Conference.

Rev. G. B. Donnelly, presiding elder of the Hot Springs district, reported the district, his character passed, with that of the other effective elders on the district. He presented a carefully written report which evinced rather a closer attention to details than either of the others. His knowledge of his district was somewhat circumscribed in consequence of his having come to the work of the district only in the midst of the year, in consequence of the transfer of Bro. Elkins, his predecessor.

At this point the Revs. D. H. Upchurch, presiding elder of the Eureka Springs district, and L. C. Obar, pastor in the Arkansas Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church; also D. J. Weems, pastor at Van Buren, Methodist Episcopal Church South, were introduced.

Dr. Marshall W. Taylor, editor, presented the intetests of our Book Concern, and urged the claims of our periodicals and general literature upon the preachers and people of our Church. The doxology was sung, and the benediction pronounced by Bro. Weems.

THIRD DAY.

Van Buren, Ark., Feb. 21, 1885.—Conference met at 9 o'clock, with Bishop Mallalieu in the chair; The opening exercises consisting of a half hours' devotional service. The secretary read the minutes of the previous session and they were adopted. The names of pastors not making their statistical reports as required were called in open conference, as per discipline of 1884. W. H. Harris, O. C. Riley, C. G. Brooks, Wm. M. Fuller, and A. Hardeman, the last four not being before the committee, and the first being examined, all were continued on trial. B. J. Donnell, and J. D. Johnson were admitted to full connection; the former was received upon his credentials as a deacon and the latter was elected to this order. H. C. Dunlap, Edward Spencer, Edward Pinkett and Peter Humphrey were continued deacons of the first class. Seth Neal, M. Lockman, and A. L. Richardson passed to deacons of the second class.

H. H. McAllister and B. Mc Cain were reported absent attending school; they were continued deacons of the second class. Foster Wallace, and U. S. Kitchens, failing in their examination were continued in their relation. G. N. Johnson and G. W Gill were elected to elder's orders, with the understanding that these brethren bring up and complete the prescribed course of study. Revs. D. H. Upchurch, L. C. Obar of the Arkansas Conference, took leave of the conference, and previous to their departure the conference passed resolutions of sympathy with and esteem for Rev. Thomas B. Ford, of the Arkansas Conference, who has been recently seriously ill, but is at present convalescent; and charged these departing brethren to bear these messages of love to Bro. Ford and the conference of which he is a member.

Prof. H. R. Pinkney, of Philander Smith College, was admitted on trial and recognized as a local deacon. Rev. J. M. Clayton, and Prof. Pinkney were introduced. The committee on memoirs and temperance submitted their reports and ordered them printed in the Church papers. Benediction by Rev. J. G. Thompson.

Afternoon session opened in usual form, the Bishop presiding. The reports of committees were resumed. Drayton Gamble was elected to deacon's orders. The Bishop addressed the class coming into full connection.

Bro. Mishack Lockman then preached a forcible sermon, and the conference adjourned.

FOURTH DAY.

Monday, Feb, 23, 1885.—Conference met. The remaining disciplinary business was attended to. Resolutions complimentary to Bishop Mallalieu, Dr. Taylor, the citizens of Van Buren and the various railroads for numerous courtesies extended, and services rendered.

The seat of next conference was set at Pine Bluff. Committees completed their reports.

Conference adjourned with prayer by Bro. Dunlap, and the reading of the appointments by the Bishop.

The conference treasurer reported $325 for all benevolent purposes which is an advance of nearly $100 over last year.

All candidates for examination were required to meet the examiners at the conference seat on day previous to each annual session, for examination.

It is possible that the statistics will also show growth for the present year.

The reports were of a high character and need only to be faithfully attended to in order to greatly enhance all the interests of the church committed to this conference.

The evening and Sunday services were profitable lessons and well attended throughout.

The Future of the South.—II.

JAMES T. NEWMAN, M. D., NEW ORLEANS.

And yet this system of industry confined exclusively to agriculture, whether unavoidable or not under the circumstances, matters not now, was advocated as most advantageous for the South. The tendency of the South, since the war, has been to change from the system of planting only staple crops to that of raising a variety of crops, and it has become an object to produce on the farm, as far as practicable, what will be needed for the farm. At the same time, a great disposition is shown in each community to encourage and develop local productions of every kind, and home manufactures begin, to some extent, to supply the home wants.

Before the war the planter ordered directly from the North, through his commission merchant, all the clothing, shoes and blankets which were needed for his laborers; but there is now a country store at every cross-road, by which the new wants of the freedmen are supplied, and at which his wages are spent. The clothing of the laborer is now, to a great extent at least, manufactured at Southern mills; and while, formerly, that part of the cost of labor, represented by meat and bread, was also, in many districts, paid directly to Northern producers or mechants, at present a large proportion is supplied by Southern production, and this proportion will steadily increase here after. The facts indicate that the tendency is now to a greater diversity of industries, and we would be led, a priori, to the same conclusion. The legislation of the South, under the old system, having been adverse to manufacturing and commercial enterprises, little inducement was offered to capital, foreign or domestic, to invest in either, and agriculture was thus the favored occupation, no other being profitable under the circumstances.

The habits and predilections of the whites were unfavorable to commerce and manufactures, while the character and capacity of the laborers were adapted only to agriculture; and as long as slave labor existed, free labor avoided the limits of the South. Other influences will readily suggest themselves, which, before the war, concurred in precluding a diversity of industries in the South; but, the opposing causes being removed, the normal and regular development of all her resources and capacities must follow.

THE LAW OF LABOR.

Wherever slavery exists, manual labor is regarded as degrading, and will be avoided by the people, as much as practicable. Such was the case in the South. but this influence has been removed, while, on the other hand, commerce and manufactures, accompanying a greater diversity of industries, will now exert their well known effect of making all labor more respectable; the people of the South, under new influences, all tending to encourage and elevate labor, will naturally become more industrious, and, with the next generation, the proportion of active producers to her population should be increased. Labor, however, must be elevated and honored if the South would have an industrious population, and she must have an industrious population if she expects to prosper.

Our civilization is based upon the triumph of man over nature; and labor, only, mental and physical, can retain the conquered domain.

While, from the accumulated knowledge of ages, the superiority of mind over matter, of man over nature, is greater than ever before, the demands of the age and the and the tendency of civilization loudly proclaim the inexorable law of labor as applying to the Southern people their weakness; self preservation now urges them to remove the cause. Stern facts have demonstrated that when in addition to that moral power, which as the world concedes, the South exhibited in the war between the States, her sons shall insure her, by new habits of industry, a due portion also of physical power, then, and then only, will her development proceed on a sound basis; then, and then only, her people will become really a great people. Labor, then, should be the corner stone of the new South. It is, indeed, the foundation on which the fabric must rest, the law of labor being to society the first law of nature.

MORE EQUAL DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH.

It is an axiom of social science that an unequal distribution of wealth will be followed by an unequal distribution of social and political power and that the effect of such unequal distribution of social and political power will be stagnation decline, and, ultimately, decay and ruin. The principle can be readily explained and illustrated by referring to a fact of Roman history, which has been noticed by several writers.

In Italy, under the Roman Republic, the corn laws reduced the price of grain to such an extent, that the "small holdings" could not be farmed profitably by the yeomanry of the country, an industrious, furgal and hitherto prospreous class; and as the growth of grain ceases to be renumerative, pastoral husbandry was introduced in connection with the wine culture. As large land owners, under this system, enjoyed advantages over the small farmers, capitalists soon began to purchase and merge together the small farmers, and the tendency increased until the lands passed generally under their control. The result of this unequal distribution was the debasement and ruin of the yeoman class, and there followed in in consequence deterioration and loss of population. The finally disastrous result is thus depicted by a celebrated historian: "And so desolation advanced with gigantic steps over the flourishing land of Italy, where countless numbers of freemen had lately rejoiced in moderate and merited prosperity." This was the result of a policy which caused a concentration of capital, in the place of its general diffusion. The South furnished no exception to the rule that an unequal distribution of wealth injures nationalities, peoples and individuals as well.

Needs of the Negro.

R. F. BOYD, NASHVILLE.

Second Paper.

Our friends tried to legislate us into our rights and by law compel others to respect us. They failed. What God did not reveal to the wise He has made known to the simple. Time, the great teacher, has shown us their mistake. If, instead of the elective franchise and the civil rights bill, a bill appropriating twenty or thirty millions of dollars annually from the general goverment for ten years, and good teachers and school directors had been placed in every city, town and country district where our people could have been reached, and a system of compulsory education had been adopted compelling every one to attend school at least eight months in the year, our people would have been a hundred years ahead of where they are to-day. After the first ten years of our freedom we would have been able to enter the professions, the trades, till the soil intelligently, and fill with credit any position in church or State. We would now be moral, intelligent and wealthy. In every calling our men would be able to measure arms with those of any other race and nationality. This prejudice against us on account of our color would have been dead and buried years ago, and we would now be flourishing as the "green bay tree." But we are no less thankful to Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips, O. P. Morton and other great and noble friends of the race who were anxious to help us, and whom God gave courage to stand up for a despised, ignorant and oppressed people. So thoroughly convicted were Sumner and Morton that they were doing that which would be conducive to the best interest of our race, they dared to grow unpopular in advocating these measures. They dared to do right, and they dared to be true. They did a work that no others could do; they fought the battle of life successfully, and now they have their reward. Honor to their memory and peace to their ashes. They are not dead, but sleep; they are not lost, but gone before, where all true followers of our Master shall rest from their labors.

From the Districts.

Columbus District—West Texas Conference.

REV. P. M. CARMICNNAL, P. E.

I thought I would write a short letter for the SOUTHWESTERN, as I am better pleased with it than ever. I want to say and do all for it I can. There are many things I could speak about, but I reckon the best thing to speak of would be my district work. I was better pleased with the district this year than I was at the first of last, therefore I commenced sooner. The Columbus District now has 14 charges and circuits, including LaGrange and LaGrange circuit. So I began the work on the LaGrange circuit with Bro. W. H. Mosby, Dec. 20-21. I can not tell why the brethren were not present; we had a pretty day and nothing to hinder them from being there, but there were only three present of about 18 or 20 official members; however, we held the quarter, adopted the disciplinary plan for raising money, and on Sunday I preached to a few of the members and friends. Had a very good time. Dec. 27-28 I was with Bro. E. Henderson at LaGrange, where we met all the brethren; had a good, old-fashioned quarterly conference. There was a little trouble about the preacher's salary but we got it all right, the estimating committee wanted to give only $300, when there were 150 members; however they agreed to give $350, not quite $3 a year per member; on the circuit they are giving, or promise to give a little more per member, there being 140 members, and they are to pay $3.50. The circuit is paying for the support of the pastor $2.50 per member, at LaGrange the amount per member for pastor is $2.33⅓. January 3-4 I met Bro. S. Gates at Columbus, also all the brethren but one or two. Had a good time, but the stewards would not adopt the disciplinary plan for raising money. I will not tell all that was said right here, I will leave it off for the present. The committee estimated for Bro. Gates $500; there is at this place over 250 members, but you see they are not paying $2 apiece. From here we went to Allenford, where we met Bro. Cogswell and his brethren, on the 10th and 11th. Had a nice time; all the brethren were present; pastor reported 210 members; the committee [illegible] for his support [illegible] tion over $2 per member; this is a good work, and they love the SOUTHWESTERN. From here I went to Oakland and Brown's Chapel, Jan. 17-18, where I met Bro. B. E. Cooper and some of his official members, and we had a nice time; the committee estimated for his support $425, there being [illegible] members; this is about $1.82 per member. I hope this circuit will give more than it has promised. Here, on Sunday, we met a moderately good congregation; on Monday morning Bro. Cooper and I were left in the creek by a horse that we borrowed from a brother to work to our buggy. I had the pleasure to stay with Bro. C. nearly or quite two weeks and visit a great many of his members. Oakland has lost Dr. G. R. Townsend, but Oakland's loss is Victoria's gain. Dr. N. H. Middleton is here and has a large practice. This place has been blessed with a good summer normal school for teachers through the labors of Dr. Townsend. As Dr. Middleton has no wife yet we trust that he will not let the school go to naught. After Dr. T. takes to himself a better half he cannot teach, but, Doctor, I am informed that Prof. Blakely will take charge of the school here on March 16th. Dr. Middleton says there will be, in the near future, a medical department attached to the school, also students wishing to study law may do so. May God bless those young men of our Church who have come out to do work among our people as ministers, teachers, doctors and lawyers. I had the pleasure of visiting M. J. Snowden's school also. Mr. Snowden is a nice young man with a good education; but he is an undaunted man. He was raised in Colorado county, Texas, and also educated in Texas. We have a great many nice young men in Texas who have made themselves and will make their mark. I did not get to hold the quarter at Wellersburg on account of bad weather. The district, so far, is doing fine spiritually, but not so well financially. I go from here to Schulenburg. I had an interview the other day with Dr. Brown, of Oakland, (a white doctor) about the Democratic party and the Negroes of Texas. I had a chance to tell him a great many things that I wanted to tell him, especially about the way our wives, daughters and ourselves are treated on these railroads. We pay for first-class tickets, but are compelled to take worse than second-class fare. There has been committees appointed by the colored people all over the State to meet at Austin to go before the committee on railroads and make known their grievances; this is not to be made known to the Legislature, of Texas, for they know already but to let the members of that body see that we are noticing the way we are denied the immunities of American citizens, and that we will not go with sealed lips while our hearts ache.

Columbus, Texas.

New Orleans District.

Jesse Lee began his mission in New England, by proclaiming on the highway at Norwalk, Connecticut, "Ye must be born again." He spent three months of incessant travel and labor before he succeeded in forming his first class which consisted of three ladies. Three months more passed and the second class was formed consisting of two members. The prospect was the most repulsive and discouraging. No one of the New England States was more thoroughly possessed, or rigidly controlled by the traditional sentiments of the Puritans than Connecticut. Mr. Lee was shut out of all the parish pulpits, and frequently had to light up the court house, or school house where he preached, and ring his own bell to announce the time and place of his service.

He was generally looked upon as a fanatic and frequently refused the hospitalities of the community, while the pulpits assailed him as a "Wolf in sheep's clothing;" but his determination conquered all, and at the close of sixteen months he reported four additional laborers, two hundred members in the church, two chapels erected, and five circuits formed, and the doctrines of Methodism preached by himself in six New England States. This was something more than merely holding the fort, it was storming and taking forts. All through Louisiana there are communities, where the Gospel of Methodism is greatly needed. There is just now a call for men who have conviction and determination to carry the Gospel wherever it is needed, though at first they may not be welcomed.

To my brethren of the New Orleans district: We are beginning a new conference year; it may like the past year be to some of you one of privation, suffering and trial, but with hard work and entire consecration to God, we can make it on all of our charges and circuits, a year of great religious triumph. Let us have this motto inscribed on all of our pulpits: "A revival on every circuit and station, and salvation in all of our homes." We need a little more of that unresting missionary spirit which stimulated the earliest preachers in their efforts to plant Methodism in this country.

At Simpson Chapel, Bro. Jackson has entered upon his third year under the most encourageing circumstances. The church and congregation are well united, and are working in harmony with their pastor. The trustees have added a recess to the church, giving ample room for the pulpit, and adding greatly to the beauty of the church, costing $100, and all expenses paid. The quarterly conference showed their appreciation of Bro. Jackson, by making an advance in his salary. Simpson Chapel in other days has passed through severe struggles, but with 240 members fully consecrated to God, ready for every good word and work, there ought to be a forward movement and the membership doubled this year. It is sometimes said that providence acts more as an ambulance coming along after the appointments of Methodist preachers are made, looking after the sick and wounded, than it does in making the appointments. We think that the Methodist minister who believes that he is in his place by divine arrangement has made long advance, and has great advantage over him who believes in the ambulance theory. There can not be much transforming power in the ministry of that man whose faith rises only to the ambulance. Poor man, he knows nothing of the possibilities of the sublime faith that makes a man—

"Laugh at impossibilities
And cries, 'It shall be done.'"

Moses believed that God sent him and three millions of godless idolators were spared in answer to his prayer. Joshua prayed and "the sun stood still upon Gibeon, and the moon over the vale Ajalon." Elijah prayed and the fire descended from heaven and consumed the sacrifice. Prayer is powerful, one has said "next to Almighty."

At Ames Church, Bro. Stalker is having the largest congregation, and Sunday-school we have seen there for over four years. We doubt if there is a pulpit in New Orleans, that is supplied with more ability. The membership have need of more individualism, and a faith that leads men to grapple with difficulties with the power and determination of conquering heroes: Dr. Wayland relates that "in the year 1855 a Baptist Church was organized in Hamburg, in Germany, consisting of seven members. In less than twenty years that church had multiplied itself into 42 churches, sustaining 350 stations, numbering 4,215 communicants. How was this? Each member realized his individual responsibility, and each pointed his neighbor to the Savior." They were aggressive Christians. O, for a generation of daring warriors for God, who are not afraid of danger, and esteem labor as a privilege, and sacrifice an honor!

L. P. CUSHMAN.

Letters from the Pastors.

Rev. C. L. Seward, of the Tennessee Conference, Murfreesboro station, writes: "My quarterly meeting was held on Jan. 15, 16 and 17. The elder arrived here on Monday, the 12th, and spent the first part of the week visiting the sick. We had with us Rev. T. Wood and W. Lillard, of Stone River circuit. All the members but one local preacher were present at roll call. We had a very nice time. The weather was cold; the collection amounted to only $20; paid the elder $12.50; paid the pastor $27 for traveling expenses; pastor's salary, $100; incidental expenses, $5.35; missions $5; total, $255 50. Our church is in a good condition and considered the leading church in Murfreesboro. We are having full congregations, though all the members do not attend owing to the cold weather. I will soon send in my list of subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN."

Rev. W. Lillard, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., writes: "My quarterly conference meeting was held on the 17th and 18th of January. Presiding Elder Bullington was on time. He preached at 2:30 p. m. on the 17th, after which the business was proceeded with; 22 members answered to the roll call. The conference was well pleased with Elder Bullington's ruling. On Sunday he administered sacrament to 65 and collected $10."

Rev. Spencer Kelly, of Wallisville, Chambers county, Texas, writes: "The following is a list of those who gave benevolent money last year: Alfred Cooper, $1; Wm. Sims, $1; John Olois, $1; Jesse Williams, $1; Joe Godfrey, $1; Tealie Gillis, $1; Washington Lewis, $1; Chas. Sims, $1; Noah Vincent, $1; Wm. Rivers, $1; Susan Louis, $1; John Douglass, $1; Peggie Louis, $1; Mattie Harris, 50c.; Sam Harris, 50c.; Clancy Cooper, 50c.; T. J. Douglass, $1. S. C. Gill, $1; Statshen Thomas, 50c.; Amos Bailey, 50c.; John Moore, $1; Annie Cooper. $4.50; Mentie Raymond, $4.10; Martha Southens, $1.75; Ed. Louis, 50c.; Stephen Lonis, 50c.; Cloor Mazes, $1.40; Maggie Harrison, 50c.; Andrew Johnson, 50c.; Nolession Ramond, $1; Wm. White, 50c.; Maggie Kelly, $2; Maudy Ribou, 60c.; Laura Bovar, 40c.; Noah Louis, 55c.; Dohlt Mays, $1; Hines Mays, $1."

Letters From the Laity.

B. L. Hale, New Orleans, La., writes: "We are all alive as yet, and another glorious time we had winding up our conference year last night, at Wesley Chapel M. E. Church; the Lord's supper was delivered and a glorious time it was, 240 communed with us last night, the Lord was with us, and a glorious time we had. I thought at one time the dove was out from home or he was afraid to show up at old Wesley. It was delivered by Rev. M. Dale, assisted by Rev. A. Ross and others.

D. J. Price, Esq., of Allen, La., writes: "Our work on Allen circuit, which consists of four churches: first Hason church, situated at Allen, membership 71; second, Mt. Moriah church, situated near Jordan's Ferry, membership 15; third, St. Paul church, situated four miles northwest, membership 5; fourth, Union church, situated at Marthaville Station on N. O. P. R. R., membership 20; total, 111. Our new pastor, J. H. Pierre, was warmly received, happily and freely congratulated by all, arrived here on Feb. 4th; since that time he has been to each point on the above circuit. We concur with the recent session of the Louisiana Conference held at Baton Rouge, La., and thank Almighty God and the Conference for sending us such a lively, active and intelligent a pastor as Rev. J. H. Pierre. I, being a recording steward of said circuit, co-worker with the pastor, J. H. Pierre, can truly say to all that Bro. Pierre is of excellent eloquence, ability and a true up-builder for Jesus Christ our Lord. He has under his charge ten local preachers and 2 exhorters; names of local preachers: Jack Abbott, D. Atkins, H. Brown, P. C. Coltou, Robert Emmette, Wm. Emmette, D. Lewis, Chas. Mack, D. J. Price, and Edmond Wilks; exhorters: Ed Carr and Loudon Burrill. At Hason Chapel we have 6 trustees, viz: H. Brown, Ed. Carr, Ned Calhoun, John Gaunt, Alf, Henry and D. Lewis. At Mt. Moriah 3, viz: D. Atkins, A. Bendingfield, P. Eshack. At St. Paul 3, viz: H. Henton, Sr., H. Henton, Jr., and W. Diggs. At Union 2, viz: E. Johnson and V. S. Lewis. We have 5 stewards at Hason, viz: H. Brown, district; P. C. Coltou, H. Davis, Robert Emmette, D. J. Price, recording. At Mt. Moriah 2, P. Eshach, A. Bendingfield. At St. Paul, none, and at Union 2, J. Abbott and A. Johnson. At Hason there are three classes: No. 1, Robt. Emmette, leader, members, 28; No. 2, D. J. Price leader, members 20; No. 3, Ha. Davis leader, members 18. At Mt. Moriah, 2; No. 1, P. Eshack leader, members 9; No. 2, A. Bendingfield leader, members 6. At St. Paul 1; Henry Henton leader, members, 5. At Union 8; No. 1, Lamar Geare leader, members 10; No. 2, Chas. Mack leader, members 8; No. 3, V. Louis leader, members 7. Superintendent of Sunday-school at Hason, P. C. Coltou; assistant, Wm. Emmette; at Mt. Moriah, D. Atkins; at St. Paul, H. Henton, Sr.; at Union, A. Johnson. Pary that this work may do well this year, with our beloved pastor, J. H. Pierre, as his way and walk, show him a true son of God."

W. R. Wilkison writes: "At the request of Bro. T. Edward, I held the Centennial Jubilee at Shiloh, December 22st, and took a collection amounting to $11.65. The presiding elder desired the money sent to Houston Seminary, but the church having witnessed the good work done by a few of Wiley University boys, unanimously requested that in be sent to Dr. R. S. Rust for Wiley University. We intended to have taken a collection here but as the presiding elder, and the writer were absent nothing was done at Red Top. As the weather has been so very unfavorable since, we have made no further effort. Bro. Wm. Allen, who is pastor of this work has just got his family here. Though the future appears gloomy, he is as a gallant hero, making preparations for gathering together the "strayed away sheep," and making secure the more faithful members who have been trying to hold the fort till he came. The writer has been here three months as teacher of the public school, of this town. Though his situation is poor and the weather bad, the people express themselves highly pleased with the discipline of the school and teaching. Our community is a "hundred and ten strong," and bids fair to be one of the leading schools in the county. Several people here would take your paper were it not for the word "unable" standing between the hand and the dollar. However I'll continne to try during these two months, to get you a few subscribers in this country. The SOUTHWESTERN has made me a better Christian and has confirmed my desire to be "out and out" for Christ.

The Right Way.

A COLORED MAN'S VIEWS ON THE RACE PROBLEM OF THE DAY.

To the Editor of the Mobile Register:

According to promise, I proceed to give some additional attention to the question regarding the future condition of the Negroes of the South. It is to me and to many others, I believe, a very easy question to settle. The history of the world shows that the hand of God is visible in the problem, if it amounts to one; and to me it seems the only point sought by some of the writers is to give quiet to their troubled minds.

The plain duty of these men is to prepare the Negro for his future, and the same means which have made the now powerful Saxon race what it is should be placed at the easy disposal of the Negroes.

For it is a matter of history that in the early ages of Britain, barbarism and ignorance held sway. Gregory the first had to send missionaries to convert them to Christianity. Such was their state in A. D. 542.

Take the Greeks. At one time they lived in caves, and so continued until they learned of the Egyptians how to build houses. And yet that same race developed in science and art so rapidly that Greece became the centre of the then known world, and in its language was written the Gospel of Christ, which tells the true way to settle the Negro question.

If then all men have had to be cultured, is it not reasonable to conclude that the Negro will at least show the same degree of impressability that other races have done. Aid can be given and ought to be given to raise the Negro to the dignity of true manhood, leaving questions of the future to be settled in the future.

No one doubts for a moment that we need good education, and all say we we ought to have it. In accordance with this feeling, liberal means have been devised, but few of us are able to use them. Why? Simply because we are too poor. This is a sad misfortune, but not our fault. Travel over the Southern States, with its millions of wealth, and tell why to day we are comparatively panpers. It is true that with the war came freedom—the gift of God—but not a dollar in payment of our hard years of labor was paid us with which to start in life. In a Bible sense we had been the ox which trod out the wealth of the whole country, and it is said "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn." Let me leave this point to the sober honest thought of the Southern men who claim to be Christians.

When the question of educating us comes up for consideration it is recoguized that our co-operation is needed. The colored people are like all others; they want their own teachers, ministers and leaders. Instead we are given white instructors, who impart book learning, but cannot on account of race differences, help looking upon us as inferiors. It is the school teacher who is to bear an important part in solving the problem, and he must be of our race. Not only will such an one sympath'ze and encourage us to lofty aims, but the fact that the honorable occupation of teaching is open to colored youth, will stimulate them to greater exertion. At present after acquiring an education there is no place for the colored youth. The teachers' places are occupied by white people.

The result of this system is that those Negroes who have developed their brain power, and can even handle other languages than that to which they are native, have not received any sympathy, have no fixed aim in life, are deficient in courage and stability, and many fall an easy prey to vice and go down hill in the race for life. If this great stumbling block were removed, it would tell wonderfully in the near future.

It may and will be said that colored teachers are not fully qualified to take charge of our schools. We answer emphatically they are. An advertisement in the paper will bring all the men and women needed.

Nothing will help us more to provide for our future than to treat this question in its true bearing on the race issue. We love the South. It is our home. We know no other, and we are not to blame for being here. Her people, many of them, feel near to us. We have nursed and cared for them in our arms and at our breast.

Do you owe us nothing? When the war began, its devastation and masters had to leave home and all that was dear, who stood by and made the crop? Who lied to the Federal soldiers, hid your silver and valuables, ran your fine stock into swamps and other places of safety? It was your trusty slaves. At no time, so far as I have heard, was insolence, much less indignity, offered to any white family or to a single member. With all that is said of the race, it must be admitted that the Southern people should show kindness at least and help us to do our own work.

The plan which will succeed is easy. It will cost money and large amount, but it can be got. A high school for colored boys and girls can be established in every city in the South, and if the matter was undertaken in the proper spirit, men at the North, and women too, would help pay the running expenses. A few hundred dollars spent by the city for schools of a better grade would save the colored boys who are going to ruin, and at the same time greatly lessen the police and judicial expenses of the community.

We have friends among the white people. They are willing to see us rise up in the race for life, and have done and still are doing what they can to help us. Put the matter on the right line, however, and abundant success will crown your efforts and ours.

Death is a reality—irresistible, inevitable.

It is the lot of all men, the natural transition from mortal existence to immortal life; and yet, at times, it would seem as if God, in His Providence, subjects us to the sorest trials by calling from our midst the brightest ornaments of human society, the fairest flowers, the most consummate genius, the mightiest intellects amongst mankind at the very moment that they have reached the fullness of their glory and have become the pride of humanity and the hope of this world.

Before 200,000 white rebels are paid from the Union treasury for the loss of slaves, 4,000,000 black Unionists have a right to file a lien on every acre of land South of Mason & Dixon's line. They made the South all that it was and is; they have never received a tithe of their just dues. What wonder that our brother is needy to-day?

Self respect has been engendered; ambition awakened; industry promoted; frugality stimulated; every social and moral virtue has arrived under the sun of a new hope. The freedman is not a tramp. Rarely is he a beggar. Even more rarely is he a criminal. He is inventive in his nature; domestic in his habits; religious in his instincts.

Philadelphia Letter.

BY J. D.

The influence of the Centennial Conference lately held in our neighboring city of Baltimore has been felt in all the regions round about, and I suppose is destined to have its pulsations felt to the remotest bounds of our common Methodism. We of the East have been greatly interested in the project of securing a female college under church auspices, and I am glad to write the idea is fast assuming practical shape. It was decided by those interested that $200,000 would be needed for this work, and already $135,000 have been secured and the indications are that the remaining $65,000 will be obtained soon, notwithstanding the financial depression we are laboring under at present. The higher education of many of our daughters under "home" auspices is thus an assured fact, and Methodism adds another link to the chain which binds it to the progressive spirit of the age.

Our city has a great many suffering for the necessaries of life, and the question of the best means of helping the poor has become a very practical problem in social life. Christianity in these times needs to be removed from the merely theoretical and placed among the practical forces of the world's redemption. There is an undenominational society with as that labors with diligence in the work of relieving the poor, and the fiftieth anniversary of the society held at our Arch Street Church showed how warm a place it has won, and presided in the affections of our people. The report of the managers was full of good news, showing that during the past year $5,005 had been received, and $4,441.84 had been paid out. Notwithstanding that $440.80 more was expended than received, the society still has $560.28. During the year the agents of the society distributed 1708 packages of food, 498 tons of coal, 574 orders for groceries, 410 pairs of shoes, 721 articles of clothing, and provided medicines for 157 cases of sickness, and also aided a great many to secure work. Surely this is a display of the Spirit of the Master, and is clear proof of the power of our holy Christianity in visiting the sick, clothing the naked and feeding the hungry.

For years our city has been in need of a hospital erected by the M. E. Church. Other denominations not so wealtyh as we have found this a valuable aid in securing reinforcements for their various organizations. Many of our wealthy members have become aroused to the importance of such a help, and steps have been taken to secure a charter for such an institution. The Board of Trustees is to be composed of ten clergymen and eleven laymen, and the names of those announced to serve until May, 1885, afford excellent grounds for a speedy and safe completion of the work entrusted to their care. Caring for the physical condition in the way of mercy will afford ample opportunities to minister to the mind diseased and direct the patient to the Physician of souls which we doubt not will be eagerly seized by those in attendance. There has lately been an attempt made to repeal the license necessary to enable any one to sell liquors in our public park, and permit free and unrestrained sale of intoxicating beverages. Our ministers have taken steps to prevent such a course, and have petitioned our State Legislature against the movement, deeming it inimical to the public welfare and damaging to the public morals. The result of the petition is yet to be seen but many hearts are praying that, like many other checks to immorality, it will prove successful and save us from the deluge of vice that would necessarily flow in upon us were the barriers once removed. The contest against vice in many forms is being actively waged, and the reports are decidedly encouraging showing that "revivals" among Methodists have not become, as many would have us suppose, one of the "lost arts" of the Church. All agree the year has been a remarkable one in our midst, and the minutes will show a decided increase in members and probationers. Some of our revivals recall the days of the Moody and Sankey meetings in our midst. Especially is this true of our Fifth Street Church. The pastor, aided by his officials, have been holding protracted services for some time past. Thus far over 150 have made profession of religion, and the work still continues. These revivals serve largely as an effective check against the skating rink craze now possessing the people, and serve to call a halt and urge their attention to matters of culture and religion. May the good work long continue.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Character.—II.

BY REV. GEO. W. WELLS.

Look at a man of business, prompt, reliable, conscientious, yet, clear headed and energetic. When do you suppose he developed all these admirable qualities? When a boy. Let us see how a boy of ten years gets up in the morning, works, plays, studies, and we will tell just what kind of a man he will make. The boy that is too late at breakfast, late at school, stands a good chance to be poor. The boy who neglects his duties, be they ever so small, and then excuses himself by saying "I forgot, I didn't think," will never be a reliable man, and the boy who finds pleasure in the sufferings of weaker things will never be a noble, kind, generous man—a gentleman, a man of character. Good character is a tree that always bears fruit of joy. It is success, and grace of movement, what oil is to machinery. On the other hand suspicion, and questionable repute, is to man what rust, and exposure is to the elements of the easy, even, smooth, velocity of machinery.

The most pitiable, and melancholy individual in a community is the man with blasted character. If the subject is a minister, how crushing, how chilling, how sickening. It is like pulling, or swiming with a mill-stone about one's neck. If this smart thing is accomplished by the machinations of the ill disposed, frauds, supplanters, and pit diggers, the damnation of such, is full. A wounded reputation is seldom cured; guard well your beginning in life.

The influence which we exert will be a blessing or a curse to unborn generations, according as it is good or bad. In that influence we have a record of what the men are, and have been; character is power. It is the midas that turns every thing it touches into gold; or mildew that turns life into death. It is the greatest element of success, commanding respect and power in every department of labor. Franklin attributed his rise from the humble station of a printer's boy, to the first honors of his country, not so much to his talents as to his character. There is not a young man or woman living, or here to-day but that would gain for himself, herself, a worthy name. Every man ought to aim at eminence, not by pulling others down, but by raising himself, and enjoy the pleasures of his superiority, whether imaginary or real, without interrupting others in the same felicity. Where is the man who has not built air castles? Nor been enchanted with imagination's grand pictures? Even these castles may have an influence to inspire the mind to lofty aspirations. Everything finds its level. If a man has an element of character, he will rise in the respect and estimation of the people. He will be known and esteemed. It is this perfect development of character, that is to disclose to the world moral energies, and virtues that have been latent for ages. Young men, unknown possibilities are within our immediate grasp. If we would attain to useful prominence in the village or community, where our humble lot is cast we must use them.

Symposium of the Weeklies.

Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, 32 Natchez street, New Orleans, publishes a good paper in a difficult field. Many poor families down South would like this paper if they could afford to subscribe. Let some of our rich men send the editor a few dollars this New year time—it will be money well invested. At your expense, he can send the paper to many who he knows will appreciate and yet who are in need. $1.50 per year.—Exchange.

One of the greatest needs of the South is the education of its people in mechanical ways and means. —Baltimore Manufacturer's Record.

Secretary McCabe has been looking up tithes. He finds the value of the corn crop of the United States, of the wheat crop, and of the egg crop, according to the reports of the last year's productions, and then estimates the share of the 1,300,000 communicants of the Methodist Episcopal Church in each to be nearly $18,000,000. Every tenth bushel of wheat and corn and every tenth egg would make an offering of over $5,000,000, for the Lord's storehouse. These calculations are suggestive indeed. If there is so much to give, how is it that not even a twentieth finds its way to the mission treasury? The answer is worth considering.—Heathen Woman's Friend.

American Ahead.—Peculiar Characteristics of American Progress—The Evils and How Mastered.

In this age of bustle and hurry, an age devoted to great projects and enterprises, the American people are taking the lead in the duties of noble works, and in the advancement of the sciences and arts. In these they deserve to take a high rank, and through the united works of millions, the American continent is fast being transformed from its untamed state and being planted on an equality with the oldest countries beyond the ocean. The American people are fast, upon these influences developing into a nervous, energetic race, remarkable for its vim and business qualifications; yet there is danger that in the course of years these very elements may combine to the ruination of the physical character of the people, and leave them feeble and altogether different from their forefathers. General debility is now much more common than formerly, and seems to be on the increase among the masses. Many remedies have been extensively advertised for this wide-spread complaint, but none of these have been so successful or met with such general favor as the remedy manufactured by Dr. S. B. Hartman, and named by him PERUNA.

Mr. S. S. Goudy, of Massillon, Stark county, Ohio, writes: That he has been troubled with general debility and dyspepsia for several years; that he was induced to try PERUNA for his complaints, and that after using three bottles of the medicine he was greatly relieved. It braced him right up and gave him energy, and restored him to his youthful vigor. He ascribes his cure to PERUNA, and says it is a wonderful remedy.

Adolph Bakhaus & Co., Springfield, O., writes: "We are having a good sale for PERUNA. It sells as well as any medicine we have, and gives the very best satisfaction."

Mrs. G. W. Needham, Newtonville, Clermont County, Ohio, says: "I have been a great sufferer for the last six or seven years, with general debility and change of life. I was very much reduced. I have taken four bottles of PERUNA, which has restored me to perfect health and strength. We think PERUNA a safe and grand medicine."

The Little Rock Conference.

At 4 o'clock in the morning of Wednesday, February 17th, after a tedious ride of about 47 hours, a break down by the carriage which conveyed us from the depot, well jolted and thoroughly tired, we finally drove up in front of the always hospitable home of

REV. W. B. LANKFORD,

pastor, of Wesley Chapel, in Little Rock, Arkansas. Here we were soon refreshed, and in the peacefnl embrace of that dearest of visitors to weary travelers, the prince or restoratives—knight, morpheues monarch of all this nocturnal realm. Refreshing slumber, an early and elegant breakfast, such as Sister Elizabeth A. Lankford can prepare, and we were ont for a hasty glance at

WESLEY CHAPEL.

What a change since 1870, when in the early fall we arrived in this city to preach in old Wesley Chapel one Sabbath, and then hasten forward to the central and Southern section of the State to join Rev. W. J. Gladwin, then earnestly working there in connection with the Missouri Conference, to spread the borders of "our grand old Church." The Church was then a very small, and incomplete frame, now a handsome brick edifice, tabernacle form Gothic style, almost complete, adorns one of the most commanding sites in the whole city, surrounded by a little town, owned by the people, who compose its membership. The old heads with the old house are gone, but as in case of the house, so with the people, improvement in moral, and financial wealth marks the change. Bro. Thomas Harden, honest, earnest, and a true pioneer, the pastor has retired from the van and our polished host leads on the fourth army.

Elder Gilliam who then presided over the affairs of the district, has found a worthy successor in Rev. O. H. Smith, of Indiana. This State has furnished three of its honored sons for service here and they each perform it well.

William Leport, Esq., and Ann L. Richmond, Esq., are the wealthiest of our Negro members, both are first class mechanics; the first is worth $20,000 to $30,000; the last, $5,000 to $10,000. Each owns several houses in the city and both are valuable helpers in the work of the Church as officials.

For some reason this church has not enjoyed the prosperity its position and merits demand in late years. At least three different congregations have been formed out of it, and each forming part of another denomination. It is to be hoped that when it next swarms the result will be another Methodist Episcopal congregation in the city.

NEGRO LADIES.

Mrs. Margie Leport, is president of the Women's Home Missionary Society in the city and is commended for fine qualities, and excellent fitness to fill the position. Mrs. Lottie Stephens, a graduate of Oberlin University, ten years a teacher in the public schools, of Little Rock, female superintendent, of our Sunday-school at Wesley and an exemplary member of the same Church, is secretary. Both of these ladies are members of this Church, and think the recognition given them by their selection to fill the important stations they hold is eminently fitting, and give honor to the head and heart of the ladies by whom they were chosen.

If the Negro woman in her abjectness and moral abasement is to be effectually reached, not only precept bnt example must be applied as well. Every one, the Negro woman included, admits the ability of white women to climb to the heights of moral perfection, aided as they are by every elevating quality, and revered by men of cultivated and studied gallant, and chivalric attentiveness to their wants. Denied much, most and in some cases, and in many places all of this, the Negro woman must have, not only teaching, but proof of her ability to arise, and climb to these heights also. She needs an object lesson, such as only enlivated, pure women of her own race, who have climbed these heights can give her. Such a lesson is supplied in the person of these ladies, and therefore, the value of the appointment. God and the Church send them to us in some way and more, and more and in every place.

As with the women, so also is it with the men in this particular, hence the correctness of the declared, and a thousand times reiterated purpose of our church to prepare Negro teachers, preachers and doctors, to preach, teach and practice among them, thus elevating their own race. It is a heaven inspired, God ordained service she has assnmed, and if faithfnlly adhered to by her administrators until it shall everywhere prove to be the prevailing practice, hers will be the proud plandit of having done and achieved most in fitting a race of chatles to be a race of men. "The Lord hasten it in His day."

PHILANDER SMITH COLLEGE

Is the institution of this Conference for colored people, we are admonished to say, not for colored people, but for Methodist people, the former would be strictly and wholly true and the latter is. So it should be, any effort to have it otherwise, would simply result in not having it at all. The Church may be fully ready to blot out all lines and mix things generally, but the people, whom the Church serves, and is to benefit, is not yet ready in any extensive degree to go so far as this, nor is it at all needful to the accomplishment of the work we have taken in hand to do that which they shou'd do. This is a good school well built in a healthy locality, not large enough to accommodate those who are now in, and yet, to be brought to it.

The teaching force is a good one. Rev. Thomas Mason, a genisl, kind hearted gentleman, alive to his work, abreast of the times, and thoroughly in earnest, is its president. He has been there three years, and has seen the enterprise grow and grow upon his hands until now 130 pupils answer to the call of as able and efficient a corps of teachers as we believe probable we should find elsewhere within the State. Prof. H. R. Pinkney, a black scholar, and a gentleman viewed from any standpoint, fully competent to fill any position within the Institution, so far as we are capable of jndgment, comes next to the president. Next is Miss Anna. DesElms, of Ohio, a pleasant young lady, teacher of the primary department. Mrs. Florilda Craig, teaches vocal music to all free, and instrumental, by special arrangement. Mrs. E. A. Lankford, of Port Gibson, Mississippi, a graduate of Oberlin University, Ohio, teaches also in this Institution and reports 32 pupils with a daily enrollment of 29.

ADELINE SMITH INDUSTRIAL HOME.

This department is exactly what its name signifies. We went through and we are pleased, both with the home, the lady in charge of it and her management of its affairs. The building is a wooden structure, very imposing, yet modest in its general arrangement. Mrs. Adeline Smith, wife of Mr. Philander Smith, was the large hearted benefactress, whose philanthropy took this practical form. Miss E. H. McIntosh, of Syracuse, New York, has charge here and teaches besides all arts of house, and kitchen keeping, also sewing and needle work of various kinds. An order of neatness abonnds every where. We went throngh the rooms for girls, and we can testify to the good order generally prevailing, two rooms conld not be kept better. The bread made by the students, for they are learned to cook, was fine. We are sure we understand when we have good bread, we called for and ate of this and we can recommend it as sure cure of dispepsia or any form of indigestion, if enough of it is taken.

LITTLE ROCK UNIVERSITY.

In the same city, is not only a fine affair, bnt a monument to the breadth, of view and liberality of purpose, which distinguishes the efforts of our Church to reach and care for the wants of all the people. Prof. E. S. Lewis, A. M., of Boston, Mass., graduate of Boston University, is the president; J. P. Ellis, class of 1880, same university, is vice-president; Miss I. J. Brooks, of Iowa, and W. H. Waterhouse, of Wisconsin, complete the list of teachers. It is said at present to have abont 80 pupils. It is a fine structure, well provided with needful apparatus, and is in snccessful operation.

Books are needed for these, as well as for all our institutions here in the South, but they must be wisely selected and carefully culled as to doctrines, else in building up libraries, we shall demolish sound doctrines. A few good books are of far more value than crowded shelves of trashy stuff donated by persons, who are sometimes thankful to be rid of an accumulated mass of useless literary rubbish. There is a large field, and every useful, helpful book in any way secured for these schools, brings with it a blessing for both the giver and receiver.

VAN BUREN

Is a neat little village, a former Indian travel post in Northern Arkansas, six miles ftom the Indian territory border. Fort Smith has supplanted in it large measure, as a traveling point, but it is still quite a busy little place. We have a small church here, highly situated on a hill, but blessed by the possession of an excellent pastor in the person of Rev. W. H. Crawford, delegate to the General Conference.

Prof. Mack, the public school teacher here, is a product of Philander Smith College, and is doing well; he sets a good table, and we were permitted to examine an extensive menn at his home, in company with a number of others, while sojourning here. Bro. and Sister Burke, with whom we had a pleasant home, will occupy a place in our grateful memory through the remnant of our life, for constant and tireless attention to Bro. Lankford and ourself, who were their guest.

THE CONFERENCE

was a fine session, many say the best they ever had. Its saddest feature was the retirement of Bro. G. W. Sams, whose failing health demanded rest, and recreation. Father Thompson, the African Missionary, still answers to his name upon the effective list. W. R. R. Duncan, is a young man, of pleasing address, who for the first time assumes the responsible duties of presiding elder. It is thought he will make a good one. It is a small conference, but presents a hopeful appearance.

Rev. O. H. Smith, the presiding elder, of Little Rock district is a pleasant, competent, frank, consistent gentleman, such as it is refreshing to meet and he gives promise of a useful career for the Church in his new sphere. The duty well understood by all, and which we are sure and gratified to learn, will be faithfully performed by all his ministerial brethren, is to lay to a hand and aid him in making this a grand and effectual year of toil.

Dr Simmons, editor of the American Baptist, is a brainy man and was the business end of the Industrial Conference here. He is a first-class chairman, and full of good humor. His training in political meetings renders his manners rather abrupt for any other sort of assemblies; but for this bluffness of manner we should pronounce him the best presiding officer we have met in any like assemblage.

Personal.

—The post office address of Rev. Wm. Gatewood is Sturgis, Miss; of Rev. L. J. S. Bell, Quitman, Miss.

—Senator Jas. G. Fair donated a building and site worth $12,000 to the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society of San Francisco.

—D. O. Jones, wife and son, of Oshkosh, Wis., were in the city last week attending the Exposition, and called.

—Rev. Richard G. Hobbs, pastor Trinity M. E. Church, Quincy, Ill., expects to be in New Orleans in three or four weeks.

—Henry George has been refused the use of Guildhall by the Mayor of London for a lecture on the subject of trade depression.

—The Earl of Aylesford, one of the largest of Texas land-owners, died at Big Springs, Texas, Jan. 14. The remains were sent to England.

—A wealthy furniture dealer in Bombay, India, has recently offered $10,000 for the establishment of a dispensary for women and children, to be superintended by lady physicians.

—Miss Cleveland, the future mistress of the White House, is said to possess the rare faculty of never forgetting a face or the name that goes with it.

—The London World states that Prince Albert Victor, the Prince of Wales' elder son, before settling in England, will make a tour of Europe, the United States, and Canada.

—Prince Bismarck makes the foreign office cost only $1,400,000 a year, while those of England and France cost $3,000,000 each. His own private fortune is said not to exceed $500,000.

—M. Jules Grevy seems to be a humorist. When a deputation of unemployed workmen approached him the other day, he exclaimed: "What grumblers you fellows are! Look at me. I haven't a stroke of work to do, and do I complain!"

—By her marriage, the Princess Beatrice will become sister-in-law to the Prince of Bulgaria, and, curiously, sister-in-law to her own niece, the daughter of the Princess Alice, who is married to the elder brother of Beatrice's betrothed.

—Mrs. Lelia Fuller Jones, wife of Mr. A. B. Jones, and daughter of the late E. Q. Fuller, D. D., of Atlanta, Ga, died in Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 16. Mr. Jones is an officer in the Civil Service under the Government, and son of the Rev. Wm. Jones, of the Central New York Conference.

THE CUSTOM HOUSE.

We will wend our way down Camp street to Canal street, the place we started from, and down Canal until we come to the United States Customhouse. This building is bounded by Canal, Decatur, Customhouse and St. Peter streets. Its foundation is laid twenty-five feet below the surface of the sidewalks, and this immense excavation is filled with solid granite. Its walls are four feet in thickness and rise grandly ninety-two feet above. This great oblong square is surrounded by an artificial stone pavement eighteen feet broad, which sets the structure off to great advantage. The post-office is on the ground floor and occnples one-half of it, while the appraisors and superintendent of bonded warehouses occupies the other half. The visitor should not fail to give these places a call. We will try to give a description of the hidden beauties of this wonderful building. The main entrance is on Canal street, and the second floor is approached by two sets of beautiful white marble stairways, each consisting of thirty-nine steps. These stairways are broken into three parts. The first flight is composed of fifteen steps on each side where you meet with a rest seven feet wide. The second flight is composed of fourteen steps and a rest exactly like the first flight. The third flight is composed of ten steps, which nshers yon into the magnificent vestibnle of this huge granite building. The vestibule is supported by six colossal columns four feet in diameter; chastely tinted after the fashion of the American ideal of the Composite Order, and are fifty-five feet high. The vestibule has two wings which lead to the various offices of the heads of departments. All around the marble hall, which we will soon attempt to describe, is a corridor fifteen feet wide inlaid with mosaic pavement composed of black and white marble squares. The marble hall is entered by three doors, viz: from the vestibule and two opening into the corridor. It is snpported by fifteen columns six feet in diameter of the, composite order, and they tower toward heaven sixty-five feet. The floor of the marble room is also inlaid with the black and white marble mosaic pavement, with the exception of six huge circular windows made of green glass. These windows are twelve inches in thickness, six feet in diameter and transmit light to the offices on the first floor. The light is obtained from the dome of the hall, which is bell shaped, and is likewise made of glass. This princely chamber contains all the clerical forces of the collectors of customs, internal revenue, naval and surveyor of customs. Any one having business with one or more of these departments can transact it without having to climb stairs or to wander from office to office; besides, there is always a messenger in attendance so that you can be put in direct communication with the chief of each department in a few seconds. The United States subtreasurer's office and vaults are also on the floor of the second story, and are models of aesthetic and chaste architecture, and a visit to these chambers will amply compensate for the time spent. The United States court-room and the office of the United States District Attorney are located on the second floor and overlooks Canal and Decatur streets. The court room is a magnificent temple, spacious and airy; all of its furniture is in keeping with the character of its sombre grandeur. We will now invite the stranger on the roof of the Customhouse, which is flat, with sufficient declivity to shed water. He looks out as far as the eye can reach. What wonderful scenes are unfolded to his admiring gaze. Hamlets, villages, plantations and church spires on the other side of the great father of waters, while the mighty river is moving onward irresistably bnt majestically toward the Gulf of Mexico, recklessly spending more force than is required to turn all the cotton spindles in the world. He beholds a great forest of sail and steam vessels, the "swift winged messengers of commerce," hugging the shore. The flags of all nations greet the eye. The levee presents the appearance of a bee-hive; thousands of black and white toilers are busily engaged in storing in the capacious holds of vessels mountains of the fleecy staple that Adam Clark once thought was king, while thousands are unloading the commodities of every clime where civilized man has trod. As the stranger turns his gaze upon the city he beholds the habitations and business places of its two hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants. He beholds six hundred miles of streets and two hundred and eighty miles of street railways traversing them. He turns again, and he surveys a harbor sufficient to anchor the fleets of the entire world, varying from 60 to 180 feet in depth, and from 1,500 to 3,000 in width, and measures fourteen miles on either shore.

Protestantism Reviewed—II.

REV. MACK HENSON.

WHAT PROTESTANTISM EMBRACES.

Protestantism embraces all avowedly Christian bodies ontside of the Roman Catholic Church; Jews and Mormons, professedly rejecting Christianity, are excluded. Protestantism claims the Holy Scriptures as the complete and final word of religions truth, bnt that new and deeper discoveries of their meaning and power will be wronght ont by the progressive studies and experience of the Church. An eminent divine said, "I am confident that the Lord has more truth and light yet to break forth out of His Holy Word." The Protestant religion, considered as internal, spiritual, exercises between the individual and his God, with no priestly or hierarchical dependence. Instead of pompous rituals, each soul is thrown upon its God and the deep realities of life. It teaches that every burdened soul must bear its own weight to the foot of the cross. That he must seek and find for himself access to God, and in the spirit of adoption begotten by the Holy Ghost find satisfaction to meet the soul's deepest needs. American Protestantism has triumphed amid the fiercest opposition of foes within and without of powerful patronage. But it has gathered multitudes from the masses among all people. One feature of our times is entirely new, and therefore, experimental. Great questions are brought into the arena of investigation. In the United States, unlike the older countries, there are no conserving forces in the constitution of society holding men to the old faith, no old institutions, hereditary nobilities, state church, etc.; but everything is new.

REVOLUTIONS OF THOUGHT ON ROMANISM.

The revolutionizing tendencies of the times has invaded every department of thought and action. In the midst of these moral, religious tendencies, American Christianity has been called to experience severer tests than European Christianity, with its institutions environing and sustaining it. But American Protestantism has come forth from the refining fires of crucial opposition purer and grander. It has fought and traversed its way on the simple promises of God. "As thy days shall demand shall thy strength ever be." The religious population of Europe in 1500 were all Catholic, except the major portions of Russia, Turkey, Greece and the Ionian Isles, in which the Mohammedan and Greek religions prevailed. All combined were scarcely enough to count at all against the overwhelming odds of the papacy, were the only exceptions. 80,000,000 may be accepted as an approximate estimate of the papal population in Europe, and in the whole world, at the opening of the century which introduced the Lutheran reformation. Coming to our own times we find the population of Europe divided in respect to the different religions as follows: Roman Catholics, 149,000,000; protestants, 74,000,000; Greek Church, 75,000,000; Jews, 4,500,000; Mohammedans, 6,600,000. The condition of Romanism is quite different in France, Italy, Austria and Spain from what it was 35 years ago. The Pope in Italy, is shorn of his temporal power, and Protestant churches are erected under the very shadow of St. Peters.

PROTESTANTISM IN THE FIELD.

Protestantism has numerous missions in Catholic countries. Eight in Ireland, eight societies in France, in Italy, Sicily and Malta there are seven societies; in Portugal and Madeira there are nineteen, in Canada nine, in Mexico, Central and South America there are twenty-three societies. Has eighty-four distinct missionary movements among papal populations, and have more than 1,546 stations, and sustaining 1,499 ministers, and 2,146 lay agents, and have reported 95,920 communicants; and all of these missions are continually enlarging and others being established. The Protestant population has grown faster than the Roman population. In 1867 the Protestant was 24,921,000, the Catholic 14,564,000; in 1875, Protestants, 26,718,823; Catholics 15,371,227; these figures show a Protestant increase of 1,797,823 to a Roman Catholic increase of 807,227 in eight years. Roman Catholicism was predominant a hundred years ago in all the frontier provinces acquired by Prussia in the time of Frederick the Great. But German emigrants have propagated the Protestant faith in these districts; the condition is now changed; and less than 36 years ago the Roman Catholic Church in Mexico was the richest ecclesiastical establishment in the world, with a landed property and mortgages and rents worth $150,000,000, besides untold millions invested in cathedral church edifices of costliest construction, gold and silver vessels, etc. Church edifices in clergy [illegible] annual income of the archbishop being at one time $130,000, that of eight bishops $400,000.

THE DISPOSSESSMENT OF ROMAN

This vast and powerful establishment has received a stunning blow from which it can never recover. The inquisition, with all its horrors, existed until within a quarter of a century. The orders of Friars, Nuns, Sisters of Charity and Jesuits have all been abolished in Mexico, and the magnificent churches and convent buildings formerly occupied by these orders have been offered for sale by the general government. Since 1861 Protestantism has taken firm foothold, establishing 23 principal mission stations, 88 sub-stations, 52 ordained missionaries, 36 lay helpers, and about 8,700 communicants, and 16 Bible and tract depositories, all protected by the government. The Protestants have opened an immense region from the Alleghanies to the Pacific, and almost entirely occupied it since the year 1800. At that date there were probably less than 200 church organizations in this vast area, or about 2,000,000 square miles, exclusive of Alaska. This vast region has developed upon the lines of Protestant Christianity, and numerous communities and religious institutions have sprung into existence under the watch-care of Christian civilization. In the year 1880 there were in the United States [illegible] territory 37,366 Protestant church organizations, with 30,067 church edifices, valued at $67,183,

CENTENARY BIBLICAL INSTITUTE.

Centenary Biblical Institute.

The above is a cut of the Centenary Institute. This Institute is a monument to the Christian generosity of Dr. J. F. Goucher, a revered minister in the Baltimore Conference, Dr. Wm. Frysinger, J. Emory Rounds and Prof. T. B. Snowden, the latter colored, are the principal members of its faculty. There are six teachers in all, of whom three are colored, and one of them a lady. We call this practical and essential equality. The building, a handsome, massive structure, situated on a commanding site in the heart of Baltimore city. It is a great favorite with, and draws its pupils from the Delaware and Washington conferences, although, through some mistaken idea of utility, for a time a number of the youths of our people were led away to Lincoln, in Pennsylvania. The patrons of this institute are chiefly our white ministers and members in the Baltimore and contiguous conferences. It is under the control of the Freedmen's Aid Society, and a Methodist Episcopal Church institution.

The Progress of Civilization.

BY JAMES T. NEWMAN, M. D., NEW ORLEANS.

Second Paper.

Gold and silver are merely the representatives of wealth, and money is of no value or use, excepting to measure and circulate the riches of a people, and wealth itself consists of the value that skill and labor can impart to raw material. If commerce were entirely free, its advantages would be shared by all nations that engage in it. In the absence of monopolies, the benefits of trade are necessarily reciprocal. So far from depending on the amount of gold or silver received, they evidently spring from the facility with which a country parts with those commodities it can produce most easily and cheaply; receiving, in return, those articles it can only produce with great effort and expense; but which can be produced by some other nation or nations, readily and abundantly, by the superior skill of their workmen, or by the bounty of nature within their borders, and, therefore, afforded at lower prices.

Among an entirely ignorant people, the rapidity with which wealth is created will be wholly regulated by the physical peculiarities of their country. After the wealth will have been capitalized, other causes intervene. Before this, however, progress will arise from, first, the energy and regularity of labor, and, second, from the bounty of Nature, stimulated by labor.

Climate and soil affect both labor and its products. Early civilization has always been confined to the tropics, or their immediate vicinity; because, in the earlier ages, man could only clothe himself in the simplest material, and it was, therefore, necessary for him to live in a comparatively hot climate, and he had only the means of cultivating the earth with the rudest implements, and these would have produced little in a cold and sterile region.

Agriculture, to be successful, demands a genial clime and a rich soil; for industry is irregular and cramped, and useful production is intermittent, in either a very hot, or a very cold country. Wages being the price of labor, the rate of wages, like the price of all other commodities, will vary with the market value of production. If the supply of laborers be greater than the demand, wages will be low; but if the demand for labor be greater than the supply of laborers, then the price for labor will rise. The question of wages is a question of population.

Food is the most active and general physical agent by which the increase of the laboring classes is affected. If in one country the national food be abundant and cheap, and, in another, it be scarce and dear; in the former, the population will always increase more rapidly than in the latter, and the rate of wages will be the lowest where the population augments most rapidly. Two effects are produced by food, viz.: First a supply of animal heat; second, a repair of the waste of the animal tissues.

Animal temperature is maintained by food that does not contain nitrogen, but that does afford an abundance of carbon, and our bodily waste is repaired by the consumption of food, of which nitrogen is a constituent. In the former character of nutriment, the carbon combines in the blood with the oxygen we breathe, and creates an internal combustion, efficient to renew our animal heat. In the latter kind, the nitrogen and oxygen, having little affinity, the nitrogenous food is not liable to combustion, and is, therefore, devoted to the purpose of repairing the waste caused by the constant removal of effete matters from all parts of the body.

Animal heat is more readily retained in hot than in cold climates, and the physical effort being greater in the latter than in the former, and the waste of tissues correspondly greater, a smaller amount of nitrogenous, and, also, of carbonized food, is required in the former than in the latter. These are the two great divisions of food. In cold climates, man requires more air as well as more food than in hot latitudes. He there breathes deeper and more rapidly, and nature demands food that contains a plethora of animal oils; because in in these is obtained the excess of carbon necessary to combine with the extra oxygen inhaled, and thus an increased internal combustion is afforded, to supply the extra heat demanded. Man there craves the blubber and oils of the whale, and the oils of the seal, the walrus and the polar bear; while in the tropics, his appetite is for farina, fruits, and succulent vegetables; all of which contain an excess of oxygen. Oxygen and carbon combine only in certain definite proportions, and when the air is condensed by cold, and respiration is accelerated by the same cause, the function of breathing consumes far more oxygen than under any other atmospheric condition and therefore, the food must then be proportionally carbonized.

The animal oils contain about six times as much carbon as do the fruits, grains and vegetables; but they have very little oxygen, while the starch of vegetables—their most common and nutritious principle—has nearly fifty per cent of oxygen. As a general rule, the colder a country is, the more highly will its food be carbonized, and the warmer it is, the more it will be oxydized. Highly carbonized food is much more costly than food in which there is little carbon. The fruits of the earth are very abundant, and in these, oxygen is the most active principle, and in these, oxydized food may be obtained with little labor and without danger, in the sub-tropical countries, where it grows almost spontaneously.

The highly carbonized animal oils desired and used as food in very cold climates, and there necessary to life, are only secured by man through great physical labor, exposure to the rigors of a very low temperature, and great risks to life. The fat of the polar bear, the blubber and oil of the whale, and the oils of the seal, the walrus, and of powerful and ferocious animals, are not spontaneous productions, freely offered, and to be readily and safely gathered or drawn at will. Even in the infancy of society, nations that live where the coldness of the climate requires them to use a highly carbonized diet, exhibit a bolder and more adventurous spirit, engendered by effort and exposure to danger required in securing food and clothing, than do the people who subsist on the oxydized food so easily obtained in the tropics.

In the polar latitudes, the transition from winter to summer is abrupt and springless, and man and vegetation alike suffer from the sudden change. Perfection of intellectual growth requires a proper succession of the seasons. The absence of real spring and autumn dooms a want of taste and genius, and loyalty is ever defective where there is neither true winter nor genial summer. In the polar latitudes there is no real night in summer, and no real day in winter, and the equality of day and night is constantly modified as we travel from the equator. In the polar regions, animals generate a full supply of heat, by means of a superabundance of their own fats, and they retain it by means of their own furs. Within the tropics where the heat is intense and oppressive, all living creatures are thinly clad; while the few animals found within the arctics are heavily clothed in their own furs and fats. Nature has either produced the animals that generate and preserve an abundance of heat, within the cold latitudes, and the lean and naked within or near the tropics, or all have wandered to congenial homes, or been forced there by storm or sunshine.

We are in receipt of the Year Book of the Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J. Reports a fine list of students and the school in a prosperous condition.

Sermon Sketches.

REV. W. D. GODMAN.

Theme—The Betrayal of Jesus.

Text—Matt. 26, 49: "And forthwith he came to Jesus and said, 'Hail Master,' and kissed him."

Introduction—This scene was enacted in Gethsemane, by night. It was the opening scene of the final tragedy in the earthly mission of God's Son. He was in a solitary place, engaged in prayer, preparing himself for the dreadful conflict. The appointed hour was come. He was ready. The traitor and the band of conspirators were at hand. Jesus said to his Disciples, "Rise, let us be going; behold he is at and that doth betray me." This is not the language of fear. It expresses no thought of flight. It announces the simple intention of the devoted Savior to go to his appointed suffering.

Let us consider:

I.—The betrayed.

II.—The traitor.

III.—The treason itself.

IV.—Its outcome.

I. The betrayed—a. He is God's Son, "only begotten," John 1, 14. b. He was "with God," John 1, 1; creator of the worlds, John 1, 3; "before Abraham," John 8, 58. c. Now He is "God manifest in the flesh," 1 Tim. 3, 16; "Son of man," Matt. 8, 20; "and hath not where to lay his head," Luke 9, 58. He is poor, despised, forsaken of his friends. How sharp the contrast! How vast the descent! how keen and intense the humiliation! He felt it bitterly. The woe was proportionate to the greatness and the purity of his nature. He prayed the Father to "let it pass;" yet said he, "Not as I will, but as thou wilt."

II. The traitor—a. He was a disciple of Jesus; b. he owed his good name and influence and even his bread to his association with Jesus; c. but he loved money, and was, at heart, a thief; John 12, 6; d. he distinguished himself among the disciples by his greed of money; e. he so much desired money that he planned the betrayal for its sake; f. he probably thought that Jesus would somehow escape the violence of his enemies, or would overpower them, and he should be able to enjoy his money; g. he was profoundly disappointed; and weary of so base a life, hanged himself; Matt. 27, 5.

III. The treason—a. It was the voluntary, deliberate wickedness of a bad man. There is no evidence that any one instigated or abetted it previous to his proposing to the priests; b. it was, at the same time, an act foreknown to God, and it formed a part of the preconception of the Messiah's work, Acts 1, 16-20; c. it was foreknown and provided for by Jesus himself, John 13, 18; d. wickedness does not cease to be wickedness because God knows it and over-rules it.

IV. Its outcome—a. It brought Judas to grief and everlasting disgrace; b. it led to the trial, condemnation and execution of Jesus; c. it was a link in the chain of providences whereby the redemption of the world was enacted.

The March Number of Harper's Magazine contains the third instalment of Miss Woolson's new story, "East Angels. The illustrated articles are "The House of Orange," by Professor W. T. Hewett; "A Glimpse of Some Washington Homes," by E. W. Lightner; "The Cape Ann Quarries," by Ellen Day Hale; "In an Old Virginia Town" (Fredericksburg,) by Frederick Daniel; and "The 'Tricks and Manners' of a Cat-bird," by Olive Thorne Miller. George William Curtis in the Editor's Easy Chair, treating of our representatives at foreign courts, draws attention to the truly American character of Mr. Lowell's address. The other editorial departments are, as usual, timely and entertaining,

The first edition of the February Century (18,000 copies) was sold within a week of the day of issue. A new edition of 20,000 is on the press, making a total of 200,000, with the prospect of a still further demand. A fifth edition of the November Century was issued on Monday.

Mr. Stephen A. Aplin, Washington, D. C., says: "A member of my family having been troubled for several years with kidney disease was induced to use your HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY, and has been completely cured."

ZION'S DAUGHTER CEASE THY WEEPING.

BY THE REV. F. BOTTOME, D. D.

Zion's daughter, cease thy weeping,
Shake thee from the slothful dust;
Rise, O rise! His promise keeping,
Lo, the Holy One and Just.
He, whom they, thy sires, mistaking
In their ignorance crucified.
Why wilt thou, their sin partaking,
Turn thee from His wounded side?

See the open fountain stream,
Bearing gladness everywhere!
Shall its healing waters gleaming;
Only flow to thy despair?
See, the nations old and hoary
Lift their heads in youthful smiles;
And the rising, spreading glory
Reaches to the distant isles.

Shall the covenant of blessing,
Spread to all the Gentile race,
And the sons of strangers pressing,
Seize on Jacob's dwelling place?
Shall the grafted branches flourish,
And the vine itself decay,—
Shall His hand the alien nourish
While He spurns the child away!—

O, when wilt thou, and sad lonely,
Stranger still in every land,
See that thy portion is only
Watching this thing gave His hand!
King and Kingdom thine the treasure,

Italy is the land of criminals, says the Director-general of Italian prisoners. It has 425 prisons with a constant average population of 40,000 offenders against the law. Of these more than 6,000 are murderers. No other nation in the civilized world has such a large proportion of criminals.

Gen. Stewart, commanding one of the divisions of the British army marching to the relief of Gen. Gordon at Khartoum, was met on the 20th by 10,000 of El Mahdi's troops. The British soldiers number 1,500 men, and were marching in a solid square when attacked. The Arabs fought fiercely, but were defeated, leaving 800 dead on the field. The British loss was seventy-four killed and ninety-four wounded. Among the killed was Col. Burnaby, author of the "Ride to Khiva."

A California man raised 5,400 pounds of black-berries on two acres of land this last season, which sold for $432. Roots taken from between the rows paid for cultivating the field, and it cost $100 to pick and market the fruit. Hence there was a net profit of $100 an acre.

The United Brothers of Friendship, of Kentucky, were organized August 1 1861. They now number in that State as follows: Lodges, 117; Temples, 77; Royal Houses, 21; Postmasters' Council, 10; Juvenile Temples, 11; Juvenile Lodges, 9. They are promising throughout the State." A Temple was organized at Paducah, Feb. 4, 1885, and a Juvenile one at Hopkinsville, by E. W. Glass, grand treasurer of the order, the same date.

What Ever Say.

"Women are so many times advertised for the hair," you say. So there are, but Parker's Hair Balsam is now one of them. It will not "work wonders," but it will do better service for your hair than anything else you can find. Restores original color, stops falling, keeps new growth. Elegantly perfumed. Not a dye.

Four hundred delegates from nearly all parts of Iowa met in temperance convention at Des Moines, Jan. 22, to consider measures to secure better enforcement of the prohibitory law. Resolutions were adopted denouncing the saloons, calling on the home, school and church to unite against the common enemy, calling for education as to the physical and industrial results of intemperance; declaring that political parties which desire the support of the Prohibitionists must take no backward step; calling upon the next general assembly [illegible] amendments, [illegible] to work for national prohibition.

THE PILLOW-INHALER!

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION.

TRADE MARK.

THE PILLOW-INHALER is one of the most effective inventions of the age. It does what never has been done before, viz.: batters down the stronghold of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption by a continuous application of Medicated and Curative Air to the diseased mucous membranes of the air-passages of the nose, throat and lungs.

A Radical and Permanent Cure.

Most people who have Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption have tried from one to a dozen different remedies without being cured. Why have they not been cured? Simply because what they took were not cures. How is a snuff to be got into all the intricate air-passages and in the blood (for Catarrh is a constitutional disease)? or, how will inhaling medicine for a few minutes a day dislodge the enemy from its stronghold of decaying tissue? Everybody knows that medicine taken in doses has very feeble effect on diseases of a pulmonary character. They have to take such a roundabout way to get into the blood that they miss their power. Yet after all there is an Absolute Cure, and that is the PILLOW-INHALER—a means of all-night or continuous inhalation. The testimony to its results is beyond all question, by the experience of thousands. The cures it has effected seem almost incredible. It is a comfortable pillow of soft hair, with receptacles in which is put the evaporating medicine, the fumes of which the diseased person inhales all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, without being annoyed and without noticing that he is taking medicine. There is no dosing the stomach, no douching or snuffing; but, just as a smoky lamp, during the whole night, will leave a thick deposit on a whitened wall, so the PILLOW-INHALER, for eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. It is a constitutional and local cure at the same time. The medicine is applied directly, like a salve, at the seat of the disease, besides going into the blood during its aeration. It is inexpensive and within the reach of every one. No matter what you have tried or how despairing you are, call and see it, or write for Pamphlet and Testimonials. Address,

SEED Warranted to Grow.

or order refilled gratis. I have sold vegetable and flower seed to over a million farmers and gardeners in the United States, perhaps some are your neighbors, if so ask them whether they are reliable. Mr. Thomas Henshall of Troy, Kansas, writes me: "For 26 years I have dealt with you. I have lived in Iowa, Missouri, Colorado, and Kansas, and no matter what the soil or climate, the result was always the same, to wit—religiously honest and good." This is the kind of seed I raise and sell. The Hubbard and Marblehead Squash, Marblehead Corn, Marblehead Cabbages, Ohio Potato, Eclipse Beet, are some of the vegetables of which I was the original introducer. A Fair with $500 in premiums. See my catalogue, free to all.

Sunday-School and Children.

FIRST QUARTER. STUDIES IN ACTS, A. D. 60. LESSON X. March 8. Paul before Felix. Acts xxiv, 10-27. Golden Text, Acts 24, 16.

HOME READINGS.

Monday—Paul before Felix, Acts 24, 10-27.

Tuesday—Tertullus's speech; Acts 24, 1-9.

Wednesday—Faith with chastisement; Heb. 12, 1-14.

Thursday—Good conscience; 1 Peter 3, 13-22.

Friday—Law of love; 1 John 3, 18-24.

Saturday—No fear of man; Daniel 6, 10-17.

Sunday—True worship; Psa. 29, 1-11.

QUESTIONS FOR HOME STUDY.

1. A good confession, v. 10-16.
   Before whom was Paul brought?
   What charges were preferred against Paul?
   How did Paul answer to the first charge?
   How does he reply to the second?
   In what did he profess belief?
2. A plain statement, v. 17-21.
   To what charge does Paul now reply?
   For what did Paul go to the temple?
   Whom did he say should have appeared against him?
   Of what was their absence a proof?
   To whom did Paul allude in verse 20?
   What only thing could they bring against him?
3. A long delay, v. 22-27.
   On what did Paul discourse?
   On what pretext did Felix postpone the case?
   Still later why did he leave him a prisoner?

PRACTICAL TEACHINGS.

How does this lesson show—
1. The advantages of a good conscience?
2. The advantage of right doing?
3. The advantage of the truth?

Doctrinal Suggestions—The power of conscience.

The removal of Prof. Sanborn of N. H., after being pronounced incurable by a score of physicians, from Las Vegas, N. M., to his home, was affected by administering Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, which has restored him to his former good health.

The Louisiana Conference, in its character and work, is a subject of growing interest to the general Church. The smallness of our benevolent collections last year as reported in our minutes is a cause of anxious concern to our friends. The time has come for us to make a vigorous and united effort to increase our benevolent collections. We earnestly hope that each pastor will move up in his collections to the amounts named above. Now is the time to put in operation earnest efforts to raise our fund for the New Orleans University and Gilbert Haven School of Theology. Begin with the beginning of the year, and push forward every interest of the Church.

Now is the time to secure subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN, and to push forward every interest of the Church. Let every one start out for a revival in every charge. Plan and put in operation valient efforts for our Centennial Jubilee fund for the Gilbert Haven School of Theology, and for all the the local and connectional benevolent enterprises of the Church, and let no one wait till the end of the year to be again hindered by rainy season or other unavoidable hindrance. Let us put forth our best efforts to accomplish more this year on the LaTeche District, in getting converts, in building churches and parsonages, in paying debts on the same, in collecting for our benevolencies, and in securing subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN than in any previous year.

Church Extension—Texas Conference.

To the Preachers and Presiding Elders of the Texas Annual Conference.—The Conference Board of Church Extension for the Texas Conference passed the following resolutions at their last meeting, and directed the secretary to forward a copy to Rev. A. J. Kynett, D. D., the Secretary, at Philadelphia, requesting him to return a statement of our standing that we might see how much we have to recommend for use this year. We have determined to abide by the resolution and if the pastors will not raise their assessments we will not recommend aid:

Whereas, The Conference collections fall far short of the small amount asked of this conference, we confess, with shame, our failure, and feel a deep sense of humility; therefore,

Resolved, That we will not recommend aid to these points that fail to collect their full assessment, and we will do all in our power to bring this work up to a good standard.

Resolved, That we ask no favors of the present Board beyond our rightful dues under the law of the Society, until we have fully met our obligations, and we ask the Secretary to furnish us a statement of our account so we may know just how to act; promising hereafter to keep our own accounts.

According to the direction of this Board I have acted, and received a statement from the Corresponding Secretary of our standing to date, showing applications already recommended from this Board since conference, and probably a short while before, when complied with, will overdraw the amount authorized by the General Committee by $301.53. The collections of 1884 have not yet come to his office, nor does he know where they are. So brethren, from facts and figures we have before us, we cannot recommend much more this year unless we do it under the head of special cases.

REV. H. WEBB, P. E., Pres't.
F. PARKER, Secretary.

New Light on Rheumatism.

"I had been completely disabled from rheumatism. I used Parker's Tonic for kidney disease, when to my astonishment the rheumatism completely disappeared.' So writes Mrs Henry Boger, of No. 454 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y. Rheumatism arises from the failure of the kidneys to seperate the uric acid from the blood.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. July 17-1y.

Those Who Doubt

Are cordially invited to read the following authentic and unsolicited Letters. We have many thousands. They come every day. All Ladies, well or ill, should wear these Corsets. They impart no "Shock" whatever, but a really delightful sensation.

NEWARK, N. Y., June 1.

Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets have entirely cured me of muscular rheumatism. It has also cured a severe case of headache and female troubles of eighteen years' standing. Mrs. L. C. SPENCER.

BROOKLIN, ME., June 23.

Dr. Scott—The Corsets I ordered six months ago have worn splendidly, and have given satisfaction every way. They are the best Corsets I ever wore, aside from their electric qualities, which are truly marvelous. I suffered greatly from rheumatism in my back and limbs, but your Electric Corsets have entirely cured me. They are better than represented. Mrs. J. B. BASSON.

HOLLIS CENTRE, ME., August 29.

I suffered severely from back trouble for years, and found no relief till I wore Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets. They cured me, and I would not be without them. Mrs. H. D. BENSON.

PEORIA, ILLS.

I suffered from kidney, liver and nervous troubles for twelve years. Dr. Scott's Electric Belt entirely cured me, after all other remedies had failed. His Electric Hair Brush has cured my neuralgia. C. W. HORNISH.

POSTPAID

MEMPHIS, TENN., November 25.

Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets have given much relief. I suffered four years with breast trouble without finding any benefit from other remedies. They are invaluable. MRS. JAS. CAMPBELL.

HENDERSON, TEX., August 17.

I tell my friends gold would not induce me to part with my Electric Corset and Hair Brush unless I could obtain others. MRS. S. P. FLANAGAN, Wife of Webster Flanagan, Real Estate Operator.

EAST PEPPERELL, MASS., June 26.

Here is my experience in wearing Dr. Scott's Electric Corset: I suffered untold pain in my back and sides, so much so that I dreaded lying down at night. I found no relief till wearing your Electric Corset. Since wearing them I have been almost entirely free from those pains. With much gratitude. ELIZA M. HOBART.

My sister suffered constantly with back and spinal trouble, so badly at times that she had to be lifted about. She put on one of your Electric Corsets on Monday, on the following Wednesday, much to our surprise, she was able to get around the house and superintend the cooking and domestic labor. She is now feeling well and is full of gratitude. MRS. S. J. HARPER, WESTON, O.

Dr. Scott's Genuine ELECTRIC CORSETS.

have established a deserved reputation beyond that of all other Corsets for comfort, elegance, durability, and excellence of material. In addition to all these advantages, they possess more Electro-Magnetism and thorough healing and invigorating power than any other Electric or Magnetic appliances on the market, however high priced. The adjoining cut represents our No. 2, or $1.50 Corset. Our other prices are $1.00, $2.00 and $3.00; nursing, $1.50, abdominal, $3.00. 25 cents extra for sizes above 30. The $2.00, $3.00 and abdominal Corsets are made of beautiful English sateen. All our Corsets are corded, double stitched, and have tipped steels and lock clasps, combined with our patent solid back spinal steels, through which the eyelets are riveted. For weak backs, spinal, kidney and liver troubles, rheumatism, and other weaknesses peculiar to women, our Corsets have no equal. A beautiful silvered compass with which to test their electro-magnetic power accompanies each Corset. OUR ELECTRIC INSOLES, price 50 cents per pair, should be worn together with our Corsets; astonishing results follow. Most of the above remarks apply equally to our Electric Belts for ladies and gentlemen. Price $3.00. (In ordering by mail, add 20 cents for postage.) State size of waist and mention this paper. Make all remittances payable to GEO. A. SCOTT, 842 Broadway N. Y. Dr. Scott's Electric Hair Brushes, $1.00, 1.50, 2.00, 2.50, 3.00.

No. 2. 1.50

CHAMBERSBURG, PA., October 9.

I found Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets possessed miraculous power in stimulating and invigorating my enfeebled body, and the Hair Brush had a magic effect on my scalp. MRS. T. E. SNYDER, Fancy Goods Dealer.

SAND BEACH, MICH., September 3.

I cheerfully tender you my heartfelt gratitude for what your Electric Corsets have done for me. I have suffered for over three years with weak back, growing worse all the time. At times I was almost helpless—could not work or walk. I received benefit the second day of wearing it, and have improved ever since. I am now able to work and walk all day without any trouble. My friends are simply astoolshed. MRS. A. CURREY,

NILES, MICH., January 5, 1885.

Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets have cured me of acute dyspepsia, from which I have suffered for eight years. His Electric Hair Brush cures my headache every time. BALTIMORE, MD., Intense nervous debility has been my trouble for years. Physicians and their medicines did not help me. I finally derived great relief from Dr. Scott's Electric Belt. L. H. MILLER.

ON TRIAL.

BELOIT, WIS., November 7.

Dr. Scott — Your Electric Corset has done wonders for me. It has so improved my health that I am now able to attend personally to all my household duties. I am greatly encouraged M. E. PENNOCK.

MERIDIAN, MISS., June 24.

Dr. Scott — Your Electric Corsets have given splendid satisfaction. One lady who suffered continually from indigestion, has been greatly benefited by wearing them, and has thrown all medicines aside. MRS. J. H. DRINKWATER

PRINCETON, MINN., June 25.

Your Corsets have accomplished wonders in my case, I was, previously, thoroughly incapacitated and could not help myself. I have worn your Corsets now for two weeks, and I am able to be up and around, helping to do housework, etc. My friends are astonished. With many thanks, etc., JULIA J. MCFARLAND.

Editorial Notes.

Union with Thee our Head is chief and prime;
And union with each next succeeds.
To separate from Thee is damning crime;
To this our severance from each other leads;
The body cut and mangled, writhes and bleeds;
And thou art torn with many a horrid gash,
And scandalised by our schismatic deeds;
Our words and tempers, piercing sharp and rash;
Rend like the iron nails thy keenly sentient flesh.

The colored people of Paducah, have been holding a convention, Rev. G. W. Dupre was chairman.

The Popular Science Monthly continues its monthly visits to our table, and is always a welcome visitor.

In his letter last week, Rev. Ezra Miller was called the presiding elder, when it should have been the pastor of Leitchfield, Kentucky.

"Please send my paper to me as it affords me great comfort around my fireside, reading with my people."—J. H. Simpson, district steward.

In addition to the other attractions a Sunday service is held at the Exposition grounds. A Minnesota man contributed to this feature of the amusement last Sabbath.

We hear that a lodge of United Brothers of Friendship has dissolved, the members dividing several hundred dollars, the contents of treasury among themselves. This can not be true.

"Whom shall He teach knowledge and whom shall He make to understand doctrine? Them that are weaned from the milk drawn from the breast."

Jackson street Coke's Chapel, and Loyd street Methodist Episcopal Churches, in Louisville, Kentucky, have each enjoyed a year of prosperity, and their faithful ministers have not been forgotten.

The colored coachmen of Louisville, have formed and been legally incorporated into a Union with James Bunn, Nell Johnson, N. D. Bennett, and Johnson Gales as charter members. This is right.

Dr. W. F. Butler, of the Delaware Conference is suffering from extreme mental abberation. He is a grand man with a delightful family, has been very useful to, and deserves and will have the sympathy of our whole Church.

A glorious revival is now going on in Haven Chapel, Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. M. B. Reeve, pastor. Some eight or nine have already been converted and the good work still goes on.

Rev. B. T. Tanner, editor of the African Methodist Episcopal Church Review, preached at St. James Church, March 5th.

The March Century has followed the example of its recent predecessors and gone out of print,—this time within two days of issue. A second edition of 35,000 is on the press, making the total 225,000.

Bishop Mallalieu, writing from the Arkansas Conference which he has just closed says: "We have had a time of unusual sweetness and spiritual power all through the conference." The Bishop is himself enjoying vigorous health.

A certain layman has been talking Mack Henson down at San Antonio, and Mack has in his characteristic way been making it rather warm for that particular layman. Bro. Henson can be relied upon to stand straight up in any place for what he conceives to be right, and for the most part his conceptions are right.

Ahmed Suleiman or El Mahdi of Sondan, El Mahdi, the false prophet, is described as a Negro, about forty years of age, with a tall and powerful structure, and a complexion of reddish black. His real name is Ahmed Suleiman. He was an officer under the Egyptian government; then a slave dealer, and now a leader of men. A melancholy feature in the victorious progress of El Madhi is the impetus which will be given to the atrocious slave trade.

The discussion of the question of "National Aid to Education," begun by Gen. John A. Logan, in the February issue of The Chautauquan, is concluded in the March number. General Logan ably argues for an annual appropriation of $50,000,000 to educational purposes and shows conclusively how such an appropriation might be made and "not add one dollar to the taxes already imposed." A series of capital papers for girls is begun. Miss Frances E. Willard is the writer and "How to Win" is her subject. Certainly no woman of the day is better able to speak from experience on this timely topic. Particularly attractive features are the hints on "The Dining Room," which Susan Hayes Ward give; Bishop Hurst's article on "The Mohammedan University, of Cairo;" and a lively sketch of the "New Orleans World's Exposition."

Senators Sworn In.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The newly elected Senators sworn in to day were Messrs. Jos. C. S. Blackburn, of Kentucky; James B. Eustis, of Louisiana; Wm. M. Evarts, of New York; Jas. K. Jones, of Arkansas; Harry B. Payne, of Ohio; John C. Spooner, of Wisconsin; Leland Stanford, of California; Henry M. Teller, of Colorado; and Ephraim K. Wilson, of Maryland.

The re-elected Senators sworn in were Wm. B. Allison, of Iowa; Joseph E. Brown, of Georgia; Wilkinson Call, of Florida; J. Donald Cameron, of Pennsylvania; Wade Hampton, of South Carolina; John J. Ingalls, of Kansas; John P. Jones, of Nevada; Justin S. Morrill, of Vermont; Orville H. Platt, of Connecticut; Jas. L. Pugh, of Alabama; Zebulon B. Vance, of North Carolina; George G. Vest, of Missouri, and D. W. Voorees, of Indiana.

Our Freedmen's Aid Cause.

The Freedmen's Aid Society must have a large increase in its annual income, or be seriously embarrassed in its work of Christain education in the South. In seventeen years this society has expended in this educational work nearly one million four hundred thousand dollars. Each succeeding year there has been an advance in its receipts, indicating confidence in its administration and sympathy with its mission among the neglected multitudes in the South.

Success in all benevolent work requires large expenditures of money, and the greater the success the heavier the expense, and as a rule in opening new and important fields, a large outlay is required to insure success. The work of this society is to educate ministers and teachers, and develop training and industrial schools. To do this successfully requires instructors of experience and ability, and commodious and well furnished buildings. The expense of these, necessarily large at first, must increase in proportion to the growth of the work. The financial embarressment of the society results from this unprecedented providential growth.

The work, and consequent financial obligations of the society have been greatly increased by its being made responsible for the supervision, and as far as possible the support, of a Christan educational work among the white people of the South. How large the addition of responsibility this is can only be appreciated by those who have carefully studied this department of our work. There are in the Methodist Episcopal Church, in what was slave territory, over 200,000 white members. If we add to these all who look to our Church for spiritual oversight and direction, the number will reach fully half a million. Among these there is still a great need of intelligent Christian ministers and teachers. The people are doing nobly, conseidering their poverty, to build up schools, but some help is needed, and the church can advance all her work by contributing liberally to this cause. Our society is doing all it can to help, but almost daily is compelled to refuse applications for aid, where even a few hundred dollars would insure a new building, or perpetuate the life of a seminary, or aid a number of young men and women, who unless aided must go without education. The present and pressing obligation of the Church to the illiterate white people in the Southern States no less than to simular classes among the negroes, is to direct them in professional and industrial pursuits.

The society has become involved in a debt because the money contributed for the erection of buildings for seveal years past has been less than their cost; and these buildings were imperatively demanded for the accommodation of students. In current educational work an [illegible]ed amount has been expended each succeeding year, and still each year, after the most rigid economy in the matter of teachers' saleries, and other expenses, we have been embarrassed because compelled to refuse additional teachers, and faculties where they were greatly needed. In the prosecution of its work the society has procured school properties real estate of which is valued at nearly $700,000. No other connectional agency in the Church has in so few years accumulated so much valuable property with the same income. The indebtedness must be gradually provided for, and the society has determined that it shall not be increased.

The receipts last year were as follows:

From the conference collections	$60,462 00
From other sources	68,991 05
	$129,453 05

This amount does not include what was received for the annuity fund. The "other sources" named above, from which a little more than half of the money came comprise individual donors who have selected objects for their contribution in which they feel a special interest.

Do not these figures indicate that the regular Church collections, for this important cause are not what they ought to be? The statistics show that out of 10,387 pastoral charges 2,351, or a little more than twenty per cent, gave nothing last year. A good share of these blanks are no doubt in mission fields, where but little could be expected. Still, of this number there must be hundreds of charges where, had the pastor presented the cause, something would have been given. But the most serious showing of the statistics is the large number of collections which are so small as to make it quite sure that the congregation had not been given a chance to contribute directly to this cause. Perhaps the pastor gave something to fill the blank, or put in a trifle from an omnibus collection. We appeal to the many pastors who always give the cause its proper share of sympathy and attention to continue in well doing, and to the large number who as yet have not given the work of this society that earnest and intelligent presentation to their people which it merits, we do more especially appeal. We assure you that a carefull study of the facts will show that no phase of benevolent Church work is more intimately related to the well being of the Church and to our Christain civilization in America than this Southern educational mission,

In view of the necessities of the field and its wants the coming year the society has estimated that $150,000 will be needed. If the entire sum be received it will be used to advance Christain education among both white and colored people, where the needs are great, and the results will continue to be most gratifying.

Will not every pastor see that his congregation contributes at least its apportionment? In the older conferences a fair average per member will be ten cents. We trust that many congregations will give even more, and we are sure that scarcely one would do less, if the greatness and importance of this work were understood.

Dear pastors, we earnestly appeal to you as colaborers with us in the sublime work of furnishing ministers and teachers to our needy people of the South. Their claims upon us for help no one can question; their cry reaches us out of the depths of a sad destitution, for which they are not responsible. Let pastors put the case fully before the Church, and we believe these wants will be cheerfully and liberally met.

REV. W. D. GODMAN.

Theme—The Humanity of Our Lord.

Text—1 Tim. ii, 5: "The man, Christ Jesus."

I—The text teaches that the human nature of Jesus was not a semblance only, but a reality.

1. In earlier ages of the Church some thought to exalt the glory of God's Son by maintaining that his manhood was but an appearance, a theophany.

2. Some thought thus to simplify doctrine and rid themselves of the mystery of the two-fold nature. But the plain teaching of Scripture is that Christ was a real man. Note all the passages speaking of his birth as a child, of his growth, of his eating, drinking, travelling, temptation, friendships, etc.

II—His humanity qualifies him to reconcile man to God; Heb. 2, 16.

1. His being human attracts us to him the more readily; Heb. 2, 11-12.

2. His being tempted like as we are reconciles us the better to our lot; Heb. 2, 18.

3. It encourages us to holiness; Heb. 4, 14.

4. It adds an element of tenderness to the anticipated future judgment; John 5, 7.

III—We have naught to do with the mystery of two natures "joined together in one person," save to accept it on the authority of Revelation.

We cannot comprehend the mysterious union of our own "spirit and soul and body." No more can we understand the union of Godhead and manhood in Christ.

IV—The union of the man with God in Christ is to be everlasting. The man "setteth at the right hand," in the heavenly places far above all rule, and authority, and power, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world but also in that which is to come;" Eph. 1, 21; Rev. 1, 5 6.

All the future is His.

United States Senate.

The bill retiring General Grant with full pay unanimously passed.

"At 11:35 Mar. 3, a message from the House announced the passage of the bill authorizing the President to place one person on the retired list of the army. [Applause]. The bill was read at length, Mr. Ingalls then said: 'Mr. President—The nation knows who that one person is. I ask unanimous consent that reference of this bill to a committee be waived and that it be now considered by the Senate."

The presiding officer, Mr. Garland, stated that the bill was a Senate bill and nothing further was necessary to make it a law except the proper signatures. [Applause].

Mr. Edmunds (resuming the chair) stated he had received communications, which would now be read.

He handed the communications to Chief Clerk Johnson, who read as follows:

To the Hon. George F. Edmunds,
President pro tem United States Senate:

The accompanying communication, although an executive message, may be read in open session.

CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

[Applause]

The President pro tem of the Senate—Manifestations of applause are not in order.

The Clerk read as follows:

To the Senate of the United States:

I nominate U. S. Grant, formerly general commanding the armies of of the United States, to be general on the retired list of the army, with full pay of such rank.

CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

Executive Mansion, March 4, 1885.

The President pro tem. of the Senate then announced that the nomination would be considered in open session. 'The question is: Will the Senate advise and consent to this appointment? All Senators in favor will say 'Aye.'" [A storm of ayes]. "All opposed 'No.'" [Dead silence].

"The ayes have it unanimously."

This announcement was received with thunders of applause, both on the floor and in the galleries.

Mar. 22—The question of all questions that has never been answered.

Little Rock Conference.

REPORT ON PERIODICALS.

To the Bishop and Conference—The Christian press under God, the pulpit, is the mightiest weapon in the hands of the Church, for the overthrow of sin and Satan, and for the promotion of Christianity and superior holiness. One of the most effectual departments of the Christian press, is that under the care of the Methodist Episcopal Church: therefore,

Resolved, That we continue our unqualified support to the spread of healthy Christian literature among our people, and that we commend, and urge upon our people the favorable consideration and adoption and use in our churches and Sunday-schools of the publications of our Book Concern.

Resolved, That we hail with joy and satisfaction the action of the Conference, which con- Philadelphia, Pennsylvania by the election of Rev. H. W. Taylor, D. D., its editor the SOUTHWESTERN CHRIS- and pledge ourselves to faithfully use every effort for its larger and wider circulation among our people.

Committee.

REPORT ON TEMPERANCE.

To the Bishop and Conference—Your committee on temperance, after careful consideration would submit the following:

Whereas, Both science and human experience agree with Holy Scripture, in condemning all alcoholic beverages as being neither useful nor safe, and

Whereas, The business of manufacturing and vending such liquors is also against the principles of morality, political economy, and public welfare; Therefore, be it

Resolved, That, we heartily approve of all lawful and Christian efforts to save society from the manifold and grievous evils resulting from intemperance.

Resolved, That, we regard voluntary total abstinence from all intoxicants, as the true ground of personal temperance, and complete legal prohibition of traffic in alcoholic drinks, as the duty of civil government.

Resolved, That, we affectionately urge our preachers and members against the buying, selling or using intoxicating liquors as beverage, signing petitions in favor of granting license for the sale of intoxicating liquors, becoming bondsmen for persons engaged in such traffic, instrumental to the ultimate success of the temperance reform, the family, the Church and the State.

Resolved, That, we urge strict observance by members of our Church to use every legitimate means in the family, and in Sunday-school, to promote the cause of temperance, and to enforce temperance by both precept and example.

We are fraternally your committee,

W. H. CRAWFORD,
WM. FULLER,
H. C. DUNLAP.

Report on Education.

Whereas, Religion and education are the only hope of our race; therefore,

Resolved, That, we leave not a stone unturned in getting this great subject properly before our people in all its different phases.

Recognizing the grand work Philander Smith College is doing under the presidency of Prof. Thomas Mason, in putting teachers into day and Sunday schools, and preparing ministers of the Gospel for more efficient service in our pulpits, thus doing an invaluable service for our people, and the cause of Christ in general.

Resolved, That, we shall endeavor to forward this good work by co-operation, and encouragement in every way that we are capable of rendering it to the complete success of this work.

Resolved, That, we return our grateful thanks to almighty God, and the grand old Church of our choice, for the Freedmen's Aid Society, its officers and teachers, from the least to the greatest ministering in Dr. Rust, and the sainted Bishop Wiley.

Resolved, That, we recognize the good work our Preparatory School at Forest City is doing, and ask Dr. Rust to supplement at least one teacher's wages, so that a good school may be kept up nine months in the year.

Resolved That, Rev. O. H. Smith and George W. Sams be a committee to wait on Dr. Rust and present the interests of this school.

G. N. JOHNSON,
J. D. JOHNSON,
W. R. R. DUNCAN.
Committee.

Bishop Mallalieu.

Whereas, Our beloved Bishop, W. F. Mallalieu, has presided over our present session with a marked degree of ability, dignity and impartiality; and,

Whereas, We fully appreciate the deep interest manifested by the Bishop in every possible way in our work and success as a conference; therefore,

Resolved, That he has our thanks, prayers and best wishes for success in any and every field wherein, in the providence of God, he may be called to labor for the Church.

W. S. LANKFORD.
O. H. SMITH.

Education.

To the Bishop and members of the Little Rock Conference: — At the dedication of Philander Smith College, and opening of the Adeline Smith Industrial Home, there was an impromptu election of a conference Secretary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society for the Little Rock Conference. The undersigned was chosen as that secretary, and, as such, immediately set about trying to gain information concerning the work of said society, and especially the duties devolving upon us. Receiving copies of the Annual Reports and other pamphlets concerning the society, its glorious aims and work contemplated from the General Secretary and grand moving spirit of our work, Mrs. R. S. Rust, we went forward, disseminating a knowledge of, and creating an interest in the Woman's Home Missionary Society by scattering reports, tracts, etc., among the presiding elders of the conference and earnestly requesting that they be left with the pastors of the respective charges, and the auxiliary societies as provided for in the general constitution. We also communicated, by writing, with several pastors direct, and with others personally soliciting their co operation in forming auxiliaries throughout the bounds of the conference. We are sorry to say that we have not heard from a single auxilary outside of that of Wesley Chapel, Little Rock city.

In Wesley Chapel, Little Rock, early in May, there was organized an auxiliary W. H. M. Society with a full corps of officers and several lay members. During the year we have forwarded to the General Secretary at Cincinnati, Mrs. R. S. Rust, $14.65. Members paying dues, 21.

Respectfully submitted,
LOTTIE E. STEPHENS,
Corresponding Secretary.
Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 14, 1885.

Complimentary to Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D.

Whereas, We have listened to the addresses of Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, with both interest and profit; and,

Whereas, We fully endorse his sentiments as to the mission of the paper he represents and the ability of the Negro, all things else being equal, to teach and preach to the Negro, and thus lead the race to a higher plain of moral, social, religious and intellectual development; and,

Whereas, It becomes our duty to herein clearly reiterate and enunciate our purpose to labor therefor in full fraternal and organic fellowship with the ministry and membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church, whose ceaseless friendship and assurances in the past warrant the certainty of its attainment in the future; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we will renew our efforts and demonstrate our appreciation of the action of the General Conference in placing one of our number at the head of our great publishing interests in the Southwest, by increasing the subscription list of the paper, and in every available and landable way assist its editor in making the new enterprise a living success.

Resolved, That we fully appreciate the labors of our white brethren who, at great sacrifice in some instances, as ministers and teachers, have made and are still making the way possible by laying a foundation deep and broad upon which we may build a monument to the glory of God and the elevation of the race.

MEMOIRS.

Sister Susan Johnson.

Whereas, God in His wise providence, has taken from our midst Sister Susan Johnson, wife of Rev. Samuel Johnson; and,

Whereas, We feel that we have sustained great loss in the removal of our dear sister from us, but we make grateful record of the fact that our loss is her gain; and from her beautiful Christian life and last words we are sure if we are faithful we will meet in the blessed world above; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we tender our dear Bro. Johnson and Sister Mary Wright, mother of our dear departed, our most sincere prayers for God's grace to support them in their bereavement.

W. O. EMORY.

Bishop Simpson.

No one man possibly has exersised a greater influence in marking out the course and shaping the destiny of men than Bishop Mathew Simpson, D. D., L.L. D. Thousands upon thousands have listened breathlessly to his impassioned and unselfish eloquence, and his words have lived in their hearts and controlled their lives. He sat as the counsellor of the chief executive of the nation, and the liberty and the prosperity that we enjoy to-day is largely due to his influence. But, as in the providence of God men come, do their work, and are gone, so the beloved Simpsone came, worked grandly, is at rest, while we feel deeply our loss a Church in his death, yet we bow submissively to these mysterious dispensations of Providence.

I. W. Wiley, D. D.

The death of I. W. Wiley in a distant land is a source of very deep sorrow to us. We have felt his sympathy in our need, and have seen his active work in our behalf. He was present when the Freedmen's Aid Society was founded that has been blessing the poor of the South for years in bringing to them the advantages of Christian education. And during all these years his counsel has very largely directed its course, and his energy has given it success. By his intimate connection with the Society, by his intense interest in every thing that has tended to the mental, moral, and spiritual development of the great South, by his wise counsel and judicious administration of the affairs of the great Church to which he gave his last thoughts, he has endeared himself to all hearts. So among the hearts of the Church militant we find ourselves in sadness in consequence of his death, and yet we bow in submission to the will of Him who "doeth all things well."

THOMAS MASON.

Sister Thompson.

Whereas, Almighty God, in His wise providence has taken from us Sister Thompson, wife of Rev. J. G. Thompson. Sister Thompson was about 58 years old, she spent twenty years of her life in Africa with her husband in our mission work there. Sister Thompson was a woman of extraordinary Christian qualities, she bore her trials patiently all the way through and at last died in great grace, and while we sustain a great loss in her, we rejoice that our loss is her gain.

Resolved, That we tender to our dear Bro. Thompson our most sincere prayers in his hours of bereavement.

W. O. EMORY.

Centennial and State of Church.

We hail with feelings of gratitude and profound delight, the first Centennial of Methodism in America. In taking a retrospect of the past, we can discover our glorious Methodism in her onward march, increasing her friends, conquering her foes, spreading life, light, and glory, the Lord greatly adding to her numbers such as shall be saved.

Early in her history, slavery was denounced as the "sum all villainies," and the policy of the Church has ever been on the side of justice and liberty.

The declared policy of the Methodist Episcopal Church, as set forth at the late General Conference of 1884, is well calculated to inspire the friends of Christ with courage and hope. No man is to be known by the color of his skin race, birth, or previous condition of servitude, and Methodist schools, with Methodist Churches are to be enjoyed by Methodist people, thus securing "all rights to all," and proclaiming to the world the doctrine of the Fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of man.

In contemplating the future conquest of our great Church, we look forward to the glorious dawn, in the near future, of the day, when all the members of the different Methodistic branches shall form one grand invincible army, and shall go forth in the glorious work of evangelizing the world.

The Methodist Church of to-day is working as no Church has ever worked. Through her various missionary enterprises, the Gospel is being preached to all nations. Through her Church Extension Society the world is being dotted with churches, and by means of her educational enterprises, ignorance is disappearing like dew before the morning sun. The Freedmen's Aid Society, by planting schools and colleges in all the principal centers of the South, is meeting a pressing emergency that could be met in no other way, and is lifting up a long neglected people, by preparing them for usefulness on earth, and happiness in heaven.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Bishop Mallalieu is painstaking to see that every communication from the various departments of the Church, be carefully noted by secretaries and their disposition fully set out in the minutes. Additional members were added to the roll.

Rev. G. W. Sams' character with that of the effective elders on his district, passed, and he reported his work. His descriptive powers are keen and have been fully enlisted in the elaborate, and exhaustive report he presented, which we regret was largely oral. His health is poor, and it is evident that he is too heavily taxed for his physical ability. Bro. Sams said, that "There were only few Baptists in the hills of Arkansas, because water was scarce there. Our people are a peculiar people, they won't keep money, they will spend it in spite of the North winds." We think they sometimes spend in this region because of the North winds. Robert Boone was referred to a court of inquiry. Committee of three, Emory, Crawford, Gill and Sams, chairman.

Rev. G. W. Donnelly reported the Hot Springs district, of which he is the presiding elder, after the passage of his character and that of the effective elders. Bro. Donnelly said, "Our people in the South don't pay much attention to old men when they get old and feeble, they like young men." Bro. Donnelly assumed the duties five months after the year had begun, succeeding Bro. L. W. Elkins. Samuel Johnson was reported as transferred to the Texas Conference and supposed to be stationed in Palestine district.

Dr. J. G. Thompson is a native of South Carolina, of the fourth generation of Methodists, being himself of over 40 years experience as a member and minister in the Church. He served as a missionary 20 years in Liberia, Africa. He returned in 1869, has served successfully as pastor of Clarke Chapel, Nashville; of our Church at Gallatin, and as pastor of Wesley Chapel, Little Rock, Arkansas; has served the last year at Monticello, Arkansas. Only a few days before his departure for this conference he followed his dear wife, who had been partner in all his labors, to her last resting place. He is a strong man, well learned, and ought now to be president of one of our institutions of learning in this country.

Bro. W. O. Emory, reported that it was a common thing to see Baptist ministers staggering with drunkenness in the streets of Pine Bluff; that well dressed ladies drank at the bar, and that the Baptist, African Methodist Episcopal Church, and whiskey men are combined against the temperance efforts of our Church in Pine Bluff. Bro. W. H. Crawford says the samething is true at Van Buren. Bro. Emory and his wife, a dear handsome little woman, and their boy have set down to potatoes and water during the year and are willing to do it again.

Bro. Emory knew of an instance in which one colored man was imprisoned for larceny because he sold a bale of his own cotton, while he owed $30 to the landlord, though there was yet two bales unsold out of which he could have met the debt. It was proven in court that this same land lord had charged this tenant $64 for a $16 barrel of flour, and several responses came up that there were scores of such instances that might be enumerated.

It was thought that a committee man had examined a candidate in a course of study, wherein the examiner had not himself read the books. The examination was held on the train coming to conference.

Rev. T. B. Ford, of the Arkansas conference is and has been seriously ill and utterly prostrated at his home near Siloam Springs, Arkansas, for the last few weeks, and his presiding elder, Rev. D. H. Upchurch entertains grave apprehenson that his affliction will terminate fatally. The last account there had been a slight rally followed by a successive relapse, and through this latter stage he is now passing.

Reminiscences of German Methodism—The Work in the West.

BY REV. J. J. KIENLE.

The cradle of German Methodism in the West is St. Louis. The German population in St. Louis was about 15,000 in 1841, one half of that were protestants. Two weak churches were then to take care of their spiritual welfare, and one of them had a rationalistic preacher. The large majority lived ungodly, and thought only how to get rich and enjoy this world. In the Christian Advocate 1835 a Methodist preacher wrote about the Germans, that they were like sheep without a shepherd, they don't understand our sermons, never or very seldom, they visit our churches, but as soon as they are addressed in their own tongue they listen to it with profound interest. He was convinced that a German missionary would be a blessing and could work among them very successfully. So the Church took up the work and Bishop Morris sent the first German missionary West of the Mississippi, Dr. L. S. Jacoby, to that great field white for harvest. Dr. Jacoby arrived at St. Louis, Aug. 1st, 1841, and commenced his work in a small chapel, which he had rented from the Presbyterians. From house to house he went with tracts, inviting to the service, the first service was well visited. He also preached on week days, founded a Sunday-school, held meetings in school, market, private houses and in the streets. Many were glad over the new awakened religious life, but opposition the young society had from all sites. The impious and fanatic people did all they could to disturb the preacher by mocking him, and to break up the meetings they threw stones at the doors, shot off pistols near the windows to scare those who were in the meeting, smeared the stairs and railings with tar, etc. From Catholic and Lutheran pulpits, the new sect, as they called it, was denounced. Dr. Jacoby was attacked once by a mob, while he was preaching in the market house; American friends protected him from their deadly assault. The mayor of St. Louis ordered two strong policemen, who were Germans, to be at the service and they kept good order. One of them was soundly converted a year afterwards.

For the first time the Lord's supper was celebrated by a small band of German Methodists in St. Louis, on Christmas, 1841. The first quarterly conference was held in March, 1842, the number of full members was 27 in St. Louis, and West of the Mississippi 40 in all. The first church was dedicated Aug. 7th, 1842, it was a small brick building 50x32. Under many hindrances and troubles, the work grew wonderfully, God blessed the work of the Methodist Church among the Germans in St. Louis, so there are now three valuable churches and flourishing societies. In 1844 the General Conference thought it wise to form a German district, of all the German missions in the West. That district belonged then to the Missouri Conference. In 1845 they separated from that conference, and went to the Illinois Conference, as they were against slavery and considered slavery a great wrong and a sin crying to heaven.

In Illinois, the work commenced at Belleville, by J. Hartman, 1841; there is now a flourishing society, and very valuable Church property. From there the work extended to Mascoutah, Alton, Edwardsville, Beardstown. The handsome church at Pekin, attracts our attention, the work there was commenced by D. Bristol, a local preacher in 1846; under reproach and even persecution the society was started, but the brethren were good Christian men and served God joyfully, and He blessed them so that they are a blessing to the city there. The new church and parsonage are of the finest and most comfortable that are in the German work. From there the work, in converting souls and bringing them to our Church, extended to San Jose, Emden, Peoria, Petersburg, Decatur, Bloomington, Quincy, and into Iowa, the article closes up thus:

Forty years are passed, many of the old preachers and members have gone from the Church militant to the Church triumphant, many of their children are members of English speaking churches, and still the increase in members, churches, institutions, and influence is astonishing. The field which was visited by the first German presiding elder has grown into four annual conferences. The St. Louis Conference alone has now 10,000 members, 150 churches, 75 parsonages, the total value of which is $436,500; two institutions of learning, one orphan asylum, 100 Sunday-schools, with 10,000 children.

REV. MACK HENSON.

CHRIST'S KINGDOM SPREADING.

The universal spread of the Gospel and the kingdom of Christ. Text, tenth verse of the fifty-second chapter of Isaiah: "The Lord hath made bare His holy arm in the eyes of the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God." References, Psa. 98, 1, 2, 3; Luke 3, 6. The arm of the Lord as manifested in the person and work of Christ. To make bare is to expose to full view. The effects are to be seen in the world, among the people of God; in their lives and character they are led by the influence or the Holy Spirit, and are called the children of God. Mighty foes have opposed the Church of God in all ages of the world. It has ever been the effort of the "wicked one" to introduce into Zion the uncircumcised and the unclean, and to give them the dominion over her. They may greatly afflict and trouble her, but God will, in the end, give her the victory over them. The destruction of Christ's church would be a victory of Satan over the Redeemer such as would fill the mouths of the wicked with exultation and blasphemy. But God will never allow any opposition from without or corruption from within to prevail against her. Though her enemies may triumph for a season He will send her help from the "sanctuary above" as he did the captive Jews in Babylon the joyful tidings of deliverance filling the hearts of her children with gladness and thanksgiving, Psa. 98, 1, 2, 3. Made known his salvation.

His righteousness manifested; his righteousness in the salvation of his people. These words are fulfilled in every interposition of God for his people, especially in the mission of His Son. Hath remembered his mercy and his truth in the fulfillment of his promises. The places most distant from Judea, including the remotest heathen nations, shall one day hear and experience the salvation of God; Luke 3, 6, "And all flesh shall see the salvation of God." The angel said to the virgin, "His name shall be called Jesus, for He shall save his people from their sins." This was "tidings of great joy to all people." He was "a light to the Gentiles, and glory of his people Israel." "He came to give knowledge of salvation to his people by remission of their sins, through the tender mercy of our God; to give light to them that sit in darkness, and in the shadow of death, to guide them in peace." "He was annointed to preach the acceptable year of the Lord." He "finished the work which his Father gave him to do." And after his resurrection said to the holy Apostles, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." "Teach all nations." And this command has been almost carried out to the letter. And the Spirit and holy mantle is still worn by the evangelical Protestant churches, "teaching them to observe whatsoever He hath commanded." "And lo! He is with them alway, even to the end;" amen!

A FALSE PROPHECY.

It has been predicted that Protestantism would fail. We have the army of skeptics, Roman Catholics, Ritualists, Premillenialists and disaffected and desponding evangelicals, all, of all ages, arrayed against it. Criticism is their strongest and choicest weapon. It has come from within and without. "The decline of Protestantism and its causes," was the topic of an address to the citizens of New York city by Archbishop Hughes a little more than fifty years ago, in which he asserted that "Protestantism had lost all central force and power over the masses of mankind." The same argument has been sounded in high church circles. In 1853 "Protestantism a Failure," appeared from the pen of Rev. F. C. Ewer, D. D. Three years later a writer in the Catholic World, in an elaborate work on "Statistics of Protestantism in the United States," and with unparalleled carelessness drew a comparison between two abnormal periods—the one of unnatural growth under the second advent, excitement, and the declension at the close of the civil war—and from this defective basis made a suppositious demonstration of the probable number of Protestant communicants for the year A. D. 1900. And the writer triumphantly inferred that Protestantism is hopelessly falling and must inevitably fall behind the progress of the population. Father Thomas S. Preston, an ex-Protestant, now high in the counsels of Rome, thinks what he thought was new evidence against Protestantism, has renewed the charge that "Protestantism is a failure."

PROTESTANTISM AGAINST ITSELF.

Besides Romanists and high churchmen, skeptical thinkers of various grades have represented Protestantism as having seen its best days, and as now rapidly losing its hold on the world. But others see very plainly that these great men have spoken rather flippantly. Human kings and emperors [illegible] governments on the sandy foundation of human power and cruelty, superstition and false religions. But God revealed to Babylon's king, Nebuchadnezzar, that the Heavenly King would destroy dominion over this world. The prophet Daniel explained to this king that he had reached the zenith of his glory, and that his kingdom should pass away, and another kingdom should be set up in rapid succession [illegible] rapidly upon away, filling the earth with confusion. But at that time the God of Heaven would set up a kingdom that shall never pass away. The stone which the king saw cut out of the mountains with [illegible] hands, and rolled over the feet, mixed with iron and miry clay, grinding them, and the beautiful images made of gold, silver, ivory and brass, into dust as the chaff from a summer's threshing floor. And it filled the whole earth. Let us continue to pray "Thy Kingdom [illegible] Thy will be done, in earth as it is in heaven." Isaiah, the prophet, says, "The earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of God." Prophecy has filled, is a hard saying; who can hear it? [illegible] Christianity when it began was a [illegible] against Diocesan. It was a [illegible] that must [illegible] [illegible] believe what [illegible] they could not believe. In this sense has Protestantism not failed, and can never fail so long as there is left an honest man upon the globe.

THE ONCOMING REFORMATORY AVALANCHE.

In Catholic countries as well as Protestant, nay, among Mohammedans, Jews, Buddhists, Brahmins, traditionary creeds are losing their hold. "An intellectual revolution is sweeping over the world, breaking down established opinions, dissolving foundations on which historical faiths have been built up. Science, history, philosophy have contrived to create universal uncertainty." "Christianity retains a powerful hold, especially where the pure Gospel is preached. What does Protestantism claim? In the course of progress the term Protestant has undergone some modification in its common use; although it stands historically as the name given to all bodies of Christians which have sprung up out of the reformation. The totality of the churches which separated from the Romish communion." It is a protest against original Protestantism, such as Quakerism; a protest against its ordinances; Arminianism a protest against its Calvinism. Methodism is a protest against its Calvinism and formalism, "liberal Christianity," etc., a protest against its trinitarianism and sacredotal theology. It maintains, as ever, an unfaltering protest against the hierarchical prerogatives and exclusive functions of Romanism which constituted the leading issues of the Reformation in its broadest definition, then, and as the term is used by Dr. Ewer and Romanists.

A Visit to Flemingsburg, Ky.

J. ALLEN ROSS.

During the past week I spent a few days with Rev. Henry A. Southgate, our pastor at Flemingsburg, Ky. Flemingsburg, is the county seat of Fleming county, situated on the Cincinnati & Southeastern railroad, about 18 miles from Maysville, a thriving town of about 2,000 population with great prospects of future growth. Nature has done a great deal for the town, a rolling situation, pleasant to the eye, surrounded by large farms well cultivated and richly stocked with aristocratic strains of blooded cattle and horses. In every direction one sees evidence of thrift and growth—new buildings being erected, farms divided into smaller tracts to make homes for the "bold peasantry," which is ever a "country's pride," the small farmers. The colored people are well situated; not living entirely in little settlements to themselves, or in little "hovels" thrown up apparently for temporary shelter, but they live all over town, and when you find one you do not find them all. On the principal streets of the town are found many tasteful residences, finely furnished, owned and occupied by our people, and the remarkable advancement of this people, who began their new lives a few years ago, is shown in the fact that they pay taxes on more than $50,000 worth of real property. I give you a partial list of the more prominent property holders: B. Bradley, Wm. Beadle, Wm. Fleming, A. Scott, N. Parker, Morris Davis, Morgan, John, and Henry Ashley, Thomas R. Fletcher, Thos. Lacy, Alfred Thompson, A. Williams, L. A. Cash, Wm. Marshall. It made our heart glad to enjoy the hospitality of many of the above named. The colored school is taught by two young lady graduates of the Clyde, Ohio, High School, Clyde, the resting place of the gallant General McPherson, who fell before the Gate City of the South in defense of the land he loved so well. The enrollment of the school is over 100. They need more room, the present location being much too small, but the efficient trustees of the school, Messrs. Ashley, Lacey and Young, have secured a lot in a desirable location, with some funds on hand, and their hearts being in the work we may look for a new building in the near future. With all the disadvantages that surround them, Miss Celie Anderson, the principal, and Miss Lizzie Hill, the assistant, are carrying the children forward rapidly. A visit to the school warrants me in saying the teachers are faithful and conscientious, devoted to their chosen work they can but succeed, they surely have the writer's best wishes.

Bro. Southgate is in the midst of a protracted meeting, with every prospect of a great ingathering of souls. Bro. Southgate is a devoted earnest man, an able minister, a good pastor, loved without as well as within his church, his influence in the community is a positive one for good, and the effect of his gentle nature and trusting spirit is seen and appreciated by his visiting brethren. His wife is a grand woman, indeed a sub-pastor, a Christian lady who is qualified to lead the younger women; loving, lovable, tender, meek; with this lady at his side Bro. Southgate is sure to secure and retain the affections of his people. Rev. Geo. A. Sissle was present to give his aid in the meeting. With a graceful, winning presence, a well modulated but strong voice, familiar with the divine Word, deeply in earnest himself, he startles, alarms, persuades, points plainly the way to life eternal. Dear Bro. Taylor, you may imagine our happiness in this precious meeting, for I cannot tell it to you. My mind ran back over the years gone by, days that will come to us no more forever, times of danger and of doubt, disappointment and sorrow; a mighty hand seemed to draw that picture aside and I saw the to-day, with its duties, its opportunities for effort and endeavor, its awful responsibilities. Will I be able to stand? I asked, and then the heart grew glad with added strength. I knew I could stand. Before me is all that is desired. I have by faith seen the end of the journey, and that end was peace. I care not whether it be long years hence or if it be to-day. I have strength to meet it now. I will not be weaker then. Many things you have told me, come before me now; and on this Saturday afternoon, many miles from you, in my room here alone, I feel their force, and know myself entirely the Lord's, to either live or die as is best. The mind that directs, the hand that leads the weary fainting one into the right way, will not fail of its reward.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Industrial Drawing.

BY MRS. S. A. B.

Perhaps the subject of this article may be trite to the readers of the SOUTHWESTERN, but its importance may seem somewhat to apologize for its presentation. The benefits occuring to studentain our schools of a knowledge of industrial drawing can not be adequately stated in the limits of this brief paper. The practical uses of drawing, in developing talent, and leading to profitable occupations, such as designing, draughting, making specifications for buildings, furnishing symmetrical designs for the thousand and one subjects of decorative art; for designs for frescoing, for wood carving, for curtains, carpets, oil-cloths, and all upholstery; for internal decorations of steamboats, railway coaches, etc.; for signs, placards, showbills, for frontispieces, tail pieces and covers of books, for iron railings and ornamental work; for registers, radiators, gas fixtures; for porcelain and china ware; for all the infinite variety of textile fabrics; are, after all, not the greatest advantages which a knowledge of drawing gives to its possessor.

The cultivation of the eye and hand, the mental discipline, the "thinking out," which inventive drawing requires, the habit of observation it engenders, are all vastly more important, as related to the whole future life of the student, and are especially of infinite value to our own people in the South.

Keenness of perception, attention to details, exactness in work, strict accuracy in thought, speech and action, are eminently desirable to us as a people. To descend to small or what are sometimes called small matters one glance at the interior of some of our houses, a peep into some of our rooms, is all that is needed to exhibit the "plentiful lack" of a knowledge of symmetry and proportion, of closeness of attention to detail, of true taste, of harmony of arrangement, of form or coloring. Pictures and mirrors hang awry, or are placed against the walls without regard to each others position or to the doors and windows of the room; curtains are irregularly draped, if draped at all, more often are twisted, or tied in knots, to dispose of them when more light is needed.

Brackets and shelves have a tipsy habit of tilting, to the imminent danger of what is set on them. Books are tossed upon tables at hap hazard, or piled with the smallest at the bottom. The table cover is red while the curtains are blue, the carpet green, and the wall paper yellow; and that order which is said to be "heaven's first law," nowhere or but faintly visible. Now, thorough drill with the crayon and pencil would go far to correct all this.

The habit of criticising a sketch, the necessity of detecting when it is "out of drawing," when disproportional or not well balanced, the closeness of attention, and the comparison with the object represented; the skill, and thought required to combine a certain number of lines, angles, triangles or curves, into a symmetrical and well proportioned "figure," would cultivate nicety of observation and a readiness to detect a want of correspondence and harmony in material objects and beyond and better than even this, would open eyes hitherto blind to the wonders of art and nature and still better and higher, lead from Nature, "up to Nature's God."

New Orleans Preachers' Meeting.

The New Orleans Preachers' Meeting met according to the call; Rev. S. Priestley, chairman. The following brethren were elected as officers for the ensuing year: Jas. W. Hudson, president; Wm. P. Forrest, vice-president; A. J. Ford, secretary; M. C. B. Mason, assistant; John Qualls, treasurer; Thomas J. Johnson, librarian. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That we tender our thanks to Rev. S. Priestley, the outgoing president of the New Orleans Preachers Meeting, for the able manner in which he has presided over this body, and, with regret, we bid him God-speed and pray the blessings of God on him in his journey.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be published in the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, with the names of the newly elected officers.

Respectfully, A. J. FORD,
JNO. QUALLS.

Diabetes Cured.

New Orleans Picayune, Jan. 20, 1884.

Mr. Mathias Doll, business place No. 23 North Peters street, residence Royal street, between Jeanne and Bartholomew, New Orleans, has been a most intense sufferer from kidney trouble (diabetes) for the last six long and weary years. He said to us: "Even earlier than that I frequently suffered from pain in the back, and frequent making of water, but gave it no thought until about the time stated, when the almost constant desire to make water became unendurable. The pain in the back, and sometimes in the legs, made me so lame at times that I could scarcely walk. I consulted one of the best doctors in this city, and was under his constant treatment for one entire year without deriving the least benefit. I then consulted from time to time, during the last five or six years, six other physicians, each one standing in the front rank of the medical profession in New Orleans, and though I sometimes was a little relieved of some excruciating suffering, yet upon the whole I was not only no better, but in many respects much worse. My limbs became so swollen and sore that I could not cross my legs when sitting on a chair—all of which, they said, was caused by diabetes. I then tried some highly lauded patent medicine. But they all turned out to be humbugs. I had given up all hopes of ever getting relief, much less being cured, when I noticed in the papers some wonderful cures that PERUNA had made in this city, as prescribed by Dr. Hartman, giving the names and address of each person treated. I called to see him; he at once prescribed his PERUNA, which is not over three weeks ago. I am so much better that if I would not improve any more, I would not for any amount that I had not placed myself under his treatment. All my pain and lameness is gone. The swelling and stiffness in my legs has disappeared, and instead of making water every fifteen minutes, I now make it once in three hours during the day, and only twice in a whole night. I am, indeed, quite well again. Don't hesitate, don't say humbug, but get the PERUNA at once and take it as its printed label directs, or, if you think this is only an advertisement, and not strictly true, call and see me and see for yourself."

Mrs. Huldah Riple, Smethport, McKean county, Pa., writes: "DR. S. B. HARTMAN, & Co., Columbus, O. I have used your PERUNA and it has done me a great deal of good. Have recommended it to many of my friends, who have since expressed themselves as wonderfully pleased with its virtues."

President Cleveland's Cabinet.

The following Cabinet was announced by President Cleveland and unanimously confirmed: For Secretary of State, Thomas F. Bayard, Delaware; Treasury, Daniel Manning, New York; War, William C. Endicott, Massachusetts; Navy, William C. Whitney, New York; Interior, L. Q. C. Lamar, Mississippi; Postmaster General, William F. Vilas, Wisconsin; Attorney General, A. H. Garland, Arkansas.

The Soudan.

Our latest news from the seat of war in the Soudan is that El Mahdi has gone on pilgrimage like a good Mahommedan to the grave of his father, and that General Wolsely has fallen back from Korti to Dongola. It was the General's first intention to dine in Kartoum on Chrismas day, but this little matter has been postponed for the time being.

Woman's Home Missionary Society.

The ladies held a convention of this Society in Wesley Chapel, March 2-3, with good attendance. The reports showed prosperity both in home and school work. Quite a number of the workers were present; several ministers made addresses. The convention adjourned to meet again in Wesley Chapel at 11 a. m., March 16th, when a full attentance of members and all the schools is desired. Steps looking to the establishment of a home for aged and infirm members, with an increase of self suppporting schools are to be inaugurated.

From a sister: "I have received my copies of the SOUTHWESTERN. Please accept the hearty congratulations of your sister."—Mariah V. Miller, Topeka, Kansas. This is truly gratifying, those of our homes should know us best, and their testimonial for us are at once most valuable, and encouraging be cause most intelligent. What would mother say if she still lived?

What is Christianity?

What is Christianity? We are utterly perplexed in the face of this query, when we read the dozens of religious newspapers, that tell us General Gordon, the English commander in the Soudan was a "Christian." That he followed Christ with "a fidelity which few men have attained to," and that he was "an independent Christian hero." General Gordon may have belonged to the Church of England, and he may have been a Christian, but his was not the Christianity taught by the precept and example of Christ, nor was his the kind of Christianity which rests upon either the ten commandments, or the Golden Rule as its eternal basis. General Gordon's chief claim to Christianity consists in his being an Englishman, a Saxon. Had he been anything else with a life spent in war and bloodletting, as the case of other nations in their relation, he would at least have been considered something less than a great spirited Christian. We have not so learned Christ or Christianity. General Gordon was a man of war, and his hands were red, red to the elbows in the blood of his fellow men. Is this sample Christianity?

Arthur—Cleveland

President Arthur retires from the chief magistracy of this nation honored for his fidelity, dignity and practical good judgment in matters of State. His administration has been clean; pure and strong. His is the satisfaction of retiring with the full consciousness that if the opportunity had been presented the people would have testified their confidence by re-electing him to his high office.

Mr. Cleveland upon assuming this great trust, vacated by Mr. Arthur, will find no such task as that bequeathed to Mr. Lincoln, by the last Democratic administration. Slavery is dead, the soil, press and speech are free. We are at peace with ourselves and all the powers. Our resources are abundant, and we are plethoric of accumulated capital in the vaults of the national treasury. It has been decided by the solemn arbitrament of the sword, and christened by a free and full libation of sacred blood, that this is not a mere confederacy of of States, but a great and mighty nation, one and indivisible. That the resvlets which break forth from the rock ribbed hills of the West to the towering peaks of the eastern mountains shall roll on unobstructed to the Gulf, bearing the fruit of our toil to the sea, and bringing hence of the worlds best products, for comfort of our free and happy people. It is settled, too, that our manufacturers and planters in this free nation shall not be brought into competition with the pauper, or slave craft of the Old World. And the illustrious gentleman now undertaking the high duties confered upon him by the people, has before assembled thousands, and in the face of the swift winged lightning, which has borne it over Christendom, admitted that the freedom of the freedman is an act accomplished, and hence beyond the power of change or alteration. He could not have said less, and we did not expect him to say more. What he has said, has been well said, and will give satisfaction generally, not only for the clearness of his ideas but for the brevity of the inaugural address as a whole. We should much rather have seen Hon. John P. St. John inaugurated, and shall yet hope to see the day when legal prohibition of the liquor traffic will be as fully acknowledged by an incoming administration, as is the freedom of the Negroes by this one. We do not simply hope but we expect and shall do what we can for the accomplishment of this purpose, regarding it as we do, the one great hope for complete freedom, not alone for the Negroes, but all the American people as well.

We repeat what we have previously said, that there is no room for for alarm on the part of the Negroes more than others. They are free and the whole land is before them; God has in it for them, prosperity some where and verily they shall not have gone over the verdant lands of all this fair country in search of it until real prosperity comes to them. God reigns, and a just government will live. In hope of this, we hail President Cleveland, and welcome him to the chief executive position of the world. The Negroes have not been idle spectators of the transactions of the past twenty years, they have learned some things, and the hour for careful, upright practice is now fully come.

Vale Amalgamation.

Whether miscegeneration be a useful and desirable, or a michievous and avoidable thing, we are opose to it. We oppose it on these two principles:

1. Because granting it to be a thing mutually beneficial to all parties concerned, the effort to secure it should be equally mutual, and it this is not found to be the case the party most solicitous for, will be regarded as the one most in need of it. The admission of such a necessity by the Negroes is equal to a confession of Caucasian superiority per se, and this admission would, we think, tend to retard rather than accelerate the pace toward the object songht to be obtained. We therefore oppose the seeking first npon this ground.

2. We are opposed to it because a state of continuous and progessive amalgamation between the white and black people produces first an amalgam and second a white man, thus wiping out the black man, which can not be a useful thing, except on the principle that the black race is less fit to exist than the white race. Nor can it become desirable to either, until the above conclusion is reached by both races and believed in by both. Nor then under such circumstances, except as a condecension on the part of of the race thus accorded the character of superiority.

We oppose it therefore because we disfavor the wiping out of the Negro race. We believe the Negro race was brought into existance under a divine necessity, and that it has hence a divine mission as yet, not wholly fulfilled, and that therefore the existence of the Negro race ought to be perpetuated and that its endeavors to elevate and render itself should be fostered and nourished.

But what divine necessity can there be for the Negro as such?

It is necessary for God to regulate this Universe, by laws which He has Himself ordained, the entire manner of operation and full purpose of which we can only comprehend in their entireness, as the the operation of the divine energy, acting npon our affairs, through an inscrutable providence deigns to unfold them. The Negro has instincts and characteristics purely his own, as distinct as those which mark and distinguish him from the other races of men, as does his color itself. These peculiarities adapt him to aye, and fit him for peculiar circumstances and duties.

That we do not understand at present the full measure of his adaptation, or the exact scope of his circumstances, is no argument against his possession of them. Rather to the contrary, this very unknown quantity is the reason why he should be dealt by kindly, and preserved in his best natural condition, with all possible artificial embellishments.

General Grant.

During the closing honrs of the last session of Congress, both Houses—the Senate unanimously—passed the bill to place Gen. Grant upon the retired list with the full rank and pay of General. President Arthur sent his name to the Senate, and President Cleveland has signed his commission. In the House which is Democratic, immediately after the passage of the bill it was resolved to send a telegraphic message to the General to apprise him of the fact.

The old commander has not lost the affectionate esteem of a Repnblic, which was mainly saved by his bravery and statesmanship in war and peace. His last days are to be comforted by this last token of esteem, which could not have been denied him, without serious injnry to the permanence of republican institutions. If a Repnblic uses a man in the plentitude of his strength and power, and allows him to dwell in poverty and neglect in his declining years, what would become of the powerful incentives to devotion and sacrifice which its honors are esteemed to be! Surely men would esteem them lightly, and selfish motives would ontrun the race with patriotism, and end in ignoble contests for spoils.

The Republic honors itself by doing exact justice to the old commander of its armies. The world thinks better of us to-day, because it has not failed to estimate Grant at his true worth. It loves to revere its noble and true men, that the generations coming after may be inspired and moulded by their virtuous qualities.

God bless and comfort Gen. Grant.

The Opening of the Colored Exhibit.

On the 23d of February, the colored exhibits in the Exposition were formally opened. The department covers 34,220 square feet and contains about 16,000 distinct exhibits, according to the Times-Democrat. All the States save Maine and Oregon, and all the Territories exeept Dakota and Arizona are represented. Hon. A. Dejole, city commissioner, derected affairs with his well known efficiency, and he is entitled to mnch credit for the good display made in the exhibit for New Orleans contributions.

Virginia attracts by a collection of 250 photographs by a colored artist, Mississippi, is foremost place in the display of cotton. Virgini has on exhibition a large number of relics of George Washington. In etching, embroidery, crayon drawings and general fine art work the District of Columbia, has to pre-eminence. Two working models of machinery show the aptitude of members of the colored race for the mechanical arts; one is a working model of a locomotive in the Arkansas exhibit, and the second a model steamboat in the Massachusetts exhibit. Utah contribntes a complete quartz mill of improved pattern, invented by a colored man in that Territory. Alabama occupies the greatest amonnt of space, while Lonisiana's exhibit shows the greatest diversity; Georgia exhibits the art of carriage building, and New Jersey may be proud of the exhibit of manufactured goods. In the display of woman's work New York takes the lead; in paintings and graphic arts the New England States collectively send a fine collection, aggregating abont 220 paintings. Tennessee is great in cereals and Pennsylvania shows some industrial and art work in wire that deserves careful attention.

At 1 o'clock a procession of colored students of various schools, marched in having been preceded by the Excelsior Band and Larendon Rifles. Among those present were Dr. J. T. Newman, Revs. Pierre Landry, A. M. Green, A. E. P. Albert, Dr. J. H. Coker, and and Hon. A. Dejole, New Orleans commissioner, besides the representatives of the varions States. Senator Dumas introduced J. S. Spellman, the superintendent, who turned over the exhibit to the Board of Managers in a brief address, which was responded to by Commissioner Morehead, in felicitous language. Later there were further ceremonies in the Music Hall, opened with prayer by Rev. C. H. Thompson, followed by addresses of Rev. A. M. Green, D. A. Straker, of South Carolina, P. B. S. Pinchback and Bishop Turner, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church.

You Fail to Comprehend the Case, Sah!

Our usually accurate neighbor, the New Orleans Times-Democrat, has a special correspondent whose special adaptation seems to be to make mistakes abont Methodist affairs. He thinks that the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church want confidence in Bishop Taylor's Pauline Plan of Church support as now about to be applied to his African mission. The entire paper is inaccurate, but the following onght to convince all our readers if not those of the Democrat that the correspondent has very little knowledge of the subject npon which he has written. We qnote as follows, read this:

"The Bishop was assigned by the Methodist Episcopal Chnrch, on his own reqnest, to the propagation of Christianity among the savage tribes of Congo land."

Don't laugh yet. Now read this:

"All salaries of Methodist bishops are paid by the Book Committee ont of the profits of the various church pnblications, and a meeting of the members has considered the question of pay for Taylor. Their decision reflects the disapproval of the peculiar African venture. They have mailed to him, in time to catch him at Loanda, on the West coast of Africa, before the outset of the perilous journey inland, that the Book Committee will give no salary to him at all; that they judge his support ought to 'be drawn fro'n the treasury of the Missionary Society.' As he has expressly declined aid from that source, he is cut off with nothing."

"That they judge his salary ought to be drawn from the Missionary Society" is the only fact contained in this paragraph, but no donbt the correspondent gets his salary alle samee. Comment is unnecessary for our readers.

Sunday in New Orleans.

AMES CHURCH.

At 11 a. m., after announcements and the Scripture lesson, by the Rev. Thomas Stalker, the pastor, preached an able sermon on the evils of "False Philosophy." It was a pleasant service, 105 persons, little and big, white and colored, clerical and lay were present, but the gallery was empty. The pastor announced that the Church letter of Charles T. Simpson, professor in New Orleans University had been handed into this Church, and he welcomed the bearer as a member of the same. Dr. John P. Newman who was presented, and who was by many expected to preach, then closed the service in a characteristically beantiful prayer.

AT WESLEY CHAPEL.

Dr. Newman preached on "Character," to 350 people when he stood up, with constant inflow of people to the close of his sermon. He is very, and justly popular here with the colored people, and had it been well known that he would preach, no church in the city would have been snfficiently capacious to hold his audience. Prof. Hoyt, of the New Orleans University, all three of our German pastors, and quite a good sprinkle of other white people were present, and Bro. Stalker of Ames Church came later. He hurries on from this place to the bedside of his friend, General Grant.

The Inaugural Address.

Our readers as citizens will be deeply interested in all that the new President, Mr. Cleveland, had to say npon the occasion of his inauguration as foreshadowing his forthcoming policy. Therefore we present to them that particular item in the following extract:

THE NEGROES.

"In the administration of a government pledged to do equal and exact justice to all men, there should be no pretext for anxiety touching the protection of the freedmen in their rights or their security in the enjoyment of their privileges under the Constitutions or its amendments; all discussions as to their fitness for the place accorded to them as American citizens is idle and unprofitable, except as it suggests the necessity for their improvement. The fact that they are citizens entitles them to all the rights, and charges them with all its duties, obligations and responsibilities. These topics, and the constant and ever-varying wants of an active and enterprising population, may well receive the attention and patriotic endeavor of all who make and execute the Federal law.

Our duties are practical and call for industrions application, an intelligent perception of the claims of public office, and, above all, a firm determination by united action to secure to all people of the land the full benefits of the best form of government ever vouchsafed to man; and let us not trust to human effort alone, but humbly acknowledge the power and goodness of Almighty God, who presides over the destiny of nations, and who has at all times been revealed in our country's history. Let us invoke His aid and His blessing npon our labors."

Personal.

Bishop Parker.

Bishop Linus Parker of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, resident in New Orleans is dead. He died in his home at 6:30 P. M. Thursday, March 5th. He was born at Rome, Ky., in 1829 and converted at 9 years of age. He has served the church as pastor, editor of the Christian Advocate at New Orleans, and as Bishop. He was accounted faithful in all positions, and leaves a circle of friends as wide as the influence which he exerted upon his church.

—The postoffice address of J. W. Richardson, is Baldwin postoffice, Parish of St. Mary, La.

—"I wish my correspondents to address me at Pasquemine, La. P. O. box 57," M. P. Franklin, Jr.

—J. N. Stearns, Corresponding Secretary, National Temperance Society and Publication House, 58 Reade street, New York, is making a brief visit to New Orleans.

—Theo. F. Hurd, Esq., Galva, Ill., visititg the Exposition, called upon us and spent a very pleasant honr. We wish he may enjoy a prosperous visit here.

—A very fine portrait of Dr. Durbin has recently been hung npon the walls of the Board Room of the Missionary Society. It was presented by his daughter, Mrs. William Whitaker of Philadelphia, and represents him in his youth and vigor, somewhat earlier in life than the portraits of Dr. Bangs and Dr. Dashiell, which are hang on either side. It is hoped that the number of former secretaries will soon be complete in this series of portraits.

—On March 7th we were both pleased and surprised by a visit to our office from Rev. Dr. J. P. Newman, a cordial invitation to call npon himself and Mrs. Newman at their hotel was of course accepted. Thongh in a great hurry through the city he found occasion to visit Father Green, a venerable superannuate of the Louisiana Conference and associate of the Doctor's earnest work in the city. He spent the Sabbath at Wesley Chapel and then hurried on to the bedside of General Grant his mutual and changeless friend.

—A sad letter has been received from Rev. Joel A. Smith, lately appointed to the Central China Mission, containing an account of the sudden death of his wife. They had scarcely been in their new home two weeks when Mrs. Smith was attacked by small pox and after two weeks of great suffering died on the 12th. A beautiful life, a triumphant death. Borne upon nearly the last fainting breath, came the precious "gain! gain." A few days previous prefacing these words with the following most beautiful testimony "Entering Heaven I shall have but one thing to say: Nothing but the blood of Jesus."

MR. EDITOR—Can yon tell me some useful books for girls and whereto get them?—Subscriber.

Yes, "Mothers' Practical Guide Revised," with a chapter on the duties and responsibilities of "Step Mothers." Price 40cts, Phillips & Hunt, New York.

"The Negro Woman, Her Wants and Her Needs," by Rev. Alexander Cromwell, D. D., Washington, D. C., pamphlet.

"Anecdotes for the Ladies," by Rev. Daniel Smith, with an introduction by Rev. (Bishop) R. S. Foster, D. D., price 50cts, Phillips & Hunt, New York.

"Gems of Female Biography," by D. Smith, price 50cts, Phillips & Hunt, New York.

"Heroines of Methodism," by Rev. Geo. Coles 90cts, Phillips & Hunt, New York.

"Itinerants' Wife," by Rev. H. M. Eaton, 20cts, Phillips & Hunt, New York.

"Letters to School Girls:" by Rev. J. M. D. Mathews, 35cts, Phillips & Hunt, New York.

"Women of the Bible," by Chas. Adams, 50ts, Phillips & Hunt, New York.

"The True Woman," by Rev. (Bishop) Jesse T. Peck, $1, Phillips & Hunt, New York.

"The Young Ladies Counsellor," by Rev. D. Wise, price 55cts., Phillips & Hunt, New York.

We are induced to give this list of works, because we sincerely believe them the most useful for the purpose intended of any we can now remember. They have made the present white women, of the best circle, what they are in excellence of character. Excepting Dr. Cromwell's pamphlet, they were all pnblinked prior to 1845, and are none the worse for that. Some of them may be out of print, if so, old copies might be obtained of some second-hand book dealer, or as these books had a good sale for Sunday-school libraries in the North, it may be that they could be secured from such schools as may have them, through an application to Mrs. Rust, Mrs. Whatstone or Mrs. Willing, all but the latter of Cincinnati, Ohio.

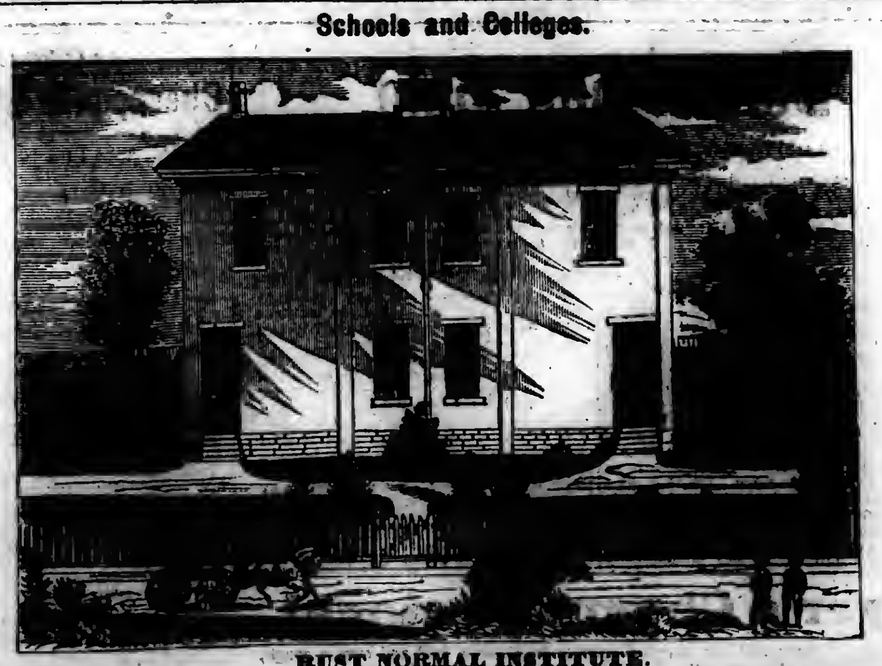
Ged Protectors Association.

ARTHUR A. LACY, ESQ.

The above named Association was organised at New Orleans in 1844, and in 1884, it was the writer's good fortune to become a member. I found at the head of this association Wm. Rodolph, President, one of Louisiana's most [illegible], a gentleman of [illegible] parliamentary ability and eminently qualified to preside; Mr. J. P. Thomas, a well-known gentleman of this city, who is master of both the French and English languages, is our worthy Secretary. His executive talent is incontrovertible. Of others I shall have something to say hereafter.

The following are members of this association, which is well-known, having been established since 1844. It is at present principally confined to our French population, but has a good reputation of solidity and square dealing:

Officers for the year 1885—President, Wm. J. Rodolph; Vice-President, Jules Honore; Corresponding Secretary, Arthur A. Lacy; Financial Secretary, J. P. Thomas, jr.; Treasurer, Alexander Antoine; Collector, Joseph Johnson, No. 2; 1st Commissary, Louis Gaspard; 2d Commissary, Jackson Thomas; 3d Commissary, Jacques Augustin; 4th Commissary, Wm. Pierre; Master of Ceremonies, Theodore J. [illegible]; Chairman of Relief Committee, Alfred Seraphin.



Relief Committees—1st District: Joseph Johnson, No. 1; Hyram [illegible]. 2d District: Louis Voltaire, [illegible] Prudent Prospere St. Ingo. 3d District: Henri Bernard, Victor Marchand, Francis Charles. 4th District: Charles Stevens.

Committee on Finance—J. P. Thomas, jr., Chairman; Emile Vinet, Henry Levere.

Committee of Improvement—Eugene Lepine, Chairman; George [illegible], Theophile Thomas.

[illegible] of Music—Eugene C. [illegible]; Auguste Denis, [illegible].

Schools and Colleges.

RUST NORMAL INSTITUTE.

Rust Normal Institute.

A. W. M'KINNEY.

In this article I desire to give our brethren of the Central Alabama Conference, some idea of our school at this place, and its work and needs. As you know, this school is supported by the Freedman's Aid society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. M. L. Raines, daughter of Rev. A. S. Lakin, D. D., an accomplished lady, is principal of this school. To her faithful labors and earnest efforts it owes much of its prosperity, if not its present existence. She employs two teachers besides herself, one, a young Scotchman, teacher of languages and mathematics, and the other a colored lady of Huntsville, wife of Dr. Scruggs, who gives instructions in vocal and instrumental music.

They have classes in complete arithmetic, algebra, ancient history, elocution and higher English grammar, etc.

Many of these students are studying with a view to enter the college course in some one of our higher institutions, and quite a number are in the normal course, and expect to teach soon as they leave school. The enrollment for this term is 170. From this any one with experience in school work may judge the amount of work these three teachers have. There are many things that might be done for the improvement of this school, but with the means and force at hand, we are unable to see how it could do any better than it is doing.

The fact that it has been of so little service to our conference (as one brother says), is not the fault of the school, but of the conference. The teachers are here, and are doing faithful and earnest work for all that come. It is liberally patronized by our people here, and there are a good number of students from the country, boarding in private families and attending.

We are told that there has been some opposition between ours and the State Normal School which, as is always the case, worked disastrously to both, but the same now, pleasantly takes the form of competition which will equally tend to the life and prosperity of both. The thing this school needs is the moral and financial support of the Conference and Church at large.

Theological and Sunday-school Institute.

BY REV. JOHN BRADEN, D. D.

The third annual meeting of the Theological and Sunday-school Institute of the Central Tennessee College will begin on March 22, 1885, and continue four days. The exercises will be under the general control of Rev. A. H. Gillett, general agent of the Sunday-school Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He will be assisted by brethren, who have given [illegible] subjects to be discussed such as will make the exercises [illegible]ble. The brethren in the [illegible] and Sunday-school work are cordialy invited to be present and take part in the exercises. Children who come over the [illegible] Chattanooga and [illegible] road, may write to the undersigned for reduced rates of fare. As far as possible the members of the Institute will be entertained without expenses; brethren will report at the College, unless they have made arrangements to be entertained elsewhere.

Central Tennessee College, Nashville.

Wiley University closing exercises and annual examinations, from June 8 to 10. Commencement exercises June 11. Bishop Mallalieu and Dr. Gillett, are expected to visit our district during the month of April or early in May, and assist in memorial services at Wiley University in honor of Bishop Wiley, and may vary the above programme, in which case due notice will be given.

Woman's Home Missionary Society.

The quarterly meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society was held in Cincinnati, January 31st; Mrs. Rutherford B. Hayes presiding. Mrs. Bishop Walden conducted the devotional exercises. The report of the Recording Secretary, Mrs. F. A. Aiken, was accepted. The report of the Treasurer, Mrs. A. R. Clark, shows the receipts for the quarter, including balance on hand, to be $7,838.58, expenditures $6,234.49. The Treasurer represented the urgent need for additional funds to meet the increasing demands of the work. Appeals come to the Society for aid from all destitute portions of the country.

The reports from missionary teachers indicate that God is blessing their labors and the instrumentalities employed by the Society. The reports from the several conferences show increasing activity in promoting organization. This is vital to the success of the Society and it is encouraging to know that several of the conference associations have donbled their membership and number of auxiliaries during the quarter. The Erie conference reports 58 this quarter and only 27 last, an increase of 31. Mrs. Bickley, from the Philadelphia conference, writes: "Our work is going on finely, we are organizing new societies every week, and the interest is increasing." Mrs. Col. Springer, from Iowa, sends similar word, and other secretaries join in the chorus. But we believe that there is great loss to the society from lack of system in preparing and forwarding reports. The secretary of one of our conference societies sends reports from only sixteen out of thirty-nine auxiliaries, and we doubt if an average more than half were reported in time for the quarterly summary. The item of membership in this case given is 443, while if all the societies are equally prosperous it would be 1036. As our work grows in proportions and importance the necessity of more thorough system in the details becomes more apparent. The Society is now in part organized in forty [illegible]nferences, and we have in ten [illegible]ates and Territories seventeen [illegible]sionaries at work. Each conference is an interesting field of [illegible]ations, and each secretary [illegible]s items of information from her that are intensely interesting and would be an inspiration to our workers everywhere. So of our missionary teachers. These noble women toiling in their several fields, each in her own impressive way, tells her story of incident and often of genuine pathos. Many of these letters read like a romance, but it is not possible in the limited space of this report, to even glance at these fields of labor or relate the touching messages that have cheered my heart, awakened my sympathy and kindled my enthusiasm.

The new forms for the use of conference and anxiliary officers have been prepared, and we trust full reports will be secured for the next quarter. Special enterprises are receiving encouraging support. The Philadelphia Conference has secured, outside of membership dues, over $1,000 for the Simpson Memorial Home, at Orangeburg, South Carolina. The ladies of the Troy Conference are pushing energetically the interests of the Industrial School at Greensboro, North Carolina. The purchase of desirable property has been made for the work at Savannah. The Industrial School building at Holly Springs has been completed. It is a beautiful structure and thoroughly adapted to the object; and will be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies the 10th of March. Since the publication of the act securing the incorporation of the society, we have received notice of three bequests of considerable value.

We have to lament the death of a faithful friend of the society, in Malden, Massachusetts, Mrs. A. D. Sargent. At the age of 78 she went home to heaven, ripe in years and good works, mourned by a large circle of friends, having lived the life of a faithful consecrated Christian. Two years ago she gave to the Society $500, a large share of her little property.

Also, our Society has lost another true and able friend in the death of Mrs. Gen. Albright, of Mauka Chunk, Penn., for ac onsiderable time corresponding secretary of the Philadelphia Conference Society, a lady of fine ability and true consecration to the course of Christ.

Four missionary teachers have been added to our corps during the quarter. Miss Hattie Emerson, Jacksonville, Florida; Mrs. Snow, Greensboro, North Carolina; Miss Levering, Morristown, Tennessee, and one teacher at Provo, Utah.

The school and chapel building at Salt Lake City and the one at Ephram, Utah, are in course of construction and will be finished in the Spring. The latter was secured to this people by the generous donation of Mrs. Joseph Knapp, made at the annual meeting and will be named in honor of her mother, "The Phœbe Palmer Memorial Chapel." Rev. P. A. H. Franklin, writes of the joy of the people at Ephram, who shed tears of rejoicing when they learned of the gift which secured to them a place for a school and for worship. He says, "I am to receive seven persons into full communion in our Church next Sunday. These have all been Mormons."

Mrs. McCabe presented the report of the committee on mission work among the Indians, and $300 ware subscribed at once by ladies to build a cottage for our missionary among the Pawnees.

Mrs. Geo. Williams represented the committee on work in our great cities. Unless the neglected populations of these can be brought under Christianizing influence, it may not be long that we will have a country to love and sacrifice for. Mr. J. H. Boyles reported in behalf of the department of supplies 241 boxes sent to seventy-five different places, valued at $9,241.43; grateful recognition was made of favors and courtesies extended this department by railroad and express companies.

Mrs. Jennie F. Willing presented the report of the Bureau of organization and gave a deeply interesting account of her observations in her recent visit South. Enlivening music was rendered by Miss Freshman and Miss Ambrose and others.

The Model Singer—A book for singing schools, conventions and choirs. By W. O. Perkins and D. B. Towner. Price 60c. Published by Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston.

A new, and to appearance an an excellent book for singing classes. Mr. Perkins' work as a composer is well known, and Mr. Towner's music evinces taste and ability. The book contains 162 pages well filled. The usual singing school course is well furnished with graded exercises. There are many bright and singable harmonized songs, and a good assortment of hymn tunes and anthems. The moderate price is a recommendation.

The Pulpit Treasury, for Febnary, cantains a fine engraving of Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, a sermon by the same and many other leading divines of the present day. Especially helpful to ministers. Published by E. B. Treat, N. Y., $2.50 per year; to clergymen, $2.

Outing and the Wheelman an illustrated monthly magazine of recreation, published by the Wheelman Co., 175 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass., $2.00 a year. Among other interesting articles the February number has one on "Out door life in Louisiana," which will be of unusual interest to the people of New Oaleans and the Gulf coast.

Babyhood, devoted exclusively to the care of infants and young children, and the general interests of the nursery. Leroy M. Yale, M. D., Medical Editor; Marion Harland, Editor of the departments relating to general nursery routine. It is the purpose of this new magazine to become a medium for the dissemination among parents of the best thought of the time on all subjects connected with the needs of early childhood, embracing in its scope the period from the day of birth to the age when the nnrsery is supplanted by the school-room. Every important topic concerning life during that time will be discussed in its pages—the physical requirements of the child, the manifestations of its development, the sanitary conditions of its surroundings, the comfort and embellishment of its home, questions of dress, amusement, etc., and the many minor problems of nursery economy. Babyhood will enlist in all its departments the services of competent specialists; it will endeavor to be thoroughly helpful and suggestive in its chosen field, and to combine so great a variety of subjects, briefly and practically, treated, that each issue cannot fail to be useful and companionable to all who have the interests of their little ones at heart. Price of snbscription, $1.50 a year; $1 for eight months; $2 for sixteen months; single numbers, 15 cts. All commnnications should be addressed to Babhyood, 18 Spruce Street, New York. Snbscription canvassers wanted everywhere; liberal terms on applications.

The Febuary number of The Put; pit of To-day contains sermons by Cannon Liddon on "Mysteries in Religion," Cannon Farrar on Spirituality," Henry Ward Beecher on "The Natural and the Spiritual," and "The Use and Abuse of Praise." Dr Joseph Parker continnes his exposition in the book of Genesis, and Prof. E. Johnson contribntes one of his characteristic studies. Among the sermonic framework there are outlines by Dr. Landels, Dr. Maclaren, Dr. Parker, Dr. Gervase Smith, C. H. Spurgeon and others. Taken all together, it is a rich number of this popular periodical. One dollar a year; single number, 10 cts. A. E. Rose, publisher, Westfield, N. Y.

The numbers of The Living Age for the weeks ending February 14th and 21st, contain Prince Bismarck, London Quaterly; Sydney Smith, British Quarterly; English Character and Manners as portrayed by Anthony Trollope, Westminster; Cæsarism, Nineteenth Century; Dr. Johnson, Contemporary; Della Crusca and Anna Matilda; Satan: Episode in English Literature, National Review, The Summer Palace, Peking, Belgravia; Whitby, Good Words; The Religion of Hamlet, Month; Outside London, Chambers; Coptic Monasteries in the Eighteenth Century, All the Year Round; "Snow Bncking" in the Rocky Mountains, Longmans; Silence is Gold, Spectator; with Instalments of "A House Divided Against Itself," "Within his Danger', a Tale from the Chinese, and "A Hard Day's Work," and Poetry. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

ORIGIN OF SCANDAL.

Said Mrs. A.
To Mrs. J.
In a quiet and confidential way,
"It seems to me
That Mrs. B.
Takes too much—something—in her tea."
And Mrs. J.
To Mrs. K.
That night was overheard to say—
She grieved to touch
Upon it much,
But "Mrs. B. took—such and such!"
Then Mrs. K.
Went straight away
And told a friend, the self-same day,
"'Twas sad to think—"
Here came a wink—
"That Mrs. B. was fond of drink."
The friend's disgust
Was such, she must
Inform a lady, "which she mussed,"
That Mrs. B.
At half-past three
Was "that far gone she couldn't see!"

The lady we
Have mentioned, she Gave needle-work to Mrs. B.,
And at such news,
Could scarcely choose
But further needle-work refuse.
Then Mrs. B.,
As you'll agree,
Quite properly—she said, said she,
The like would rankle
The spiritual back
To those who made her look so black.
Then Mrs. K.
And Mrs. J.
She got at last to Mrs. A.,
And asked her why
With cruel lie,
She painted her so deep a dye?
Said Mrs. A.
In soft dismay,
"I no such thing could ever say;
I said what you
Had stouter grew
Or too much sugar—which you do!"

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Third Letter.

BY MACK HENSON.

MR. EDITOR.—I started a few weeks ago, to write up the history, of St. Paul Methodist Episcopal Church, as the church at large, and even our sister churches with, in bounds of Western Texas Conference can never know with what the church in San Antonio has had to contend, unless it be told them, by some one competent to do so. The question has been asked, why the membership of this church are so small after so many years of faithful labor by some of the best ministers? It would be quite difficult to answer these questions so well, as by giving a history of the charge, which would enable the inquirer, to inform himself intelligently. It has been thought by that there has never been any heroism displayed by the ministers [illegible] in the South, especially so, with reference to the work done by our colored brethren. I am now, at a point, where I think, if the facts are given to the public, it will go far to show, the work accomplished by our colored brethren here, and under what circumstances.

Within the last five weeks, we have disposed of our old parsonage property, as it was inconvenient to board, and purchased a few lots, adjoining our church lot, on the east side; and are erecting a four roomed house on it, with a hall, three of the rooms are [illegible] with twelve feet walls, the kitchen and dining apartment are 10x12, this room will be left unfinished inside only. It is built of first class lumber, siding, or weather boarding, and of California or Novelty styled lumber, ceiled, and has two flues, one with a double thimble. All dressed lumber will receive two coats of paint. As we had no money to begin with, and the pastor almost out of shelter, we gave a lien on the property, (parsonage) and will have two [illegible] $700 in, but the contractor will receive some of the above amount, when he turns over the keys to trustees, etc. We are all pr[illegible] and feel that his presence will diffuse new life into the veins of our conference school enterprise. This school is the hope of the Western and Southwestern portion of this emporium, its erection, and readiness for occupancy are the prayers of many faithful women and men. The SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE increases in brilliancy, with her increase of age. And with Dr. M. W. Taylor at its head, we feel that its value is greatly enhanced. The people unite in eulogizing the wisdom of the General Conference, for appointing a competent man of color to that important post, but not to the exclusion of any brother of another race, or color, but to a place, and a man for the place. We occupy the preacher's new house, first week in March, 1885. Adieu.

San Antonio, Texas, Feb. 13, 1885.

What You Say.

"There are so many frauds advertised for the hair," you say. So there are, but Parker's Hair Balsam is not one of them. It will not work miracles, but it will do better service for your hair than anything else you can find. Restores original color, cures dandruff, gives new growth. Elegantly perfumed. Not a dye.

Lost Friends.

We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any cases where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my relatives. My mother left all her relatives in Kentucky. Her father and mother were Bennet and Deliley Johnson; her brothers were Rolling, Elisha, Westley and Bob Johnson, and also a brother named Smith Bolett, by father; her aunts were Betty and Sally; she left them all in Cloverport, Ky. They all belonged to Zeak Fisher, brother of Clayton Fisher. My mother was named, at that time, Sally Johnson; she left her son in Elizabethtown, Ky., seven miles from Harding county; before peace was declared his name was Henry Clay Brown; she used to belong to Thos. Brown, brother of Elisha Brown, and her name was at that time Sally Brown, but is now Sarah Forrest. My father, Hardy Forrest, now deceased, left his relatives on Stanley's Creek, Gaston county, North Carolina. His parents were Samuel and Lucy Forrest; brothers, Moses, Orange, Jerry and Wart Forrest and a sister named Margaret Forrest. My guardians, Geo. and Sally Hunter, left the city about fifteen years ago, and said they were going to Norfolk, Va., but I never heard from them. I am anxious to hear from all my relatives. Ministers in Kentucky, North Carolina and Virginia will please read this from their pulpits. Any information will be thankfully received. Address, Chestnut, near Valence street, New Orleans, La.

BENNET FORREST.

I came from Virginia, Amaranda county, with a Mrs. Annie Owens, when about five years old. My old master's name was Richard Warfield; my father was named Zechariah Wood; my mother's name was Fanny Warfield; my brother was named Sam Warfield, sister Lucy Warfield. I had two aunts Eliza and Maria Warfield. After Mrs. Owen's death I was sold to the traders, brought to South Carolina and sold to Benj. Kilgore. I next belonged to Mrs. Borum, and lived in Mississippi. I have four children that are gone from me. Abram Borum went to Memphis with Grant's army, Caddice, Catharine and Joe Borum lived in Memphis, Tenn., they belonged to Jerre Borum. I am now living in Oxford, Miss., with Mrs. Bettie Ferrell.

MATILDA BORUM.

I have not yet found my uncle, and through your most interesting paper I wish to make further inquiry for him. He left Rea's plantation two years before the civil war closed; at that time he went by the name of Philip Rea. His mother and father went by the the name of Alzaro Rea and Joe Rea. He had only one sister; her name was Sarah Ann Rea; she married Nelson Holston, but his name has since been changed to Hayman. They are my mother and father. He came to Arkansas in 1857 with Thomas Oliver, and lived in Columbia county, near Mathew's store, on Crooked Creek, adjoining Anderson Smith's plantation. His mother and father came two years after he died. He belonged to Cornelius Rea, and the overseer's name was Anderson Bursey. Pastors and friends, I desire your help in finding my uncle. Any information concerning him will be very very gratefully received. Address G. W. Mayman, Wiley University, Marshall, Texas.

Mrs. Martha Johnson, Hempstead, Texas, whose maiden name was Hoxey, wishes to find her mother, whose name was Annie Watkins. She went from Eaton, Ga., to New Orleans. Her children were Harry, the oldest, Jim, Rachel, Maria and Sophie.

Better than Gold.

So easily is a cold taken that not frequently one is at a loss to tell when or how it has originated, and is prone to expect it will go HEALTH as lightly as it came. Perhaps it may go easily, if helped a little; but every cold that comes to STAY... It may happen just at a IS time when, from other causes, the normal strength of resistance in the system has been lowered. A little inattention or delay may give it a dangerous BETTER hold. Let it once become firmly seated, and the work of dislodgement will be very difficult. The simple Coryza, or cold in the head, may THAN develop into a Catarrh, and is indeed exceedingly likely so to do. That such is the case is evidenced by the fact that seven persons out of every ONE, in the United States, have catarrh in a severe form. Or, if it does not take that form, the little cough that is at first but an annoyance, is almost certain to become dry, hard, racking and constantly recurring, worrying in waking hours, banishing sleep, and momentarily weakening the patient. The larynx, vocal cords, and tonsils, become inflamed. The inflammation extends into the bronchial tubes. "Laryngitis" AYER'S and "Bronchitis" are the easiest words that the doctor, called in about that time, will use. The trouble goes on working down the CHERRY bronchial tubes to the lungs, ultimately threatening Pulmonary Consumption. Or, perhaps, the malady assumes the quickly PECTORAL fatal phase of Pneumonia. Just about as unwise a thing as an ordinarily sensible person can do, is to neglect a "little" PRESERVES cold or cough and give it a chance to develop in any of these ways. And when it comes to the treatment of children, neglect is criminality. All HEALTH. the dangers to be feared from colds and coughs may be averted, in the very outset, by the administration of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a medicine ineffably beneficent, which allays the coughing, soothes to refreshing rest, and brings back health.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

Is the only medicine that can be relied upon to break up a cold and cure a cough, and is invaluable in the treatment of all affections of the throat and lungs.

The following are samples of what people say who know it:

"Medical science has produced no other anodyne expectorant so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is invaluable for diseases of the throat and lungs."—PROF. F. SWEETZER, (Maine Medical School) Brunswick, Me.

"AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL affords more relief in cases of Whooping Cough than any other medicine."—DR. ARTHUR Y. COX, St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for 20 years. It is a wonderful remedy for Throat and Lung Diseases."—L. GARRETT, Texana, Tex.

"My children have taken AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for Coughs and Croup, and have found it give immediate relief, followed by cure."—MRS. J. GREGG, Lowell, Mass.

"I find nothing else so efficacious as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in the treatment of Colds and Coughs, and have used it in Croup, Asthma, and incipient Consumption, with great success."—DR. J. H. WILSON, Centerville, Iowa.

"My wife, troubled with violent coughing, hard and dry, for 30 years, got so low I thought it would kill her. She took AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and is entirely cured.—G. M. CARR, French Camp, Miss.

"Several members of my family suffered severely with Influenza. All were cured by AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in a few days."—HENRY RUSSELL, Somerset, N. J.

"The best remedy that can be had for Coughs and Colds is AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL."—E. M. SARGENT, Lowell, Mass.

THE WEEKLY
National Republican.

The Best Newspaper Ever Published at the National Capital.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1885.

The Republican is the only weekly paper published at the National Capital which is an aggressive exponent of true republican principles, and it will be invaluable during the next four years, especially to every active adherent of the party of freedom and progress throughout the entire land.

In it the course of legislation will be given in full, as well as all news concerning the industrial interests of the country.

A faithful record will be furnished of all appointments and dismissals by the executive, together with the leading ones made by the several departments, including the army and navy, as well as those of the postal service.

Special attention will be paid to the agricultural and producing interests, and a complete epitome of the news of the week from all parts of the world, dated from our own telegraphic dispatches, will be found in our columns.

Sample copies mailed free on application.

The Weekly National Republican is now offered by the year at the following largely reduced rates, each copy to be separately addressed and forwarded by mail, free of postage:

One copy $1 00

As compensation for services in obtaining subscriptions at these rates agents and club organizers will be allowed to retain 15 per cent of the amount collected, the remainder to be sent to this office by draft, money order or registered letter. With the improvements thus presented we ask our friends to help us to a large circulation, not only among Republicans, but also among fair-minded men holding different political opinions, but who do really desire to be well informed as to the views of their opponents as enunciated in their leading papers. The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Panperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

THE PILLOW-INHALER!

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION.

TRADE MARK.

THE PILLOW-INHALER is one of the most effective inventions of the age. It does what never has been done before, viz.: batters down the stronghold of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption by a continuous application of Medicated and Curative Air to the diseased mucous membranes of the air-passages of the nose, throat and lungs.

A Radical and Permanent Cure.

Most people who have Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption have tried from one to a dozen different remedies without being cured. Why have they not been cured? Simply because what they took were not cures. How is a snuff to be got into all the intricate air-passages and in the blood (for Catarrh is a constitutional disease)? or, how will inhaling medicine for a few minutes a day dislodge the enemy from its stronghold of decaying tissue? Everybody knows that medicine taken in doses has very feeble effect on diseases of a pulmonary character. They have to take such a roundabout way to get into the blood that they miss their power. Yet after all there is an Absolute Cure, and that is the PILLOW-INHALER—a means of all-night or continuous inhalation. The testimony to its results is beyond all question, by the experience of thousands. The cures it has effected seem almost incredible. It is a comfortable pillow of soft hair, with receptacles in which is put the evaporating medicine, the fumes of which the diseased person inhales all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, without being annoyed and without noticing that he is taking medicine. There is no dosing the stomach, no douching or snuffing; but, just as a smoky lamp, during the whole night, will leave a thick deposit on a whitened wall, so the PILLOW-INHALER, for eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. It is a constitutional and local cure at the same time. The medicine is applied directly, like a salve, at the seat of the disease, besides going into the blood during its aeration. It is inexpensive and within the reach of every one. No matter what you have tried or how despairing you are, call and see it, or write for Pamphlet and Testimonials. Address,

The Pulpit of To Day is the first number of the consolidated "English Pulpit of To Day" and "Plymouth Pulpit," forming a very strong and attractive combination. The January number contains sermons by Revs. Canon Farrar, Arthur Mursell, Principal Stubbs, Joseph Parker, and two by Henry Ward Beecher; sermonic outlines by Principal Fairburn, Wm. F. Faber, Arthur Mursell, and others, besides the usual amount of other miscellaneous matter. The low price of the magazine has helped it into public favor and gained for it the largest circulation of any homiletic magazine in America. One dollar a year; specimen copies, 10 cts. A. E. Rose, publisher, Westfield N. Y.

"I was right peart till the rheumatis sot in," said a suffering old man who lives near the swamp. Fact is, wherever you live you can't be "right peart" if you are a victim of this troublesome disease. Captain C. W. Hostenpiller, Springfield, O., says, I found great relief from inflammatory rheumatism by using Browns Iron Bitters." Thousands of other people have found similar relief.

Frederick W. Freer, whose paintings are fair representations of progressive American art, has produced two ideal heads, brunette and blonde, which have been reproduced on satin by L. Prang & Co., and will be published as valentines. There is a growing tendency to accept as missives of this kind genuine art productions in place of exaggerated representations of Cupid and his victims which once appealed to popular taste. In the same way the comic valentines of the past are represented to-day by humorous but artistic reproductions from the brush of well-known artists, as F. S. Church, Harry Beard, &c.

The Kidneys cleanse the system. It is important to keep them healthful and active, this is the best done with HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY. It is a specific for all kidney, liver and urinary complaints. Some of the worst chronic cases that have been given up by physicians and friends, have been cured.

While chopping in the woods near Rondout, N.Y., recently, Jacob J. Brown found an iron cannon ball, supposed to have been fired from a cannon in Revolutionary times. The ball, now much corroded and full of holes, weighs seven and a half pounds.

A Western newspaper says that the latest sensation is a St. Louis horse that chews tobacco; but the greatest sensation is Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, now used by every sensible person.

Sedgwick Steel Wire Fence.

Is the best general purpose wire fence in use. It is a strong net-work without barbs. Don't injure stock. It will turn dogs, pigs, sheep, and poultry, as well as horses and cattle. The best fence for Farms, Gardens, Stock ranges, and Railroads. Very neat, pretty styles for Lawns, Parks, School lots, and Cemeteries. Covered with rust-proof paint, or made of galvanized wire, as preferred. It will last a life-time. It is better than boards or barbed wire in every respect. Give it a fair trial; it will wear itself into favor. The Sedgwick Gates made of wrought iron pipe and steel wire, defy all competition in lightness, neatness, strength, and durability. We make the best, cheapest, and easiest working all-iron automatic or self-opening gate, and the neatest cheap iron fences now made. The Rees folding poultry coop is a late and useful invention. The best Wire Stretcher. Capping Pliers, and Post Augers. We also manufacture Russell's excellent Wind Engines for pumping, and Geared Engines for grinding, etc. For prices and particulars ask Hardware Dealers, or address, mentioning paper.

FIRST QUARTER. STUDIES IN ACTS, A. D. 60. LESSON XI. March 15. Paul before Agrippa; Acts xxvi, 1-18. Golden Text, Acts 26, 15.

HOME READINGS.

M.—Paul before Agrippa; Acts 26, 1-18.

Tu.—Paul before Festus, Acts 25, 1-12.

W.—Agrippa hears of Paul; Acts 25, 13-27.

Th.—The promise of God; 2 Sam. 7, 12-17.

F.—Firm in hope; Heb. 3, 1-15.

Sat.—Changed through Christ; 1 Tim. 1, 12-20.

Sun.—Receiving the inheritance; Col. 3, 16-25.

QUESTIONS FOR HOME STUDY.

1. The orators opening, v. 1-3.
What was the charge against Paul?
How did he begin his defense?
Why was he pleased to answer Agrippa?
What request did he make of the king?

2. The Pharisees record, v. 4-11.
What did Paul say of his own life?
To what sect did he belong?
Of what did he say he was judged?
What question did he ask concerning the resurrection?
How had he formally felt toward Jesus?
What did he confess to have done?

3. The Christian's Call, v. 12-18.
What wonderful event did he narrate?
Who appeared to him in a vision?
What did he wish to make of Paul?
To whom was the Apostle to be sent?
What results were promised to him?

PRACTICAL TEACHINGS.

How does this lesson illustrate—
1. The pleasure of addressing intelligent hearers?
2. An honest man led astray?
3. The honest man's restoration?

Doctrinal Suggestions—Conversion from sin.

"Take the bull by the horns" is an old adage, but you take Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup by the teaspoonful. A few drops for a child. One bottle will save the lives of a family. For coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc., it is excellent and safe.

New Light on Rheumatism.

"I had been completely disabled from rheumatism. I used Parker's Tonic for kidney disease, when to my astonishment the rheumatism completely disappeared." So writes Mrs Henry Bogert, of No. 454 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y. Rheumatism arises from the failure of the kidneys to seperate the uric acid from the blood.

Often sickness leaves the little child in such a condition that it cannot assimilate hearty foods. Such a case should at once commence the use of Nestle's Food as a daily diet. It will soon restore the digestive organs to their normal condition, and will give all needed strength. Thousands of children have been reared upon it. All druggists sell it, and some grocers. Put up in four sizes—25c., 65c., $1.25 and $1.75. Send to Woolrich & Co., Palmer, Mass., for pamphlets on the subject of rearing children.

Editorial Notes.

For the Southwestern.

Why, oh Moon, hide thy full refulgent face
Behind clouds heaven high, golden and lace?
Thy myriad babes seek thee, cross milky-way,
With songs of praise, as in creations first day;
Mars in blue space hanging and a'one sleeps,
Venus in brilliant majesty peeps
Through clouds like the pillar by day of old,
Watching meteors leave their mother's fold,
With eyes streaming tears, fiery tears;
But thou, O Queen of night, fixed as in Primitive morning! Be thou still sign for years.
Music the faintest, angel whispers, all did,
Yea, all creation's anthems wailings,
O, Moon, reach far unto thy cold dull cave.

GEO. W. WELLS.

The Lord is a crown of glory, a diadem of beauty, a spirit of judgment to them that sit in judgment, a strength to them that turn the battle to the gate.

Dr. Rust requests us to say that in our late notice of Rust University we gave credit to him for liberality in its establishment and support above what he is entitled to receive.

"Mr. Editor, please accept my thanks for what you are so nobly doing for us. The SOUTHWESTERN is giving more satisfaction now than ever before." Yours ——

Dr. Hartzell, in his acknowledgment of $16.55 paid him by Miss [illegible], Miss Nellie Chapman and Miss Louise M. Davis last week, credits the payment through Mr. Hunt, but the ladies claim that they paid the money to Dr. Hartzell himself. Now, how is this, Doctor?

The People's Advocate seems to think, and we endorse the thought, that people, black or white, who have the least dread, fear or aversion to what is called social equality ought not to accept positions among the Negroes, the requirements of which cannot be honestly, and fully met without this equality.

They seem to be in earnest about the inauguration of an Episcopal residence on the Pacific coast, and Bishop Fowler seems to be equally in earnest about making his residence there. Steps are now being taken to raise means to secure a site and erect a building for the [illegible] in San Francisco. Happy [illegible].

BISHOPS' MEETING—The next meeting of the Bishops will be held in St. Louis, Mo., May 14. Presiding elders would do well to make a note of this, take plenty of time, [illegible] and present any [illegible] for their supervision, that [illegible] amount of information may be thereby imparted, of [illegible] cannot be too much.

The Seat of the Soudan War.

The above map will give our readers a good idea of the Soudan, a region but little known to the American people. The city of Khartoum, so long the objective point of public interest, is on the south bank of the Bahr-el-Azrak, or Blue Nile, a mile south of its junction with the Bahr-el-Abiad, or White Nile, and the city walls reach to within less than half a mile of the latter, so that the garrison of Khartoum commands both streams. On the other side of the White Nile is the terminous of the great caravan route to Dongola and the fortified camp from which General Hick's ill-fated expedition set out. Opposite Khartoum is the island of Tuti, dividing the Blue Nile into two branches. The city is thus the most important post, strategically considered, on the upper Nile, and is the natural centre of military power in the Equatorial Provinces. In one other respect it is even more important to Egypt. It is at Khartoum that the Nilometer records the rising of the waters and indicates to the farmers of the Delta the influence the melting snow will exercise upon the volume of the stream upon which their prosperity and very existence depend.

Its early history is unknown. The ruins in the neigborhood indicate it to have been an important outpost of the imperial government of the Pharaohs. The vicissitudes of centuries finally reduced it to the position of a subordinate town of Sennaar, commercially tributary to Shendy, which, situated more than a hundred miles further down the Nile, had become the business centre of the entire Eastern Soudan. In 1819, however, Mehemet Ali, the great Pacha and first Khedive of Egypt, determined to extend his sway as far as possible. He accordingly sent up the Nile an expedition commanded by his sons Ibrahim—afterward Khedive for a few weeks—and Ismail—not the Khedive of that name. The result of this expedition was to conquer the Eastern Soudan and annex it to the Egyptian realm, and Khartoum, at first made the base of military operations, became in 1823 the seat of government and outstripped Shendy in commercial importance. In 1846, Pope Gregory XVI, founded a mission there which was long conducted by Dr. Ignaz Knoblecher. Several European consulates were also established, that of England dating from 1849 to 1864, in which year it was abolished.

The population of Khartoum has varied from 10,000 to 30,000, according to the policy of the Governor; official exactions frequently causing a sudden exodus of one-third of the inhabitants The town contains, however, about 3,000 houses, mostly of mud and millet stalks, and in only a few instances arranged in streets or squares. The Governor's house is the principal building in the city. It stands on the river bank, and General Gordon said it was as large as Marlborough House, London. There have also been constructed some other buildings of importance, for in 1871 Dr. Schweinfurth says he found there a large number of new brick buildings, a spacious quay on the Blue Nile, and some imposing structures on the other bank of the river. The land slides of the city are surrounded by a wall and ditch. The drainage of the place is bad, much of it lying below the level of high-water in the river; consequently it is an unhealthful and foul-smelling city. The inhabitants are Egyptians, Berbers, Arabs, Turks, Negroes, and Europeans.

Methodist Men and Women's Mutual Aid and Beneficiary Assiciation.

BY REV. L. N. TAYLOR.

The Methodist Preacher's Mutual Aid and Beneficiary Society of the United States of America, what is it? Why was it organized? Is it a necessity? Can it succeed? What benefit will it be to the ministers and laymen of our Church? To answer these five questions is the object of these letters. Believing that if these questions can be answered to the satisfaction of those whom we hope to reach by the organization, and who are now halting between two opinions, that they will see their way clear, and feel it a duty as well as a high privilege to help build up this organization. In my letter published in this paper November 27, 1884, I tried to show that it is not a close corporation and that it has given satisfaction to quite a number, who had mistaken the object of its founders. In that letter we said, that every policy holder is eligible to any and every position in the gift of the Society, and that we look forward to the time we hope not far distant, when each conference will be represented on the different boards of the general management of the Society. We also stated that at the rapid rate at which the Society is increasing in the South, that it would, within the next year be entitled to at least half of the officers.

To the first question, what is this Society? It may be the better way to show what a thing is by showing what it is not. First it is not a General Conference Society, the General Conference has nothing to do with it. Looking over the territory occupied by our Church, and knowing what small salaries our preachers receive, and the destitute condition of our superannuated preachers, and seeing with horror the rapidity with which ungodly societies were and are springing up all over the land, and seeing how these institutions are imposing on the people, robbing them annually by their legalized schemes, of their hard earnings, and seeing the class of men those institutions push to the front as leaders, men who ignore Church, God and morality; men whom we would wish to not have in our homes; men who stagger in the streets and frequent dens of crime, and get their living at cards and in questionable ways, are frequently men who swing the gavel; which notifies Methodist preachers, their wives, daughters, and thousands of the best men and women under the sun, that the ungodly wishes their attention, and seeing what an unholy influence these societies exercise in the community, how they tax the people give dances, drill on the holy Sabbath, administer the Lord's supper, etc. And seeing with what perfect submission, Christian men and women bow to the mandates of those demoralizing societies scattered all over the land, to the robbing of the Church, the desecration of the Sabbath, the dishonor of God.

The lowering of the standard of Christian character, which causes the sinner to doubt the elevating influences of the religion of Christ, and are the forerunners of many deeds of darkness and immorality, which is always sure to follow. Whenever any power to any great extent throws off the restraining influences of the Church; and that a great many of the societies in which thousands of Church members are enrolled, do meet on the Sabbath, and receive men and women into membership, who are living the most ungodly lives, and that their influence is in the interest of immorality, tends to foster and encourage disobedience to God, and the church. No one who is acquainted with the facts will for a moment question that some societies do administer the sacrament to their members; Church members sinners, all alike. I have a Methodist preacher as my informer, he told me that it was done in his church, in his presence. Yes, in a Methodist Episcopal Church, by an African Methodist preacher. I wish to say here, that that Methodist preacher is lucky that I am not his presiding elder, and that African preacher is lucky that I was not the pastor of that Church.

With all of these facts before us, knowing the evil that is among the colored people, and that the colored churches, colored preachers, and the colored race is suffering therefrom. Yes, suffering morally, socially, religiously and financially, and being Methodist preachers, and knowing that to be superannuated is almost equivalent to being sent to the poor house; and believing that the aforesaid evils can be counteracted by a united effort of the colored preachers only. That it is the question of questions, with which the colored preachers have to grapple. How to emancipate the Church from, and protect the rising generation against the demoralizing influences of the hundred and one immoral societies, which are pushing their way into every community, to rule and ruin. Believing that the Methodist preacher has a great work to do along this line, we could not wait for the General Conference to take up the work; for thes evils mentioned above affect the general Church only relatively. To say that there is sectional evil, or evils which effect the Church in one section, that do not in another, is only to say what is true. Hence the necessity for a united effort on the part of the preachers of a church to check and overthrow an evil in one section of the country, that is almost entirely unknown in another. We said above that this evil is among the colored people, all we mean by this is, that it is to correct these evils among the colored people more directly, that this Society was organized, and not that the white people are not beset with the same enemies, yes, worse enemies, ten time worse if possible. If any one doubts the above let him read what the late Bishop Simpson has written on this subject.

But the difference between the white part of the Church and the colored part is among the former. The Church is the highest type of society, and is the dividing line in the moral world, and to her altar the learned and wealthy bow. So the demoralizing societies can not so early make their inroads upon the white Church; but they assail the community from another standpoint; but among the latter, on account of their ignorance and poverty of nine tenths of our people, their inability to care for their sick, and bury their dead, it was necessary to organize societies for that purpose, and the tardiness of the ministry to make this provision for the people. Satan always on the alert, set his agents to work, and as these societies were to care for the sick and bury the dead, they found easy access to the people so they have gone on year after year increasing their influence over the people until, in some places their control is so complete that the Church occupies only a secondary place in the affections of the people, and the preacher is a very small man, compared to the head man of the society, though he be a perfect Christian gentleman, and the head man of the society be a devil incarnate. (To this only we object).

Second, It is not an insurance company, in the general acceptation of that term, according to the laws of Missouri.

Third. It is not a stock company with shares.

Fourth. It is not a war on all societies among the colored people for there are 3 or 4 good strong societies which will, and ought to be continued, but there are about 50 or 60 which, if they do not die it will not be our fault. It is, first, an effort to emancipate the Church from all the evil influence of the societies mentioned above; by giving the people a society in the Church that will care for their sick and bury their dead.

Second. It is an effort to protect the ministry by organizing ourselves together in order to raise by an assessment a stated sum to be paid to superannuate preachers, instead of turning them out without any means of support, only a few dollars each year from the Annual Conference.

Third. It is an effort to unite our members for the protection of our homes, so that when a brother dies leaving his family in a home only partly paid for, that we can by the small assessment of 40 cents raise $800, which will enable the wife and children to save their home, or where the husband dies and leaves his family in a rented home, that we may raise $900, and by the aid or with aid of the pastor and presiding elder, purchase a home for the widow and children, and thereby counteract the influence of the societies to which we object. Break their hold on the people and make the church the temporal and social friend of the people as well as their spiritual friend.

[Though we do not assume any responsibility for the sentiments held by our correspondents yet, we wish to say that there is more truth than fiction in what our correspondent, Rev. L. N. Taylor, has to say concerning the morals of men, too frequently found in control of of societies, and of the seeming disregard these societies often manifest toward the Church, the Sabbath and the ministry. We commend his letter to the careful consideratoin of our readers.]

"The Little Rock Conference approved the action of the General Conference, which convened in the city of Philadelphia, Pa., last May by the appointment of Rev. M. W. Taylor, D. We pledge ourselves to faithfully use every effort to give it a larger and wider circulation among our people."

Letters from the Pastors.

Rev. C. P. Westbrooks, pastor at Waco, Texas, writes: "I entered my work Dec. 11, 1884. Like all other ministers, strange faces were presented, great inquiries made as to who he is and where did he come from? I found the people in great hopes of accomplishing more the coming year than ever before, yet I was a little surprised to find the headquarters of Waco district (that is St. James) without a parsonage, and really no where to put their minister. Nevertheless, I called the officials together and we talked business, after which the lumber was put on the ground, carpenters contracted with and painters employed. Feb. 4, 1885, finds Waco with a parsonage of four rooms, and their pastor and family comfortably situated. I think that Waco will, in a few years, lead the charges of the West Texas Conference. The parsonage is not only a model for the West Texas Conference but for any in the State. The people of Waco treat their pastor and family very kindly. The leaders seem to do all they can to make us happy. Mrs. Westbrook, whose heart is deeply interested in the work of the Methodist Episcopal Church, takes great pleasure in tendering to the people of St. James her influence, prayers and sympathies to God and the world in their interest. We do not feel discouraged, but thoroughly determined to bring this people to the front. Elder W. H. Davis was with us February 7-8. We had a lovely quarterly conference. He addressed the Sabbath school at 9 o'clock a. m., then at 3 p. m. preached an interesting sermon, and also preached at 7:45 p. m., after which the sacrament was administered to 130 persons. The elder's collection was $26.46. He is much beloved by this people. We will meet you at the fountain that pours forth its crystal stream. Pray that God may bless us this year."

Rev. F. Reader, pastor at Hubbard City, Hill county, Texas, writes: "The first quarterly conference convened at Antioch, Rev. W. H. Davis, our presiding elder, was on hand, and we had a good time. On Sunday, March 1, the elder preached a soul reviving sermon from 11th chapter of Hebrews, at the close of which the sacrament was duly administered. The elder preached again Sunday night; he is greatly beloved by all the people. On Monday night he spoke from the text, "Go forward." His discourse was on education, telling us how to live virtuously and upright. The members of the church awoke out of a deep sleep and cried out, 'We now see the light of the Gospel as we never have seen it before; and we believe this is the true light.' The elder's collection was $2.05. We shall do better in the future than we have in the past."

Rev. Frank Walker writes from Morgan City, La.: "I am thankful that I am again on my work. I arrived here on Feb. 3 and found a willing people, and they received me gladly. The number of members were 12 to start with, and a Sabbath-school numbering 46. I can speak well of this Sabbath-school. I preached on the Sabbath after my arrival, and the church gave me money to move my family here from Mansfield. I got here with them on the 13th, and as I was going to have family prayer and go to bed there was a band of brethren and sisters interrupted us by coming in singing, "Who is that coming; don't you grieve after me;" thus they entered my room, set the table out, and put thereon a plenty of good things for their pastor and family; and, like good Methodists, they took up another collection, put it on the table, and so filled my heart with joy and left wife laughing and giving glory to God. This makes my tenth year in the Louisiana Conference. I never was more encouraged."

The present Indiana Legislature indefinitely postpones all temperance bills.

Letters From the Laity.

Isaac Scott, secretary, Mount Carmel Chapel, writes. "This church is about 7 miles northeast of Clinton, La. Our first quarterly conference was held Feb. 26. Rev. S. Priestley, our new presiding elder, presided. The Spirit of God was felt in the conference. Elder Priestley seems to be in earnest, his words to us were enconraging. Said he, "I came to carry this work on from where Elder Landry left off." He seemed to be careful not to say too much at one time."

A Few Thoughts on "The Freedman's Case in Equity."

BY JAMES D. KENNEDY, ESQ.

I take it that most, if not all of those present have read the admirable paper of George W. Cable, in the Century for January, 1885. It will not be amiss for me to remark for the benefit of those who have not, and who perhaps do not know the author, that he is a Louisianian by birth, a native of this city and an ex-confederate soldier. That he has obtained celebrity in the world of letters, and in literary walks his most bitter opponents can not deny. The fire that he has drawn for his bold utterances proves conclusively that he wields a Damascian blade, that he has the courage of his convictions, notwithstanding the fact that the influences which surrounded his youth and manhood were antagonistic to the ideas that he advances to-day, and are still antagonistic if the tone of the Southern press can be taken as a criterion.

George W. Cable has undertaken a bold thing in his defense of the Negro, a thing that nine white men ont of every ten, with his birth and learning, would not undertake. He says in substance, the Negro has a case in equity, that the privileges of public comfort, such as theatres, hotels, cars, and other places are denied him, and argues that this is due to prejudice on account of his previous condition and color. This, he denounces as a wrong; this, he depicts as an injustice. In this he is right and for this he must win the undying love of all who worship and honor those who strike a blow in our defense, whether it be in the field of letters or on the field of battle. The inference to be drawn from his article is that Negro citizenship is a mockery and the acknowledgement of his rights a fraud. In that he is right. In a word, he has put before the country in bold, living letters of truth, the actual condition and position of the Negro to-day. What that condition and position is, we know; what it will be belongs to the future. Whether the rights that he says ought to be accorded will be, remains to be seen. One thing is certain however, that the Negro question, as he puts it, is "the greatest social problem before the American people." The question then naturally follows. "Does it benefit the Negro to be the subject of contest, conjecture, agitation and speculation? Does it advance his interest? Does it enhance his value? Does it bring to him the potent force, so necessary to claim and maintain success? Does it bring to him education, without study; money, without work, or standing politically, without an effort on his part to defend it? I think not, and moreover I assert the best thing that could befall the race, would be for the dominant class to let them severely alone. Throw them upon their own responsibilities, their own resources, their own manhood and capabilities for intelligent citizenship. It would then be either "sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish." No longer the foot-balls of men parties, no longer the slaves of former days. As Mr. Cable well puts it, the government that gave the Negro his freedom, enfranchisement and citizenship has turned its back upon him. To use his own words, "The popular mind in the old free States, weary of strife at arm's length, bewildered by its complications, vexed by many a blunder, eager to turn to the cure of other evils, has retreated from its uncomfortable attitude and thrown the matter over to the States of the South." And here the Negro stands. Here he must work out his salvation, here he must live or die.

He, he is suffering from the reflex influences and memories of those days. Here in my judgment, he ought to build a monument of advancement over that scene of degradation. The very atmosphere that he breathes ought to be an incentive for holier aims, higher objects and grander achievements. It would be the capstone of the monument, that will eventually be erected to his memory, and it will do more in generations to come to prove to his Anglo-Saxon brethren, whose slavery a few centuries ago was ten times more bitter and galling than his, that like them the Negro can rise from the ashes of his degradation and like them achieve wonders in all that goes to make up intelligent manhood and womanhood.

Strange it seems, but nevertheless true, that every time this Negro problem presents itself, (and it will not down), the people who profited and perhaps suffered most (the Southern whites) always combat the idea of equality of rights with the prejudice and ignorance of wrong. Gayarre, Louisiana's historian, in his answer to Cable, in one of our home papers, and even the home papers themselves in leading editorials, pushes forward the bugbear of social equality and miscegenation in answer to his plea for common rights. Perhaps it has never occurred to him or them that the presence of the "hybrids" as they call them, or the people of mixed blood, is not so much an example of the depravity of Negro woman, as it is the bestiality of Southern white men. It has never occurred to him or them that the very thing abhorred, is the very thing practiced by those who are loudest in denunciation. This matter however will regulate itself. No rule can govern it, no legislation can control it, no statute can define or describe it. Cable did not mean this in his paper, nor would the people he defends desire it; what he maintains is what we desire; equal public privileges and better treatment, not as Negroes, but as citizens. Cable, with Southern instincts and proclivities, like Sumner and Garrison in anti-slavery days, is ahead of his time. Like them he is the leader of the more enlightened public sentiment, and like their victory, the cause that he has espoused will ultimately triumph. I look upon him as an instrument in the hands of God. The culture, the training, the education, his very truth and standing is a monument of God's goodness, and the cause in which he has enlisted all those excellencies, and qualities is heaven-born.

I do not know the man. I have never seen him, but I can never forget his burning words or fail to remember the shafts of envy, hatred those words have engendered. He is the pioneer of public opinion on the latest social problem. The Negro has a case in equity, and the Negro has one earnest advocate and defender in the person of George W. Cable.

Pittsburgh Correspondence.

These are the days when in this latitude men go clad in divers garments of fur and wool seeking the monster who makes remarks about the weather when the words freeze as soon as spoken. Yes, it has been somewhat cool here for the past month or so. I suppose that during the last three weeks the mercury has averaged about zero. This morning as I write it stands at nine degrees below, with no prospect of anything warmer. Some one of our papers here recently printed a squib to the effect that in Mobile when the thermometer gets down to forty above it is called a blizzard; while in Montana everybody hurrahs for the January thaw, when the mercury rises to zero.

From a friend, who was in New York at the recent meeting of the Book Committee, I heard that one gentleman from New Orleans, had left there for New York, when the vegetables were growing finely in his garden, and had come up North to find the weather uncomfortably near the zero mark.

The Exposition in your city is exciting more and more of interest here, as witness the fact that so many of our people are attending it. Some two or three of our neighboring ministers are there now, and the wife of Rev. Dr. Taylor, president of Beaver College, was a passenger on the ill-fated Belle of Shreveport when she sunk in the Mississippi.

Since my last letter I have good cause for believing that times are are becoming somewhat better. Since then many thousands of idle men have been able to go to work, and there are prospects of a general brightening up before long. Pittsburgh has not escaped the insane ravings of the so-called anarchists who have been so busy (with their tongues) even since the the Parliament House explosions. From the way they talk one would be led to suppose that we are living here over a sleeping volcano which will at some unwary moment give us a good chance to make astronomical observations at short range. There has been a very serious proposition entered to inmure the anarchists within the city's gas tanks, and thus to save the vast amount of that useful article which they give out so constantly; and speaking of gas reminds me that the natural gas question has assumed a new phase since I last wrote you. It appears that natural gas is a hard thing to keep after you once have it, as it can walk right through any ordinary castiron pipe with the greatest ease. Two or three companies have filled our streets with pipes, and withal none of them too well laid. The result is that large quantities of gas are wandering about in various parts of our city seeking whom they may destroy.

On the last day of January a gentleman out in Penn avenue two or three miles, went down into his cellar with a lighted lamp. There was a leak in the pipes out on the street and the gas had filled all the cellars in the neighborhood, and being odorless it was not discovered until the time of which I write. This gentleman went down into the cellar, discovered the gas, very quickly ascended out of it again, and was landed away down the street in a very battered condition along with more or less of the debris of nine houses, which were badly damaged by three almost instantaneous explosions. The one redeeming feature of the whole affair was that some two or three saloons were scattered pretty effectually over a large expanse of territory. Of the twenty or more persons injured I have in mind the case of the driver of a coal-wagon, who was blown from his wagon seat, through the large glass windows of a drug store, and landed at the feet of a physician. The injured man was the first of the twenty to arrive at the store for treatment.

This Centennial winter of Methodism seems to have awakened the Church most gloriously here. At Gallipolis, in Ohio, over five hundred conversions have occurred, while a grand revival of religion is sweeping the Ohio valley and West Virginia. The issue of our Advocate here for February 7th, contained reports from 41 charges of 2043 conversions and accessions. 18 others did not give any number, but if they had done so and had been as good as those who did there would have been about three thousand conversions reported in one week from four conferences, which, not very many decades back, were one.

Mr. George Cable and Mark Twain were in Pittsburgh not long ago giving "readings." They are each making, it is authoritatively stated, three thousand dollars a week, which is something better for the former of the two than the salary which he received when a clerk in New Orleans. So far as I can judge from my reading his case is no exception to the rule that a man is always greater the further away from home he gets, for I understood that Mr. Cable is considered a "humbug" by the people of the Cresent City, and especially by the inhabitants of the creole quarter of it. What We Love.

AY REV. H. J. WRIGHT.

The children of the Reaper's Missionary Society heald by Sister Lotta Phenix, a worker for God, along with Sisters Jeannette Jefferson, Cornelia Hason and Emma Block, all missionaries held a secret meeting for some purpose, foreign to us they condecended to give a supper, but for what purpose we did not question; but satisfied ourselves that it was for the Christmas tree. The little ones kept their purpose secretly and closely. We attended the supper at Sister Phenix's comfortable home. The little, middle and grown folks and we enjoyed ourselves along with our better half and the little ones nicely, and everything passed off smoothly; and $23 was realized with no expense whatever. As the children—my children—I must say, know how, what and when to give. Imagine my surprise, when Bro. G. W. Duncan, a father in Isreal, presented me the $23, for my own use, on my salary in behalf of the children. I could not realize it to be a fact, as I am not accustomed to them surprising me in this way, although, it is very acceptable, because we love it. Now dear girls and boys, you requested me to write to our SOUTHWESTERN and ask the editor to put it in, that others may follow suit. I knew the other pastors would be gald and love their surprises as I do mine. Then we would say let them come, for we love them. Now children read your paper and you will see what I have said about you and you will be made glad. Do so again. If the older ones wont get up your salary give the children a chance, pastors.

On last Sunday, Nov. 16th, 1884, we dedicated our church at New Town, a colored settlement seven miles from here, we had a right good crowd present. We were assisted by Revs. Charley Crockett, J. P. Calvin, D. K. Mickelberry and A. N. Hamilton. We had a splendid time. The pastor preached the dedication sermon, from I. Kings 8: 27. This house is 42x27, 1 story and a new house and as good a house as ever we saw in the pine-woods; and our people here are loyal to the church. They are home farmers and own their little farms, living independent, and as men ought to live. It is true there is not a half of a crop but the people have their homes, and something to eat. Times never were so close but they were good enough to be able to give to God a place in their midst for His holy presence, this we like. Collection $8.50.

A Special Plea.

Within a few days I shall have sent out, since the current school year began, over $15,000 for loans to students in the different literary and theological institutions of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The largest sum loaned to any individual is $100; many receive only $50, and some only $25, or less. These loans have gone to aid and encourage about 350 young men and women, all of whom are members of our Church, having been trained in our Sunday-schools, and recommended in the highest terms as striving for a thorough education to qualify themselvs for Christain usefulness. Most of them are already consecrated to the work of the ministry or of missions. A few expect to devote their lives to teaching. In nearly every case, without the aid rendered by the Board of Education, they either not have entered the schools, or could not continue in them through the year. As strongly put by one of our college Presidents, these small loans, superadded to their own efforts, settle the question of "education or no education." How well it is that in such crisal moments of human lives the Church should step in as a loving mother to help her own children!

In spending the amount named for the object stated, the Board of Education has gone to the very extent of its prerogatives, being as yet required by its charter to fund all collections received from the churches and Sunday-schools, and use the interest only. As authorized by the late General Conference, it now has a bill before the Legislature of the State of New York which, if passed, will enable it to use the collections of 1885 and subsequent years for the purpose named. But in the meantime a considerable number of students whom, with the above amounts, it has not been able to reach, may be obliged to leave the schools unless help for them can be obtained promptly.

I am authorized by the Board to increase the amount of money already loaned by all that can be secured from the repayment of loans heretofore made or from special donation for this particular object. I therefore earnestly plead for funds from both these sources in behalf of promising students in nearly part of the Church. A more certain way of doing good can hardly be offered to any one. All money sent will at once be invested in consecrated heart and brain, and, as a rule, may be expected to return every few years to be reinvested in like manner.

In addition to urgent applications for this species of aid from nearly all our schools in this country, I have on file even more urgent ones from our missionary training-schools in Norway and Sweden, and am expecting similar ones from Mexico, Japan, and India, every one of which will have to be postponed unless special aid shall be sent to me with which to meet this special emergency. This state of things is owing to new and enlarged development of educational spirit among us, and to the special adaptation of the plans of the Board of Education to foster it.

My estimate now is that if from $3,000 to $5,000 additional help shall come in the ways proposed we can go through the year as originally hoped, aiding to an appreciable extent every worthy student in our schools, who from a churchly point of view, strictly needs help.

But if the desired help shall not come, all applications from the first of January forward will have to be postponed till the opening of the next scool year, in hopes that by means of general and liberal collections in the month of June all may then be provided for. But as time, at the educational period of life, is worth more than money, it is hoped that liberal friends will respond to this appeal, so that not all, if any, will have to lose a half year.

Repayments or donations of any amount will be thankfully received, and all special donations will be acknowledged in the published reports of the Board of Education.

Hobbies of the Hygienists.

There were several dozen of the hygienists in council, each with his individual hobby. Each thought all the others were wrong. Each was sure that his own hobby was the only correct one. A gentleman present said he had taken Brown's Iron Bitters for debility and dyspepsia, and, though he didn't want to make a fuss about it, he knew the use of this great tonic to be better than all the notions he had heard advanced in the council. One practical cure is worth thousands of guesses and notions. Thousands of happy convalescents speak gratefully of Brown's Iron Bitters.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Christmas Day in Cawnpore.

From a private letter we are permitted to make the following extract, which gives a good picture of the way Christmas is spent among Christians in a heathen land: "Christmas Day was very full; first thing in the morning came the distribution of prizes among the boys in the Industrial school; then Hindustani service, Dr. Johnson preaching; then English service, with a sermon from Bishop Hurst; then the Sunday-school tamasha (celebration) in the Memorial School building, by far the most orderly and satisfactory one we have had. A thousand children, regular attendants, two or three hundred "hangers on" were not permitted to enter the building. The singing was by schools, consequently much better than formerly. We can appreciate that statement, for our ears have been deafened by the indescribable noises produced by the lungs of the whole company exerted at one time.) The prize boys, one hundred of them, sat on benches in front and were catechized. Among the children were about forty girls, heathen and [illegible]. Think of that! We had made no special provision for them, but they came and sat by themselves up in front and seemed to enjoy it. There are not more than three schools now in which there are not a greater or less number of girls, regular attendants with their brothers and neighbors. That means progress! The native Christians made a good show in the examinations, and were provided with seats in the assembly. They were much better pleased than ever before. Then we had the jugglers for the Bishop's delectation, who was hugely amused. The day ended with a company of 24 Americans meeting to dine at Miss Easton's at the Girls School in Cawnpore.

Work Among the Tarocs in India.

Dr. Humphrey writes of continued interest among this most interesting people. He was about to organize [illegible] Taroc schools, the first to be [illegible], and had thirteen more in view in the course of a week. The hope of reaching this race is largely in connection with these boys in school. It is most cruel to see the [illegible] with which they listen to the teaching. There is [illegible] that the Government will assume charge of these schools in which case no [illegible] will be given. The people are now so open to it [illegible] be a great pity not to [illegible] opportunity. After [illegible] and needful term of [illegible] in the Hills, finding his [illegible] unequal to the trying [illegible] appointment upon the [illegible] Dr. Humphrey [illegible] re-transferred [illegible] the North; [illegible] he expects to [illegible] his old friends in [illegible] ripe.

Work in Mississippi.

Rev. J. C. Eckles writes regarding the "White Work" in Mississippi: "There is a very large [illegible] country between the R. Wa. (L. [illegible] and B. & O.) formerly [illegible] Choctaw county. Recently it has been divided forming [illegible] Montgomery & [illegible]. During the late [illegible], with the few exceptions [illegible] Many people, Many of the [illegible] were promoted into service. Many refugeed, and others [illegible] out. Pastors for two years [illegible] in the woods when Our [illegible] were in the vicinity [illegible]. Those who had been members of other churches [illegible] without ceremony, and for several years they were without Church privileges.

[illegible] you know are very [illegible]. Many of them have never had school privileges and, of course, can neither read [illegible]. There are those who have grown up in those pine woods [illegible] never seen a railroad, [illegible] have no idea of what a telegraph or telephone is, and I presume have never so much as heard that there is such thing as telephone or telegraph. They live in log or board houses, very open, raise a few acres of cotton or corn, a very few vegetables, go to the R. R. (30 or 40 miles distant) about twice a year, trade their produce for sugar, coffee, tea, tobacco, shoes and sometimes other articles of clothing, returning with a few dollars with which they settle their accounts with the country merchant, and then they will be without money until the next "cotton picking." Whiskey and tobacco are as common as corn pone. Whilst few of our members use whisky yet in common with other people they use tobacco in all its forms. Men, women and children, yes children at the age of six years, all use tobacco.

Practically they have no schools. They have a free school system which allows them two months school in the year, but these are located from four to ten miles apart. Their teachers are incompetent. To be able to read and write and to "cipher" a little, is abundant evidence of a qualification for a "school master." I intend to keep knocking at the door of the Church treasury till I get help for my poor people.

An Apology.

BY C. C. M'CABE.

We wish to make an apology to the Methodist Episcopal Church for not adding to the appeal for a million dollars for missions the words "for the year 1885."

It seemed to us that sum might be raised within the quadrennium—but we stand rebuked for our timid faith. The needs are great; they are pressing beyond all the power of language to tell; but we thought it would take about four years to make the Methodist people hear the cry for help that comes from our Mission fields all the world over, and from the South and West of our country, where three thousand home missionaries draw their support in whole or in part from our treasury.

On the fifteenth of February, at Spring Garden Street Church Philadelphia,—Rev. George W Miller, pastor,—the collection, including the amount from the Sabbath-school, footed up $5,000. One of the gentlemen who had subscribed most liberally said to me: "Bring the collections up to a million this year and I will double my subscription." The congregation were told of this, and another gentleman came forward and made the same proposal. These offers were mentioned elsewhere, and every man approached on the subject responded favorably. Already we have a goodly sum of conditional pledges to be paid if we raise with their help one million dollars for missions this year.

What year is this! It is the first year of the second century of organic Methodism upon the American continent. It would be a good way to begin a century—raising a million dollars for Missions. Let us do it. Don't say anything about "spasmodic giving." I have known men to give a hundred dollars for Church Extension, in a gale of enthusiasm, who went up to ten thousand dollars in cool blood after they learned what had been done with their money.

Did you ever hear anything about spasmodic fighting? A few hundred men struggling up the Heights of Abraham, on the 13th of September, 1759, had a spasm of enthusiasm for the flag of old England, and up they went, and they wrested a continent from Romanism and handed it over to Protestantism and the Bible forever.

We Methodists are not as well drilled as we ought to be. We all know that, and God knows it too. But let us go up on the Plains of Abraham by a "double-quick" march, and drill better after we get there.

The responses of the Presiding Elders to our appeal for a million are full of good cheer. They come to us from the cities of the East, from the prairies of the West, from the slopes of the Rocky Mountains, and from the Sunny South. Never can they know what an inspiring effect these replies have had upon the Board itself.

Now, therefore, let the words "In the year 1885" be added to the appeal for a million dollars. Let every one who will unite in this effort write a letter informing us how much he will give, in addition to the contribution he has made or will make in his own congregation, to see a million dollars raised for the cause of Missions in the year 1885. A book will be opened immediately. There will be space in it to record the names and subscriptions of the eleven thousand pastors, and twenty-one thousand Sabbath-school superintendents, and all the laity who shall respond. The fund will be called the "Guarantee fund." Rain in the letters. Let us have a thousand every day.

On the 15th day of October we will figure up and tell you how we stand, and inform you whether you will have to pay your subscriptions.

If the cash reported by the treasurer, plus the amount of these conditional pledges, foots up a million dollars, you will have ten days in which to give or raise the amount pledged. Pastors may pledge themselves to raise or give, as they please. We will record subscriptions from one dollar up to ten thousand dollars. Why not? Twenty men gave ten thousand dollars each to the Loan Fund of Church Extension, why not for Missions?

Now we are in for it—Let us have a Centennial Missionary Collection of One Million Dollars with which to begin a new century—and God grant that long before this century shall close, the world's great carnival of sin and blood may be over forever, and the time come when "there shall be nothing to hurt nor destroy in all God's holy mountain; for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea."

Forty Eighth Congress.

During the two sessions of the Forty-eighth Congress there have been introduced in the House 8286 bills and 345 joint resolutions. The following named measures of general importance have been enacted into laws: To establish a bureau of labor; to establish a bureau of animal industry, to prevent the exportation of diseased cattle, and to provide for the suppression and extirpation of pleuro-pneumonia and other contagious diseases among domestic animals; to repeal the test oath act of 1862; to limit the time in which prosecution may be begun against persons for violations of internal revenue laws; to establish a bureau of navigation in the Treasury Department; to grant letter carriers at free delivery offices fifteen days' leave of absence, with pay, in each year; to provide a retired list for soldiers and marines who have served continuously for thirty years or upward; to reduce the rate of postage on newspaper and other periodical publications of the second class, when sent by others than publisher or news agent, to one cent for each four ounces; to remove certain burdens from the American merchant marine (the Dingley shipping bill); to provide a civil government for Alaska; to prevent and punish counterfeiting in United States bonds or other securities of a foreign government; to extend the duration of the Court of Commissioners of Alabama Claims; to make all public roads and highways post roads; to make it felony for any person to personate an officer or employe of the United States, acting under the authority of the United States or any department thereof; to relieve from the charge of desertion certain soldiers of the late war who, after having served faithfully until the close of the war, left their commands without leave; to provide for the location of a branch home for disabled soldiers of the Mexican war and war of 1812, whose disabilities were not incurred in service against the United States; to recognize the corps of Judge Advocates of the army; to declare forfeited certain lands granted to aid the construction of railroad and telegraph lines from Portland to Astoria, Or.; to reorganize the inspectors of the general department of the army; to provide for the ascertainment of claims of American citizens for spoliations committed by the French prior to July 31, 1801, by referring them to the Court of Claims.

The following important bills have been sent to the President for his approval: Bills to prohibit the importation and migration of foreigners and aliens under contract or agreement to perform labor in this country; to declare the forfeiture of lands granted to aid the construction of Texas Pacific Railroad, and to prevent the unlawful occupation of public lands.

Among the important measures yet remaining in the conference committees upon points of difference between the Houses are the House bill to repeal the pre-emption and timber culture laws; a bill to forfeit lands granted Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Company, and the House bill to provide for the settlement of claims of officers and enlisted men of the army for private property destroyed in the service of the United States.

The more important measures which have come before this Congress for action and failed are as follows: The Morrison tariff bill to reduce import duties and war taxes; the McPherson bill to provide for the issue of circulating notes to national banks; the Blair bill to provide for the establishment and temporary support of common schools; the bill to provide for the collection of statistics relating to marriage and divorces; the bill to provide for the performance of the duties of the President of the United States in case of the death, removal, resignation or inability of the President or Vice President; a proposition to suspend the coinage of standard silver dollars; the substance of House bill to provide an appropriation for the commencement of work on the Pennsylvania Canal; House bill to provide for the restoration of Fitz John Porter to the army, passed both houses, but was vetoed; House bill to authorize the purchase by citizens of the United States, and the admission free of duty, of foreign-built ships for use in foreign carrying trade; Senate bill to provide for a copyright for newspaper articles; House bill to provide that hereafter appointments of Governors of Territories should be limited to persons who have been residents of said Territories for at least two years; Senate joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution to provide that the right of citizens to vote shall not be denied or abridged on account of nativity; bill to provide for the establishment of a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States: House bill to provide pensions for veterans of the Mexican war; House joint resolution to provide for the appointment of a commission on the alcoholic liquor traffic; bill to establish a board of commissioners on interstate commerce, and the bill to provide for counting the electoral vote.

Of measures of general interest introduced during the lifetime of this Congress, which will fail of final action, a large number passed one house, but did not pass the other, and many hundreds have never got further than the calendars of the House in which they originated and will die there, while a great many have never even been reported from the committee to which they were referred. The bill to to punish bigamy (the Hoar anti-polygamy bill) passed the Senate, but failed in the House.

Among the bills which passed the House, but failed to pass the Senate, are the following: To declare the forfeiture of unearned railroad land grants; to amend the Thurman act and provide for the investment of the sinking fund of Pacific railroads and for the settlement of their accounts with the government; to establish a department of agriculture and to regulate forms of bills of lading and liabilities of shipowners in regard thereto.

Among the measures reported upon favorably by committee, without further action, are the following:

For the establishment of a United States court in the Indian Territory; to prohibit the use of the mails to newspapers containing lottery advertisements; to provide for the admission of Southern Dakota as a State; to provide for the inspection of meats intended for exportation, and to prohibit the importation of adulterated articles of food and drink, and to authorize the President to prohibit importations in certain cases; making an appropriation to defray the expenses of a military exploration of Alaska; to declare forfeited unearned portions of the land grant of the Northern Pacific Railway; to prevent the acquisition of real property in this country by aliens; to prohibit the hiring out of the labor of United States prisoners under contract; to provide for the adjustment of accounts of laborers under the eight hour law, and to provide for the survey of a water route to connect Lake Michigan with Detroit river.

Several investigating committees sat during the session, but the result of their labors have been fully reported from time to time.—Times-Democrat.

What You Say.

"There are so many frauds advertised for the hair," you say. So there are, but Parker's Hair Balsam is not one of them. It will not work miracles, but it will do better service for your hair than anything else you can find. Restores original color, cures dandruff, gives new growth. Elegantly perfumed. Not a dye.

The Fall of Kartoum.

At last the news of the death of General Gordon is confirmed by what seem to be reliable dispatches from the Soudan. The details of his death are given as follows: "On the day of the capture, which is variously stated as the 26th and 27th of January, General Gordon's attention was attracted by a tremendous tumult in the streets. He left the so-called palace, or government building, in which he had made his head-quarters, to ascertain the cause of this disturbance. Just as he reached the street he was stabbed in the back and fell dead. The tumult was caused by the Mahdi's troops, who had gained access to the interior of the town through treachery, and were soon in complete possession of the place, including the citadel. A fearful massacre of the garrison followed. The scenes of slaughter are described as surpassing the Bulgarian atrocities and rivaling the worst horrors of the Sepoy mutiny. The panic-stricken Egyptians were captured in their flight and put to death in the most fiendish torture. Most of the victims were mutilated in a most horrible manner. Their eyes were gouged out, noses slit, and tongues torn out by the roots. In many cases mutilated parts of the victim's bodies were thrust into their mouths while they were still living. The massacre included many non-combatants, and Egyptian women were subjected to the most shameful indignities. More than one hundred women and young girls were given over to the Mahdi's followers to be used as slaves. After the slaughter many Arabs were seen rushing about the streets with the heads of Egyptians impaled upon spears. The next night was spent in a saturnalia of blood and debauchery. Since the capture of Kartoum the Mahdi has repaired the fortifications and made the place well-nigh impregnable. He has made it his permanent head-quarters, and is said to have abundance of guns, small arms, and ammunition.

A Husband's Greatest Blessing
Is a strong, healthful, vigorous wife with a clear, handsome complexion. These can all be acquired by using Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic.

A card from Rev. Maxwell P. Gaddis, Sr.: As I am now in the fiftieth year of my ministry, and no longer able to preach, I take great pleasure in publishing, occasionally, in a cheap form something that will aid my brethren in building up and advancing the cause of God in the world. With this view and with a single eye to the glory of God, I have just published in a 12mo, pamphlet of forty pages, Bishop R. S. Foster's grand sermon before the delegates at the opening of the Centennial Conference at Baltimore, December 10, 1884. Also a brief account of the interesting closing exercises of the Love feast at Baltimore, December 19, 1884, in the "sunsetting" of one hundred years of Methodism in America, including the beautiful, clear and practical farewell address of the venerable Dr. Frederick Merrick of the Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio. I will send a copy to ministers and laymen by mail, prepaid, for twelve cents in postage stamps. Address me at Dayton, Ohio, Post Office box 224.

A Remarkable Case.

Mrs. Henry Ellis, 500 Scott street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, writes: "DR. S. B. HARTMAN & CO., COLUMBUS, O.: I am induced by a sense of duty to the suffering to make a brief statement of your remarkable cure of myself. I was a most miserable sufferer from the various annoying and distressing diseases of delicate persons, which caused me to be confined to my bed for a long time, being too weak to even bear my weight upon my feet. I was treated by the most reputable physicians in our city, each and all saying they could do nothing for me. I had given up all hopes of ever being well. In this condition I began to take your MANALIN and PERUNA, and I am most happy to say in three months I was perfectly well—entirely cured, without any appliances or support of any kind."

Mr. G. A. Proehl, New Portage, Summit County, Ohio, writes: "My wife has been sick for about five years. In the first place the doctor called it leucorrhœa, and treated it about one year, and she grew worse, and turned to ulceration of the womb, and was treated for that two years, but she grew worse and the doctor gave her up. Then I employed Dr. Underwood, one of the best doctors of Akron, but under his treatment she grew worse. She was paralyzed; she had lost all of the sense of feeling and her eyesight. She could not walk for nearly two years. About six months ago Underwood gave her up. She tried your PERUNA. She has taken three bottles, and it did more good than any other medicine. The paralysis has about left her; her eyesight is getting better. We will continue the use of PERUNA until she is well."

Mr. Isaac Nicodemus, Schellsburg, Bedford County, Pa., writes: "I am induced, by a sense of duty to the suffering, to make a brief statement of your remarkable cure as a sufferer of catarrh in my head and throat. I doctored with one of the best physicians in our place for that dreaded disease, catarrh, and found no relief. But in 1883 I lost my speech, and was not able to do any kind of work for near three months. I could neither eat nor sleep. PERUNA and MANALIN did wonders for me. I used three bottles of PERUNA and one of MANALIN, and now I am in better health than I have been for ten years, and I can heartily recommend your medicine to all suffering from that dread disease, catarrh."

Mr. F. W. Wood, Mt. Sterling, Ohio, says: "Your medicine gives good satisfaction. My customers speak highly of its curative properties."

THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1885.

Prominent Living Colored Men of Louisiana.

A brief mention of some of the colored men who have acquired prominence is all that shall be attempted on this occasion.

GOVERNOR PINCHBACK

Is, by common consent, placed at the head of the list. He has been charged with higher official trusts, and had more opportunities to display the qualities of statesmanship than others of his race. He has always made friends and retained them, outside of the political party to which he was allied, and by reason of his acknowledged tact and ability as a leader of men. Under the reconstruction government of Louisiana he rose from the position of State Senator to the Chief Executive office, and was finally elected a U. S. Senator. His title was good, but considerations best known to a Republican Senate, though never satisfactorily explained to his constituents, deprived him of the seat. When Gov. Nicholls came into office with the first Democratic administration, he called Gov. Pinchback to his counsel on matters affecting the colored people, and conferred a position of honor upon him, and places of emolument for friends. He is now Surveyor of the port of New Orleans, and Democrats have petitioned President Cleveland for his retention in office. He is in the prime of life, has devoted friends, and is a definite factor of Louisiana politics.

COL. ANDREW J. DUMONT

Is a younger man, but can rank only second to Mr. Pinchback in ability and prominence. For a number of years he has served as chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee, and has consequently been a conspicuous figure in every political campaign. He is a native of Louisiana, was a commissioned officer of the French army in Mexico during the intervention and attempt to place Maximilian upon a throne. He afterward engaged in business in Mexico, but subsequently returned to New Orleans, and almost immediately engaged in politics. In national and State conventions of his party Colonel Dumont has been characterized as a bold and intrepid leader. He is Naval Officer of the port, but will doubtless be succeeded by a Democrat, and retire to private life.

Next in order it is safe to place

GEN. JAMES LONGSTREET

He resigned his commission in the Federal army during the war because of indignities to which colored officers were subjected by the whites. Among the numerous civil offices which he has filled the most notable is that of Administrator of the Department of Improvements in the municipal government of New Orleans. To this position he was elected, having for a competitor the distinguished Confederate Gen. P. G. T. Beauregard. He received a large number of conservative votes, and his administration of the office was efficient and praiseworthy, in fact, no successor has ever attained so high a degree of public esteem. With the same fidelity he held the Naval Office for a number of years, from which he was removed mainly because he declined to misrepresent the colored people of Louisiana and firmly espoused the cause of Gen. Grant for a re-nomination. A few months ago he was appointed Surveyor General, and if the new Administration is desirous of retaining a clean and safe representative of the colored people Colonel Longstreet would be that man, and could well be retained or given a foreign mission.

HENRY DEMAS,

State Senator and colored Commissioner to the World's Exposition for Louisiana, as a humble freedman was elected to the Lower House of the General Assembly, where he quickly distinguished himself as a man of bright parts and a high order of natural intelligence. He was soon after elected to the State Senate, of which body he is still an influential member. He engaged in sugar planting successfully, and is to-day one of the largest planters in the State, and possesses a good standing in commercial circles. He was a candidate for Congress, second district, but was defeated because of the apathy and bad faith of the white leaders of his party.

DR. L. C. ROUDANEZ,

who is a graduate of a Parisian medical college, has a large practice as a physician among all classes of society, and was free born. He started the first Republican daily paper in the State of Louisiana, the New Orleans Tribune, published in both French and English languages, and which exercised a commanding influence upon the party before the election of the first reconstruction State government headed by Gov. Warmoth. Conservative by training and instincts, Dr. Roudanez was opposed to Gov. Warmoth, because he was a newcomer and not a native of the State. The Tribune counseled and supported an opposition ticket headed by Judge James G. Taliaferro. This course made the Tribune unpopular, and the able and lusty champion of equal rights in the days which tried men's souls sorely was suspended. Dr. Roudanez suffered a heavy financial loss in the maintenance of the Tribune. He has been warm in his sympathies for Republicanism, and is kindly esteemed. His ability and independence are traits which make him an honor to his race.

PAUL TREVIGNE,

Entrance Clerk in the Customs office, is a fine French scholar, and an old-time teacher. He was connected with the editorial staff of the Tribune, and wrote with vigor and force in behalf of his people. He is also a fair public speaker, and always an estimable gentleman whom it is a pleasure to meet.

C. C. ANTOINE

Was a member of the State Senate, and twice elected Lieutenant Governor. He served four years with the Kellogg administration, but was denied a second term by the surrender of the Packard State government, in 1877, during the settlement of the Presidential contest. He has been Assistant Gauger at the Customhouse, and is widely known and esteemed.

MAJOR J. O. LAINEZ,

Chief Clerk of the Registry Department, has been connected with the Post office nearly ever since the war. He was appointed in 1868 by Gov. Warmoth, Major of the Louisiana Volunteers and made a good record. He was at one time assistant Postmaster at New Orleans, which required of him a bond of $50,000 in gold. He furnished it without trouble. He is a good French scholar, and before the war was engaged as a teacher of that language in the school called Orphelins Indigent, third district.

CAPT. ARNOLD BERTONNEAU

Served in the Federal army with that rank, but, like Col. Lewis, refused to be treated otherwise than as comported with his rank. He was a brave soldier, and afterward a steady Republican. He possesses an excellent French education, and for years has made a valuable customs official, serving as assistant auditor.

JAMES D. KENNEDY,

Though a very young man, has been active, and distinguished himself. He was first heard from as a brilliant stump speaker in campaign service of the Republican party, and his oratory has delighted multitudes on numerous occasions. He early became acquainted with U. S. Senator W. P. Kellogg, and in Washington he was for a long time Secretary of the Senate Committee on Post-offices, of which Senator Timothy O. Howe was chairman. When Senator Howe became Postmaster General he remembered the faithful secretary and made him a post-office inspector for the States of Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas. The death of Postmaster General Howe sorely grieved Inspector Kenuedy, who at the time was on duty, and the funeral taking place at Green Bay, Wisconsin, he found it impossible to take a last grateful look on the kindly face of his esteemed friend. Later on, Mr. Kenuedy became a government warehouse superintendent in New Orleans. What may be in store for him can not be wisely predicted, but with a careful use of his talents and experience, his career should lead to higher honors over a period of many years.

J. B. GAUDET

Has held several civil offices; was on the Metropolitan police force, and recently in a post-office position. He is connected with numerous societies, by whom he is held in high regard; and is an excellent citizen of more than the average ability and talent.

DR. J. T. NEWMAN

Has, within a few years, acquired an enviable prominence. A college graduate in medicine, part of his education obtained in Europe, he entered upon the practice of his profession here, and is highly esteemed by his colored and white fellow citizens for his merits as a physician and his gentlemanly qualities. During the great yellow fever epidemic of 1878 no one labored more arduously or was entrusted with greater responsibilities than Dr. Newman. He was faithful and untiring, his patients were of all classes, but he was specially the servant of his own people. From that time, in medical associations and in practice, his standing has been assured, his profession remunerative. Several societies have elected him as their physician. Frequently, also, Dr. Newman has been called upon to indulge a keen literary taste and wield a graceful pen on subjects nearly connected with the progress and elevation of his people, and he has done so with credit.

THEOPHILE T. ALLAIN,

State Senator, of Iberville parish, has long been a member of the General Assembly, and an active participant in State politics. He is also a wealthy sugar planter.

ARISTIDE MARIE

Is without doubt the wealthiest colored man in the State, has a fair French education, and has enjoyed the luxury of foreign travel. His name has frequently been mentioned in connection with prominent official positions, and his purse and sympathies have been open for the general welfare of his people.

L. A. MARTINET

Has had a stormy career in politics. He has held several civil positions and among them was that of deputy surveyor of the port. He is a law graduate of Straight University and edited for a time the Standard, but is now in private life. Gov. Nicholls and Superintendent Lusher favored him during their administration, and regarded him as a man of excellent character.

PIERRE LANDRY,

Of Ascension, has served his parish in both Houses of the General Assembly. Were a fair election possible, he would probably continue to do so for some time to come. He is a sound man, true to party principles, yet conservative as the best interests of people require him to be. His success has been due to his steady maintainance of an unsullied character, which commands for him the esteem of citizens of all parties. Among the constituents, who voted for him in elections to the General Assembly, are many Democrats, who have relied on his faithfulness to the local interests of the entire people. In the Assembly and among State officials he has made warm friends, who pull the latch string and give him a manly greeting wherever found. His ministry in the Methodist Episcopal Church has been successful, and the last Annual Conference, after approving his efficient labors for the Church on Baton Rouge district, assigned him to larger and still more important one, the Shreveport district, on which, he is now engaged in a genuine revival of religion, and judicious care for his people.

Probably other names will occur to the reader as worthy of mention, but the present list has been confined to those of such prominence as would have made it inexcusable to overlook them. There are rising young men, a score or more, whom the people have in view, and who will probably as the occasion calls them forth, prove to be equal to the ones above mentioned. The grave has closed over gallant soldiers in war and patriots in peace, whom the faithful historian of the war, and the no less bloody period of reconstruction and renovation in the South will need to treasure up as a sacred duty to a growing, patriotic and aspiring class of the American people.

Distinguished Visitors in New Orleans.

On Wednesday morning Bishop Walden and Dr. Rust, accompanied by their ladies, arrived in New Orleans from Cincinnati, via Holly Springs. After a thorough look into our New Orleans University the gentlemen were off for a survey of our work on the Teche, and the ladies for a glance at the affairs of the Freedmen's Aid Society in the World's Fair. After a pleasant visit to Bros. Godman and Fitch the Bishop and the Doctor returned to the city of crescentric angles, and spent Friday and Saturday at hard work in the interest of the Freedman's Aid Society, of which the Bishop succeeds our beloved Bishop Wiley as president, and as all know, Dr. Rust is Corresponding Secretary. The ladies were equally active looking after and mapping out Home Missionary plans

Sunday was the great day. Its work began with a 6 o'clock converts' prayer meeting, led by Elder Dale, in Wesley Chapel, where 15 converts and 80 veterans told what the Lord had done and was still doing for them. At 11 a. m. the Bishop preached to a fair audience in the lecture room of Ames Church in spite of a driving rain. He used Phil. 3, 10-11, and illustrated with graphicness and beauty the Christian experience of St. Paul. At 3 p. m. a union meeting of the three German churches was held in First Church where the Bishop preached again, choosing Matt. 11, 27 as his text, theme: "Christ revealing God as the Father." At the same hour Dr. Rust preached to a fair house in Wesley Chapel on "Perfect love." The discourse was in the usual inimitable style of the Doctor, and was greatly enjoyed by the hearers, quite a number of whom were white people.

At night a great meeting was held at Wesley Chapel, the house, with extra seats below, was filled and the capacious gallaries were half full, from 600 to 800 persons were present. After singing and prayer by Dr. Taylor, Mrs. Rev. M. Dale introduced Mrs. Bishop Walden and Mrs. Rust in befitting words. The distinguished ladies and gentlemen were received by the congregation rising to its feet, and afterwards Mrs. Rust addressed the audience touching the work of the Ladies Home Missionary Society, followed by Bishop Walden, and the meeting closed in the usual Methodist style, with a collection, doxology and benediction. The editor introduced the gentleman, and the pastor, Rev. M. Dale, also made a brief address. On the platform, besides the distinguished guests, were also Mrs. Chapman, Miss Cowgill and Rev. L. P. Cushman, presiding elder of the district. The occasion will not be soon forgotten by our people here. It leaves a pleasant and beneficial impression generally.

Temperance Work.

Saturday, March 14th, was a great day here with the temperance people. Three great meetings were held in Werlein Hall; morning, noon and night, the host rallied. Ex-Gov. St. John, Luther Benson, this editor, Miss Willard, Mr. Nicholls, and many others delivered addresses. The enthusiasms were high, the good impressions made will, we sincerely trust, be deep, and abiding. The following ladies and gentlemen, with others, were upon the platform, viz.:

Mrs. Caroline E. Merrick, Prytania corner Napoleon Avenue, New Orleans; Mrs. Sallie F. Chapin of Charleston, South Carolina; Mrs. M. L. Wells, Indianapolis, Indiana; Mrs. Mary Read Goodale, Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Miss Francis E. Willard, Evanston, Illinois; Mary T. Lathrop, Jackson, Michigan; Miss I. C. DeVelling, Springfield, Massachusetts; Mrs. Mollie McGee Snell, Columbus, Mississippi; John P. St. John, Olathe, Kansas; Mrs. J. J. Lyons, 219 Carondelet street, New Orleans, Louisiana; Samuel D. Hastings, Madison, Wisconsin; Dr. Lester Jewett, Maryland; Nathan Jewett, Illinois; Rev. C. H. Mead, New York, special missionary of the National Temperance Society; ex-Gov. J. P. St. John, 314 St. Charles street; Marshall W. Taylor.

The Christian Observer is busy with a discussion of the proposition whether or not to turn their Negroes over to the Northern end of the Presbyterian Church, and co operate with it in its efforts for their Christian culture. Gen. Fisk has written a trenchant letter to the Methodist Episcopal Church South Quarterly Review on the Negro case in reality, and Mr. Green, in the St. Louis Christian Advocate has replied to him. "In the multitude of counsellors there is safety." We have a few reserved opinions touching this matter for later expression.

The Journal of the Louisiana Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church has just been issued from the Western Book Concern, Cincinnati, edited by Dr. Joseph C. Hartzell, Secretary of the Conference. It is well done, and is a good piece of workmanship. If the reader will turn to the top of the 252d page he will find the square and decided testimony this conference gave to the SOUTHWESTERN.

Misery loves comfort, and we find a crumb of this in the fact that at least two of the periodicals of our own Church have fewer subscribers than we; that the Christian Recorder has not so many as we, and that the Religious Telescope, a large weekly, with two editors, organ of the United Brethren, has only 12,000. Each desires and should have more.

They have now reached a construction of the civil service rules which allows the removal of active politicians of the opposite party to the Administration from office, and it is argued that the Diplomatic force, as the Cabinet, should be in political accord with the President. This means a clean sweep, just as we told our readers last November.

We hear something about the necessity England is under to break the power of the Madhi in Soudan, and restore the prestige of her arms there, lest the Mohammedans in India take courage and raise the standard of rebellion. Rebellion against whom and what? Pray, does not India belong to the Indians?

A letter from Bishop Mallalieu informs us that he will reach this city, the Lord willing, before Mar. 22, and that under the direction of Bro. Gillette a series of Sunday-school Institutes will be held in this vicinity, beginning with one in this city on that date.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Dedication of Elizabeth L. Rust Industrial Home, Holy Springs Mississippi.

Tuesday, March 10th, was a memorable day at Holly Springs, Mississippi. The new building erected on the beautiful site, owned by the Woman's Home Missionary Society, adjoining Rust University, was dedicated with impressive exercises held in the chapel, which was crowded by an audience that included some of the leading citizens of the place. This enterprise of the ladies, inaugurated last year, promises industrial training for girls, which will greatly increase the efficiency of the work of the Church in this part of the country. It will furnish that which is greatly needed, practical instruction in the industries for women.

The University at Holly Springs, during the fifteen years of its history, has accomplished a grand work. Five hundred students have been prepared for teachers or ministers, and are now doing efficient service in this and adjoining conferences, while hundreds of others trained in its classes are exerting an intelligent influence for good in the South.
